London Awaits Raids By Zeppelins and Fokker 'Planes

ALLIES' POSITION TOWARDS NEUTRAL TRADE DEFINED

LONDON BETTER PREPARED TO MEET ATTACKS FROM SKY

Raids By Zeppelins Expected by London Authorities in the Near Future

LONDON, Jan. 27.—Raids by Zeppelins and the new giant Fokker aeroplanes are expected by London authorities in the near future, it was indicated to-day by a statement published in the newspapers.

The municipal authorities at the same time served notice that London is better prepared to meet attacks from the sky than it was several months ago when Zeppelins visited the city and made their escape unharmed.

Despite official warning crowds gathered in the streets on previous Zeppelin raids on London, while shells from anti-aircraft guns were breaking in the sky and raining a deadly hail into the streets. With an increase in the number of protecting guns the authorities fear that casualties from dropping shell fragment might exceed the damage wrought by the Zeppelin bombs themselves.

GAIN HONORS IN LEGION.

Decorations and Promotions for Bravery in Fighting for France.

PARIS, Jan. 26.—Americans in the Foreign Legion of the French army have taken part in some of the roughest fighting of the war," says an officer who has been in a position to watch their work from the beginning.

The Americans of the Foreign Legion have distinguished themselves on many occasions, earning in one case an officer's stripes, and in another the cross of the Legion of Honor, while many have earned the War Cross.

"The annihilation of the Foreign Legion has been announced at different times by the Germans," the officer went on. "At an impressive review, however, which has just taken place at the front, General Gilinski presented to the Russian and Polish volunteers decorations conferred by Emperor Nicholas. The Legionaries filed past in superb alignment, preceded by their flag, which is one of the few regimental banners decorated with the Legion of Honor."

When he thinks of her as a devil he is lost and on a fair way to the devil.

Often Food Makes or Breaks

It all depends upon the kind. A common cause of lessened vigor of body and mind is improper eating.

Food should be selected that will supply sound well-balanced nourishment for the physical and mental forces, and this is richly supplied by Nature in the field grains.

Grape-Nuts

FOOD

contains all the nutritive elements of whole wheat and malted barley, including the vital mineral salts lacking in many foods that make up the usual dietary. These elements are imperative for building sturdy brain, nerves and muscle.

On Sunday morning in the Methodist Church, a reception and baptismal service will be held in order to receive either by letter or profession of faith, new members into the Church.

Presentation to Mr. Hall.

Mr. Ernest Hall, on the eve of his departure to Peterborough, where he has accepted a position in Mr. W. J. Kent's drug store, was presented by the young people and members of the Baptist Church, with a steamer trunk accompanied by the following address:

Norwood, Jan. 13, 1916.

Dear Ernest,—We, the members of the Norwood Baptist Church, take this opportunity to express our love and esteem for you.

In losing you from our Church we feel that we are losing an historic member, one who from childhood has been closely associated in all the interests of our work. The confidence and respect of the members towards you has been shown in appointing you to the important position of Clerk of the Church, and in other duties which they have entrusted to you. We have appreciated your work very much, which you have done cheerfully, willingly, and efficiently. But, above all, we esteem your fidelity to the Church, to its services, to the Sunday School and the B. Y. P. U. Society. We believe that in every department you have left a good influence, which will not be forgotten.

But the fact that you are young, and that the future is still before you, we ask you to kindly accept this word of advice and encouragement. Cultivate, if possible, a deeper and truer love for all the members of the Church, where you will be associated, and if at any time you should be tempted to forsake the Church, to neglect its services, and to lose your interest in the cause of Christ, think of Him who died to save you. Him, whom you confessed, and into whose precious name you were baptised in this Church, and in the thought of Him you will be strengthened and enabled to overcome. It will help you also to remember the home Church and that you have many friends here who will always follow you in prayer, in sympathy, and in love, and very great interest.

We are glad that for the present you are not going very far away, and we hope to see you occasionally in the services. We sincerely trust that in your new sphere of labour that God's blessing will rest upon you richly and that you may be able to accomplish much greater things in His service.

As a token of our love and respect to you, kindly accept, on behalf of the members of the Church, this gift.

Signed on behalf of the Church—Charles Waddell, Paster; Mrs. J. W. Borabeck, Choir; Alex. McNaughton, B.Y.P.U.; Ernest Patterson, S. S.

Gin Pills FOR THE KIDNEYS

What They Have Done

"I suffered a great many years with kidney trouble; tried several remedies, and also doctors' medicine, with no result.

Two years ago I read an ad. in a newspaper of "GIN PILLS FOR THE KIDNEYS," and sent for two boxes. They did me more good than all the medicine I had ever taken. After I used the first two I sent for two more boxes, and I am satisfied, and also know, that Gin Pills are the best kidney remedy made.

I used to have to rise three or four times in the night; now I can sleep and don't have to get up at all, thanks to GIN PILLS.

Am seventy-two years old.

A Splendid Concert.

The concert on Friday night in the Town Hall by the artists, Marley Sherris and Jessie Alexander, was one of the best which a Norwood audience has had the privilege of listening to for some time.

Mr. Sherris, baritone, Toronto, has an exceptionally good voice, full of volume and sweetness and the rich full tones, marked with such distinct articulation, held the audience spellbound.

As for the entertainer, Jessie Alexander, it is only necessary to hear the name to fully understand what a treat was experienced by all present.

The programme, which was given under the auspices of the local chapter of the I.O.D.E., was as follows:

Part I.

Song, 'Till the Boys Come Home,' Nordlo.
Reading, 'I Hae Changed My Mind,' Manners.
Song, 'The Admiral's Broom,' Bevan.
Reading, 'For Belgium,' J. J. Ball.
Song, 'A Little Bit of Heaven,' Ball.

Part II.

Reading, 'Sandy McNab at the Front.'
Song, 'Up from Somerset.'
Reading, 'There's Something in the British,' Shadwell.
Song, 'Somewhere in France His Mammy's Eyes,' Gordon.
Reading, 'Should the Women Propose,' Dix.

God Save the King.

Some of the encores given by Mr. Sherris were 'Mary of Argyle,' 'We'll Never Let the Old Flag Fall,' 'An Irish Lullaby,' 'A Fat Lil' Feller Wid His Mammy's Eyes,' all of which were enthusiastically applauded and greatly appreciated. After the entertainment a number of the young folks spent an hour or so in dancing. A number from Havelock and Hastings were also present.

Miss Annie Birt was in Peterborough on Monday.

Mrs. McDowell returned home from Peterborough last week.

Mrs. Hermis Nicol of Peterborough, has been a guest at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Richard Nicol.

Rev. Mr. Irwin was in Peterborough on Saturday.

A recruiting service was held in the Town Hall on Sunday evening after the regular church services. Addresses were given by the resident ministers and the councillors.

On Tuesday morning, Mr. J. B. Pearce received the sad news that his son, Private Russel Pearce, who enlisted in the 31st Battalion at Calgary, had been killed in action in France, on December 27th. Russel, though but a young man, served also in the Boer war, and his early death has brought sadness to many hearts.

Answers Latest Protests From The Neutrals

Joint Notes Signed by All the Allies Sets Forth the Allies' Position Toward Neutral Trade

LONDON, Jan. 27.— A joint note signed by all the Allies, answering the latest protests from the United States and Sweden and setting forth the Allies' position toward neutral trade for the period of the war is in contemplation it was learned to-day. By uniting all the Entente Powers in a single declaration of the policy the Allied diplomats plan to make an impressive showing of unified purpose that will influence all action by neutrals. The English press to-day unanimously applauded the plain explanation from the government that it intends to deal firmly with the United States in answering the latest protest against British trade regulations.

Montenegro Has Yielded, Austria Insists, and Disarmament Proceeds

Says Every House In the Country Has to be Notified, Making the Surrender of Arms Difficult---Nothing Being Disclosed Regarding Peace Terms, Says Report

VIENNA, via London, Jan. 27.—The disarmament of the Montenegrins, it is reported here, is progressing favourably. Lack of communications, the nature of the country and unfavourable weather rendered it difficult for the Montenegrin government to reach outlying districts. It was necessary that notice of the government's intention to capitulate should reach every house, because every Montenegrin was armed, and this task, in the absence of rapid communications, was found more difficult than at first supposed.

The Austro-Hungarian military authorities, it is announced, are showing much consideration for the conquered people and have permitted the members of public safety organizations to retain arms, although Austro-Hungarian troops have already assumed police duties.

Measures have been taken to feed the population, which is greatly in need of the necessaries of life. Fifteen hundred Serbian soldiers, who had taken refuge in Montenegro, were made prisoners by the Austrians.

Trustworthy reports from northern Albania say that many Albanians are joining the Austro-Hungarians, and that the supporters of Essad Pasha, the provisional President of Albania, who has been opposed to Austria, are dwindling steadily.

Nothing is known by the public here of the terms of peace between Austria and Montenegro. This has not even been the subject of speculation by the press, which treats this as a matter of secondary interest until the country is completely occupied. There are indications, however, that the government is not inclined to be severe with Montenegro. Through the occupation of Antivari and Dulcigno Austria has established an effective control over the major part of the eastern Adriatic coast.

LONDON, Jan. 27. — The British Foreign Office published a list of goods in postal mail bags of the Central powers taken from the Dutch steamships Frisia, outward bound, Tubantia, inward bound, and the Ryndam. Those from the Frisia contained rolled gold chains, gold earrings, bracelets, rings and brooches, also drugs, dyes, oleographs, and machine needles. The Tubantia had four sacks of rubber in packets marked "simples, without value," of a weight of 73 1-2 pounds and addressed to Hamburg from Brasil, and also seven packages of wool from Uruguay to Berlin.

The Ryndam's mail bags contained sixty per cent. newspapers, thirty per cent. propaganda and ten per cent. goods, "all of enemy origin" and addressed in most cases to firms with German names in the United States.

"By no possible stretch of the imagination can it be contended that in the majority of the foregoing cases the articles seized are postal correspondence or samples to which alone can be applied such immunity as the postal mails enjoy," says the Foreign Office.

DON'T SCOLD, MOTHER! THE CROSS CHILD IS BILIOUS, FEVERISH

Look at Tongue! If Coated, Clean Little Stomach, Liver, Bowels

Don't scold your fretful, peevish child. See if tongue is coated; this is a sure sign its little stomach, liver and bowels are clogged with sour waste.

When listless, pale, feverish full of cold, bad breath, throat sore doesn't eat, sleep or act naturally, has stomachache, indigestion, diarrhoea give a tablespoonful of "California Syrup of Figs," and in a few hours all the foul waste, the sour bile and fermenting food passes out of the bowels and you have a well and playful child again. Children love this harmless "fruit laxative," and mothers can rest easy after giving it, because it never fails to make their little "insides" clean and sweet.

Keep it handy, Mother! A little given today saves a sick child tomorrow, but get the genuine. Ask your druggist for a 50-cent bottle of "California Syrup of Figs," which has directions for babies, children of all ages and for grown-ups plainly on the bottle. Remember there are counterfeits sold here, so surely look and see that yours is made by the "California Fig Syrup Company." Hand back with contempt any other fig syrup.

THE newspaper in the Peterborough zone of Ontario to be granted Newspaperdom's "Winning Daily" emblem was the EXAMINER. After investigating the local field, the following conclusions were established: First, the EXAMINER has a materially larger circulation than any other Peterborough daily; second, it is the leading evening newspaper of Peterborough and the tributary territory; third, it is supreme in volume of advertising published—and this volume is made up of gilt-edged business from local and foreign advertisers in Canada and the United States. Local advertisers unanimously endorse it for its result-getting efficiency. It invites correspondence regarding the Peterborough zone as a business possibility in 1916; the possibility of dealer cooperation, etc.

CZAR AT THE FRONT

Simple Life of Head of Russia's Armies and People

General Doubensky, in a letter home from the Russian front, published in a Petrograd paper says: "The Czar has established his headquarters in a little town in White Russia. There he has two rooms in a small house. Two other rooms of the building are used by Count Fredorikx, the Minister of the Court and Commandant of the Imperial Palace. In the basement the adjutant, the physician and the valet of the ruler have their quarters, together with a few trusted servants. The rest of the entourage of the monarch is quartered in houses nearby.

"Every morning the Czar leaves his house in the blouse of a private soldier and high boots to go to the headquarters of the General Staff, where General —— reads the latest reports from the different parts of the front to him. At noon the ruler returns to his house to rest for a few hours and late in the afternoon he takes a drive in a large touring car, accompanied by his adjutant, his physician and Grand Duke Kyril Vladimriowitch, the Commander of the Imperial Household. At seven o'clock in the evening the monarch dines with a few high officers as his guests. This routine never varies."

SWEEPSTAKE WON BY BUFF ORPINGTON

Mr. I. R. Stewart of Bobcaygeon won the Special Prize at the recent Lindsay Poultry Show, for the highest number of points scored by any male bird. This is an enviable record for there were many male birds of high class exhibited. Mr. Stewart is to be congratulated on receiving the sweepstake prize and deserves credit for what he has done to promote the poultry industry, as a breeder of Buff Orpingtons which supply winter eggs and are excellent for table birds.

"Look here, Rastus," exclaimed the man, pausing and looking at the operation, "why don't you get a brush with more bristles in it?"

"What for," expressively replied Mr. Smith. "Why, if you had a brush with more bristles in it you could do twice as much work."

It is estimated in official quarters that the public in Britain since the outbreak of the war has subscribed roughly $125,000,000 for various charitable purposes.

The record for bullet holes in a flying machine, a much prized record, is held by a pilot who returned from one flight recently with over 300 holes, the previous record being 240 odd.

Since the outbreak of war the British Government have purchased for the army 20,000,000 pairs of worsted socks, 14,000,000 yards of flannel (enough to make 12,500,000 shirts), and 4,592,733 yards of white flannel for hospital shirts.

SPORTSMEN ALWAYS

Tommy's Love of Sport in Face of Danger Strikingly Illustrated

The curious character of Tommy at the front is strikingly illustrated by a couple of stories which Mr. Ian Malcolm, M.P., tells: "One day," he says, I was talking to some townspeople at Tripport. They were telling me stories of the retreat, and how highly they thought of our army. 'But we shall never quite understand you,' they added. 'What other army is there which after retiring for so many days and nights with the enemy at their heels, would have behaved like the English? They reached Meaux, monsieur, and what did they do? They at once began to play football, they took boats and rowed on the river, they even bathed; and then they went on fighting.'"

Very amusing, too, is the story of a certain Tommy, whom Mr. Malcolm and a friend discovered when they were motoring behind Ypres on a road in which Jack Johnsons had dug immense holes. The heavy Belgian rain had filled these with water, and by the side of one such sat Tommy, solemnly fishing with rod and line. "What are you doing?" asked Mr. Malcolm's friend. "Fishing, replied the angler, without a smile on his face. "But you can't catch fish in a shell hole like that, you know"; to which the answer was, "Wait and see." So my friend waited and saw. Tommy soon landed quite a big fish, to the utter amazement of the onlooker, who asked how it was done. "Well, you see, yesterday I was off duty and I went down with my net to the river yonder. I caught lots of fish and put them into these holes for me and my pals to catch when we wanted them."

TEUTON CHARMS

Even the Huns Carry Mascots—Little Willie's Horseshoe

The soldiers of the Kaiser are very superstitious, from the men in the ranks clear up to the Crown Prince. Wilhelm's eldest son carries a horseshoe with him on all his motor trips, and the Crown Prince spends most of the day in his motor car. The horseshoe is attached to one of the doors of the car, and when being photographed in his motor car the Prince always insists on the photographer "taking" the side of the car with the horseshoe.

The soldiers of Wurtemberg pin their faith upon a little bag containing the dry pollen of flowers, which, they believe, has the power of warding off the bullets.

The Saxons sew into the lining of their waistcoat the wings of a bat, and think themselves to be invincible.

The Bavarians hold on tenaciously to a still more bizarre custom. Before going into battle each soldier finds a birch tree, cuts his skin, and lets a few drops of blood fall upon the tree. This ceremony, they assert, assures recovery, no matter what the nature of the wound, when the leaves begin to grow again.

Shrapnel Cases Similar

As far as the construction of the shrapnel shell and case is concerned, there is very little difference in those employed by the various governments. Starting with the case, it will be seen that these are almost identical, except for length, and the arrangement of the head for carrying the detonating primer. There is a marked similarity in this respect between the Russian, British and German, and between the American and French.

The Professional Enlister

Even the small bounty paid to recruits who enlisted under Lord Derby's scheme, a day's pay and a day's food and lodging allowance, brought into being a class of professional enlisters. Men went from recruiting office to recruiting office, enlisting over and over again, and drawing their day's pay and allowance each time. Some of them were caught, and appeared in the police courts; the majority got off scot free.

BANKS PILLORIED.

Sifton Says They Are Hoarding Up Money Unnecessarily.

CALGARY, Jan. 26.—Criticism on the banks was made by Premier A. L. Sifton in an address to the Canadian Club on "Lessons From the War," in which he expressed the view that the time was ripe for the initiation of some amendments by which some more definite say as to the disposal of their deposits should be secured to the people, to the end that the legitimate business of the country should receive its due consideration. One of the first lessons that people learned from the war was that the finances of the country were controlled by a few men. Despite the fact that they had taken additional deposits to the tune of $108,000,000 during the past year the banks, nevertheless, had curtailed credit to legitimate business to the extent of $80,000,000 less than they had done during the previous year, and had increased by $20,000,000 loans to speculators for the purpose of increasing the price of stocks.

The Premier said the shareholders of banks should not have uncontrolled say as to the mode of investing the money which they held in trust for the people, and it was unreasonable that they should be permitted to do so, considering that the total amount invested in bank stock in Canada was $114,000,000, whereas the money of the people over which the banks exercise such arbitrary control amounted to $1,700,000,000.

OUR DAILY SHORT STORY

Origin of a Fortune.

[Original.]

I am of the third generation since enormous wealth came into our family. How that wealth was acquired has not been definitely known. My grandfather when twenty-five years old was a captain in the American army that conquered a peace with Mexico. As soon as the war was ended he resigned his commission and engaged in mining, becoming immensely rich. His fortune was left to my father and at my father's death to me when I should come of age. My father left a letter for me, stating that I would find in a certain secret place information that I was to transmit to my successors. I am today twenty-one and have secured a document containing the information. This is a copy. The original was written by my grandfather:

"After the battle of Cerro Gordo I went over the field to give aid and comfort to the wounded. Among them I found a young Mexican, or, rather, Aztec, who was in a frightful condition. He looked up at me pitifully with his mild Aztec eyes, reminding me of pictures I had seen of the emperor of Montezuma. I called some men with a stretcher and had him removed to a field hospital, where he received attention. Then I secured his removal to a permanent hospital, where he lingered for awhile and died. Before his death he told me that he was the last lineal male descendant of Guatemotzin, nephew of the Emperor Montezuma, whom he succeeded. 'You have been very kind to me,' he said, 'and I am going to reward you.' Then, taking a gold locket from his neck, he gave it to me, saying, 'Your reward is in that.' Soon after he died.

"I did not examine the locket till peace had been declared. Then I opened it and took out a small piece of prepared skin, on which was written something in the ancient Aztec. With it was some writing in Spanish on paper, which proved to be a translation of the Aztec. I knew enough Spanish to decipher it. It was dated 13th of August, 1521, and read:

"Our city is about to fall into the hands of the Spaniards. I, Guatemotzin, emperor, have buried what is left of our treasure under the northwest corner of the Teocalli.

"On the margin were a number of notes successively laid down intended to fix the spot after the Teocalli had been torn down by the conquerors, the last naming a house beside the cathedral which partly occupies the area on which the Teocalli, or pyramid supporting the sacrificial stone, formerly rested.

"When the City of Mexico fell into the hands of the Spaniards they tortured Guatemotzin to force him to tell what he had done with this treasure, but did not succeed. Here was what purported to be his record, handed down through more than three centuries. But why had not any of the family dug it up and used it? The secret had died with the last of the line, who gave me the record. My own explanation was that the treasure was intended to aid in driving out the hated Spaniards if ever the opportunity should arrive. I confess at first I had no confidence in finding a treasure, but I was a natural adventurer and resolved to investigate.

"I found the house mentioned in the note of record, which was nothing but a dingy hovel. It happened that the army had not been paid for months and the paymaster had just given us all that was due us. My pay was more than the hut was worth, and I bought it. It did not require much time for the family occupying it to move, for they had nothing. As soon as they had gone I bought a pick and shovel and the same night went to work. The city had originally been built on a lake, and almost anywhere one can dig down through a soft black soil. But the document said the treasure was under a corner of the sacrificial pyramid. At any rate, I found a hard job, being obliged to remove a mass of loose stone. I worked for weeks without finding anything and was about to give it up when my pick struck metal. I removed the stones partly covering it and pulled up a gold god.

"From this time forward I worked with encouragement and soon came upon other articles. My work was necessarily slow, as I was obliged to remove the stones and earth I had excavated piecemeal. Finally I came upon one immense mass of gold and jewelry that during three centuries had almost become welded together.

"How I got this treasure out and disposed of it without being discovered would require a great many pages to tell. I melted the gold as fast as I took it out, and in this form it was not hard to dispose of. The jewels were more difficult, owing to their cutting, which would easily be recognized in Mexico. I sent them to other countries, and many of them sold for fabulous sums. It was several years between the discovery of the first and last article. When I was sure there was nothing more I relaid the floor of the house, which I had taken up, and locked the premises.

"In order to account for my wealth I purchased a wormout Mexican mine and gave out that I was taking out gold in fabulous quantities. I had many offers for this mine, but declined them all. Finally, when I no longer needed it as a blind, I announced that the vein had given out and ceased to work it.

"Through my life I have kept this secret and have arranged that it shall not be revealed till a grandson comes into the property. But, as my only son is not yet married, this paper is not likely to be read by human eyes for some time to come."

LAWRENCE FOSTER CHURCH

Coughed Almost All Night

WITH THAT

DRY, TICKLING SENSATION

IN HER THROAT.

How many people have lost a good night's sleep by that nasty tickling sensation in the throat?

The dry, hard cough keeps you awake, and when you get up in the morning you feel as if you had had no rest at all.

Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup is a specific for just this kind of a cough, as it is composed of the most soothing and healing expectorant herbs, roots and barks known to medical science.

Mrs. Joseph Hiley, Orangeville, Ont., writes: "Just a few lines to let you know what Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup did for me. I took a severe cold, and coughed almost all night with that dry, tickling sensation in my throat. The first bottle did me so much good I thought I would try the second one, and I am pleased to say "Dr. Wood's" resulted in a complete cure."

There is nothing that can take the place of Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup. There is nothing "just as good."

"Dr. Wood's" has been on the market for the past twenty-five years.

It is put up in a yellow wrapper; three pine trees the trade mark; price, 25c and 50c.

How To Get Rid of a Bad Cough

A Home-Made Remedy that Will Do It Quickly, Cheap and Easily Made

If you have a bad cough or chest cold which refuses to yield to ordinary remedies, get from any druggist 2½ ounces of Pinex (50 cents worth), pour into a 16-ounce bottle and fill the bottle with plain granulated sugar syrup. Start taking a teaspoonful every hour or two. In 24 hours your cough will be conquered or very nearly so. Even whooping cough is greatly relieved in this way.

The above mixture makes 16 ounces—a family supply—of the finest cough syrup that money could buy—at a cost of only 54 cents. Easily prepared in 5 minutes. Full directions with Pinex.

This Pinex and Sugar Syrup preparation takes right hold of a cough and gives almost immediate relief. It loosens the dry, hoarse or tight cough in a way that is really remarkable. It also quickly heals the inflamed membranes which accompany a painful cough, and stops the formation of phlegm in the throat and bronchial tubes, thus ending the persistent loose cough. Excellent for bronchitis, spasmodic croup and winter coughs. Keeps perfectly and tastes good—children like it.

Pinex is a special and highly concentrated compound of genuine Norway pine extract, rich in guaiacol, which is so healing to the membranes.

To avoid disappointment, ask your druggist for "2½ ounces of Pinex,"—do not accept anything else. A guarantee of absolute satisfaction, or money promptly refunded, goes with this preparation. The Pinex Co., Toronto, Ont.

LOCOMOTOR ATAXIA.

"My nerves were very bad, and I could not sleep at night, nor could I control my arms or legs," writes Mrs. Robert Bustard, Maxwell, N.B. "Dr. Chase's Nerve Food cured me of what I believe was the early stage of locomotor ataxia or paralysis. I cannot describe what I suffered, but now I am entirely cured."

Trench Protectors.

A Wanganui (New Zealand) firm is putting on the New Zealand market a clever and useful invention. It is a combination protector and carrier, the chief purpose of which is to give the man in the firing-line an additional chance of life, at the same time providing a safe and convenient means of carrying most cherished possessions. The "protector" takes the form of a specially-designed leather pocket with independent compartments.

The front compartment, the money carrier, is backed by a thin sheet of tempered steel. Behind this is a pocket for a book or letters, and back of all is a plate of heavier steel. The protector is attached to the braces so as to cover the heart, and is so arranged as to give with every movement of the body and afford no inconvenience at all to the wearer. The steel plate is removable, and need only be worn when in action, but even with the plate in position the weight is inconsiderable, and is carried where it is least felt. Medical men and military experts have expressed the opinion that the protector should be the means of saving many lives.

May Have Made It Up.

The expression, "If you will let me write a nations' songs I care not who makes their laws," seems to have had a singular origin, its putative father being Andrew Fletcher (1655-1716), a Scotchman, who divided his time between politics and literature. In a letter to a nobleman of the period Fletcher said, "I know a very wise man who believed that if a man were permitted to make all the ballads he need not care who should make the laws of a nation." Perhaps the alleged wise man was a myth and the expression originated with Fletcher himself.

Why Methuselah Sighed.

"If I had seen these suggestions on diet sixty years earlier they would have prolonged my life 200 years," Mr Methuselah remarked with a bitter sigh as he threw aside the morning paper.—Judge.

LADY OFFICIAL RECRUITER.

Unique Work is Being Done by Miss Gladys Storey in England.

Superintending the work of a staff of over sixty girls at a certain National Registration office in London is a young lady of exceptional activity and organising genius. The daughter of the Royal Academician, Mr. G. A. Storey, Miss Gladys Storey early in the war proved herself so capable a recruiter, inducing hundreds of men to join the colors long before Lord Derby's scheme was thought of, that the War Office ultimately appointed her official lady recruiter, and insisted on paying her for her work. Thus it was that she became the only officially-paid lady recruiter under the War Office.

Chatting of her experiences, Miss Storey informed the writer that she had found the work of recruiting exceptionally interesting. "The men always seemed willing to listen to what I had to say," she said, "and it is particularly gratifying to me that I am continually receiving letters from men whom I induced to enlist, and who are now at the front.

"One recruit I obtained wished to join the horse transport, and was asked if he knew much about horses. He replied, 'Know much about them? I should think I did. Why, I backed two winners last week and two seconds this."

Recruiting, however, is but one of Miss Storey's many activities. In the early days of the war it was she who started this patriotic idea. Attractive cards were printed bearing portraits of Wellington, Nelson, and Roberts, accompanied by stirring messages, the sale of which not only swelled the war funds but also induced many men to enlist.

At present Miss Storey is working indefatigably on her Christmas-card idea for the benefit of her Bovril fund. Already she has supplied Bovril to 275,000 men at the front. These Christmas-cards are very artistic productions, and the last verse of the lines Miss Storey has written for them will appeal to thousands of readers:

May Heaven watch over the brave and the free
Arrayed against tyranny's might,
And Peace, holy Peace, make the Furies to flee
Before the great standard of Right.

"It is wonderful," said Miss Storey, "how generous people are when one appeals for Tommy and Jack, and perhaps the papers can help me to find a poor widow in the North of England who anonymously sent me an offering in the shape of an antique brooch which I was able to sell for an amount which enabled me to supply a number of our soldiers with comforts and little luxuries. Should she ever see these lines, it will doubtless be gratifying to her to know that her gift has been turned to such good account."

Exeter's Peace Bell.

Exeter Cathedral will soon possess a unique memorial of the great war in the tenor bell of the cathedral chimes. Its predecessor was found to be cracked last year, but has been recast, and the new bell will shortly be rehung in the tower. The Bishop of Marlborough, who made himself responsible for the expense of recasting, has written the following couplet, which has been inscribed round the rim of the bell:

Recast in war, I hope to herald peace,

In writing these lines, says The Westminster Gazette, the Bishop, perhaps, had in mind the poetic inscription which the vicar of Woburn wrote for one of the bells of Woburn Church, which, being cracked, was recast and rehung at the time of King Edward's illness, which necessitated a postpone of his Coronation ceremony. The inscription on the Woburn bell runs:

The King was ill,
And I was still.
The day his crowning fell.
My wound was healed,
And I was pealed
To tell the King was well.

Raising Fenceposts.

The increased demand for fenceposts has induced some far seeing farmers to raise them for sale as well as for their own use. It takes time, of course, to do this, yet a shorter period than most persons suppose. A plantation of locusts can be brought to fence post size in five years from seed. The seed are first scalded with boiling water and then after soaking overnight are sowed an inch apart in rows two feet apart. They are subsequently thinned to stand four inches apart and are mulched with straw during the first year. As they increase in size they are again thinned until they stand finally eight feet apart. From time to time as growth develops they are trimmed to prevent their becoming top heavy, and at the end of the fifth year they are ready for the market. Each tree will cut an average of three posts, and 650 trees are grown to the acre. In most localities these will sell for from 20 to 35 cents each, netting the farmer no less than $360, or $63 per acre per year. —Exchange.

A BELGIAN'S THOUGHTS

The great Belgian poet Verhaeren when recruiting his impaired health in the south of France, wrote from there to his friend, Paul Hyacinthe Loyson, this letter, which will appear as a preface to a volume by M. Loyson:

"All that I wrote in 'La Belgique Martyre' will have proved to you how willingly I write these few words for you in these black days when the right is slaughtered by swashbucklers and insulted by Emperors. The present war is a dastardly war. It is waged against the highest and proudest thoughts that men have ever had on this since they began to think an act for the public weal. This war makes hatred imperative, and forbids all shilly-shallying under cover of a cold and guilty neutrality. One must not hold scales in one's hand when the enemy holds a sword."

A LUCKY SHOT

A Highland officer from the front writes as follows: "Here is a true yarn of a certain medical officer who was out in front during the battle of Mons, helping to evacuate the wounded. Mind you, it was pitch dark and raining torrents. He heard a scream and thought he could distinguish some one. Not knowing if it was friend or foe, but knowing that the scream came had from there, he picked up a rifle and started potting, and, good luck to him, got his bag (thanks to the flashy lights that were going up), and lo and behold, it was a Boche sniper dressed in khaki tunic who had evidently been going round polishing off the wounded 'a la bayonet' —— the swine. Well, he 'got it' and is now before a higher judge."

BURLEIGH NEWS

Ratepayer Has a Complaint to Make

BURLEIGH, Jan. 25.—We are sorry to hear that Mr. Wm. Kelly Sr. has been ill for some time and has gone to Dummer to see if a change will be any benefit we hope he will improve.

The smiling countenance of Messrs Herd and Harold Tucker are missed in the village lately they have gone to Coe Hill to draw lumber for Mr. Green. Some 26 or 30 recruits in Apsley under the training of Sgt. Theobold are making good progress in their drill. Mr. McColl has nearly completed the building of Mr. Levi Bullied's house.

In looking over the columns of your valuable paper of January 20th, I see that several of the municipalities of the county at their inaugural meetings in appointing officers for the ensuing year appoint a caretaker of the Hall at the first of the year, which I think is the proper to do so. However that is not the way the city fathers do in our municipality. Last year they appointed a caretaker at the last meeting of the year, Dec., 18th at the eleventh hour, closed the books and finished business for the year. Giving such caretaker a salary of ten dollars per annum and he lives six miles from the village, and for which salary neither the ratepayers nor the Hall derived any benefit whatever. But as it was the ratepayers money it had to go to make good one of their many blunders that were made last year for want of knowledge of some of our municipal officers who should have made good such mistakes themselves instead of using the people's money. Experience makes perfect and perhaps they may do better next year and dip a little deeper.

A man should never think of his wife as a woman; when he thinks of her as a woman he is in danger.

PROHIBITION

Weighed in the Balance and found Wanting

The Citizens' Committee of One Hundred would have Ontario depart from the policy of the late Sir James Whitney on this question of Sale of Liquors.

The Citizens' Committee of One Hundred is demanding Prohibition—Is it economically sound?

Here are a few among the majority of examples from States in the American Union where Prohibition has had a long trial.

The per capita Valuation of Property for Prohibition States.		The per capita Valuation of Property for Licensed States.
Maine	$550.03	Ohio	$1,305.30
W. Virginia	894.11	New Hampshire	1,006.74
North Carolina	323.90	Massachusetts	1,383.47
Georgia	307.80	Rhode Island	1,067.87
Tennessee	279.56	New York	1,146.08
Alabama	253.20	Wisconsin	1,019.31
Oklahoma	615.68	Wyoming	1,106.69

Is there any reason for believing that Ontario under Prohibition would fare better than Prohibition States across the Line?

Alabama's Experience

In 1907 Alabama came under Prohibition with $1,900,000 in the State Treasury and all outstanding obligations paid. Four years later the surplus had disappeared and in its place a deficit of over $1,000,000. Governor Henderson says Prohibition cannot last through another legislature.

Do We Want These Conditions Repeated in Ontario?

Prohibition is Economically Unsound.

What is the record as to the enforcement of Prohibition in those States of the Union which have gone dry?

JUST LOOK!

In the last four years in the prohibition states of Alabama, Georgia, North Carolina; South Carolina, Tennessee, Virginia, Florida and Kentucky, 10,000 illicit distilleries have been seized.

In the United States in 1907 the per capita consumption of liquor was a little over 23 gallons. In 1914, with 13,000,000 more people living under "dry" laws, the consumption of liquor per person was 25 gallons.

The Chief of Police of Topeka, Kansas, where Prohibition originated, reports 2,200 arrests in 1914 out of a population of 45,000. Over 30% —661—were jailed for drunkenness. Yet Kansas is a Prohibition State.

The sane judgment of the people of Ontario is against Prohibition. It was in June, 1914. It is now.

The present License System in Ontario is far superior to Prohibition. A change is not in the interest of the Province.

KEENE, Jan. 26.— Miss Kathleen Mohr of Peterborough and several friends were the guests of Miss Josephine Kennealey last week.

Messrs. Wm. Wedlock and Wm. Kempt were in Peterborough on Monday last closing a business deal.

Alfred Kempt has purchased the Keene mills from Wm. Wedlock and resumed operations on Tuesday last.

The funeral of the late Mrs. Stanley Braden took place from the family residence last Monday afternoon at 1.30 p.m. and was interred in the Fife cemetery. Rev. A. K. Edmison officiated. The large attendance and the tributes showed the high esteem in which Mrs. Braden was held in the community.

Mr. Stan. J. Weir and Mr. E. J. Laing spent Sunday in the vicinity among friends.

IF YOUR THROAT IS HUSKY CATARRH MAY BE STARTING

A weak or irritated throat is the first step towards catarrh. Everything depends on your remedy. A cough mixture slips quickly over the weak spots, drops into the stomach, and does little but harm. It's altogether different with Catarrhozone—it cures because it gets right at the trouble. You inhale Catarrhozone, breathe in the vapor of healing balsams that strengthen and restore the weak throat tissues. You'll never have colds or coughs. Throat trouble and catarrh will disappear with the use of Catarrhozone. Get the large dollar outfit, which includes the inhaler; it lasts two months, and is guaranteed to cure. Smaller sizes 25c and 50c, sold everywhere.

SONG WRITER WEARS $15 SHIRTS, SAYS WIFE IN SUIT

NEW YORK, Jan. 27.—Just to show what her husband, Theodore (Ted) Snyder, does with some of his $40,000 a year income, Mrs. Hope L. Snyder, is suing for separation in the Supreme court, states that he pays $15 apiece for his shirts and $15 a pair for his shoes. She asked heavy alimony and counsel fee, but withdrew the demand when Snyder settled a substantial amount on her out of court.

Mrs. Snyder says her husband is an officer of Watterson, Berlin and Snyder, music publishers, and as such receives $6,000 a year salary; while as a stockholder he derives $80,000 a year in dividends. Added to this, she asserts, he receives large royalties from his own songs.

The Snyders, according to the wife were married June 23, 1906, and lived happily until last February, when, the plaintiff states, her husband deserted her without cause.

KIDNEY DISEASE CURED SWORN STATEMENT

Of Mr. Wesley Maxwell, Who Gratefully Gives All Credit to Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills

It is one thing to make big claims for a medicine and quite another thing to produce irrefutable evidence that it actually cures in serious cases.

We prefer to let the cured ones speak for themselves, and that is why you find in almost every newspaper the report of someone who has been cured by the use of Dr. Chase's medicines. To-day we present the sworn statement of Mr. Wesley Maxwell. When a man goes to this trouble in expressing his gratitude there can be no question of the benefit he has received. Mr. Wesley Maxwell, Orangeville, Ont., writes: "I have been using Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills, and I must tell you that before I started using them I could only make water with the greatest difficulty, and had many severe pains in the back. I am completely cured now by the use of these pills. Before that I used a lot of doctors' medicine without any benefit that I could see. I am thankful for being cured, and can recommend Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills very highly."

SWORN STATEMENT.

"This is to certify that I, Wesley Maxwell, of the Township of Caledon, was cured of kidney trouble by taking Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills.

"Wesley Maxwell."

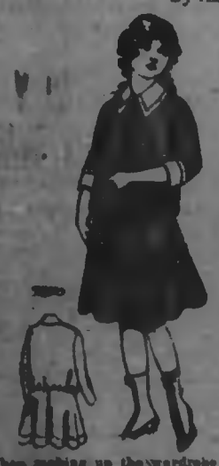
This statement is also endorsed by the Rev. Geo. W. Robinson, who is Mr. Maxwell's pastor.

This cure will interest a great many people who are suffering as Mr. Maxwell was with kidney and urinary troubles. It will only cost you a quarter to buy a box of Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills and put this medicine to the test. We are sure that you will be thankful to the writer for describing his cure to you. For sale at all dealers, or Edmanson, Bates & Co., Limited Toronto.

EXAMINER PATTERN SERVICE

GIRL'S DRESS.

By Anabel Worthington.



When making up the wardrobe of the little girl who enters school in the autumn the wise mother seeks garments which do not require too much labor in the making and which will not be too much of a loss if spoiled by accident. The pinafore frocks also have the advantage of not distracting the attention of the youthful wearer or her friends and are also in much better taste for general use.

The frock shown in the illustration presented herewith is at once serviceable and pretty. The blouse is entirely plain, with a centre front closing which extends to the neck, where there is a small, turnover collar. Both front and back are gathered a trifle where they are drawn into the belt.

The sleeves are plain, following the shape of the arm from the shoulder to the wrist. They may be shortened and finished with a cuff.

The two piece skirt is of circular cut and waves prettily at the lower edge. It is made to close in front and there is a pretty patch pocket at one side, just below the waistline.

These dresses are always made of serviceable material, and the first to suggest itself is serge.

The dress pattern, No. 7370, is cut in sizes 6, 8, 10, 12 and 14 years. Medium size requires 2 yards of 44 inch material, with ½ yard of 36 inch contrasting goods to trim.

This pattern can be obtained by sending 10 cents to the office of this paper.

When ordering remember to give your name and address as well as the number and size of pattern required, and age of a child.

Price 10 cents, or 2 for 25c.

Address—The Examiner Pattern Service, The Examiner, Peterborough.

Tobacco Heart

CURED BY

Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills.

Tobacco does not seem to affect all alike. Many men enjoy their smoke, live to a good old age, and apparently suffer no ill effects from the use of the weed.

There are others, though, on whose heart and nervous system tobacco produces the most serious results.

It causes palpitation, pain in the heart and irregularity of its beat, makes the hands tremble, sets the nerves on edge, and the breath becomes short.

To counteract this demoralizing influence on the heart and nerves there is no remedy that equals Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills.

They make the heart beat strong and steady, restore tone and vigor to the nerves, and remove all the evil results caused by the tobacco.

Mr. Nelson Young, Brampton, Ont., writes: "I have had, up to about a month ago, a very weak heart, which I suppose came from smoking cigarettes. When I heard of Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills as a cure, I immediately gave up smoking, and started using them. It does you justice to be the founder of such a great remedy. They made me feel like a new man."

Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills are 50c per box, 3 boxes for $1.25, at all dealers or mailed direct on receipt of price by The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

YELLOW STREAK SHOWN BY SHIRKERS IN KHAKI

Mothers' Darlings in Uniform Who Disgrace the Army—London Writer Says Not Fit to Wipe Tommy's Boots

Mr Mayart McGregor, a well known London correspondent has something to say about shirkers in khaki. Writing to John Bull, a London weekly, he says, in part, as follows:

"Surely it is nothing short of monstrous that now, when compulsion has practically forced every single man to do his bit, the only men who can skirk will be shielded by khaki from the contempt they so richly deserve. These "men" called by Mr. Tennant, Under-Secretary for War, 'Refusilliers,' are they, who, enlisting for home service some years back, still continue to wear the uniform of a soldier, but steadfastly refuse to act up to that honorable calling. These men are of course morally right, for by the terms of their enlistment they were not liable for service out of the country. However morally indefensible the action of the non-volunteering officers may be, the cowardice of them stands forth in the full limelight.

Worse Than Cowards

There are men being sent back to the front after being wounded two or three times, and it is surely a scandal that any man, no matter how strong his nerves may be, should be subjected to such a strain, while others, wearing the same uniform and receiving the same reward, should be exempted from all hardships and all risks.

Surely now that every eligible man is being not only challenged, but practically made to go, the shirker in khaki should be the first to be compelled to go. He is a sham and disgraces the uniform of heroes. Those men who sit by their firesides and openly refuse to go, are infinitely less contemptible than they who stalk about in khaki, who are saluted by men bearing the honorable scars of war, and whose shoes they are not worthy to black. They are more contemptible than the man who has enlisted for home service, and resigns his commission on the outbreak of war, and heaven knows he is bad enough. But a man who has won decorations on the field of battle, having to salute the 'Refusilier,' is disgusting. Instead of saluting him, he should kick him off the sidewalk. He is a useless nonentity, and always the first one to yell for recruits.

"Here's good health to our gallant soldier boys, and perdition to his enemies, and the 'Refusiliers.'"

CAPTURED GUNS

Guns captured in battle are seldom used by the captor, and for a very good reason. Take the case of the field guns, for example, used by present-day armies. They all take practically three-inch shells, but there is a very slight difference in the actual size used by each nation. It is this slight difference in diameter, amounting in many cases to only a few hundredths of an inch, which prevents German guns, say, taking our shells. The diameter of the shell used with the Belgian field gun, for example, is 2.95 inches, a tenth of an inch smaller than that of the German gun.

A Belgian shell would enter the bore of a German gun too easily, and it would be impossible to fire it accurately. If a German shell were forced into a Belgian gun, that gun would burst when fired, because the shell is too big to go down the barrel. Unless a gun is captured undamaged, together with a supply of its proper ammunition, it is useless. The capture only means reducing the fighting power of the enemy.

HUNS' DREAM EMPIRE

No Hope of Population or Safety or Markets

Under British rule and with the natural lines of traffic not warped and twisted to suit dreams of world empire Mesopotamia will have all the material development that Germany can give her and more, and in addition the advantages of better connection with the world's markets. Where Germany hoped to get sufficient population of the right sort for a Mesopotamian dependency is beyond comprehension and British rule, thanks to the possession of the Indian Empire, offers the additional advantag of an easier realization of the Prussian dreams of galvanising into prosperity the decadent Garden of Eden. Perhaps colonists were to come from all parts of the Turkish Empire, but the Turk is not so overcrowded elsewhere or so excellent a colonist that any great success could be hoped for from this direction. Perhaps the fat burghers of Frankfort and Munich were destined, like the Supermen that they claim to be, to defy the rigors of 132 degrees Fahrenheit. Perhaps the Germans intended to secure their colonists from their own Indian Empire which was to be created by a march across Persia and Afghanistan from Bagdad. Truly the Arabian Nights would have returned and Tamerlane and the Mongols and the other conquerors of Mesopotamia would have turned over in their graves at the sight of this latter day Kultur progressing east instead of west. But the long, lean flanks of the Dachshund reaching through into Afghanistan are in danger from the Russian in Caucasian Armenia and in Northern Persia and from the Indians themselves sent up the water routes of the Tigris and Euphrates by the only race that knows how to win the respect and affection of India.

A German Official

During the present year the following advertisement appeared in the "Times": "Jack F. G.—If you are not in khaki by the 20th I shall cut you dead.—Ethel M."

The Berlin correspondent of the 'Cologne Gazette' was so greatly struck by this ghastly threat that he telegraphed the following version to the paper as a sample of the brutal English methods of recruiting: "If you are not in khaki by the 20th I shall cut you to death."

Superstition may restrain us from evil, when morals do not deter.

Grain prices at Toronto are are follows: Cereal wheat, $1.06 to $1.10 per bushel. Winnipeg No. 1 Northern advanced 6⅝c selling at $1.21¼ per bushel. Ontario wheat $1.06 to $1.08 per car lot.

In ordinary times wheat touches the "high spot" around January and February, but in war times we may look for anything. If war orders continue—and Kaiser Bill has not turned up his runners yet—we may look for a strong market.

The immediate future, therefore looks good for high prices—but don't forget the old chestnut about that $800.00 offer for the old gray mare, and the next week "she died, she did by heck."

Barley, 63c to 66c per bushel.

Rye, 86c to 88c per bushel.

Buckwheat, 80c and Peas $1.80 to $1.75 a bushel.

Hay is selling at $21.00 to $22.00 per ton at Toronto. One load appeared on the local market on Saturday but we could not obtain the price for its owner must have volunteered for service overseas as he could not be found after the recruiting meeting. One kind neighbour held the horse's heads while the 93rd band played "We'll fight, fight, fight, and two or three stood guard over the load to keep off "hungry horses" that are usually driven up to a load of timothy—it is much easier to do this than tie them, and they are sure to "stay with it."

Potatoes have taken another jump. Last Saturday's quotations were $1.85 to $2.00 a bag.

With reference to the outside market we are told that if it had not been for a large shipment from British Columbia the advance would have been very greater than it was. Notwithstanding this two-dollar potatoes are a reality, and only spring weather can relieve the situation.

The British Columbia potatoes reached Toronto in excellent condition, only a few near the bottom being frozen. The car was double lined and heated by oil stoves provided by the railway company.

The scarcity of shipping is responsible for many advances in household commodities, and the item of commerce which is attracting a great deal of attention just now is that well known table beverage, tea. Millions of pounds are lying around the shipping ports of India, awaiting shipment. Unless the situation is relieved we may look for a sharp advance.

QUIT MEAT WHEN KIDNEYS BOTHER

Take a Glass of Salts if Your Back Hurts or Bladder Troubles You

No man or woman who eats meat regularly can make a mistake by flushing the kidneys occasionally, says a well known authority. Meat forms uric acid which excites the kidneys, they become overworked from the strain, get sluggish and fail to filter the waste and poisons from the blood, then we get sick. Nearly all rheumatism, headaches, sleeplessness and urinary disorders come from sluggish kidneys.

The moment you feel a dull ache in the kidneys or your back hurts, or if the urine is cloudy, offensive, full of sediment, irregular of passage or attended by a sensation of scalding, stop eating meat and get about four ounces of Jad Salts from any pharmacy; take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast and in a few days your kidneys will act fine. This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for generations to flush and stimulate the kidneys, also to neutralize the acids in urine so it no longer causes irritation, thus ending bladder weakness.

Jad Salts is inexpensive and cannot injure; makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water drink, which everyone should take now and then to keep the kidneys clean and active and the blood pure, thereby avoiding serious kidney complications.

King George's Stirring Message on the Prorogation of Parliament "I am Sustained by the Determination of my People at Home and Overseas to Carry the Flag to a Final and Decisive Victory" Declared His Majesty---Berlin Claims Successes in the Artois

A SUMMARY OF TO-DAY'S WAR CABLES

LONDON, Jan. 27.—The British Parliament adjourned to-day, the Conscription Bill having passed both Houses. As is customary, members of both Houses gathered in the House of Lords to hear the King's prorogation speech.

"For eighteen months," said King George, "my navy and army have been engaged in concert with our brave and steadfast Allies in defending the common liberties of Europe against the unprovoked encroachment of the enemy. I am sustained by the determination of my people at home and overseas to carry the flag to a final and decisive victory."

"In this struggle, forced upon us by those who hold in light esteem the liberties and covenants we regard as sacred, we shall not lay down our arms until we have vindicated the cause which carries with it the future of civilization," continued His Majesty.

"I rely with confidence on the loyal and united efforts of my subjects which never failed me. I pray that Almighty God may give His blessings."

BERLIN, Jan. 27.—German troops, after successful blasting operations, stormed the French positions on a front of from 500 to 600 yards in the Artois, the War Office announced this afternoon.

LONDON, Jan. 27.—The British Government has decided upon a partial prohibition of the importation of many articles not absolutely necessary, in order to relieve the shipping situation, President Runciman, of the Board of Trade, announced in the Commons this afternoon.

The whole British mercantile marine, he stated at the same time, was placed under Government control.

Neutral countries, principally the United States, from which most of the articles on the prohibited list were imported, are the hardest hit by the action of the Government.

Imports of wood pulp, glass and tobacco will be permitted only in limited amounts.

BRISTOL, ENG., Jan. 27.—Resolutions opposing conscription in any form were adopted by an overwhelming majority at to-day's session of the National Labour Conference of delegates representing more than two million workers. The resolutions declared compulsory military service to be contrary to the spirit of British democracy and full of danger to the liberties of the British people.

BERLIN, Jan. 27.—Twenty thousand British troops defending the Arabian seaport of Aden are under heavy attack by combined Arab and Turkish forces, and in dangerous positions, according to reports received here to-day.

BERLIN, Jan. 27.—Kaiser Wilhelm celebrated his fifty-seventh birthday to-day in the field with his troops. At the Kaiser's request the elaborate celebrations of years preceding the war were not duplicated to-day. The Kaiser has now completely recovered from his recent illness, according to reports received here.

OTTAWA, Ont., Jan. 27.—The debate on the address in the Commons is not likely to be concluded before Friday. There will be no division. Monday will be given over to the business of private members. On Tuesday the Government resolution to extend the Parliamentary term for one year will be considered. It is probable that Sir Wilfrid Laurier, on behalf of the opposition, will acquiesce, but may demand that the House be taken into the confidence of the Government as to the proposed war measures and any possible domestic legislation. Should this request be opposed there will likely be a spirited debate and friction will develop.

ROME, Jan. 27.—It was rumoured this afternoon that the Vatican has received a report that the Austrian Emperor is sinking rapidly.

TORONTO, Jan. 27.—At 2 p.m. to-day Toronto's campaign to raise two million dollars for the Patriotic Fund had realized one million seven hundred thousand dollars, and is still progressing.

The committee aims to raise the full sum by to-night, but the time has been extended till Friday night.

WINNIPEG, Jan. 27.—Women's suffrage passed the Provincial Legislature this afternoon. Manitoba is the first Canadian province to give women the ballot.

OTTAWA, Jan. 27.—Representatives of various bodies demanding Dominion-wide prohibition of the sale, importation and manufacture of intoxicating liquor waited on Premier Borden and his Ministers this morning. At the conclusion of the conference the Prime Minister promised the consideration of the demand both by himself and his colleagues and in the House.

Sir Robert asked if a statement could be prepared to show the extent to which Provincial legislation had been enforced, and also what would be the effect of further Provincial enforcements.

Sir Robert Borden declared that since 1884, when a resolution of this kind had been passed, the Alliance had turned their attention toward Provincial measures.

LONDON, Eng., Jan. 27.—Ninety-five British survivors of His Majesty's ship Tara have been captured by Senussi tribesmen in North-Western Egypt, it was officially announced to-day.

PTE. R. PEARCE OF NORWOOD MEETS DEATH AT FRONT

Well Known Norwood Young Man Who Was With the 41st Canadian Battalion Killed in Action

A TRENT VALLEY STAR

His many friends in Peterborough as well as in his home town of Norwood, who was a member of the 41st Canadian Battalion, has been killed in action. His father, Mr. J. B Pearce of Norwood, received word on Tuesday morning of his son's death which came at the same time that Pte. Kempt, formerly of Peterborough, was killed. Pte. Pearce enlisted in Winnipeg. He was widely known throughout the district and hockey fans will remember him as a member of the old Norwood Trent Valley League hockey team. He was in the Canadian forces that went to South Africa.

The Soldier's Aid Movement

Meeting Will be Held This Evening in the Collegiate Institute

This evening a meeting will be held in the Assembly Hall of the Collegiate Institute in connection with the Soldiers' Aid Movement. The speaker of the evening will be W. D. McPherson, K.C., M.P.P., of Toronto, chairman of the Provincial Commission, who will place before the meeting the aims and objects of the movement, and the great need for the organization of a branch in this city.

At The Age Of 78 Years He Enlists

Striking Example of Pte. Charles Farmer Who is the Oldest Recruit in the British Army

In a recent issue of the London Daily Mail appeared the picture of Pte. Charles Farmer, of the King's Shropshire Light Infantry, who is the oldest recruit in the British Army He recently enlisted and is 78 years of age. He fought in the Crimean war. His step is a striking example to men of much younger years.

COMPLIMENTS FOR CANUCKS

Canadian Soldiers Are a Model of Resourcefulness Says a Writer at British Headquarters

SHINE AS "BOMBERS"

LONDON, Jan. 26.—H. M. Tomlinson, in a long despatch from British Headquarters, makes the following reference to the Canadians. "Nowhere does one find such punctiliousness on duty as in the Canadian lines. A man who owns a ranch salutes his junior superior with even elaborate emphasis, but there is allowed freedom of individual expression, nevertheless, which has proved so fruitful that the story one one exploit of the Canadians has been circulated in the French army by General Joffre as a model of the manner to deal with the Prussians, but it cannot be told here. The ideal of the Canadian generally is to get the men opposite into such a state of mind that when our scouts openly insult them they dare not even lift their heads and are afraid to retaliate in case a worse thing happens. The habit of self-dependence in adversity as practised in a young country is proving of great help to the Canadians. Their commanders know how to exploit it to the common good. When a bomb expert was required some time since, a man who could devise a means of delivering the right explosive exactly where the enemy was not expecting it, the job was given to a young man who had astonished the overseas community on several occasions with his scoops as a journalist. The new expert proved no less cunning than his commander, who thought of him as a likely candidate. He has since developed into a general authority on bombs.

Trench Strategy Schools.

The Canadians, intent on worrying the enemy, have established schools where, when not at listening posts or taking part in expeditions and getting trench feet, the men are assembled to listen to lectures on better methods of getting the work done. Standing in a sea of mire, there was an old barn full of officers and non-commissioned officers, with fodder stored over their heads on the rafters, and Monday, smoking their pipes they sat listening with me to a young Major who had been thinking out a new warlike device and wished to communicate his ideas. After the lecture the officers and men were paraded in two squads. Both were shouted at alike, and forth they marched to get fairly in some other dodge in war as though they were in a team training for the Olympian games."

Murder Suspect Jumps From Window

Special to The Examiner:

NEW YORK, Jan. 27. — Nathan Pullman, suspected of having murdered his wife and daughter after coming here from Chicago, ended his life today by jumping from a third-storey window of a Third Avenue hotel.

THE WEATHER

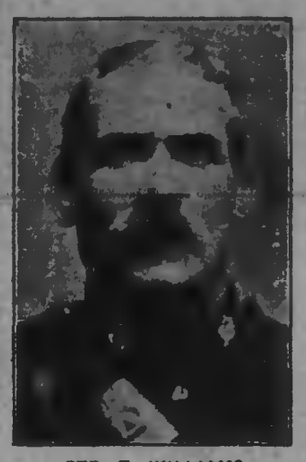
The present unseasonably mild weather still continues, with the addition to-day of rain. The last day or so has about finished the sleighing, and the ground in many places is bare. Yesterday the thermometer rose to 45 degrees locally, while in Toronto the figure was 48. The present mild area is not very extensive as severe weather prevails in the west, and quite cold in the east.—W.P.

SOLDIERS' AID MOVEMENT

In yesterday's issue of the Examiner it was inadvertently stated that the meeting to be held in connection with the Soldiers' Aid Movement would be held this evening in the Public Library whereas it will be held in the Assembly Hall of the Collegiate Institute. The meeting will be addressed by W. D. McPherson, K.C., M.P.P., of Toronto. Remember this evening in the Collegiate Institute and not the Public Library.

Pleaded For Recruits To Take The Place Of His Heroic Son

TWO VETERANS WHO HAVE RE-ENLISTED



PTE. T. WILLIAMS, 8th C.M.R.

PTE. J. W. WILLIAMS.

Pte. T. Williams, whose home is at 466 Bonacord street, served for seven years in the Oxfordshire Light Infantry and joined the 8th Canadian Mounted Rifles last summer. He has a son, Lance Corp. Len Williams, in the trenches with the 21st Canadians. Pte. Williams' brother was a member of the Duke of Cornwall's Light Infantry for twenty-five years, and has re-enlisted.

44 MEMBERS OF NOMAD CLUB ARE SERVING EMPIRE

92 Per Cent of Local Organization Joined the Colours---A Recruiting Record That Will Stand Comparison Through out the Empire---Nine Men Added to 93rd To-day---To-day's Military News

The departure of Mr. H. M. Smith Sr., of 247 Wescott Street, to join the Canadian Engineers, C.E.F., at Ottawa, last night, calls attention to the recruiting record made by the Peterborough Nomads Football Club, a record that the Examiner believes cannot be equalled in Canada or in the whole British Empire for that matter. Of a total membership of forty-eight members and players attached to the Nomads, no less than 44 have enlisted, a total of 92 per cent., and two of the remaining four are physically unfit. Surely that is an unbeatable record.

Mr. Smith, who was the Secretary-Treasurer of the Club, and one of its fathers, has joined the Canadian Engineers, while his son, Corp. H. M Smith, Jr., is with the Imperial Mechanical Transport, now on his way overseas, while a step-son, Signaller Frank Davey, is in the trenches with the 21st Battalion.

Here is the Nomad's honour roll:

Pte. Packwood, 2nd Batt., C.E.F.

Pte. F. Richardson, 2nd Batt. wounded.

Sergt.-Major F. Howarth, 2nd Batt. killed.

Sgt. F. Stevens, 2nd Batt., killed.

Corp. H. Kelsey, 2nd Battalion.

Pte. A. White, 2nd Battalion.

Pte. J. Bills, 2nd Battalion, wounded.

Pte. Sharman, 8th Mounted Rifles.

Pte. A. Theobald, 8th Mounted Rifles.

Pte. S. Curtis, 8th Mounted Rifles

Pte. W. McKinlay, 8th Mounted Rifles.

Pte. B. Mason, 8th Mounted Rifles.

Sgt. Harris, 8th Mounted Rifles.

Mr. J. B. Pearce of Norwood Supplies Climax to Great Recruiting Meeting by Telling of the Death of His Son at the Front.

A SPLENDID GATHERING

With tears trickling down his cheeks, and in a voice broken and husky with emotion, Mr. J. B. Pearce, one of Norwood's oldest and most esteemed citizens, supplied a dramatic climax to last night's recruiting rally at Norwood, when he pleaded with the young men in the audience to come forward and take the place of his son, Russell, the news of whose death at the front had reached him only the day before. Following a logical forcible speech by Judge Huycke, an impassioned appeal by Adjutant McElhiney, and straightforward soldierly addresses by Lt.-Col. Johnston and Major R. P. Watt, the broken appeal from the heroic father whose son had given his life for the Empire was a striking windup to one of the most inspiring recruiting demonstrations ever held in Peterborough County. Ten recruits responded to the appeal and it is confidently believed that many more will offer themselves as a result of last night's splendid meeting.

A large contingent from the 93rd Battalion consisting of Lt.-Col. Johnston, Major R. P. Watt, Capt. Nelson, Lieuts. Eastwood and Stevenson, the 93rd Band and some seventy-five noncoms and men invaded Norwood on the Port McNichell train. They were met at the station by the twenty-seven members of the Norwood detachment under command of Lieut. Thomson, and by the uniformed cadets of the Norwood High School, and a parade to the Town Hall headed by the band playing "We'll Never Let the Old Flag Fall." Although the meeting was not scheduled to begin until 8 o'clock, the hall was comfortably filled half an hour before, and at 8 o'clock was crowded to the doors, overflowing unto the steps outside. While waiting for the meeting to start the band of the 93rd rendered several selections in their best style.

Mr. C. P. Cuffe, of Norwood, was the chairman, and Lt.-Col. Johnston of the 93rd, who was received with a round of cheering was the first speaker. "There never was a time in the history of our Empire when we had so much at stake," said Lt.-Col. Johnston. "The City and County of Peterborough have been called upon to raise a battalion. Last week we devoted our attention to the city with good results. Now we are appealing to the young men of Norwood. I leave the question to the conscience of each individual. In this crisis we have to sacrifice business and family ties for the gaps on the firing line must be filled. As for the contention that this is not Canada's war, that is too absurd to talk about. Our first and last line of defence is to-day in Belgium and France. That is where the enemy has to be stopped and beaten. As for busines cares, if too many of you stay here to attend to business the Germans will soon relieve you of the responsibility. If the City and County will supply 480 more men of the calibre of the 600 we now have, I have no hesitancy in saying the 93rd will be a credit to the County when it reaches the firing line."

Major R. P. Watt.

Major R. P. Watt, second in command of the 93rd, who was enthusiastically received, said that there were some times when a man in uniform felt like throwing it off because he heard so many lame excuses from men who refused to enlist.

"Do you see that flag there?" asked Major Watt, pointing to the Union Jack.

"How would you like to change it for the German standard?" he inquired.

"Peterborough Presents Possibilities Unsurpassed."

THURSDAY, JAN. 27, 1916

WARDEN DARLING.

Mr. Reeve C. J. Darling and the township he has so long represented are to be congratulated upon his being elevated to the honourable position of Warden of the County of Peterborough. Mr. Darling has had a large municipal experience, and in this regard deserves the position he occupies; and will no doubt give as faithful and excellent service in this new office as he has done in a less important, and responsible capacity.

DOLLAR DAY.

Attention of our readers especially those in the country districts, is called to the fact that Thursday, Feb. 3rd is Dollar Day in Peterborough. This means that on that day the merchants of the city will sell articles or parcels of articles for a dollar, which are worth far more and represent the most decided bargains. Dollar Day in Peterborough was inaugurated by the Examiner with a triple object—to give the public the specific advantage of specific bargains; to permit merchants to show the public how they can serve them; and thirdly with the larger object of getting the country people and the merchants together, to have the farmers get the Peterborough habit, the habit of coming to Peterborough as the best trading centre in all this wide district. Don't forget that Dollar Day is Thursday Feb. 3rd.

BRANTFORDS TROUBLE.

Brantford has trouble with its natural gas. We have no complaint of our gas in Peterborough, except when the bills come in, but Brantford's natural gas is contaminated with sulphuretted hydrogen. Those who do not know what sulphuretted hydrogen is by that name, have only to remember that it is what gives the ghastly smell to an over-ripe egg. The natural gas of Brantford is supplied by the Brantford Gas Company, which refuses or neglects to purify its commodity. The nuisance is becoming so unbearable that the city council has decided to prosecute the company. A sample of gas will be taken from the mains every day and if it contains gas of the noisome odor, the medical health officer will prosecute and punish — if the law allows. Ordinary, well-purified gas has hardly an atom of rotten smell, but it is nothing to the smell of the rotten-egg kind of gas. With cities as with individuals, there seems to be a perpetual fight for life or conditions that make life bearable.

GOOD COUNTY ROADS.

While we wish the deputation of the Auto Association good luck with its visit to the County Council, this afternoon, there is reason, from one point of view, to fear that there will be little result. It cannot be expected that the Council will pay any more attention to the wishes and interests of an almost purely city, organization, than it pays to the interests of its own constituents—the farmers of the county. Any roads the farmers or their representatives think good enough for themselves, should be good enough for auto owners; and if the Council neglects, as the visit of the deputation implies, to provide good roads for the farmers, themselves, it is not to be expected that it will make extra expenditure or do extra work to improve roads for the benefit of city gentlemen, who own most of the autos that use country roads.

One naturally takes this view; but there is no reason why the County Council should not even improve county highways for the benefit of autoists; for, if good roads are made for the auto, it follows that there will be good roads for the farmers. And the latter are the chief consideration. For one auto that uses the county roads there are a thousand farmers who use the roads of the county every day, and possibly many times a day. The provision and maintenance of good county highways are infinitely more in the farmers' interest than in those of any other class. If every farmer in the county had ten dollars added to his tax bill every year, in order to provide good roads he would be doubly, or trebly, repaid in the advantages he would gain in having easier and more rapid access to his market town, or in reaching any destination his business or wish may require him to reach.

With good county roads the farmer gains time, he suffers less loss from wear and tear upon horse flesh and vehicles and even harness, than he would suffer from his team dragging slowly and painfully over rough gutty roads, a small load, involving extra trips and consequent loss of time to move a certain amount of grain or produce. In a word, without enlarging upon the subject, it is safe to assert that, no matter what amount of money is spent to provide good county roads, the chief users—the farmers—will be doubly and trebly repaid for any increase of taxation that may be necessary. We pay taxes for our own benefit, to provide conveniences and comforts; and we can pay taxes to no better advantage than for making good roads, that is, supposing that enough is spent, and properly spent, to secure them. It is safe to say that throughout the province more money—more taxes—is spent in tinkering and cobbling at road making, with bad results, than is spent to good advantage in making good, usable roads. Fifty dollars spent in making, or attempting to make, or repair, a given stretch of road, that does not make a good road of it, is money largely wasted; where as a hundred dollars spent to make it a really good and permanent road would be money well spent—in securing a good road, and not wasted, as would be largely wasted, the fifty dollars spent with imperfect results. A farmer who spends a dollar to repair a leaky barn roof without making a tight job of it, wastes his dollar; whereas, by spending two dollars to do the work properly, he would have value for his money in the protection of his housed crop.

It is hoped that the auto deputation will be received with open arms by the County Council, and their requests heeded; for it stands to reason that the Council, in improving county highways in the interests of autoists, will also be advancing the interests of a far larger and more important class—the farmers of the county. Apart from this the autoists should be heard with deference; the auto has ceased to be a mere plaything, but a necessary factor in our business and social life. Autos are taxed pretty roundly for the use of the roads of the country, and it is only British fair play that they should, to as great an extent as possible, get the advantages they help pay for.

NOT LIKE TORONTO.

It is gratifying to know that no objection will be made by the Lord's Day Alliance to Sunday skating by the young and old people of Calgary—at least not yet awhile. Not yet have we reached the low level of Toronto, where the innocent tobogganer is prevented from indulging in his harmless and healthful sport on the one day of the week when he has time from work to do it.—Calgary Herald.

OUTSPOKEN PARSON.

Rev. George W. Dewey, preaching at Stratford, called for a Daniel to lead the government out of the clutches of the Nationalists and the grafters. Mr. Dewey will call down a charge of high treason upon his head. It is supposed to be disloyal to denounce the disloyalists and to demand honesty in war time.—London Advertiser.

THE DOMINION BANK REPORT.

The forty-fifth annual general meeting of the Dominion Bank was held recently at the Head Office in Toronto, when a large number of the shareholders were present. A very satisfactory feature of the report submitted, which appears in another column, is the fact that the cash assets amount to approximately 27 per cent. of the total liabilities to the public. This is nearly 5 per cent. more than in 1914. The liquid, or immediately available, assets, are $33,080,409, or 44 per cent. of the liabilities to the public as against 40.84 per cent. in 1914. The total deposits amount to $65,965,-287, an increase of fully $8,000,000. Call and short loans in Canada are $5,894,940. Current loans in Canada total $47,458,528. The net profits, after making the necessary allowance for bad and doubtful debts and all charges of management as well as the Dominion and Provincial Government taxes, were $808,123, which with $294,516 carried forward from 1914 gave $1,089,439 for distribution as follows: Dividends at 12 per cent. per annum, $720,000. Contribution to officers' pension fund $25,000, leaving a balance carried forward to 1916 of $344,439. Note circulation shows a big increase due, no doubt, to the interest of the Bank in the movement of the western wheat crop, which was particularly active last year. The report is one of the strongest ever presented by the Dominion Bank to its shareholders, and emphasizes the position of strength occupied by this well known institution.

Mr. John Crane is the manager of the important local branch of this strong and flourishing bank.

A Bishop's Reasons Why Canadians Should Enlist

Right Rev. E. J. Bidwell, D.D., Bishop of Kingston, gives his views on enlistment in this interesting way:

A great honour has been offered to Kingston, together with the counties of Frontenac and Lennox and Addington in affording them the opportunity of showing their abundant loyalty by raising a battalion for the C. E. F. There is not the slightest doubt that more than the number of men required are available in this area. No one who knows Colonel Low could wish for a more capable commanding officer. Also, he is certain of be beloved of the men serving under him. If I had a son of military age I would not hesitate for a moment to let him enlist under Colonel Low. I am quite certain that he will never spare himself in helping his men in every way.

Principal Gosden has given the reasons why all who can should enlist. I endorse them all heartily. In my opinion the man to be envied now is the young man. As a rule it is hard to see just where one's duty lies, especially for those who are older, and have many conflicting calls. But for the young man without ties his duty is perfectly plain. He can have no doubt at all what it is. In a letter I received lately from the Bishop of Stepney, England, speaking of his son who has enlisted, a young man of the highest promise, he says that he considers that the young men at the present time are most fortunate in that there is one clear call for them which every man of honour is bound to obey, at any cost, and in obeying which he knows with absolute certainty that he has done the very best that he could do. There can be no worse fate than the remorse and shame that will most assuredly come in future years, whatever the outcome of the war, to those who fail in their duty now. For the first question asked about a young man will be: "What did he do for his country in the war" and for those who have to reply —nothing—it will not be a pleasant answer to have to make.

The call has come to you, young men of Kingston and district. You must answer it in one way or the other. In your hands is our honour at the present time. I believe we can safely entrust it to you, when once you understand how great privilege, and how conspicuous an honour has fallen on you. We older men are confident that you will show the indomitable spirits of our race at this crisis and will come forward in your strength to strike a blow for the Freedom, Honour and Justice for which our forefathers have fought on countless battlefields.

INSURANCE MERGER.

The proposed amalgamation of two insurance companies was not in the public interest, and the Government's expert has reported against it. The amalgamation would no doubt have been a profitable one for the companies concerned, but the profits derived would have come out of the policy-holders concerned.—Toronto Star.

MUNICIPAL IMPROVEMENT

Hon. W. J. Hanna forecasts the early creation of a ministry of Municipal Affairs in the Ontario government. There is great need of such a department to supervise town planning, regulate municipal bonusing, and standardize municipal expenditures and accounting. The organization of such a department has long been strongly advocated by Mr. A. K. Bunnell and other municipal experts, and its possibilities for usefulness are almost unlimited.—Brantford Expositor.

SECOND SIDE7 ANNUAL REPO

It is current comment on the Street that the annual report of the Canadian General Electric Company, Ltd., for the fiscal year which ended last month will make a very favorable showing. The year started out with business quiet, but war orders brought a much more satisfactory turn of events and for a long time the plants have been decidedly active. The feature of the report, it is said, will be the big reduction in the current liabilities.

A YEAR OF PROGRESS.

Summed up as a twelvemonth of achievement for the prohibition cause, the year 1914 takes a unique place. All over Canada the agitation against the liquor traffic awoke to renewed life and activity. Everywhere the better element in the community answered the call of duty. In every Province the stirring up of public sentiment to fight against the great evil of the age has been remarkable.—Vancouver World.

TAX WAR PROFITS.

The public's money is being scattered by the hundreds of millions among those lucky enough to secure war orders. If new taxes are to be imposed, it is only fair that war profits should be the first to be taxed. Britain long ago decided to tax war profits. At the present rate, the Canadian Government will start to discuss the question of taxing them when the war is over and the money spent.—Montreal Herald.

PENNY WISE.

In view of figures compiled by an expert of the Russell Sage Foundation, it is not surprising that there is an abnormal death rate in many cities of the continent. This expert has found that of two hundred and twenty-seven cities in the United States with a population of twenty-five thousand or more, the average annual expenditure on health measures is 22 cents per capita. In some cities the outlay for public health is but a fraction of a cent per person, while in quite a number it is only a few cents. Even in healthy cities proper protection for the public health cannot be had for such a ridiculous outlay.

In the face of the information he has obtained, the Sage investigator would seem to be right in stating that on this continent we are still at the "infancy stage in our public health work" As a matter of fact, in Canada it is only in a few cities that have suffered from some gross neglect of ordinary precautions that the municipal authorities fully realise the necessity of community protection for the health of the inhabitants.—Ottawa Free Press.

"Then what are you doing to keep it there?" asked Major Watt pointedly.

"I am talking to the young men now," went on the speaker. Some of whom are apparently afraid of muddying their boots by walking on the road with the boys in khaki."

"Young men, how long are you young men going to allow the brave fellows at the front to do it all. Why don't you put on the khaki."

"As for the 93rd we're going to fill it," said Major Watt in conclusion.

Miss Margaret McNeilly, of Norwood, sang "The King Will Be Proud of Canada," in splendid voice, and had to respond to an encore.

Bandsman Harold Gilbert, of the 93rd Band, contributed a trombone solo "The Death of Nelson," in sparkling style, and Master Percy Luther was heard to great advantage in two recitations, "Bravo" and "Fill Up the 93rd."

Dr. Ford's Speech.

Dr. Ford, one of Norwood's best known citizens, was the next speaker. "Oh to be young," said Dr. Ford in beginning. "There are so many possibilities before the young men in this crisis. If I were not past the three score years and ten, I would not be here now. I would be on the firing line where many of the men of my profession have gone. To the young men I would say earnestly: 'What are you going to do about this matter?'"

Dr. Ford read a most interesting letter from his son, a professor in an American university in which the views of a distinguished French professor on the war were given—a feature being a warm tribute to the bravery of the Canadians.

Judge Huycke.

His Honour Judge Huycke in opening his address paid a warm tribute to the late Pte. Russell Pearce, and expressed the sorrow that he felt for his father on the platform. "I would rather be in Russell Pearce's place filling a hero's grave in Belgium than to live dishonoured," remarked Judge Huycke. "I would rather have my three sons, who are overseas now dead than to have them living under the German flag."

The speaker pointed out that in his official visits to Norwood he had always tried to play fair in his judgment. Now he asked the young men to play fair, with their consciences, with their honour, with their family, and their country. There was no use in singing "God Save the King," and refusing to fight for him, or "We'll Never Let the Old Flag Fall," and doing nothing to help the brave fellows who were trying to hold it up. Judge Huycke made an earnest appeal to the young men who refused to enlist. Men who refused to fight for their country, who were not true to the Empire, would not be true to the girls, and would not make good husbands. He had heard many excuses why men did not enlist, and it seemed to him as if each excuse was worst than the last. In this instance Judge Huycke told of a young man who would not enlist because he said that "God had saved his soul nine years ago." The speaker was not sure that a soul so small was worth saving. Speaking of the men who frequent pool rooms, who were frequently condemned for not enlisting, Judge Huycke remarked that they were no worse than the young men who took up collection in the churches and attended Epworth Leagues and Bible classes. "They should not be there just now," exclaimed the speaker. "They should be at the front. The only duty now is to save the Empire." In conclusion Judge Huycke remarked that he hoped that the right to vote would be taken from every man who could enlist and did not.

Pte. Walter Farr, of the 93rd, sang "When I dream of Old Erin," in good voice, and was warmly applauded.

Adjutant McElhiney.

Adjutant McElhiney made a rousing appeal for recruits. He was there, he said, because he believed in war in a bloody war in this case, because it was only by the shedding of blood in the trenches, and bitter suffering at home, that the Empire might be saved. He did not want to be pessimistic. He believed the Allies would eventually win the war, but they must not live in a fool's paradise. Up to the present the Allies had not been winning. Belgium, Russian Poland, Serbia, Montenegro, were gone and the Empire was in danger."

Adjutant McElhiney urged the young men of Norwood to do their duty, and said the best way to do so was to come forward at once.

The Climax.

Then came the climax of the meeting. Mr. J. B. Pearce, who had occupied a seat on the platform during the meeting arose to speak. There was a solemn silence in the hall as the familiar figure was seen as all had heard of his bereavement.

"I have received many honours at the hands of my fellow citizens," said Mr. Pearce in a broken voice. "And I have had occasion often to feel proud; but I want to say that I have never been so proud in my life as I am now when I say that my son Russell has given his life for the Empire."

For a moment there was silence, then the Band of the 93rd jumped to their feet and led in a spontaneous outburst of cheering for the heroic veteran.

"My son has twice given his services to the Empire," continued Mr. Pearce. "Now for the last time. I received word yesterday that he has been killed, and that Alf. Kempt of Peterborough had been killed at his side. I feel that I should not be here to-night, but I could not stay away, for I want to ask the young men of Norwood to take Russell's place. For the honour of Norwood, come on, you men. I believe you will."

The effect was electrical.

"Who is going to be the first Norwood boy to take Russell Pearce's place?" asked Major Watt. "Up in Peterborough to-morrow there'll be a boy to take Alf. Kempt's place."

A tall young man emerged from the group at the back and made his way to the platform amid deafening cheers. Then came another, and another, until ten men were grouped on the platform. Among them was Instructor Searight in his cadet uniform, and another boy also wearing the cadet garb. The 93rd Band kept the enthusiasm at fever heat with the rendition of patriotic airs, and it was an occasion long to be remembered in Norwood. That many other recruits will come forward as a result is confidently expected.

The 93rd contingent arrived home on a special C.P.R. train shortly before 12 o'clock, highly pleased with the result of their visit to Norwood.

"Safety First!" seems to be the motto of some of the judges in the West Indies. When an alien professor is brought before them, they consider the possibility of a gunboat from the culprit's native land popping in to make trouble.

It is told that a Havti magistrate on examining a prisoner found that he was from Switzerland.

"Switzerland!" he mused. "Switzerland has no seacoast, has it?"

"No seacoast, your honour," said the interpreter.

"And no navy?"

"No navy, your honour."

"Very well, then," said the judge, "I'll give him a year at hard labour."

A Pointer.

If you want to sell something, it is easier to have the buyers come to you. If you want to buy something you save time and energy if the sellers come to you. It is quite possible to have your head save your heels, to have others come to you instead of you going after them.

An advertisement in the paper will accomplish the result. Give adequate particulars of just what your needs are, or what you have to offer and some person who wants what you have, either cash or goods, will look you up.

AUDITORS' REPORT TO SHAREHOLDERS

We have compared the above Balance Sheet with the books and accounts at the Chief Office of The Dominion Bank, and with the certified returns received from its Branches, and after checking the cash and verifying the securities at the Chief Office and certain of the principal Branches on December 31st, 1915, we certify that, in our opinion, such Balance Sheet exhibits a true and correct view of the state of the Bank's affairs, according to the best of our information, the explanations given to us and as shown by the books of the Bank.

In addition to the examinations mentioned the cash and securities at the Chief Office and certain of the principal Branches were checked and verified by us at another time during the year and found to be in accord with the books of the Bank.

All information and explanations required have been given to us and all transactions of the Bank which have come under our notice have, in our opinion, been within the powers of the Bank.

KING NICHOLAS IN ROME.

ROME, Jan. 26.—King Nicholas of Montenegro, accompanied by his son, Prince Peter, and by three officers of his suite, arrived in Rome from Brindisi, in the Royal train, which had been put at his disposal to emphasize the purpose of the Italian Government in wishing to do him honour. King Nicholas, who was dressed in the national costume, with black cap, white jacket and red sash, looked very worn as a result of his hurried trip on horseback from Podgoritza to the sea and the subsequent passage and the trip from Brindisi.

Britain Is Preparing For Another Winter Campaign

Mr. Henry Hodgson, a Bradford, Eng., merchant has just arrived in Toronto. Mr. Hodgson, a quiet, slow-spoken Yorkshireman, is large of body and large of outlook. His war deductions add cheer to the heart, and cheer to the cause, add cheer to Canadian effort. Here is what he told in his slow, deliberate Yorkshire way:

"I was in London when the last Zeppelin raid took place. I was in Finsbury Square not 60 yards from where a bomb dropped and had a very close call. Though there is four feet of concrete below the pavement itself, a hole 20-feet deep was blown out. Only a few buttons were found of several persons killed. After the explosion the only noise in the darkness was the roar of the air-craft guns.

"When I left England a week or two ago, everything was moving along in the most cheerful way. England is cheerful and confident. England is going to win the war and win it by patience. England is preparing for another winter campaign after this one. They know what they are about; they know they have Germany beaten; they know the blockade is playing hob with Germany.

Germans in Bad Way.

"A day or two before I left, I had an old Dutch friend visit me. He lives within 10 miles of the German frontier. I said to him 'What do you think of Germany?' He replied 'Well, they keep a pretty close censorship on what is going on, but my own deduction from personal observation is that the Germans are in a bad way. They are desparately hard up for food and not all of them are as patriotic as they seem. For instance, a large farmer just over the border from me has buried most of his potatoes in order to get a higher price later on than what the Government has fixed for the present, and recently I heard on very good authority that both the Hamburg-American and North German Lloyd lines were bankrupt. When Britain put the embargo on cotton going into Germany, the German authorities seized every ounce of cotton in the country, even to cotton on the bobbins. There is not a cotton machine running in either Germany or Austria to-day.'

"But coming back to England," continued Mr. Hodgson, "of course you know the submarine nuisance is not yet cleaned up to our satisfaction It is, however, common knowledge that we have captured or sunk 88 German submarines. Many of them are now being used in the Baltic against German shipping and when caught napping by a German patrol they manage to get away owing to the 'Made in Germany' look they have about them.

6,000 Armed Fishing Smacks.

"At the present time we have about 6,000 armed fishing smacks and trawlers scouting the home seas for enemy "subs". Many of them trail, in pairs, great steel nets, and woe betide the "sub" that gets foul of a net. That's how we've managed to bag most of the 88. Since the submarine menace started in February last year, 1,600 ships a week have landed or sailed from Britain, which is not too bad you'll admit.

"Up and down England, all day and all night, trains rush to and fro bearing soldiers for the front and soldiers from the front on leave. Everybody is bright and happy; every soldier is confident; everybody knows we have the enemy right there—(here Mr. Hodgson closed his fist)—patience, patience, and a patience that nothing can weary, will bring about a complete cleanup, and then there won't be any more war, and then we will think what a wonderful period of the world's history we have been privileged to live in.

"The allies had the Germans beaten when Von Kluck's wing was turned south to Paris, and General French's little army helped to do the trick. It was the marvelous cavalry dexterity of Sir Douglas Haig that kept the British from being enveloped. Every night French's little army was able to emerge to safety through the master-hand of Haig and his peerless cavalry. We have in Sir Douglas Haig a wonderful soldier.

Munitions Scheme Wonderful.

"England's organized forces for producing munitions is wonderful too. The whole of Britain is a great workshop turning out mountains of ammunition, but what they intend to do with it is a mystery to me, for don't be disappointed if there is no drive on the western front in the spring. Many of us feel that the blockade plan is 'what will win the war, but who can tell? You are all at liberty in Canada to draw your own conclusions.

"This we are certain of: Canada has astonished us by her resourcefulness. It is marvelous what she has done and how Canadians fight. There's no knowing just what resources Canada has—there seems to be no end to them. This is the astonishing part of the war. We all take our hats off to Canada and I don't mean to flatter you unduly either, but one thing, cheer up and be as cheerful as we are in England. And when the war ends; when the liberty of England flies in the breeze again as of old, watch Britain grow, watch her trade; watch Canada grow; watch her trade.

"Meanwhile," concluded Mr. Hodgson, "remember, young Canada, what the French say: 'Keep cool and you command yourselves'."

PRESBYTERIAN CHURCH ANNIVERSARY SERVICES

Were Held on Sunday, January 16th at Hastings—Hastings News

HASTINGS, Jan. 25. — The sympathy of the entire community is extended to Mr. Rev. Warner on the occasion of the death of his young wife, (Blanche Graham), abride of only one year. Deceased was stricken with a bad attack of tonsilitis and despite all that could be done, passed away after only a short illness. She leaves to mourn her loss, besides her husband, her father, mother and several brothers and sisters. Interment was made on Saturday in the Trent Valley cemetery.

We are pleased to learn that Mr. Geo. Oliver, who was suffering from severe bruises received by a kick from a cow, is much improved and hopes soon to be able to attend to his duties.

Anniversary services in connection with the Presbyterian church, were conducted by ev. E. Morrow of Warkworth on Sunday, Jan. 16th.

A large sleighing party wended their way to the home of Mr. and Mrs. Albert Brooks on Wednesday evening last and thoroughly enjoyed the evening.

Mr. Wm. Warner is doing as well as could be expected after his recent serious operation.

We were sorry to learn of the serious accident that had befallen Mr. L. F. Clarry of Edmonton, who is confined to his room suffering from a wound in the head caused by being thrown from an auto. Mr. Clarry was a one time resident of Hastings, and his many friends here are wishing for him a speedy recovery.

Mrs. M. J. Christie and Miss E. T. Beavis of Peterborough, attended the funeral of their brother, Mr. Nelson Beavis, on Tuesday of the past week.

Mrs. Jas. Holmes of Walhalla, N. Dakota, spent the past week with her sister, Mrs. Nelson Beavis.

Mrs. Aubrey Duxsee has been visiting friends in Port Hope.

Mrs. G. Hunter and Mrs. Geo. Johnson of Lakefield, spent a few days during the week with friends in this vicinity.

Mr. Geo. Laing and Mr. W. Christie of Peterborough, gave us a call on Tuesday.

Mr. J. McPhee of the local staff of the Union Bank, has been transferred to Berlin, Ont., and has gone to take charge of his new appointment.

Mr. Mould of Ottawa, has been appointed to fill the vacancy caused by his removal.

Mr. Lou Scriver is receiving the congratulations of his friends on the occasion of his recent marriage to Miss A. Blackburn of town.

The recent thaw has almost destroyed the sleighing, and walking is exceedingly dangerous owing to the icy condition of the pavement.

BOY KILLED BY AN AUTOMOBILE

Father of Deceased Was Well Known in Peterboro' Having Formerly Resided Here

ROCHESTER, Jan. 27.—Arthur Kelso, aged 15, son of James E. Kelso, formerly of Peterborough, and now head of the Kelso Laundry Company, died as a result of injuries received near his home when he was struck by an automobile operated by Peter M. Schwartz of 171 River street.

Young Kelso was returning home from school and had been standing with several boy companions in the boulevard near Stone road. The automobile, which was operated by Schwartz, had in it, besides the driver, Mrs. Schwartz, Mrs. Mary Hamlin and Arthur Love. It was leaving Stone road when, it is said, Kelso, not seeing it, ran across the boulevard in front of the machine.

He was thrown several feet away and lay unconscious. It was found that his skull was fractured, his left shoulder and ankle were broken and severe body bruises received. He was carried into the house of M. A. Wilder and Dr. H. A. Sedden of Dewey avenue, who was driving in an automobile at the rear of the Schwartz machine gave first aid until the Homeopathic ambulance arrived. The skull was trephined in an effort to save the boy's life. The police did not hold Schwartz.

INDIAN RIVER NEWS

INDIAN RIVER, Jan. 26. — The many friends of Mr. and Mrs. Robertson sympathize with them in the death of their eldest daughter, Libby, Mrs. Stanley Braden, at her home near Keene on Friday, January 21. The deceased, who was twenty-eight years of age, leaves to mourn her loss, besides her sorrowing husband and two small children, her mother and father, three sisters and two brothers. Interment took place at the Fife cemetery on Monday, Jan. 24, where a large following of friends and neighbours assembled to pay their last respects to the departed.

Death was in our midst again on January 22, when the death occurred of Miss Jennie Eason at the home of her nephew, Mr. John Fife, of Bethel, at the advanced age of ninety-five. Miss Eason occupied a place of high esteem and affection in the community. After the funeral service, conducted by Rev. Mr. Edmanson, the remains were intered at Fife cemetery on Monday, Jan. 24.

THE EXAMINER'S OWN PRIZE CONTEST

FOR DOLLAR DAY

An Estimate Blank for every dollar paid into the Examiner for Subscriptions, old and new, and Accounts for Advertising or Job Printing.

SO much interest was taken in the Examiner's prize contest on last DOLLAR DAY that it will be repeated again this year—

THURSDAY, FEBRUARY 3rd

DOLLAR DAY

This year looks like the greatest event yet, as the merchants are making tremendous preparations to eclipse all records in Dollar Bargain giving, and the crowd in the City that day is expected to be a bumper one.

To add to the interest of the day's proceedings, THE EXAMINER will

Give Away $35.00 in Cash

It will be divided into prizes, to be given

To Those Who Make The Nearest Correct Estimate as to the Number of Coppers in The Jar

which will be on display in the window of Trebilcock's Bookstore, next our office, for a week previous to Dollar Day.

PRIZES

will be awarded as follows:

PRIZES IN DOLLAR BILLS

TOTAL LOSSES IN WAR PLACED AT 14,960,000

Of These 2,990,000 Were Killed, 9,830,000 Wounded and 2,140,000 Prisoners

LONDON, Jan. 26.—The gross casualties of the war to January, 1916, reached the enormous total of 14,960,000. These figures have been computed from official statements of the losses by Great Britain and her allies, and are estimated for the Teutonic allies.

The number of killed is estimated at one in every five of the gross casualties, and prisoners at one in every seven. Upon this basis it is found that the total killed number 2,990,000; prisoners 2,140,000, while 9,830,000 have been wounded.

Russia	4,000,000
Germany	4,000,000
Austro-Hungary	2,800,000
France	2,800,000
Great Britain	800,000
Italy	800,000
Belgium, Serbia, Bulgaria and Turkey	1,000,000
Grand total	14,960,000

In the Balkan War of 1912-13, 850,000 men were killed of the 1,250,000 engaged. In the Russo-Japanese war, 560,000 were killed of 2,800,000 engaged.

There are now at least 21,000,000 men under arms in the different theatres of war.

ALMOST UNPRECEDENTED IN MILITARY ANNALS

Monro's Masterly Retreat From Gallipoli Peninsula—New British Leader Comes Into Prominence

NEW YORK, Jan. 27.—The Anglo-French abandonment of the Gallipoli peninsula campaign brings into prominence a new military leader of whom the British will inevitably build hopes for the future.

General Sir Charles Monro has shown large qualities of decision, independence and efficiency since he was appointed to the command of the Gallipoli operations last October, and immediately recommended that the peninsula be evacuated. His report was not taken as the final word by the British government, until Lord Kitchener himself went to the Gallipoli and confirmed the soundness of General Monro's decision.

The new commander was thereupon given the task of removing the Anglo-French forces. The problem facing him was one of the most difficult of the war, but he succeeded in getting his men away with practically no losses. It would be hard to match this exploit in the annals of successful military retreats. General Monro now goes from the Gallipoli to France, to take command of the first British army corps, in secession to Sir Douglas Haig. He will occupy the same position in relation to the new British commander-in-chief that General Haig filled when Viscount French commanded on the continent. As such he will hold the principal field command in the forthcoming offensive which the British intend to develop in France this spring.

The most amazing fact in the evacuation of Gallipoli is the failure of the Turks to punish the retiring troops. Large quantities of German ammunition must have arrived at Gallipoli since the opening of communications between Berlin and Constantinople, and the Turks certainly knew the British and French were re-embarking on their transports. Yet the Ottomans apparently were afraid to move to the attack.

The incident confirms the frequent criticism of the Turks that they are far better warriors when on the offensive than when fighting defensively. This fact must give increased confidence to the British concerning the security of Egypt.

INCONCEIVABLE.

The Government may have jumped from the frying-pan into the fire, but the need for some change was very great. For example, it is inconceivable that Flavelle would give out contracts to the extent of $945,000,000 without consulting the members of his committee, and without tender. Is that why the big eastern manufacturers are sore? They would prefer the good old days when so many of them were represented on the Shell Committee and got fat contracts without even the bother of tendering for them.—Port Arthur Chronicle.

AFRICAN EDEN OF "CHIEF SAM" A TRAGIC MYTH

NEW YORK, Jan. 27.—The last chapter of the expedition of Chief Sam to found a new republic in Africa was told by three negroes who arrived in the steerage of the liner Cymric.

The three had been deported by the British authorities at Sierra Leone on the west coast of Africa. They were Mrs. Betty Lewis, Fred O. Henry and Scott Warner.

"Chief Sam," Mrs. Lewis said, "is now a prisoner in Cape Coast Castle, awaiting trial for manslaughter. This and other charges were preferred against him on account of the large number of negroes who died on the voyage over."

Alfred C. Sam, who called himself "Chief Sam," claimed he was the descendant of an African king. In 1914 he organized the expedition which sailed on the steamer Liberia.

He declared he had obtained a grant of 64,000 acres and the promises of welcome from twenty other African kings. He issued gold certificates at $25 each, which entitled the holder to passage on the Liberia and a few acres of land.

"The Liberia left Galveston on August 4, 1914," continued Mrs. Lewis. "We didn't arrive in Africa until November. My husband was chief mate of the ship, but he died on the way over. We had about fifty on board when we started, but they died each day. The food was terrible, and most of them died from ptomaine poisoning.

"When we got to Africa the British authorities arrested Chief Sam and seized the ship. The reason we did not land in Liberia was because the natives were hostile. These were the people Chief Sam said would give us a welcome."

Mrs. Lewis and her companions were destitute. They were cared for by the Travellers' Aid Society.

The merchants are racing to lead in Dollar Day value giving. Buyers get both the bargains and the free $175, in cash.

THE ANNUAL MEETING OF ST. PAUL'S PRESBYTERIAN CHURCH

Work of the Church is in a Flourishing Condition—A Number of New Members Have Been Added to the Church—Work Accomplished by the St. Paul's Branch of the Red Cross Society

The annual meeting of St. Paul's Presbyterian Church for the transaction of business was held last evening in the Sunday School Hall. There was a fair attendance of the members of the church. All the reports presented were of an encouraging character, and showed the congregation and its different organizations to be in a flourishing condition financially, notwithstanding the severe strain put upon the resources of the people by the war during the last year and a half. There was a slight decrease in the current revenue and the amount given to missions, but this could be accounted for by the number of soldiers who are at the front, and who were liberal givers to both objects. The Session report showed that 45 new members were added by certificate during the year, and 31 on profession of faith. Fourteen were removed by certificate, 11 by death and 43 on revision of the roll, leaving the present communicant membership of the church 1,041. The Session made reference to the young men of the congregation who have heard the call of God and their country and have given themselves to the service of the Empire in this terrible war. Of these, two have laid down their lives already, Odley Taylor, an active and exceedingly popular member of Mr. Cowan's class, killed in action at the battle of Langemarch, and Max Smith, a former member of the class, who died in a hospital in England on his way to the front.

Financial Statement.

The financial statement was presented by Mr. W. A. Logan, treasurer of the church, who paid a tribute to Mr. John Crane, who was treasurer for a number of years, for the help he had given him throughout the year. The financial statement of the different departments is given below. Reference may here be made to a few of the other reports presented.

The Sunday School showed a total enrolment of 407. The Kindergarten, Primary and Junior departments are particularly well organized. Mr. Madill has retired from the superintendency. The congregation and teachers feel particularly gratified that Mr. S. J. Keyes has taken up the work. The school is organized for work along the most modern lines with six assistant superintendents.

The Ladies' Aid was not idle throughout the year, and in addition to the help which they give to poor families, laid down new matting on the hall of the Sunday School, and a beautiful new carpet on the Guild Room of the church.

The strongest organization of the church is the Women's Missionary Society, the membership of which is now 146. Their thankoffering was the largest in the history of the society, the total amount being $261.20.

The Fraser Mission Band has been doing good work with Mrs. Hall as its president. This Band raised for the year $245.00.

The Faithful Workers' Mission Band showed a decided improvement, not only in the number attending, but in the increase of their contributions from $30.00 a year ago to $100.00 this year. The report was read by one of the juniors, Madeline Pulkinghorn, and read so well that she received the hearty applause of the meeting.

The report of the choir, presented by Mr. Allen, showed that no fewer than seven of its members have enlisted. A vote of thanks was moved by Mr. Logan to the choir for the services which they have rendered throughout the year, and special mention was made to the organist, Mr. Allen, and to the soloist, Miss Dorothy Allen. St. Paul's congregation feels justly proud of their soloist.

The St. Paul's branch of the Red Cross Society reported the following articles as made by the Society:

96 Hospital shirts.
43 Bed jackets.
78 Pair pyjamas.
96 Convalescent robes.
423 Bandages.
26 Sheets.
60 Pillow cases.
1,650 Mouth wipes.
1,075 Face cloths.
192 Pair socks.

In addition to the above there were made, property bags, hot water bottle covers, pillows, handkerchiefs, knee caps, wristlets, etc.

A very hearty and harmonious meeting was brought to a close by brief speeches from Sheriff Hall, D. H. Moore, Wm. Scott, Adam Hall, T. C. Elliot and the pastor, who expressed his appreciation of, and thankfulness for, the spirit of unity and good-will that exists, not only among the members but between pastor and people.

Congregational work	$ 6,894.43
Missions	5,065.16
Sunday School Current Account	506.20
Sunday School Mission Account	566.66
Women's Missionary Society and Mission Bands	1,168.47
Ladies' Aid Society	470.40
Auxiliary to the Red Cross.	393.35
Choir	129.98
Grand total	$16,991.70

KNOX CHURCH YOUNG PEOPLE HELD BANQUET

The lecture hall of Knox Church was all ablaze with colour last night, the tables spread with good things, and a tri-coloured canopy over all. The occasion was the third annual banquet of this association, the Y. P. G.

Dr. J. M. McCulloch was toastmaster, presiding over a company of at least one hundred.

After a very good clearance had been effected, the toast list was reverted to, all the speakers acquitting themselves creditably as orators. Many "little stories that come to my mind" were re-told, and altogether a delightful evening was spent — all tending towards the accomplishment of much good work in the coming sessions of this society. A touch of colour—drab, it may have been—was added by the presence of several members of the 93rd Battalion.

One noticeable feature of these gatherings, where ministers are included in the company, is that the members of the Cloth try to "get back at you." And last night was certainly no exception to the rule—each trying to cover up the "sins and faults of youth."

Rev. J. A. MacKenzie moved votes of thanks to the participants of the evening.

Following is the toast list:

Toast Master—J. M. McCulloch, M.D.

King and Country—Chairman; reply, Rev. Dr. Farquharson.

Solo, Miss E. Hinchcliffe.

'Cello solo—Pte. Tom. Smith.

Solo—Miss Cora Peters.

The Ladies.—Mr. Roy Laing; reply, Mr. Harvey Henry.

Duet—Miss E. Hinchcliffe and Mr. John Smith.

Our Soldiers—Mr. A. Mackenzie; reply, Capt. Laing.

God Save the King.

Executive of Knox Guild 1916.

Hon.-President, Rev. J. A. Mackenzie; Hon. Vice-President, Mr. C. H. Williamson; President, Mr. R. Hillier; Vice-President, Mr. K. Kenyon; Secretary, Miss L. Ego; Treasurer, Mr. E. Williamson; Committee, Misses Yale, Bulmer, Carr; Messrs. Henry and Thurber.

Banquet Committee.—Misses Crocker, Fair and Kennedy; Messrs. Kenyon, Wells, Henry and Smith.

Accompanist—Mr. Geo. Kenyon.

BIRDS INCREASE DURING WAR

Wild birds which were formerly shot as game have been increasing rapidly since the war in France, Belgium, and other countries, according to T. Gilbert Pearson, Secretary of the National Association of Audubon Societies.

"For example, the French Government has stopped all hunting," he said, "and the Minister of War has issued an order that the sale of native game would not be tolerated. Ordinarily more than 1,000 tons of native killed game are sold annually in the markets of France, representing many millions of game birds.

"Belgium in time of peace was one of the greatest bird-catching countries in Europe. More than 50,000 skylarks, as well as hundreds of thousands of other birds, were annually trapped and exported from that country for food. Our correspondents have found that there was less hunting in all parts of Europe than formerly."

Prohibition Is Dangerous, Says Bishop Fallon

Enactment Means Reversion to Pagan Idea of State Omnipitence

GIVES SIGNED STATEMENT

Head of Catholic Diocese Outlines His Opposition to Proposed Measure.

January 26, 1916

For more than 30 years I have been a priest of the Catholic Church. During that time, and longer, I have been a constant worker in the cause of temperance and total abstinence. But I have always addressed any appeal to the conscience of the individual, using arguments that might move his free will, and endeavoring to leave to him the merit of his actions.

Foreign to Catholicity.

I am opposed to the principle of prohibition in regard to the manufacture and sale of intoxicating liquors. My opposition is based on a careful consideration of the reasons advanced in its favor, on a wide acquaintance with its effects in states and provinces where it is in operation, and, mainly, on my conviction that prohibition is foreign to the history and genius of Catholicity.

Invitation to Intolerance.

I regard the present agitation in Ontario a dangerous invitation to the state to meddlesomely interfere with the rights of the citizens, and an equally dangerous attempt to regulate all human conduct by statute. It is a return to the pagan idea of the omnipotence of the state, whereas the Christian ideal is the responsibility of the individual.

The action of the state marks the limits of the free action of the individual, and the question how far the state ought to control the individual is the fundamental question of personal liberty. We are threatened with a multiplication of the functions of the state that will grievously narrow the circle of individual rights.

The German empire of to-day is, among civilized nations, the supreme example of state omnipotence. The very principle for the vindication and safeguarding of which we are now engaged in a colossal struggle with Germany, is precisely the principle which in my opinion, is menaced by the present attempt to force the enactment of prohibition and penal legislation in the matter of the manufacture and sale of intoxicating liquors.

M. F. FALLON,
Bishop of London.

WHEN BLOOD IS POISON.

The blood must be filtered, otherwise the liver is overworked, and becomes torpid. By using Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills you get both these filtering organs working right, and also ensure healthful action of the bowels. For this reason these pills are an ideal family medicine. They cure biliousness, constipation, chronic indigestion and kidney disease.

FAT POLICEMAN SAVED AFTER RIVER RESCUE

NEW YORK, Jan. 27. — Saving Frank Novey, who fell into the East River, was easy enough for Patrolman Samuel Waugh, yesterday, but being saved himself caused difficulty.

Waugh, weighs 220 pounds. He brought Novey to the river wall near the foot of East Seventh Street, where a rope was dangling. The other man's weight, added to his own, was more than he could raise.

A CHANCE FOR PETERBORO' GIRLS

Can Offer a Choice of a Wedding or a Breach of promise Suit

Many people look upon leap year as a joke, and it should not so be regarded. It should be taken advantage of by the girls of Peterboro, and is a splendid time to back the nervous fellow, who has been hanging around for the last four years, into the bay window and make him declare his intentions. Ask him if he is worth anything, or whether he wants a wedding or a breach of promise suit.

It is the opportune time for the young girls to make those weaklings who remind one of a sunfish nibbling at a bait but afraid to swallow it, to be called to time and made to jump in and take their bath or get off the river bank. They have the carpet worn out, dad's wood pile hauled down, and put the coal and electric light bills on the top pinnacle. Let the girls go to those fellows who have a weak spine and make him do one thing or the other during 1916. Do not deal any longer with these doubtful propositions.

"TWIN BEDS"

Salisbury Field and Margaret Mayo, authors of "Twin Beds," the laugh festival which Selwyn and Company are sending to the Grand Opera House on Thursday next, February 3, after its record-breaking run of fifty-two weeks in New York, have laid the scenes of their rollicking farce in a field infinitely rich in humorous possibilities—in brief, in a big apartment house in New York, which is so compact that neighbourliness is at once horrible to indulge and impossible to avoid.

In one apartment live Harry Hawkins and his bride—he a modest business man with a domestic desire to soft-pedal on parties, and she a delectable but highly sociable little creature who cannot be prevented from smiling at strangers in the elevators. In the apartment above them live Signor and Signora Monti — he a $2,000 a night tenor at the Metropolitan, she the Amazon who picked him out of a Brooklyn cabaret, and set him up in the world, and then spent her time and energy checking up on his love affairs. In the apartment below the Hawkinses live Amanda and Andrew Larkin—wedded after the first act of the play. He, poor dear, is innocent and faithful—she finds it hard to believe.

It does not require the soul of a prophet to see that once the tenor came home too exhilarated to know one apartment from another, and so got, by mistake, into the other, the complications were fit to the playwright's hand. Not a chance for rapid fire situation was overlooked. Not a piece of characterization was omitted.

The slangy forthrightness of Signora Monti in keeping her "wop" to the "straight and narrow" and her distress at being pulled one way by her love for him, and the other by her utter exasperation, give play to some of the cleverest lines heard in a farce since "Baby Mine," also Margaret Mayo's play.

Admittedly, such a farce as "Twin Beds" requires admirable acting, so Selwyn and Company have selected for its presentation here a fidelly balanced cast, including Aileen Poe, Virginia Fairfax, Kathryn Mills, Margaret Allen, Thos. Manning and others.

The production is identical with the one which made such an impression in the year-long New York run, and is the same company as appeared in Toronto earlier in the season.

HOW I DARKENED MY GRAY HAIR

Lady Gives Simple Home Receipe That She Used to Darken Her Gray Hair.

For years I tried to restore my gray hair to its natural colour with the prepared dyes and stains, but none of them gave satisfaction, and they were all expensive. I finally ran onto a simple recipe which I mixed at home that gives wonderful results. I gave the recipe, which is as follows, to a number of my friends, and they all delighted with it. To 7 ozs. of water add a small box of Orlex Compound, 1 oz. of bay rum and 1-4 oz. of glycerine. These ingredients can be bought at any drug store at very little cost. Use every other day until the hair becomes the required shade, then every two weeks. It will not only darken the gray hair, but removes dandruff and scalp humors, and acts as a tonic to the hair. It is not sticky or greasy, does not rub off and does not colour the scalp.

TURKISH FORCES RELEASED FROM DARDANELLES

More Than 200,000 Men Thus Available

LONDON, Jan. 27.—Turkish forces estimated at more than 200,000 have been released for use in other theatres of war by the action of the allies in completely abandoning the Dardanelles campaign.

They comprise the prize corps of the Turkish army, hard fighters, seasoned in fierce battles on Gallipoli. The greater part of this force, it is believed here, will be thrown at once into the proposed Egyptian campaign or sent into Mesopotamia to aid the attempt to drive the British out of the Garden of Eden.

With them will go several thousand heavy guns and field pieces of all caliber employed by the Turks in withstanding the nine months' assault of the Anglo-French troops from Sedd-Ul-Bahr and Suvla bay. Less than 20,000 men, it is estimated here, will be required to garrison the Dardanelles forts for the remainder of the war.

No hint as to what disposition will be made of the Anglo-French forces withdrawn from Gallipoli is permitted to be made public, by the censor. There is considerable speculation, however, as to the possibilities both in the Balkans and in Egypt. Climatic conditions on Gallipoli have particularly fitted the Dardanelles troops for operation in Egypt should they be needed.

A large fleet of battleships, cruisers, submarines, destroyers, minesweepers and convoys will be set free for operation elsewhere with the abandonment of the Dardanelles attempt.

Details of the evacuation of the last positions of the Sedd-ul-Bahr were still lacking to-day. The London public, however, takes no stock in Constantinople dispatches, transmitted through Amsterdam, reporting that the allies' losses were extremely heavy.

The Daily Express commenting on the official report of General Monro, that British casualties consisted of one man wounded and that the French suffered no losses, declared that the withdrawal was "the most glorious failure in history." The other papers voiced similar expressions of satisfaction that the troops had been withdrawn without heavy slaughter.

This complete evacuation of the Gallipoli positions was inevitably generally understood here after the surrender of the positions at Suvla bay and in the Anzac region to the Turks. The Turkish commanders at once transferred their Suvla bay forces to Sedd-ul-Bahr and were preparing an attempt to overwhelm the Anglo-French troops at the tip of Gallipoli.

SEIZE FUGITIVES' PROPERTY.

Austrians to Sell What Serbs at Semlin Left Behind.

BERLIN, Jan. 27.—The Tageblatt's Budapest correspondent says that confiscation has been ordered of the property, valued at 80,000,000 crowns, owned by Serbians living in Semlin who are naturalized Hungarians.

Most of those affected, who are mainly merchants, had fled from the city, leaving behind, it is said, Hungarian and Austrian creditors. The Hungarian Government will sell part of the property at auction to satisfy the claims.

OVER TEN THOUSAND DOLLARS RAISED BY CONGREGATION OF MURRAY ST. CHURCH

Annual Meeting of the Church Was Held Last Evening —Attendance Was Large and the Spirit Enthusiastic—A Year of Great Activity

The annual meeting of Murray St. Baptist Church was held in the schoolroom last night, the pastor Rev. J. R. Webb in the chair. The attendance was large and the spirit enthusiastic. The pastor's annual letter to the church showed a year of great activity. The fact was noted that Murray St. Church had no reason to be ashamed of the part it has played in the defence of the Empire. The hope was expressed that still more men would find themselves so situated as to be able to volunteer for service overseas and yet the numbers of men and the sums of money contributed for patriotic service is splendid for a congregation of this size.

Reports full of encouragement and showing that no part of this church has been idle during the year 1915 were presented.

The total receipts from the departments reporting last night was $9,999.81. The Ladies' Home Mission Society and the Pennant Club have yet to present their financial reports. These will bring the contributions of the year well over the ten thousand dollar mark. Eleven hundred dollars have been paid on the principal debt besides all interest.

By unanimous action of the church, Deacon Geo. Cochrane was made an honorary deacon for life, and Mr. R. C. Read was elected to the deaconate to fill out the term of Mr. Cochrane. The name of Mr. H. G. Webber was added to the finance committee. The Ushers' Committe was increased by the addition of Messrs. W. Browett, Herbert Webb, Walter Garbutt and Howard Quinn. Mr. Thomas Waller with Mr. T. G. Gillespie was made an associate financial secretary to cooperate with Mr. F. M. Somerville. The door committee for the year 1916 will be Mr. Harold Foster and Mr. H. Johnston. All other officers were re-elected.

The year 1916 marks the 70th anniversary of this church, and its history has been one of splendid service. The outlook was never brighter than it is at the commencement of its 70th year.

Presentation To Pte. W. A. R. McColl

By His Fellow Employees of the Peterboro Machine Company — Is With the 93rd

The employees of the Peterborough Machine Co. met last evening and presented Pte. W. A. R. McColl, who has recently joined the 93rd Battalion, with a handsome wrist watch. The presentation was made by Mr. Fred Foote and the following address read by Miss Brayley:

To Pte. W. A. R. McColl,
Peterborough—

We have come to express to you in some tangible form, our feelings towards you who have recently enlisted for overseas service, along with thousands of others, who have gone before, to perform your duty as a part of the great Empire to which we belong. We shall miss your willing service and pleasant smile, and know that the boys of the 93rd will find you a welcome addition to their ranks.

We now ask you to accept this wrist watch as a slight remembrance of your fellow workmen, and as the hours are ticked off and marks the time, may you often think of us, and we trust you may be spared to return and meet your friends again, feeling proud that you answered the call and went forth to do your part in service for our great and noble Empire.

Signed on behalf of the Peterborough Machine Co.

Fred Foote,
Stanley Gillespie.
George Barrett.

Pte. McColl was completely taken by surprise, but responded in a few well chosen words, thanking his fellow workmen for their kind remembrance, and hoped to meet them all on his return.

THE COUNTY COUNCIL'S DOINGS

The Munro House is still the rendezvous of the County Council. Those who dwell in the more remote townships hang their hats there during the entire week, and the other boys gather round with them in the morning or after lunch for close harmony in "A Wee Deouch An' Doris."

Reeve Coben, of Galway, was first elevated to the Council in 1891, and with a few years' intermission has represented his township. And in all these years he never saw Peterborough streets as bare of snow at the January sessions as they are now.

The Grand Jury's report with its recommendation for a prison farm received the usual short shift. The skids are always well lubricated for these serious reviews in the preparation of which "twelve good men and true" examine public institutions and carefully outline a statement of their observations.

The personnel of the Council changes slowly but considerably. Four years ago Reeves Anderson and Fitzgerald made their debuts, and today their seniors in service are only Reeves Brown, Coben and McKee.

Cigars have been supplied by Reeve Fitzgerald and Mr. Dunsford, of the Bank of Commerce, and this morning Reeve McKee passed a big bag of chocolates around. Reeve Bullied, of Chandos, where the beavers come from, drew a solitary all-day sucker. Of course this occurred prior to the opening of the session.

Dr. Morgan has been reappointed jail surgeon at the same salary.

The Committee on Appointments reappointed caretakers of bridges yesterday. Among the long were noticed the following:
Chemong—James O'Leary, $175.
Bensfort—W. Smith $8.
Young's Point—Ed. Young, $5.
Nogey's Creek—O. Moore, $5.
Locks—D. Meagher, $10.
Wallace Point—R. Dwyer, $5.

Reeves Anderson, McKee and Coben were appointed representatives to the Peterborough Horticultural Society.

Reeves Anderson and Coben were appointed members of the committee for the distribution of the Foley Estate funds for two years beginning April 14th, 1916. Warden Darling and Reeve Squire are also on this committee.

Reeve Brown's printing committee completed its work in short order yesterday afternoon.

The Committee on Roads and Bridges held the floor this morning.

Its Coming, the Big Event of the Year, when there are bargains in every line of goods.

DESPERATE FIGHTING RESUMED ON THE ITALIAN FRONT

According to the Teuton official statement the Austrians occupied portions of the Italian positions near Oslavia, northwest of Gorizia, and took prisoner 1,176 soldiers, including 45 officers.

The Italian official statement admits that large military forces, favored by a fog, forced some of the invaders' first line detachments to retire to the second line trenches. Successive attacks were then directed against these by the Austrians, but they were all repulsed with heavy losses.

GERMANY'S GREATEST AVIATOR KILLED IN SHELLING OF NANCY

BERLIN, January 27.—The two German air squadrons which shelled Nancy on Monday, as reported by the German headquarters staff, says the Overseas News Agency, dropped over 600 bombs on the town and the fortress. The news agency adds:

"The German aviation corps laments in this connection the loss of Lieut. Boehme, who was several times cited in the headquarters report. Lieut. Boehme fell to the ground at Remiheim, in Alsace. The aviator was instantly killed."

TWNS THREE TMES IN THREE YEARS.

READING, Pa., Jan. 27. — Mrs. Frank E. Walter, wife of a local contractor, has presented to her husband twins, both boys, and there are now six twin boys in the family. Two, Paul and Joseph, are three years old, and the next two Leon and Carl, eighteen months old.

The New York Stock Market

Summary of To-day's Activities on the New York Stock Exchange—List Was Reactionary

NEW YORK, Jan 27.—United States Steel opened steady at 83 3-8 to 1-2 on the stock exchange to-day. The general list was reactionary.

Many of the railroads were down, as were some of the war stocks, while some industrials showed gains.

Greece, Roumania and The Allies

No Neutral Country Has Had a More Difficult Time Than Greece

Probably no neutral country has had a more difficult time than Greece. Next in order would come Roumania. Each, in turn has been urged, tempted, and even threatened by one group or the other, to join them against the other group. Bulgaria for many months went through the same course. Finally she made the plunge. Unluckily for her she chose Germany. The temporary successes against Servia and the Allied army of occupation show what valuable aid she was to Germany. Had Greece made her choice with the Allies when she was being so strongly urged it is quite possible that forces could have been so combined and disposed as to save Servia and completely block the Bulgarian and German successes. Greece is small and weak, and her royal family are closely related to the German Emperor. The Allies' failure at the Dardanelles made a bad impression in Greece, and the King of Greece seems to have been convinced that the Allies could neither force the Dardanelles nor help Servia, and that he would simply bring war and calamity into Greece by joining the Allies.

A Strong Influence.

On the other hand the great body of the Greek nation seems to have been steadfastly with the Allies and there is much talk of a revolution in Greece to be led by Venizelos, the extremely popular premier, who has twice resigned because he could not agree with the King. In all probability the result would be that Greece would immediately join the Allies. That would simplify matters a good deal.

The German drives of last summer and fall, against Russia had a strong influence on Roumania, and for some time it looked as though she would be forced to join the Teutons. Somehow, she held out. Now, the Russians are coming back. Roumania is a Slav country, and in many ways closely related to Russia. Her sympathies are all with Russia. All to this, the very recent patronage by England of the entire available Roumanian wheat crop at a price of [illegible], and you will understand that the chances of Roumania joining Germany are about an absolute nullity. Everything considered, the war is going mighty well for the Allies at present, with very good prospects of more allies in the near future.

Goethals and Edwards Will End Row Here

PANAMA, January 25.—Serious difficulties of an official nature which have arisen during the last few months between Major General Goethals, Governor of the Panama Canal Zone, and Brig. General Edwards, commanding the United States troops in the zone, are to come to a head in Washington when these two officials reach the capital, according to Governor Goethals. They sailed to-day for the United States on the steamer Calamares.

Governor Goethals said before his departure that criticisms, alleged to have been made by General Edwards, had reached the Secretary of War and that the Secretary had requested information on the subject. The Governor replied with an official communication detailing the troubles.

Governor Goethals declared that General Edwards had had much to say regarding the administration of affairs on the Isthmus, especially with reference to the methods and costs of construction of many military buildings under canal jurisdiction. It is understood that Governor Goethals also resents many of the criticisms alleged to have been made by General Edwards regarding the form of the canal government, General Edwards believing, it is said, that the military and civil authority should be vested in one person, instead of separated, as at present.

General Edwards, before leaving Panama, said that Governor Goethals had been misinformed, but otherwise he declined to discuss the subject.

Governor Goethals further announced that he intends to give General Edwards ample opportunity to make whatever statements he thinks necessary before the Secretary of War and the Congressional Committee.

More Merchants In Line

Many More Stores Being Added to the List Included in Dollar Day

The Examiner telephone is kept busy answering the calls of merchants who want their stores included in the list of those participating in the prize-giving on Dollar Day. Of course only those who are giving away the cash will issue the estimating blanks for the prize contest, and naturally all the stores wish to be represented.

The Examiner hopes every store in the city will come in and help make 1916 Dollar Day a record-breaker as a shopping occasion for Peterborough.

BAILIFF'S SALE

The goods of W. F. Nelson under seizure for unpaid taxes for 1914 and 1915 will be sold by public Auction on Monday, Jan. 24th at 2.30 P. M. at the Store No 370 Water St., Peterborough.

TRAVELLER WAS PLACED UNDER ARREST

Accused of Making Treasonable Utterances— Was Allowed to proceed to Peterborough

LINDSAY, January 27.—A traveller from Napanee narrowly escaped arrest for treasonable utterances. While seated at the supper table of a local hotel he started to air his views and get up an argument concerning the present war.

He waxed hotter and hotter and announced to the whole roomful among other treasonable utterances that he would not salute the uniform, nor the king nor the flag, nor would he fight for Great Britain, and furthermore that he believed Germany was in the right anyway.

The remarks were made pointedly, it is said, in the presence of a number of officers, who took counsel together, and the man's arrest was ordered and brought about. The traveller when arrested said that he did not know anything of the remarks of the night before and apologized most humbly. The proprietor of the hotel was called into consultation and gave the man a testimonial as to character, stating that he liked to talk merely for the sensation he could produce. The man was ill of a serious wasting disease, which had probably affected him. He was 35 years of age and was born in Napanee.

He was allowed to go but will be kept under surveillance, and the authorities of his home town, it is said, have been asked to look into the case. He was allowed to proceed to Peterborough to conduct his business.

U. S. OFFICERS IN TROUBLE

Special to The Examiner:

BROWNSVILLE, Texas, Jan 27.—Lieuts. J. E. Mort, Paynton and Waldron, of the 4th Field Artillery, were placed under arrest in Progreso, Texas, to-day, because they led fourteen of their men into Mexico to rescue two American soldiers who were captured by Mexicans. Major-General Funston issued orders that no soldier should cross into Mexico. Four of Mort's men were drowned while swimming the Rio Grande under a cross-fire from Mexican and American troops.

Couple Arrested For Chicago Crime

CHICAGO, January 27.—Frank Pace and a woman, said to be his wife, are in custody to-day in connection with the robbery of the Cook Tourist Agency and the murder of Detr. A. Johnson, a policeman, last Friday.

At the rooming house where the two were arrested the police found three wigs, one of them answering the description of the color of the hair of the woman accomplice in the murder and robbery. A hat similar to that worn by the woman was found.

At the police station the woman said that she and Pace were married in Canada last September.

Celebrated Their 50th Anniversary

Mr. and Mrs. Ranger, Morrow St. Have Been Married Fifty Years

On Sunday last Mr. and Mrs. Ranger, Morrow street, celebrated the fiftieth anniversary of their wedding. Relatives and friends to the number of about fifty congregated at the home of the happy couple and joined in wishing them many more years of marital happiness. Among those present was a number of grandchildren and great-grandchildren.

Mr. and Mrs. Ranger, who have resided in Peterborough for upwards of forty-nine years, were the recipients of many presents, evincing the esteem in which they are held in the community.

CITY HALL PARAGRAPHS

A meeting will be held this evening in the Assembly Hall of the Collegiate Institute for the purpose of forming a Peterborough branch of the Soldiers' Aid Association.

COUNCIL INTERESTED.

The City Council is interested in the movement to aid soldiers returning from the front. A committee comprising members of the council has been formed to deal with the matter.

WITH OTHER MUNICIPALITIES.

Varcheres, Que., January 27.—Prohibition was defeated here by a majority of 39 votes. For prohibition there were 49 votes, against 88.

FIFTY-ONE BALLOTS.

Mr. George Greer, the reeve of Cobourg, was elected Warden of the United Counties of Durham and Northumberland after 51 votes were taken. The council was in session on Tuesday and could not decide until Wednesday morning.

TO RETURNED SOLDIERS.

On a vote of five to four the town council of Paris, Ont., gave the assessor's position to Pte. A. D. Fraser, a returned soldier, as against Geo. Tate, the present occupant.

GREY COUNTY COUNCIL.

The Grey County Council voted $700 to provide supplementary equipment such as field kitchens, mess tents, kitchen shelters, transport wagons, signalling equipment, and orderly room equipment, for the 147th Battalion.

Taken Ill On The Street

Wm. Jamieson Was Removed to His Home in the Ambulance

While proceeding along Simcoe street near the corner of Park street shortly after three o'clock yesterday, William Jamieson, 169 Charlotte street, who is employed by the F. E. J. McPherson Company, was stricken suddenly ill. Dr. W. Scott was summoned and first aid rendered, after which the patient was removed to his home in Ormstock's ambulance.

MRS. MOHR'S CHILDREN TO TAKE STAND

SEE NEW BECKER PARALLEL

Widow's Counsel, J. J. Fitzgerald, Talked of for Governor — If Elected He Could Issue Pardon.

By Sophia Treadwell.

PROVIDENCE, Jan. 27.—What is to become of Mrs. Mohr, now on trial, accused of hiring two negro hostlers to murder her husband, Dr. C. Franklin Mohr? What is to become of her—guilty or not guilty—when the trial is over?

The answer is a curious one.

If the jury's verdict is "Not guilty," of course she will go free. But if its verdict is "Guilty" she probably will go free also—eventually.

"There never has been any one convicted of murder in Rhode Island who has died in jail," was the way a prominent Providence attorney expressed the situation to-day.

There is but one sentence Mrs. Mohr can receive — if the jury returns a verdict of guilty. That is "life imprisonment." But, even in this event, within a year she can be pardoned by the Governor of the State "with the advice and consent of the Senate."

Right here enters an interesting sidelight on this trial. The parallel has been strikingly made between this case and the Becker case. The parallel has even entered into the record here.

New Becker Parallels.

Attorney John J. Fitzgerald for Mrs Mohr asked Healis, the State's star witness:

"Have you heard of the Becker case in New York?" and "Do you know that there certain men committed a crime and then got out of it by putting it on some one else?"

But the parallel goes even further. It touches heavily this point of the probable fate of Mrs. Mohr.

Attorney Fitzgerald, who made the comparison in open court and who is the leading counsel in Mrs. Mohr's defence—is also acknowledged to be the Democratic candidate for Governor of Rhode Island. The election is next autumn.

Whitman, who convicted Becker, afterwards becae the Governor who refused to pardon him.

Fitzgerald— if local politicians are to be heeded —has a very big chance of becoming the next Governor of this State. So in the event of her conviction, the man who has most strenuously defended Mrs. Mohr will be the man in whose hands will rest the question of her speedy pardon.

But Mrs. Mohr is seemingly not looking forward to any such contingency. She still maintains her attitude of almost unruffled composure. She still asserts confidence that she will be found innocent.

She spent to-day in conference with her two attorneys, Arthur Cushing and John J. Fitzgerald. She went over with them the main points in the testimony in her own defence that she is to give on the stand the coming week.

The question of whether her children, Charles and Virginia, should appear as witnesses for their mother was debated at length but not definitely decided.

Both children wished to be allowed to testify. Mrs. Mohr wishes them to take the stand for her. The lawyers are said to be the ones who hesitate on the point of "good taste."

Much has been written of Mrs. Mohr on trial for conspiring to murder her husband. But what of Dr. Mohr who was murdered. He has figured vaguely through the court proceedings of the last two weeks as some shadowy "Don Juan."

But what of the man himself? What did he look like? How did he impress the every-day people here who saw him every day?

All Talk Mohr Trial.

I can only quote the manicure girl and the handsome woman who runs the "hairdressing" parlor, where I happened to be yesterday.

Nobody else in this town, where he lived and worked and grew rich and was killed, seems to have kept interest enough in him to even remember what he looked like. Yet nobody talks of anything except the Mohr trial.

"He was awfully good looking," said the woman "Tanned face and good features — all except his eyes. His eyes were black and too small. His hair was just beginning to turn gray on the temples. It gave him a swell look."

"He was awfully well built," put in the girl. "Broad shoulders, and then coming down just like a V."

"Oh, a fine figure," said the woman.

"Flat as a washboard," said the girl

Victim Well Groomed.

"A keen dresser," said the woman.

"I never saw such grooming in a man in my life," said the girl.

"You should have seen him on horseback" said the woman. "He used to wear dove-coloured riding breeches and a brown coat."

"Oh, you should have seen him getting out of his automobile—the air of him," said the woman.

"Honest," finished the girl, "if you could have seen him going into a cafe in Providence you'd have thought he was the King of England."

To-morrow the State will probably rest its case against the woman and two boys accused of murdering him. They have seven more witnesses to be heard.

Tuesday the work of the defence will begin. It is thought the trial will last more than a week longer.

DARKNESS CAUSED ACCIDENTS.

LONDON, Jan. 27.—When the full statistics are completed, an enormous increase in death from street accidents will be noted over 1913, the year before the streets were darkened. In 1913 there were 579 fatalities due to street traffic. The darkening late in 1914 raised the figures to 837, and 1915 will show more than 800.

CHEMONG BRIDGE IN NEED OF REPAIRS

Heavy Traffic of Past Year Has Made It Necessary to Have It Repaired

Mr. O'Leary, caretaker of the Chemong bridge, told the Council there had been particularly heavy traffic in grain and other produce during the past year and the bridge should receive considerable repairs. He suggested 10,000 feet of two-inch planking and 25 grey Elm timbers and 25 of Spruce, 22 feet long, 10 inches wide and 6 inches thick. Floats, "crossings" and planking should be repaired this year in order to strengthen the bridge. Ten thousand feet of planking would renew the bridge a distance of 600 feet, and the useful material taken out of this section would be used to repair parts of the remainder. Mr. O'Leary said he should have a couple of hundred feet of chain. That several floats which got away was due to the fact that he did not have sufficient chain.

Mr. Anderson moved, seconded by Mr. Ketchen, that the repair of this bridge be left to Warden Darling and Reeves Walsh, Crough and McKee.

Reeves Ketchen and Bullied proposed a 22-foot standard but the majority of the Council did not welcome a change.

In Danger Of Collapsing

LONDON, Jan. 27.—Again the attention of the public has been called to the danger of St. Paul's Cathedral collapsing through 'senile decay,' and an appeal for funds is made by the dean to hasten the repairs.

Two years ago the sum of $350,000 was asked by the Cathedral Preservation Board and of this only $150,000 has been so far subscribed. It was then stated by the examining engineers that the original architect, the great Wren, had been very sparing in his use of materials. The constant jarring of the building by motor bus and other heavy traffic had, of course, not been anticipated.

The vast and imperfectly distributed weight of the dome is the seat of the trouble, and the gradual pressure of the weight is accelerated by the rusting of iron and internal degeneracy. Only the loyalty of the materials to each other, says one authority, has kept the mass together. Repairs done at an earlier period are found to be entirely inadequate, and new buttresses and supports must be constructed as soon as the money can be found.

The Examiner is giving away an additional $25, as an extra attraction on Dollar Day.

SHOULD WILLARD AND MORAN MEET

Short Fight Not Likely Decisive — Bouts Fought.

NEW YORK, Jan. 27.—It took Corbett twenty-one rounds to batter down the game Sullivan, who finally succumbed, not from any one punch, but from the continual battering he had received. It took "Bob" Fitzsimmons fourteen rounds to flatten "Jim" Corbett with his famous solar plexus punch at Carson City on March 17, 1897. It took James J. Jeffries eleven rounds to strip Fitzsimmons of the title when they met on June 9, 1899, at Coney Island. Even Jeffries, tottering as he was when he disputed the claim of "Jack" Johnson to the heavyweight championship, stood up before the negro for fifteen rounds in that memorable battle at Reno on July 4, 1910. And then it took twenty-six rounds for youth and stamina to triumph over age when Jess Willard ascended to the throne over the prostrate body of "Jack" Johnson at Havana on April 5 last year.

"Outsiders" Win.

Accepting these five fights as the outstanding examples, it is found that a total of 887 rounds of fighting have been consumed for the crown to change hands five times. This makes an average of a fraction more than seventeen rounds per fight. However, what is of more moment than this is the fact that what might be termed as "outsider" has in each instance plucked the coveted title. This is of more importance, for the belief seems to obtain that even were the bout to be of twenty or more rounds Moran would not have a chance against Willard.

Looks Like Party.

Now it is said Moran hasn't a chance. Maybe he hasn't. Maybe Willard will remove his championship aspirations in short order. Maybe Willard will parade with the championship dangling from his scalp belt for some years to come. But maybe Moran will prove the exception if they should meet in a championship bout. Maybe the "outsider" will win again. If it isn't probable the records show it to be possible.

As for the proposed ten-round bout here—well, it looks like a birthday party for them both.

PILING CAUSED EASTLAND DISASTER, TO BE DEFENSE

GRAND RAPIDS, Mich., Jan. 26.—The big fight of the Eastland case removal proceedings before Federal Judge Sessions will center on the claim on the defense that piling and rock obstructions on the river bottom caused the boat to tip over, according to developements to-day. Conferences were held by lawyers on each side preparing for a renewal of the legal battle in court to-morrow. The Government contends that outside agencies, such as piling and other obstructions, had not the remotest connection with the disaster, that the boat was of faulty construction for excursion purposes, that it was manned by a set of incompetent officers of teh St. Joseph-Chicago Steamship company knew this and conspired to send an unseaworthy ship to sea for profit.

Appears in Case of Chauffeur, Accused of Manslaughter, But Can Recall Little

NEW YORK, Jan. 27.—Miss Elizabeth Becker, a nurse girl whose memory of events had been completely shattered by the shock and fright of a terrible accident, sat on the witness stand before Justice Weeks in the Criminal Branch of the Supreme Court and tried vainly to recall things which were utterly blank in her mind. Called as a witness against Carl Martin Emmerich, a chauffeur accused of manslaughter for having run down and killed 3-year-old Barbara Hildt, daughter of Howard J. Hildt, the banker, on Nov. 18 last, the nurse girl could give no information of value to the prosecution or the jury.

Her mind was hopelessly dark on the very points which the prosecution was anxious to clear up to the satisfaction of the court and jury. Assistant District Attorney Weller questioned her and the court questioned her, and all she could do was to shake her head and mutter an answer to the effect that she could not remember. Every effort to awaken her memory failed, and it was clear to the court and the jury that she had never recovered from the compound fracture of the skull which she suffered on the day of the accident.

All she remembered was that on the day in question, employed as a nurse in the home of Mr. Hildt, at 2600 West Eigthy-sixth street, she took his two children—Barbara, 3 years old, and Frances, 5 years old —out for a walk. It was clear, sunlit afternoon, and the two children, romping at her side, were in a frolicsome mood. At Amsterdam avenue and Eigthy-fifth street she decided to cross the street, and taking each child by the hand, she left the sidewalk. She could not recall seeing a big, red, two-ton truck bearing down upon her and the children. But she remembered hearing a scream, and after that all was black.

"I can't say what happened after that scream," the nurse girl testified. "When I came to myself again it was Sunday morning in the hospital. I don't remember being struck. I only know what happened from what I've been told since."

This was all Miss Becker could say, and Alexander Mayper, Attorney for the defense, made no attempt to arouse her recollections as to the accident. He merely announced to the court that he would not cross-examine the witness.

Before Miss Becker took the stand, however, Assistant District Attorney Weeler brought the scene of the accident before the jury through other witnesses. One of them was Mrs. Raymond Feuget, of 831 West Eigthy-third street, who told with great detail how Emmerich, the chaffeur, driving down Amsterdam Avenue at what appeared to her an exceptionally fast rate of speed, crashed into the nurse and the two children. Little Barbara, according to Mrs. Feuget, was hurled through the air and fell at her feet. The nurse and the other child toppled over in the road. Mrs. Feuget picked up the lifeless body of Barbara and carried it into a nearby drug store.

"It all happened in the twinkling of an eye," Mrs. Feuget testified. "I can't even recall seeing the machine strike them. I heard a great crash, a scream; I saw a child fly in the air and when it was all over the child was at my feet."

Mrs. Feuget also told of a piece of chain which she saw lying in the gutter after the accident. She thought it was an anti-skidding chain, but the next witness, Fred Wilson of 9 West 107th street, who happened to be a chaffeur, testified that it was a drive chain.

In his cross-examination of this witness, Mr. Mayper, for the defence, tried to establish to the jury that the chain belonged to the mechanism which connected the brakes of the motor truck. The very fact that it was separated from the brakes, according to Mr. Mayper, would indicate how violent had been the chaffeur's effort to bring his machine to a halt as soon as he saw the nurse and children in his path.

In his opening address to the jury Assistant District Attorney Weller declared that it was his intention to prove the defendant guilty of criminal negligence. According to Mr. Weller, Emmerich was tearing down the road, chatting to two friends on the seat with him and paying no attention to the safety of those who happened to cross.

DEATH OF JOSEPH VIAL; A VICTIM OF "KULTUR"

After a lingering, painful illness of more than ten months Joseph Vial, the young Australian who received such brutal treatment at the hands of his savage German jailers in Leipsic, has at last passed away, according to word received recently from Rotterdam by Elmer L. Luck, M.A., of the Edmonton, Alta., High School staff. This adds the last chapter to one of the saddest and most pitiful stories of German cruelty which has come to light since the beginning of the war. Born in Newcastle, N.S.W., in 1895, Joseph Vial early in life showed exceptional musical ability, and at the age of fifteen was well known in the leading cities of Australia as a concert violinist. The money earned by his playing enabled him to go to Leipsig in 1911 to study at the Royal Conservatory of Music, and at the time war was declared he was recognized as one of the cleverest and most promising violin students in Leipsig.

On September 5, 1914, the male British subjects in Leipsic (about 6) in all, including Mr. Vial and Mr. Luck, were arrested and imprisoned in the city jail, solely for the crime of being British subjects. At the time of his arrest Voal was in perfect health. He was placed in the same cell with a tubercular convict, and in spite of his appeals to the prison authorities he was not permitted to occupy any other cell. He was compelled to live under unspeakable sanitary conditions; and for exercise was allowed out only half an hour each day, to march slowly around the prison yard in solemn procession with the regular criminals. At the end of three months he showed unmistakable signs of having contracted the dread disease, and by Christmas time, 1914, he was so far gone that he could not stand or even sit up. Absolutely nothing was done by the prison authorities to give him a chance for his life; when he complained he was shivering the prison doctor told him with a curse to put on his overcoat (it had long before been taken away from him!) and when he stated that he could not stand up he was told brutally to lie down on the floor till he could. It was not until January that, through American intervention, permission was finally given to have him moved to the hospital Staedieches Krankenhaus, Chemnits. But here his treatment was scarcely better than in prison; nurses and doctors showed a heartlessness that none but a "Kultured" people could be capable of — certainly no civilized people. On March 17 their harshness reached its climax, when they summarily ejected him from the hospital. The boy, only nineteen years of age, facing death, with his larynx and one lung already destroyed, was ordered out of the hospital and sent into the street half dressed at 7 a.m. on a raw, rainy day. With the greatest of difficulty Mr. Luck succeeded in finding a German boarding house where, for an excessive cash consideration the people agreed to rent a bedroom to the patient. On March 25, just eleven days later, the joyful and unexpected message came from U. S. Ambassador Gerard in Berlin that permission had been obtained for Vial to return to England, and that to Mr. Luck had been assigned the task of caring for him on the way—for by this time he was utterly unable to help himself in any way. The two passports were issued, not because of any kindness on the part of the German Government, but because the British Foreign Office had arranged the exchange by agreeing to send back to Germany two German Consular officials in return for these two. They arrived in Rotterdam April 2, after an exhausting railroad journey of thirty-six hours, which almost cost Voal his life then and there, because of the hardships endured and the unkind treatment from railroad officials and from other passengers. The patient was lovingly cared for in the Rotterdam Ziekenhuis, one of Europe's mos famous hospitals. The doctors considered the long trip to his home in Australia as absolutely out of the question, so after a week's rest, he was taken on to England to St. Margaret's Hospital in Ramsgate, where he remained until his death a few weeks ago.

Immediately after his arrival in Holland Mr. Luck had written to the parents, Mr. and Mrs. Edwin J. Vial, 737 Hunter street, Newcastle, N.S.W., informing them of their son's condition and of the barbarous treatment which was responsible for it. The sad news, when it arrived, was the first word direct or indirect, that they had had of him since the beginning of the war. The story was published far and wide in Australia, and in Newcastle, his home city, the citizens gave outlet to their burning indignation by wrecking many of the leading German business houses the same evening that the story was published. A subscription list was started at once, and in less than twenty-four hours over $3,000 had been raised to send the broken-hearted mother all the way to England to see her boy before he died, and to provide him all the comforts and the best medical care that money could buy. She arrived in August after tarvelling for nearly two months via San Francisco and New York, and remained with him day and night till his death a few weeks ago.

During the last few months his pathetic story has been a powerful stimulus to recruiting in Britain, where the details have been given wide publicity, along with photographs showing him as he was in health, and as he appeared on his arrival in Ramsgate, wasted away to a mere shadow of his former cheerful and happy self.

BELGIUM TO FIGHT TILL FOE IS BEATEN

LONDON, Jan. 24.—"Belgium enter a separate peace with Germany? Never," exclaimed Alfred Lemonnier, editor of Independence Belge, the mouthpiece of Belgians in London, today. M. Lemonnier insisted that as long as any Belgians were left they would fight for the independence of their country, which had been devastated by German hordes.

"It is true Belgium is not a party to the London agreement," M. Lemonnier continued. "Other nations, with Germany guaranteed her neutrality. It is also true that Germany violated that neutrality, and now Belgium won't give up this struggle until she regains her absolute independence. Before the war she had no thought of invasion. Now she has an army, and when the war is over she will expand it and assert herself as a nation with rights equal to those of any other free country. She will want her own say about internal treaties, not depending on other nations to act for her.

"The idea of Belgium negotiating a separate peace with Germany is enough to put any Belgian into a white rage. How could Belgium turn from England and her allies, who, so gallantly came to her help in the hour of her darkest peril? How could she bow to cowardly Germany, which laid her beautiful fields waste, ravaged her cathedrals, razed her homes and murdered women and children in cold blood? No! Germany, which has already levied toll of $120,000,000, and is now putting another similar tax upon Belgium, will not only have to give up this money, but will be obliged to pay Belgium an appreciable indemnity when the war is over.

"Germany has compelled Belgium through the Societe Generale to give assurance that all of this $240,000,000 of tribute will be paid, and has taken home Belgium's wealthiest men as hostages. She will find that Belgium will exact full retribution for this when the day of reckoning is at hand.

"Thanks to the noble generosity of America, the Belgians left in the conquered territory are being fed. England's hospitality enabled 250,000 Belgian refugees to find homes and occupation here. Nearly every one of the Belgians in England is working either in munition factories at pay averaging $10 a week, or has work in households or relief work at substantial pay. Belgium has 160,000 men on the fighting line in the small strip of her country which has not been invaded. These men are going to hold the line, with the help of the Allies, until the day of peace, unless in the meantime they happily succeed in driving the enemy out.

"The outlook is not hopeless for Belgium. With unconquerable spirit she will stick to the battle, no matter what alluring offers may come from Germany. With other belligerents Belgium believes in her heart that the war must not end until Germany is beaten down. Europe is unsafe until Prussianism is crushed, and Belgium is in the help to help do it."

GIRL MAKES LADDER TO FLEE MAGDALEN HOME

NEW YORK, Jan. 27.—On a ladder made of bed clothing, Margaret Dorsey escaped last night from the Magdalen Home for wayward girls. It is at the foot of Dyckman street.

She dropped her ladder from the dormitory on the third floor through the clothes chute to the basement, and lowered herself hand over hand. She then cut a screen and scaled an eight-foot wall.

Voice of The People

To the Editor—

Is our boasted voluntary enlistment to be continued at the expense of our mutual esteem and charitable forbearance with our neighbours seeming deficiencies? The flock of raven rumours that have been unloosed during the past ten days is, to say the least, most discreditable in a community whose heroic virtues are above reproach. Why foul our own nest? Mean insinuations have been gossipped from one end of the city to the other, and in some cases were sent winging from a public platform. There have been too many sticks in the pitch pot. Let those who talk of honour put a little more of it into their works and especially into their thoughts. Branding our own men as cowards may hurry some of them into the 93rd, but it is likely to divert more into outside units.

Our struggle is for a just and righteous cause. Charity actuated and impelled our Empire in its momentous decision. We have a God-giving sanction in taking up arms; but every man does not possess keen faculties, strong determination as the spirit of sacrifice. The selfish we have always with us; but because a man is a laggard he is not necessarily a coward. However, even the dullest must realise the task before him when a soldier, and if he seeks to evade his duty by hiding behind admitted shirkers why not strive to impress before him the type of "loafer" he is following. But this whole question is to be ramified to attempt a complete discussion. I wished to point out a recent uncharitable tendency that everyone is aware of and few can be proud of.

If other campaigns are held let them be simply and clean, planned and let the appeal to the weaker motive be a very last resort. There is no consistency in calling a man a coward and then expecting or accepting him as a recruit. This present duty must be a tremendous crisis to young men, and facing it with its imperativeness dimmed by the possibility of evasion, not to mention ignoble example, if not scandal they need friendly encouragement, not sneering taunts which once endured strengthen endurance. Better that their pastor or employers who have spoken to them of other duties should approach them on this.

Sincerely,
Charitas.

Sir,—In regards to the letter of a "Soldier's Wife," asking for the men of the 93rd to be put to work digging trenches to let off the water, does she want them doing the men the city hires out of a job? I guess she thinks that they don't get enough exercise, and are they here for that work? The government is paying those men to be taught how to fight on the battle field, not street cleaning.

Auto And Street Car Dispute The Right-Of-Way

An up-bound street car and a southbound automobile with Mr. Stanley Kerneghan at the wheel, met in a head-on collision on George street near the C.P.R. station yesterday afternoon, which will necessitate a visit to the "hospital for sick autos." The slippery condition of the tracks prevented the automobile responding to the steering wheel, with disastrous results to the auto. The street car escaped with a twisted fender. Fortunately Mr. Kerneghan came through without a scratch.

To the Editor of The Examiner.—

Sir,—I have read with interest this week the questions that have been asked in regard to Adjt. McElheney's splendid speech in the armouries on Sunday evening. Such plain speaking was sure to interest quite a few, and would have upset still more if they had been there. I myself agree with every word he said, although I am not of his flock. I feel, sir, I would like an answer to Another Patriotic Woman—why should such a man as the adjutant, who has a wife and large family, go into khaki, and leave them to be upheld by the government, when so many shirkers go up and down George street, with their hands in their pockets? I say "No"—his place is at home doing a good work, and I think that all single

British Airmen Continue Their Activities

LONDON, Jan. 27.—The British airmen continue their activities on the Western front. On Tuesday no less than 27 hostile aeroplanes were encountered, and in addition three captive German balloons were attacked by British aviators. Two enemy aeroplanes and two balloons were forced down. All the British machines returned in safety.

The report from Sir Douglas Haig reports to-day shelling of Loos vicinity by the Germans and a fight with grenades near Hulluch.

The French report records renewed activity at various points, but mining and artillery duels have not been followed by infantry attacks. Encircling movements attempted by the enemy in the region of Steenstraete in Belgium were prevented by an effective bombardment of the German trenches and tunnels. In Artois the enemy exploded several mines north-west of Neuville, the craters of which we occupied, but near the road between Neuville and Thelus the Germans were driven from the last craters occupied by them. Trench guns shattered German works in the region of Roye.

A great number of counter-attacks were made by the French yesterday to recapture the trenches taken by the Germans east of Neuville, but they were repulsed each time after hand-to-hand fighting, says the statement issued to-day by the German headquarters staff.

The Hamburger Fremdenblatt reports that one of the bombs dropped by the German air squadron when it raided Dover on Monday fell on a deposit of mines which exploded and caused enormous devastation in the neighbourhood. Thirty-nine persons, including one officer and twenty-four soldiers, the newspaper says, were killed.

DYNAMITE WRECKS CHURCH

Residents of Pennsylvania Town Angry at Mormons

CUMBERLAND, Md., Jan. 27.—The Mormon Church at Buck Valley, Penn., a short distance across the State line, which was to have been dedicated next Sunday, was destroyed by dynamite. The building, a frame structure, was almost completed, and the report of the explosion was heard in Hancock, Md.

The Mormons, after several months' work, have been making much headway in Buck Valley, where J. J. Henderahot is the minister. The church is served by elders, and the campaign that has been waged there resulted in converting many to the faith.

A bad feeling was stirred up, it is said, and efforts were made to run the missionaries out of the valley. It is also asserted that threats were made by members of other denominations.

SOCIAL AND PERSONAL

His Honour Judge Rogers of Cobourg, is a visitor to the city to-day.

Dr. J. E. Middleton of Peterborough, is in Rochester attending the funeral.

Mrs. Charles E. Sisson, of 428 Stewart street, is visiting friends in Toronto.

Mrs. (Dr.) Howson has taken up residence in Peterborough.—Millbrook Reporter.

Mr. Gerard Maher of St. Augustine's Seminary, Toronto, is home on a visit to his parents.

Mr. Thomas Porte of Grand Forks, North Dakota, is visiting his sister-in-law, Mrs. John Carlisle, 359 Euclid avenue, East City.

Mr. Aaron Vanmeer of Carmen, Manitoba, who has been visiting Mrs. Huycke, 491 Aylmer street, returned home yesterday.

Mrs. Frank Green of Macklin, Sask., with her daughter Gladys, are visiting Mrs. Green's sister, Mrs. Alfred McCall, 425 Bolivar street.

Mrs. Sloan, who came to Peterborough to attend the funeral of her aunt, the late Mrs. Matthews, has returned to her home in London, Ont.

Corporal Jas. V. O'Shea who is connected with the 33rd Battery, Kingston, is paying a farewell visit to his home before leaving for overseas duty.

Mr. C. A. G. Spence took the mid-week service at All Saints' church last evening in the absence of the rector, Rev. R. B. Grobb, who has been confined to the house since Sunday with an attack of pleurisy.

The many friends in Peterborough of Mrs. E. A. Langfeldt, wife of Rev. Dr. Langfeldt, formerly of this city, will sympathize with her in the loss she has sustained by the death of her mother, Mrs. James J. Hatley, who passed away at her home in Orillia on Tuesday last.

Mrs. N. Mercier, 308 Burnham street, is to-day receiving the congratulations of her many friends, the occasion being her 90th birthday. Mrs. Mercier is enjoying splendid health and continues to perform the many acts of kindness and charity that have been characteristic of her long life.

Command Struck Off—

Capt. J. Rollins, Quartermaster.
B. M. Sergt. E. Cottrell.
J. E. R. Munro, Captain,
Adjutant 93rd Overseas Battalion, C.E.F.

The Havelock Standard has the following to say of the Havelock detachment of the 93rd:

W. Yelland of Rush Point, has signed up with the Havelock detachment, and Ptes. Anderson and Sweeney have been transferred from Peterborough to Havelock.

Eighteen members of the local squad in command of Sergt. Traynor marched to Norwood on Tuesday, going up in the forenoon and returning after dinner. All stood the tramp in good shape and enjoyed the outing.

Mrs. Alex. Rose entertained the local detachment of the 93rd Battalion to afternoon luncheon on Thursday afternoon of last week. The drawing room and dining room were profusely decorated with British and Canadian flags and "Welcome" pennants. Mrs. Rose was assisted by her daughter, Mrs. McNichol, Miss Elias Wright of Port McNicholl, and Miss Kathleen McNicholl, Miss M. McDonald of Peterborough, presided at the piano and favoured the soldier guests with numerous patriotic selections, many of the boys in khaki joining in many of the songs. Before their departure Mr. H. F. McNichol presented each soldier with a package of cigarettes. The boys tendered Mrs. Rose a hearty vote of thanks for her kindness and thoughtfulness in entertaining them.

ST. THOMAS, Jan. 26.—Rev. F. T. Kingham, B.A., pastor of the Methodist church at Sparta, has enlisted in the 91st Battalion here as a private. Mr. Kingham had offered his services to the Militia Department as chaplain, but, failing to receive an appointment, decided to don the colours in the humblest capacity. Mr. Kingham has been doing splendid work in the way of recruiting. He will join the battalion here as soon as he can make arrangements for his wife and child.

The Band of the 93rd Battalion added to their laurels last night at Norwood by the splendid programme they rendered. Many new numbers were splendidly presented.

Recount in Ops Township Proved Favourable to Mr. Patterson

LINDSAY, Jan. 27.—The proceedings in connection with the Ops recount opened yesterday at the Court House before His Honor Judge McMillan. Mr. Thomas Stewart, solicitor for Ops Township, looked after Councillor Best's interests as well as those of the municipality, while Mr. L. V. O'Connor appeared for Mr. Patterson, who made the application for the recount. Both Mr. Best and Mr. Patterson, it will be remembered, were tied in the contest, both having polled 279 votes. Mr. Best was declared elected by Township Clerk Agnew, but Mr. Patterson asked for a recount as well as a decision on a ballot marked at Roseboro for Messrs. Patterson and Dowell.

Judge McMillan gave his decision on the ballot in favor of Mr. Patterson, who thus polled 280 votes at this place instead of 279. He is therefore elected over Mr. Best by one vote.

INTRICACIES OF "RED TAPE" IN ENGLAND

Even the famous British red tape, typical of pre-war days of conservatism and bureaucracy is, at times, diverted from its customary uses in the interests of the army. The following is a copy of an application received by the army stationer at British headquarters at the height of the second battle of Ypres:

"Please deliver 10 bearer 4,000 yds. of red tape, for use with respirators for urgent issue to the front immediately."

The occasion was one of the first German gas attacks and the 4,000 yards of red tape was supplied instantly and reached its destination in time.

The army stationer at headquarters occupies a small old-fashioned room which scarcely gives the visitor an adequate idea of his essential importance to the forces in the field. It is a common observation among British officials that "an army marches not on its stomach but rather on its "Army Forms." There are literally thousands of varieties of printed matter supplied through the army stationer and without which modern military operations would be well-nigh impossible.

Nearly two hundred subordinates are required to attend to the business of which the headquarters stationer is the head. They handle 700 different kinds of "Army Forms"; 240 kinds of books of rules and regulations, 60 kinds of writing paper, and even 25 kinds of inks. During the first year of war, the Stationery service supplied 82 million field service postal cards, printed in English, Hindu, Urdu and Gurmukhi, 100 million army message forms, 50 million of a single type of army form, and two million memorandum books for army record purposes.

Even in such a small matter as truck labels, there are several hundred varieties kept in stock, and the total number on hand is never allowed to fall below two million. More than a thousand typewriters have been supplied to the army through the headquarters stationer since the first British troops landed in France, and the stationer maintains a staff of experts for repairing them.

"Pamphlets and books of many kinds are included in the catalogue of the stationer's stock in trade. There are Bibles and prayer, brochures instructing the soldier in the use of new weapons or in the preservation of his health, and confidential documents of most diverse character. More than 700,000 copies of a booklet entitled "How to Combat Asphyxiating Gases," were turned out in forty-eight hours.

The printing of all this miscellaneous matter is done by the local printing sections of the Base Stationery depots either on their own presses, or in conjunction with the French printers in the towns in which they are quartered, and also through the government printers in London. The labor of printers and compositors is cheap in France but paper is very dear, therefore, the usual arrangement with the local printers is for them to supply the labor while the British authorities supply the paper.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 27.—The United States Navy would be at the bottom of the sea in less than sixty days, perhaps sooner, if this country were attacked by a first-class power, General Leonard Wood told the House Committee on Military Affairs to-day.

KAISER "TIRED AND BROKEN"

Spent More Time in Coughing Than Eating at Banquet Tendered by King Ferdinand

LONDON, Jan. 26.—The Mail fills the bulk of its principal page this morning with an account of the Kaiser's visits to Nish. The account was sent by mail by a correspondent who witnessed the Emperor's arrival on January 16, frequently saw him at close range and was present at the state banquet given in his honour. He says:

"King Ferdinand only a few minutes before had received the Kaiser on his arrival from the west. The Royal couple were walking down the street arm in arm. It was eight years since I had last seen the Emperor. What a change!

"The Kaiser is not so tall a man as he is reported, and beside the great massive figure of the hawk-nosed Ferdinand, who has a curious duck-like waddle, the great war lord seemed almost diminutive. The Kaiser wore a long grey cloak with brown fur necklet and a spiked helmet covered with khaki-like cloth. I learned afterwards that the relations between King Ferdinand and his court are very informal.

Kaiser Looked Tired.

"Whether due to the fatigues of warfare, the effects of the two days' journey, or to ill-health I cannot say, but I am certain his face is that of a tired, broken man. There is an absence of the old activity of gesture.

"The Kaiser evidently was out to make himself agreeable. He examined the medals of the Bulgarian soldiers with apparent interest, chatted, smiled to the right and left. None the less he was greatly aged. He held in his hand a handkerchief, which he was perpetually using, and I noticed later at the banquet that he seemed to require it. I noticed at the banquet that the handkerchief was a huge affair of red, embroidered with white and with a Turkish crescent and star in the corner.

Few at Banquet.

"The banquet took place in the Town Hall. The room was profusely decorated with the flags of the Germanic powers, though Austria is not in great evidence at Nish, the Austrians apparently making Belgrade their headquarters. The function was not largely attended and there were many empty places. The total number of those present did not exceed forty. The band of the Life Guards played a programme of music. The tables were three in number, simply decorated with roses and early spring flowers, with yellow as the predominating colour.

Coughed a Lot.

"From the fact that the Kaiser ate and drank practically nothing at the banquet I was led to believe the story that he always eats before these state functions. Certainly he spent more time in coughing than in eating at Nish. The speeches, which already have been reported in England, took place between the courses instead of at the end of the dinner."

New Aeroplanes.

The correspondent saw the arrival of a munition train, which included numerous trucks loaded with Fokker monoplanes. He says that he twice visited Constantinople and that he penetrated Asia Minor, travelling with comparative freedom in the war zone. The last few weeks, he says, have witnessed great German preparation in the Near East, including operations for double-tracking the Anatolian railway from Konio to Aleppo, in the direction of Egypt.

FOWLER'S PEBLO GLASSES

EYE TALKS SERIES

No. 9—THE TIME TEST

Some eyes stand the test of "Time" exceedingly well, while others soon require help. The way to defeat the ravages of "Time" is to be before him in preparedness. At least let Fowler test the eyes and tell you their condition. They may be good for years, and in that case you will get an honest opinion about them, and you will be at no expense if none is required. Many people go on using their eyes, when they need glasses, and that only makes things worse due to the strain. Also sometimes eyes trouble when the system is the cause, and Mr. Fowler would simply advise you to see your doctor.
Fowler's business has stood the test of "Time". It pays to have his guarantee of satisfaction.

WEDDING BELLS

ARGUE—HOLLAND.

A very quiet wedding was solemnised at the home of Mrs. Hamilton Kennedy, Millbrook, when her daughter, Olive, was united in marriage to Mr. Hollard C. Argue. The Rev. Wm Higgs performed the ceremony in the presence of only the immediate relatives of the contracting parties. A buffet luncheon was served, after which the young couple left for their home, "Roseneath Farm," Cavan.

HANBIDGE—ARGUE.

On Tuesday, January the 18th, a pretty but quiet wedding took place at "Roseneath Farm," Cavan, the home of Mrs. C. Argue, when her daughter, Gertrude Emma, was united to Mr. G. Wason Hanbidge, of Peterborough. The bride, who was given away by her brother, H. C. Argue, entered the drawing room to the wedding march, played by Miss Eleanor McBean, Millbrook, and wore a dress of white silk crepe de chene, carrying a bouquet of pink and white carnations.

After dejeuner was served, the happy couple left for a trip to Ottawa, the bride travelling in a suit of gray broadcloth, trimmed with seal and hat to match. After their return, Mr. and Mrs. Hanbidge will reside at 709 Aylmer street, and will be at home to their friends after the first of March.

OBITUARY

EVELYN AGNES VINCENT.

The death occurred to-day of Evelyn Agnes Vincent, the 18-months old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. Vincent, McDonnel Street, late of West Toronto.

The funeral, which will be private, will be held on Saturday at 2 o'clock, to the Little Lake Cemetery.

MRS. A. F. JACKSON.

The death occurred last night about ten o'clock at the residence of her husband's father, Mr. Robert Jackson, at the Peterborough Locks, of Mrs. A. F. Jackson, of Campbellford. The late Mrs. Jackson, who was 32 years of age, had been ill only two weeks. The news of her death will occasion deep regret among a wide circle of friends with whom she was deservedly popular. Her maiden name was Frances E. Manley.

Her husband and one little boy, as well as four brothers are left to mourn her loss. The brothers are Messrs. Wm. Manley, Toronto, and Dave, Robert and Harry of this city.

The funeral will take place on Friday afternoon at 2 o'clock from the above residence to the Little Lake cemetery.

MRS. JOHN LOGAN.

A well kown and highly respected resident passed away this morning in the person of Mrs. John Logan. Deceased, who was in her sixty-fourth year, had been ailing for some time. She leaves to mourn her loss besides her husband, two sons and five daughters, namely: Mrs. Walter Verry of Dundas; Mrs. John Gahagan, of Toronto; Mrs. David Smith of Thorold; Mrs. Herbert Kendry of this city; Miss Edith Logan, of Massachusetts, U.S.A.; also Gordon and Howard Logan, of Toronto.

The late Mrs. Logan was a valued member of St. Paul's Presbyterian church. The funeral will take place on Saturday afternoon at three o'clock from the late residence of the deceased, 194 Auburn street, to Little Lake cemetery. Rev. Robert Pogue will officiate.

MRS. JAMES BENOR.

Mrs. James Benor passed away on Friday of last week after an illness extending over several months. The deceased had been in good health but his failed rapidly since the death of her husband in October. The past three months has been a sad period for the family, as the death of Mr. Benor and a son, Fred, two sisters of Mrs. Benor, Misses Charlotte and Jemima Taylor, and now Mrs. Benor, have all taken place during that time.

The family left to mourn the loss of a loving mother are: Mrs. Outwater, Plainfield; Mrs. Coombs, Smith's Falls; Miss Nellie, of Toronto; Miss Etta, at home; Messrs. George, of Peterboro, and Charles of town.

The funeral took place on Saturday to Mount Pleasant cemetery. Service was conducted by the Rev. G. A. Brown, pastor of St. Andrew's church, of which the deceased was a member. — Campbellford News.

HOLLAND FLOODS INCREASE

Waters Higher Than in 1825, and More Land Is Inundated.

LONDON, Jan. 27.—A Reuter despatch from Amsterdam says:

"The floods in Holland are still serious, the Spring tides having increased the danger. At Nieuwendam and Purmerend the floods are extending, while it is reported from Landsmeer that the waters are steadily rising and are now at a greater height than during the great floods in 1825.

"The strong current has torn off a great section of the pasture land, which is now floating like small islands on the flooded Landsmeer and the Costizaan polders. Great numbers of cattle and domestic animals have been drowned. Many houses in the flooded districts will have to be rebuilt."

TEAMSTER FINED FOR SLASHING SOLDIERS.

THREATENED TO DRIVE OVER BOYS ON THE MARCH.

OWEN SOUND, January 28. — William Wallace, a teamster in the employ of John Harrison & Sons, was fined $5 and costs in the police court for assaulting two soldiers of the 147th Battalion. While the soldiers were marching, Wallace threatened to drive over them, and after using profane language struck two of the men over the head with his whip. The soldiers could do nothing at the time but when they were dismissed a number of them took up the case, with the result that two charges of assault and battery were laid against Wallace. Magistrate Creasor in imposing the fine, which was a light one on account of the man's first appearance, warned him that it was the duty of civilians to give the soldiers half the roadway.

Feel Out of Sorts?

It's a good idea to look for the cause!

One common, but often unsuspected cause is tea and coffee drinking. Yet some persons seem able to get along with tea or coffee—at least for a time. But when headachy, bilious days come; breakfast or some other meal doesn't taste good; and the day's work goes wrong (ever feel that way)?—then it's time to find out for sure if tea and coffee are causing the trouble in your case.

There's a subtle, cumulative drug, "caffeine," in tea and coffee that interferes with the normal functions of body, brain and nerves, and often lessens one's comfort and progress.

Suppose, for a test, you try the expedient of quitting tea and coffee and using well-made

POSTUM

(MADE IN CANADA)

—a pure food-drink made of choice wheat. It has a delightful, snappy flavour and is absolutely free from caffeine or any other drug.

After ten days or two weeks you will be able to decide whether to go back to tea and coffee troubles, or stick to Postum and peace and comfort.

Instant Postum—doesn't require boiling, but is prepared instantly by stirring a level teaspoonful in a cup of hot water and adding cream and sugar to taste, 30c and 50c tins.

Grocers everywhere sell both kinds. Cost per cup about the same.

The Pope way of treating coughs, colds, bronchitis and lung and throat troubles. How? Well, up to now people with these chest and throat troubles have swallowed cough mixtures, sickly syrups and the like, into their stomachs. Sore lungs and throat get no good by dosing the stomach. Peps work differently.

Peps are tablets made up of Pine extracts and medicinal essences, which when put into the mouth turn into healing vapors. These are breathed down direct to the lungs, throat and bronchial tubes—not swallowed down to the stomach, which is not ailing. Try a 50c. box of Peps for your cold, your cough, bronchitis or asthma. Thirty-nine Persons Were Killed in Dover

TRANSPORT SUNK

TRANSPORT AT ANCHOR SUNK, SAYS BERLIN WIRELESS.

ONE OFFICER AND TWENTY-FOUR SOLDIERS AMONG DEAD IS HAMBURG'S ESTIMATE OF MILITARY LOSS.

BERLIN, January 28.—The Hamburger Fremdenblatt reports that one of the bombs dropped by the German air squadron when it raided Dover on Monday fell on a deposit of mines, which exploded and caused enormous devastation in the neighborhood. Thirty-nine persons, including one officer and twenty-four soldiers, the newspaper says, were killed.

According to the Fremdenblatt's account the explosion did not take place until fifteen minutes after the bomb had landed, so that the soldiers at first believed the missile was harmless.

Railroad cars filled with provisions, and several cottages are reported to have been destroyed.

One transport at anchor in the harbor was damaged by the explosion and sank immediately.

The British aeroplanes, the newspaper says, were not ready in time for defence.

Swiss Guarding Army Secrets

GENEVA, via Paris, Jan. 28.—A despatch from Berne to the Democrate says:

"The commanding general of the Swiss army has ordered that hereafter the military attaches of legations accredited to Berne shall be denied access to the General Staff headquarters. Staff officers are absolutely prohibited from having relations, even personal with the military attaches of belligerent or neutral legations and only the chief of the general staff of a high officer is permitted to receive a military attache.

"These measures evidently are the result of the cases pending against Colonel Maurice de Wattenwyl and Colonel Karl Egli, of the Swiss General Staff, charged with high treason. It is understood these officers are alleged to have communicated to Germany information regarding French positions along the frontiers of France and Switzerland."

ASSAILANT OF AUSTRIAN ARCHDUKE DIES IN CELL

BERLIN, Jan. 28. — Among the news items given out to-day by the Overseas News Agency was the following:

"Advices from Theresienstadt Austria-Hungary, say that the Serbian anarchist Nedeljo Gabrinovics has died in prison. Gabrinovics was convicted of throwing a bomb at Archduke Franz Ferdinand, heir apparent to the Austrian throne, in Sarajevo, Bosnia.

"This attack was made a few hours before the archduke and his wife were shot to death in the Bosnian capital by Gavrila Prinzip."

CALLED TO COLOURS.

LONDON, Jan. 28.—Announcement was made to-day that single men from 27 to 30 years of age, who enlisted during the Derby recruiting campaign will be called to the colours February 3rd.

APPROVE OF ACTION.

BRISTOL, Eng., Jan. 28.—By a majority of five to one, representatives of more than two million British workers to-day adopted a resolution approving the action of Arthur Henderson and other Labour members of Parliament in entering the Coalition Government. Had the resolution been defeated, Henderson and other members of the Asquith Government would have been forced to resign.

ALBANIA BEING EVACUATED.

ROME, Jan. 28.—Albania, with the exception of the Port of Avlona and the immediate Hinterland, is being evacuated by the Allies.

Italian forces hold strongly fortified positions at Avlona. Heavy Austrian and Bulgarian detachments are closing in upon the seaport from the north and east. They are meeting with little resistance.

Official despatches, received here to-day, indicated that the attack on Avlona and one of the most important battles of the Balkan struggle may begin within a fortnight.

BRITISH-AFRICAN LINER SUNK.

HULL, Eng., Jan. 28.—The British African liner Appam, 7,000 tons, is believed to have been sunk off the Moroccan coast with serious loss of life.

There have been no reports of submarines operating off the West Coast of Morocco.

Montenegro Agreed To Terms According to News Agency Report

BERLIN, (by wireless to Sayville, L. I., Jan. 28.)—The Overseas News Agency gave out the following information regarding the Montenegrin situation:

"Detailed reports state that the Montenegrins were still celebrating the Greek New Year, as though nothing was happening, but as the day dawned the Austrian-Hungarian forces advancing on Mount Lovecen encountered among the defenders five hundred Italians, who were the first to flee.

"On January 10 Major Lyumovic and First Lieutenant Popovic, of the Montenegrin army, arrived at Nyegus. They carried white flags and brought a letter signed by the Montenegrin Prime Minister Mr. Lazare Miouchekovitch, asking for a day's truce of arms. They also sought to open negotiations with regard to future peaceful and neighbourly relations, but this was declined. Instead, the Austro-Hunugarian commander asked for the unconditional surrender of the Montenegrin forces.

"On January 11 the Montenegrin authorities left Cettinje for Podgoritza. On January 13 a Bosnian detachment under the command of a young first lieutenant entered Cettinje and was welcomed ceremoniously by the centenarian, Mr. Iliva Plamenac, the hero of many fights against the Turks in former years. The lieutenant ordered the inhabitants to surrender their arms.

"On the same day two Montenegrin officers with a flag of truce and bearing a letter written personally by King Nicholas arrived in Cettinje. The officers were escorted to a hotel, where they were guarded by Bosnian sentries.

"In the meantime an Austro-Hungarian brigade arrived and the commander was received in the hotel by a delegation composed of citizens, and the formal surrender of the capital took place.

"Martial law was declared in Cettinje by the Austro-Hungarian authorities on January 14.

The letter sent by King Nicholas asked Emperor Francis Joseph for graceful conditions for the unhappy country.

"On January 16 Austro-Hungarian troops occupied the district between Cettinje and Rieka. On the same day three delegates appointed by the Montenegrin government arrived bringing with them a written declaration signed by all the Ministers and stating that the unconditional surrender of the army had been accepted. Hostilities consequently ceased on January 17.

"King Nicholas was last seen by his people at Podgoritza where he arrived on a white horse in the midst of a silent population. As the King was passing through the town one man stepped forward and said: 'Sire we have no bread'. The King then left almost unnoticed."

A Tasty, Snappy Toast—for luncheon or evening "snack" is Triscuit, the shredded whole wheat wafer. Has the delicious, nutty flavor of baked wheat. A real whole wheat bread for any meal with butter, soft cheese or marmalade. Full of nutriment and full of "chews." As a toast for chafing-dish cookery it is a delight. Always toast it in the oven to restore crispness. Made in Canada.

USED OIL ON THE WAVES.

Only Way in Which Crew of Helpless Ship Could Be Saved.

NEW YORK, Jan. 28.—The story of the rescue of 35 men composing the ship's company of the steamship Pollentia, which foundered in mid-ocean Jan. 23, is told by officers of the steamer America, which arrived here from Naples. The Pollentia's "S.O.S." call was overheard by the America on Jan. 19 when the distressed steamer was about 700 miles off Cape Race and 750 miles from the America. Other steamers responded.

"A storm was raging and the sea was so rough that it was impossible for the rescue steamers to lower boats when they reached the Pollentia," said one of the America's officers. "They stood by her for three days and then the oil tank steamship Narragansett arrived, poured oil on the water, quieting the waves so that the Pollentia's crew was taken off by the Guiseppi Verdi."

The Safe Satisfactory Druggists

Cor. GEORGE & CHARLOTTE

The Vandervelde. — Emile Vandervelde, former Belgian Minister, whose house has been vainly searched by the Germans.

An Easy Way to Increase Weight

Good Advice For Thin Folks

The trouble with most thin folks who wish to gain weight is that they insist on drugging their stomach or stuffing it with greasy foods, rubbing on useless "flesh creams," or following some foolish physical culture stunt, while the real cause of thinness goes untouched. You cannot get fat until your digestive tract assimilates the food you eat.

There is a preparation known to reliable druggists almost everywhere which seemingly embodies the missing elements needed by the digestive organs to help them convert food into rich, fat-laden blood. This modern treatment is called Sargol and has been termed the greatest of flesh builders. Sargol aims through regenerative, re-constructive powers to coax the stomach and intestines to literally soak up the fattening elements of your food and pass them into the blood where they are carried to the starved, broken-down cells and tissues of your body. You can readily picture what result this amazing transformation should produce as with increased weight the cheeks fill out, hollows about the neck, shoulders and bust disappear and from 10 to 20 pounds of solid, healthy flesh is added to the body. Sargol is absolutely harmless, inexpensive, efficient. All leading druggists of this vicinity have it and will refund your money if you are not satisfied as per the guarantee found in every package.

If you find a druggist who is unable to supply you send $1.00 to the National Laboratories, 74 St. Antoine St., Montreal, and a complete ten days' treatment will be sent you post paid.

NOTE—Sargol is recommended only as a flesh builder and while excellent results in cases of nervous indigestion, etc., have been reported, care should be taken about using it unless a gain of weight is desired.

BRITAIN RAISES OBJECTIONS TO COST OF THE LAW

LONDON, Jan. 26.—The heavy toll of the lawyers is the text for many complaints in these days when economy is being largely practised by the wealthy and urgently preached to the poor. Wherever members of the legal profession are employed by the government in positions involving professional practice their financial rewards are far beyond the scale of those received by other government officials, however difficult, dangerous or brilliant may be the service of the less fortunate branches of officialdom.

The three highest legal officials of the government, and a considerable body of judges, draw larger salaries than the Prime Minister of Great Britain. The highest officers of the navy and army, whose duties often involve physical hardships and the risk of death, are poorly paid in comparison with those who represent the government in the courts. To-day the people are beginning to ask why this should be, and members of the democracy in politics, as well as laboring men, are asking the question insistently. It has become a burning topic with the democratic organs of the press. Why should the Lord Chancellor, whose duties are largely ornamental, be paid more than five times the stipend Admiral Jellicoe receives? is a frequent query.

Admiral Jellicoe's services are bringing him a financial reward of less than $10,000 a year, and Sir John French, Field Marshal, commanding the British army in France, was on the pay sheet at $7,500.

The office of Lord Chancellor is the most shining target for attack. That office is now costing the government $125,000 a year. It commands a salary of $50,000 and a pension of $25,000. Lord Buckmaster is drawing the salary, and three living predecessors—Lord Halsbury, Lord Loreburn and Lord Haldane—are receiving pensions.

Lord Halsbury held the office for ten years and has been retired for ten years. Consequently he has drawn $750,000 for ten year's service. Lord Halsbury is ninety years old and, although still vigorous, cannot be expected to continue long on the pension roll. Lord Loreburn held office for seven years and has been retired a little more than three years, so that he has been paid $475,000. He is sixty-nine years old. Lord Haldane was in office two years and has drawn pension something more than a year. He is just under sixty years of age.

Comfort for Lord Buckmaster.

Lord Buckmaster has sat on the woolsack in the House of Lords a little more than one year. Current gossip among politicians has it that he is keeping the woolsack warm for Mr. Asquith, who, according to belief, will succeed thereto when the war has ended. A Prime Minister who conducts the cabinet through a great European war, hardly could be grudged any reward entailing dignity, ease and a good income. Lord Buckmaster is fifty-four years old, and before his elevation (or elevation is the only word English writers consider commensurate with the process of raising a statesman to the keepership of the great seal and the King's conscience he was not popularly rated as one of the greatest lights of the British bar. If the understanding for the reversion of the office to Mr. Asquith be true, Lord Buckmaster may enjoy a long life with an assured income of $25,000 for comparatively brief service.

Even more lucrative than the dignity of the Lord Chancellorship are the posts of Attorney General and Solicitor General. These law officers, as they are called, have been paid salaries of $25,000 to $30,000 respectively. But their duties include practice in courts, and for court appearances they receive fees, so the salaries have been regarded as retainers. During the fiscal year 1913-14 the Attorney General cost the government about $30,000 for salary and fees, and the Solicitor General about $50,000. Lord Reading, then Sir Rufus Isaacs, and now Chief Justice, who was in the United States last summer as one of the committee to arrange the Anglo-French loan, was Attorney General part of that year, and Sir John Simon, now Home Secretary, part of the year. Sir John Simon was Solicitor General part of that year, and Sir Stanley Burgmaster now Lord Chancellor, part of the year.

During the year mentioned Sir John Simon's receipts from the government for his services were, in American money, just about $100,000. This was a record year, and the average for the preceding ten years was much lower. Lord Reading gained a very handsome fee for appearing as counsel representing the government in the Board of Trade inquiry into the Titanic disaster.

The two present law officers, Sir F. E. Smith and Sir George Cave, have voluntarily arranged a considerable reduction of their incomes during the continuance of the war. The Attorney General is to accept $20,000 salary and the Solicitor General $20,000, a reduction of $5,000 each. The scale of fees has been lowered so that each will suffer a loss of $20,000 from the estimated takings of their offices, and the treasury will gain those amounts. Neither one will be extremely underpaid, judged by the revenues of American officials holding similar positions, with which comparisons have been made by English writers. Sir Frederick Smith is a young man and he will draw from the government about $40,000 a year, while Sir George Cave may count upon $30,000. In addition they will be rewarded by the prestige and help to their future private practices which a term of holding high legal office is supposed to insure.

A WORD OF GRATITUDE.

"In justice to humanity I want to tell you that I was a great sufferer from itching piles and have found Dr. Chase's Ointment the best treatment obtainable," writes Mr. Emil Hess, Brodhagen, Ont. "It gives instant relief and I can recommend it to any sufferer from this dreadful disease."

More Interesting.

"Were you interested in that account of the Washington man who suddenly disappeared?"

"Well, I'd have been more interested in an account of a man who gradually disappeared."

Waiter—Well, what's the matter with that cup? You couldn't break it with an ax.

The Truth.

"Why don't you go to your friends? Why do you come to me to borrow money?"

"Well, I'll tell you. I don't want my good friends to know that I have to borrow money."—Detroit Free Press.

Ship of the Desert.

"Johnny," said the teacher, "what is a dromedary?"

Johnny didn't know, but Ralph did.

"I know," he said proudly. "A dromedary is a two masted camel."—Christian Register.

Wisdom Came Early.

Little Eunice, four five, was crying, and her grandmother asked what the trouble was. "Oh, everything seems to go wrong," sobbed Eunice. "I just realize my whole life to live over again."—Montana Review.

Building the Bull.

A few years ago I took the short course at our college of agriculture, and, besides learning how to judge calves and so forth, I learned the university yell. During the following summer our neighbor's bull bothered us at times by breaking through the fence and coming up from the pasture with our cows. Finding this brawny bull in the lane one night, my brother, who also knows something about college yells, and I each took a pitchfork and started after him.

The bull took to his heels and ran until he came to a good sized elm tree. Here he wheeled and started pawing up the earth and bellowing and otherwise showing an inclination to fight. To keep up our own courage we started giving the college yell. The bull gave one startled look and then made for home the straightest and swiftest way. It took him through two barbed wire fences, but they did not hinder him any. He did not trouble us again.

The moral of this is: When you go to college learn all you can, for you never can tell what you may have use for.—Country Gentleman.

Reservations For Utopia.

Give me the sofa in the drawing room. I never make my wife out a liar in company, no matter what she tells. I always wait until the company leaves.

When talking with a person from New York or Boston I have never asked, "Who's running the hotel down there now?"

Although I come from the south, where I did ride horseback, I don't mention the fact to a person until at least five minutes after we have been introduced.

When the hotel clerk asks me if I want a room with a bath I never say, "No, I will not be here Saturday night."—Chicago Tribune.

A Friend in Need.

A speaker in an English election relates the following incident: One night he spoke in the poultry market at Whitechurch. The next morning a young man stopped him in the street and said:

"I was looking well after you last night."

The speaker expressed surprise at the necessity.

The young man continued his story: "I saw a young man come into the meeting with his coat pockets bulging out in a way that made me suspicious. Two of us followed him in. He stood at the back of the room, and we stood one on each side of him. Gently but firmly we pressed against him. There was a cracking sound of breaking eggs, and the man was out of action."

Pearls as Medicine.

Scotland still produces pearls, found mainly in the fresh water mussel. They could no doubt be found in England if the industry were profitable.

Cleopatra was not the only person who swallowed a dissolved pearl. Until comparatively recently pearls were used medicinally in the west and still appear in the materia medica of China. According to one Chinese authority, a pearl, after being treated with pumice stone and honeycomb, mixed with the gall of a serpent, "might be drawn out to the length of three or four feet. Make it into pills and swallow them—henceforth food will be unnecessary."

The suggestion is not that the patient would be finished off, but that he would live, foodless, forever.—New York Sun.

Stage Fright.

Very few people are really free from liability to stage fright, and the veteran in public life is just as likely to be affected as is the novice. Attacks, moreover, frequently come when they are least expected. Hence no speaker or artist can face an audience and feel sure that he will not have to suffer from the tortures of this particularly painful form of nervousness.

Musicians, of course, are the worst sufferers. The performer on a stringed instrument is helpless if his hand trembles, while the clear enunciation of a singer can be ruined by that "catch in the throat" or that twitching of the lips which is perhaps the simplest and most common manifestation of stage fright.

Many Women Suffer
FROM EXCRUCIATING PAINS
IN THE BACK.

Do you ever feel that you must have some rest for that lame and aching back?

Do you ever feel that those shooting, stabbing, darting pains must be gotten rid of before you can get into condition, whereby you can attend to your household duties without a pain or an ache?

When the back begins to ache it is a sure sign that there is something radically wrong with the kidneys.

Mrs. L. Meisenson, Plympton, N.S., writes: "I am sending you this testimonial, telling you what a wonderful cure Doan's Kidney Pills made for me. For years I had suffered so with my kidneys I could hardly do my housework. I used several kinds of pills, but none of them seemed to be doing me any good. At last I was advised to try a box of Doan's Kidney Pills. When I had taken the first box I found relief. I have used five boxes, and to-day I feel like a new woman. I cannot recommend them too highly."

Doan's Kidney Pills are 50c per box, 3 boxes for $1.25; at all dealers, or mailed direct on receipt of price by The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

When ordering direct specify "Doan's."

OUR DAILY SHORT STORY

A CASE OF RAPID PROMOTION.

[Original.]

When Alexis Niederhoff was drafted into the Russian army there was great weeping and wailing on the part of two families, his own and that of his betrothed, Olga Banin. This was during the reign of Peter the Great, who was at the time going to war, and the young conscript was not likely to return.

"Well," said Alexis as he bade them goodby, "anyway, I will make a soldier of myself. If I am told to march up to certain death I will go. If the officers tell me to do things, no matter how absurd, I will do them. I have no desire to live now that I am separated from home and Olga, and I care not how soon I am killed."

Alexis went off to a barracks to be turned into a soldier. His commanding officer had no need to lecture him as to the importance of obedience, for Alexis' determination to make a military machine of himself only grew stronger with his absence from home. When he had been drilled till he could march by the flank or wheel or double quick as if worked by springs, instead of being sent to the front to be shot he was sent with his regiment to do guard duty at the czar's palace.

One day Alexis was stationed inside the palace with a heat past a door which he was told to guard.

"In there," said his captain, "is his majesty the emperor. Do not permit any one to enter."

"Not any one?"

"That is the order. See that it is obeyed."

The officer had scarcely left when Prince Menschikoff, the czar's favorite minister, came up and made straight for the door of the czar's apartment.

"You fool! I am allowed free access to his majesty at all times."

"That makes no difference to me since I have been instructed to let no one pass."

"You impudent hound!" exclaimed Menschikoff. "I'll teach you respect for your betters." And, raising his cane, he brought it down on the soldier's shoulders.

Suddenly the door opened, and there stood the czar. His minister was belaboring his guard, who received the blows bolt upright with his musket at "present."

Suffered Constantly FROM HEADACHE.

To suffer from headache makes life miserable, and it takes a person who has been or is subject to headache to describe the suffering and agony that goes along with it. The dull throbbing, the intense pain, sometimes in one part of the head, sometimes in another, is caused by some disturbed condition of the system. The stomach may go wrong, the bowels become constipated, the blood may not circulate properly, but whatever the cause, the presence of headache clearly shows that there is something wrong somewhere, and unless the cause of the headache is removed, some serious trouble is very liable to assert itself.

The fact that Burdock Blood Bitters reaches the seat of the trouble, and banishes the headache is due to its success in first relieving, and then permanently curing the cause of the trouble.

Mrs. Wallace J. Boyd, Milltown, N.B., writes: "Several years ago I was a constant sufferer from headache. I was all run down, and nothing seemed to do me any good. I read of Burdock Blood Bitters, and decided to give it a trial, and the result was marvellous. The headache stopped at once, and I feel better in every way since. I recommend it to all sufferers."

B.B.B. is the oldest and best known blood medicine on the market to-day, having been manufactured for the past forty years by The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

The only man who should not advertise is the man who has nothing to offer in the way of commodity or service—and such a person is a dead one—whether he knows it—or not.

"What's this?" asked the czar.

"This fellow denies me admittance to your majesty's presence," said Menschikoff.

"Well, come in," said the czar. Menschikoff entered, and the two were engaged for an hour upon business of state. When the minister made his exit Alexis had been relieved and another man put in his place.

That evening shortly before the lights were put out at the barracks Alexis received a summons to the palace. He felt sure that the minister had received from the czar permission to inflict upon him some terrible punishment. Indeed, he expected to be reprimanded, then taken out and shot.

"It doesn't matter," he said. "They have insisted on making a soldier of me against my will, and I am a soldier. What is a soldier for but to die?"

When he reached the palace he was taken into a large room, at one end of which he saw Menschikoff and the czar talking together. Peter held in his hand a cane, which he gave to Alexis when he came up and, pointing to the minister, said:

"This man struck you this morning; return the blow with my stick."

Menschikoff was astonished. "Does your majesty mean that? Surely you don't intend that a private soldier shall strike your minister?"

"That would not be right, I admit," said Peter. "I therefore make him a captain."

"But I am an officer in your majesty's household."

"I make him a colonel of my life guards and an officer of my household."

"But I am a general."

"And so is he. I appoint him to that rank. You see I will not permit you to be struck by one of inferior rank."

That ended Menschikoff's protests, for there was nothing more to say. The czar motioned Alexis to begin, and the newly made general laid on the stick till the czar, who was greatly amused, signaled him to desist. Then Alexis was dismissed, and the officer who had brought him was instructed to see that he was lodged for the night at the palace in a manner becoming his station.

The next day Alexis was officially notified of his appointment to the various offices named by the czar. He was most anxious to go home and acquaint Olga with the good news, so he applied for a leave. It was at once granted, and as soon as he could get fitted with a general's uniform he started for home. When Olga saw him coming all bespangled with gold lace she thought that he had been killed in battle and this was his wraith coming to mock her, so she straightway swooned. When she came to her lover was bending over her, looking into her blue eyes with his own of the same heavenly hue.

There was great rejoicing in the families that had been exempt from the conscription, and when Alexis went back to the capital to fill his various positions he took Olga with him.

How he managed to perform the duties of these positions has not been handed down to us, but we know that he and his wife founded a family that took high rank in Russian affairs.

WORRY AND WORK.

Toil is healthful. Even excessive labour can be long endured. But worry is a corrosive that speedily eats out the nerves and tissues of life. He who frets about his work burns life's candle at both ends. It is the friction rather than the revolution of the wheels that wears the machinery. He who knows how to do his level best and leave the result with God, has learned one of the chief secrets of life. But he who is always worrying about how things are coming out is most foolish. Some people constantly complain and protest. They imagine that their lot is so much harder than that of their neighbour. They are always regretting that they did not do things some other way. Such persons will have nerves set on edge, will have chronic indigestion, a gloomy disposition and a diseased brain. Sunshine and health are close friends. Do the best you can and stew no. Work hard. Work very hard. There is much to do. There is much that no one can do as well as you. But do not bear two burdens, both work and worry. All the fretting in the world will not change matters. It will only render you unhappy and unfit you for the largest service. Mix all your burden-bearing with smiles and songs.

• • •

My dear readers, it is not true, we too seldom speak of our heart's gladness, but dwell on its misery. Keep account of the people you meet and see how little they say that is pleasant and happy and much that is dreary and sad. They will tell of bodily aches, pains and infirmities. They will complain bitterly of the heat if it is warm, or of the chill if it is cold. They will speak of the discouragement in their business, the hardships in their occupation, the troubles in their various duties, and all the manifold miseries, real or imagined, that have fallen to their lot. But they will have little to say of their prosperity, their health, their three good meals a day, their encouragements, favours, friendships and manifold blessings.

• • •

Sensible Advice.

You would laugh at the child who should try to pick up a heavy sledge hammer to kill a mosquito. But many grown-up children quite as foolishly use their strength. They waste strength. They fret worry, whirl about, get into a passion, have not time to eat or to sleep properly—indeed, often sit up so late and get so tired that they can't sleep. These persons, whether old or young, need to learn the following simple rules: 1. Never fret yourself nor anybody else. 2. Never indulge in fits of passion, nor the blues. 3. Never do things in a confused hurry. 4. Eat regularly, cheerfully, moderately, but don't eat what is indigestible. 5. Don't cut short your sleep. Get eight hours of it in clean, well-ventilated rooms. 6. Give your stomach and brain, as well as your hands, all the rest they need. 7. Be self-controlled, calm, hopeful. Keep a good conscience and cheerfully trust God.

Championship Healthful.

There is a wise old German saying that "Only a god or a brute can dwell in solitude." Men and women need congenial companionship, both for the sake of health and happiness. Just as your lungs, after using up all the oxygen in a close room, need to be filled with fresh, out-of-door air, so your mind needs contact with other minds to get new ideas. There is such a thing as mental as well as physical hunger. Herders on the sheep ranches of the West frequently become mad from the isolation they are forced to endure. Women on lonely farms and in small villages grow morbid and mildly insane and people do not guess that the cause is want of companionship.

It is for this reason that a woman's work at home is always more trying than that of her husband, who goes to his office, sees new faces and has the friction that is produced by meeting other people. Even the farmer has more intercourse with his neighbour at market, or at the village grocery than his wife, who may not see anyone outside of her own family for weeks. It is a great mistake of young people to isolate themselves. Even if their tastes lead them to a quiet life they should make it a point to cultivate a few agreeable friends.

• • •

Education commences at the mother's knee, and every word that is spoken within the hearing of the little children tends towards formation of character. A child is better unborn than untaught. The true purpose of education is to cherish and unfold the seed of immortality already sown within us; to develop to their fullest extent the capacities of every kind with which God who made us has endowed us.

• • •

• • •

The life of the world is strenuous, and the door of the home should shut out the storm and stress, but it should not shut out new and wholesome and inspiring influences. It should stand wide in hospitable welcome to friends. The home life that is narrow and selfish is dull and enervating.

The discovery in the Philippines of a species of silk worm that feeds on the leaves of the castor oil plant which grows wild in the islands has given rise to a belief that the silk industry can be established commercially.

GENERAL CASTELNAU

Joffre's Right Hand Man Never Forgets a Face

In the French army General Castelnau, who succeeded General Pau, when the latter was obliged to retire on account of his health, as Joffre's right-hand man, is affectionately known as the "Father General"; for he is a soldier who believes in cultivating intimate relations with his men.

It is his custom, whenever possible, to visit the trenches and chat with the soldiers, asking them questions as to their families and the country they have come from, in a fatherly manner, which goes straight to the hearts of the soldiers. What the men like best about General Castelnau is the fact that, like the late Lord Roberts, he never forgets a face. A short time ago, when visiting the trenches, he recognized a veteran of the 17th Army Corps whom he first met when he secured his first staff appointment as colonel in 1893. Without any hesitation the General shook hands with the veteran, asked after his family, and congratulated him on the splendid work which he and his comrades were doing.

Castelnau's military record is really an amazing one. He was a young man of nineteen when the Franco-Prussian War broke out. In October, 1870, he joined the 36th Regiment, then being formed, as sub-lieutenant, commanded a company the next month, and received his baptism of fire by taking part in the fighting with the two armies of the Loire, and subsequently in the fighting during the Commune.

He proved his genius for military organization in 1886, when he was piloted to the General Staff, and when for three years he controlled the organization and mobilization of the army. Although he is fifty-four years of age, General Castelnau is a man who can stand any amount of fatigue. A keen believer in the simple life, he often lectures his men on the follies of extravagance, and reads them lessons on the methods they should adopt for their physical well being.

The Arch

The consensus of opinion among the learned is to the effect that the arch was invented by the Romans. Some claim that Archimedes of Sicily was the inventor, while there are others who would make it to be of Etrurian origin, but there can be no doubt about the fact that the Romans were the first to apply the principle to architecture. The earliest instance of its use is in the case of the Cloaca Maxima, or greatest sewer, of Rome, built about 588 B. C. by the first of the Tarquin line of kings, a work which is regarded by the historians as being one of the most stupendous monuments of antiquity. Built entirely without cement, it is still doing duty after a service of almost twenty-five centuries.

Snubbed His Old Friends.

In the old days a miner who had toiled and suffered in the Klondike and then struck it rich returned to Puget sound after two years of isolation in the far north. He sought out a restaurant. "Bring me $5 worth of beans," he told the waiter. Remarking to himself that this fellow certainly must be fond of beans, the amused waiter complied, heaping up the table around the diner with a veritable mountain of baked beans. "Now," said the Klondiker, "take that stuff away and bring me something to eat. It has cost me $5, but I just wanted to show these blank beans that I don't have to eat any more of 'em, now that I'm in a white man's land again."

Quite So.

"Have somebody says that electric currents can be made to take the place of food in sustaining life."

"What a shocking theory!"

A GALLANT LAD

Fourteen-Year-Old Insisted on Fighting—Invalided Home

Yarmouth, in England, can probably claim the distinction of having supplied the British army with its youngest soldier. He is Private George Carr, of the 5th Norfolks, who was born on December 21, 1910, and enlisted when only just over fourteen years of age. He took part in the landing at Suvla Bay, where his regiment suffered heavily, and continued fighting for two months before being invalided home with dysentery.

His mother said that she and his father, who is in the National Reserve, did not know of their son's leaving for Gallipoli until almost the eve of his departure, and she wanted her husband to stop him going. "But," she said, "the boy pleaded so hard that his father said, 'If he is so set on going, let him go.'" The boy's health is improving, and his mother says that he is anxious to rejoin his regiment.

All Things in Moderation

For several weeks a wounded soldier had had no solid food—nothing but milk. At length the doctor told him that the next day he could have a light meal, and the soldier, greatly rejoicing, conjured up visions of underdone beefsteak, potatoes, cheese, etc. What he was given for his first meal, however, was about a tablespoonful of tapioca. He swallowed it, growling and grumbling.

"That's all the dinner you can have," the nurse said, "and the doctor orders that everything else must be in the same proportion."

The patient pushed away the plate. "Well, I'll do some reading now," he said. "Bring me a postage stamp."

Soldier's Dying Wish

A corporal in the R.A.M.C. in France writes: "I had to go to take a message for two miles, and saw the most touching thing happen. I got a ride in an ambulance car, and in it were four patients, one of whom was very severely wounded. He had been singing hymns most of the way, when all at once he said: 'I'm going to die; have you got a Bible?' I said 'Yes,' and got out the Testament. He said, 'I only want to hold it,' and almost as soon as he got it into his hands he died."

A Staggering Shock

At Perth Railway Station soldiers and sailors are supplied with hot tea or coffee. While waiting for a train there a party of Jack Tars from "Somewhere in England" had just been supplied with refreshments.

"Nothing," was the reply.

"D'ye hear that, mates?" the navy man continued, turning to his companions. "Nothink to pay, and we're in Scotland!"

By the modern process of spinning metal threads it is possible to make a single pound of steel stretch a distance of seventy miles.

Blond Woman Held By Police In Loop Murder

CHICAGO, Jan. 26.—A woman is under arrest in connection with the robbery of the Cook tourist agency, 18 East Jackson boulevard and the murder of Traffic Policeman Bror Johnson.

The identity of the prisoner was not disclosed. It was said at first she was being held in the state's attorney's office. Again it was said she was held in the county jail. Denial of these rumors was followed by a report she was a prisoner in an outlying police station.

When the news of her arrest leaked out it was reported two women were under arrest and one of them was the woman who hired the taxicab at the Great Northern hotel and waited for the bandit in Jackson boulevard across the alley from the Cook agency. State's Attorney Hoyne said only one woman is under arrest.

Police Know Her Identity.

Events in the hunt for the bandit and his woman accomplice seemed late yesterday to be hurying toward a crisis. It was announced officially that at last the police have struck a definite trail, and that the identity of the woman confederate is known.

It was reported, though not officially, that the identity of the robber is definitely established, and that both he and the woman are in hiding in Chicago.

"I expect interesting developments and possibly the arrest of the man and the woman in twenty-four hours" said Chief of Detectives Hunt.

The police still gave out the information that the search had narrowed to two men—William La Trasse and Robert Emmett. La Trasse is believed to be a triple murderer. He is a train robber, a dead shot, and a fugitive from the Kansas penitentiary at Lansing, from which he escaped last November.

Emmett Also Desperado.

Emmett is a New York gunman. He is wanted in Boston for murder and in New York as an expected convict from Sing Sing. He fought a revolver duel with Detectives William O'Connor and John Egan at Thirty-ninth street and Vernon avenue last May, but escaped. He is a safe blower.

Despite the announcement by the police that they are hunting only these two men, there is reason to believe they are hunting neither. It was whispered in police circles that the murderous bandit was a criminal without notable record, more or less new to the role of bandit—an amateur, in fact.

Lehmann's Chance.

Sir W. H. Lever, president of the greatest soap firm in the world says: "It has been well said that 'War is hell,' and this war is aptly described as 'Hell with the lid off,' but if we all here at home will do our duty as unselfishly, and with equal self-sacrifice, as you brave soldiers in the trenches, this war will have a speedy end, and there can be no doubt of the result. With united colonies and a united Empire, our brave allies and ourselves can add to the above description of this war, that Germany has no more chance of winning than would a celluloid dog have of chasing an asbestos cat through hell."

Life of a Battleship

Naval experts put the active life of a modern battleship at about fifteen years. A hundred years ago battle ships lasted nearly six times as long, and were on active service nearly the whole time of their commission. The Victory, for instance, was forty years old when she acted as Nelson's flagship at the memorable Battle of Trafalgar. A line-of-battleship, the Royal William, was built at Chatham in 1670, and was not broken up until 1812, being "rebuilt" several times before her final demise.

Seized With Paralysis Could Not Walk

Most Extraordinary Cure Effected by the Use of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food

To have the nervous system paralyzed, to be unable to walk and scarcely able to talk, and then to be completely cured, is not a usual experience, but Mr. Hyatt tells in this letter what he passed through. Doctors told him that his case was hopeless, and when they gave up he turned to Dr. Chase's Nerve Food and obtained complete cure.

Mr. Avery Hyatt, blacksmith, St. Anns, Lincoln Co., Ont., writes: "I am a blacksmith by trade and ten years ago became afflicted with paralysis. I could not walk or read or write, and could talk with difficulty, so that it was a hard matter to understand anything that I would say. Being only a young man I was nearly discouraged. Two doctors told me it was brought on by overwork, and that my case was hopeless.

"One day my father read about Dr. Chase's Nerve Food, and advised me to try it. I bought 12 boxes, and when the fifth was used I saw that I was getting better. By the time the 12 boxes were used I was cured. I am well and strong and working every day, thanks to Dr. Chase's Nerve Food."

This statement is certified to by Mr. Elmon J. Hodgkins, J.P.

No ailment is more dreaded than paralysis. And yet how few people realize that paralysis of the nerves is only the natural result of neglected nervous troubles.

At first you do not sleep well, have nervous headaches or indigestion, find yourself easily irritated and annoyed, can hear noises which in good health you would never notice. You do not consider yourself sick, and yet you lack the usual energy and vigour and feel out of sorts.

Restore the nerves by using Dr. Chase's Nerve Food. 50c a box, 6 for $2.50. All dealers, or Edmanson, Bates & Co., Limited, Toronto.

EXAMINER PATTERN SERVICE

LADY'S SHIRT WAIST.

By Anabel Worthington.

7361

It would seem that we had exhausted the variety of shirt waists, but every month brings out novel designs, and the ones shown in the accompanying illustration is of the best.

The waist is plain, with gathers at the shoulders in front only. The closing is also in the centre of the front. The novel feature of the waist is found in the collar, which is high and which is formed by extending the upper edges of the front and back and of the raglan sleeves to the upper edge of the neck. This forms a very graceful cut and a very pretty collar. The sleeves are full length. They are quite loose from the shoulder to the wrist, and here they are gathered into a rather deep cuff. The material of the waist extends below the waist line, with a tape and gathers in the back and loose sides and fronts, which are to be drawn down straight and right into the belt.

These waists are made mainly of taffeta, which has sufficient body to take the fancy form of the neck. If they are made of voile or of other wash materials they must be boned or the collar will never stay up. When intended as part of a dress they must be of the dress material, of course, and will be pretty in velvet and also in the new poplin.

This pattern can be obtained by sending 10 cents to the office of this paper.

When ordering remember to give your name and address as well as the number and size of pattern required, and age of a child.

Price 15 cents, or 2 for 25c.

CAVE MAID TAGS SLICK LOOP BLADE IN GAME OF LOVE

CHICAGO, Jan. 26.—Walter Kersten, the D'Artagnan of the loop, the pink cheeked darling that the girls all long to commandeer, has been removed as a menace in the market of hearts by a cabaret cave lady, who ran away with him and married him two days after she met him.

Young Kersten, who is a nephew of Judge George Kersten, and has danced, ridden race horses and engaged in a little confidence work during his 22 years, said he was "a little bit pifflicated when he met Miss Joyce La Pearl, and fell for the Mendelssohn tune and the orange blossom fragrance."

He Goes Bird Hunting.

"Here's how it was," he said last night, recalling the incident of his brief romance with evident relish. "Dr. Dan Thompson and Neil Littler, son of Ald. Littler, who is also president of the Chicago Pie company, had told me about a twentieth century wren that all the boys wanted to build a nest for. I agreed to go out and give her a look. Sing? I saw she was no wren, but a nightingale. She had a voice that took you right out of that little Sheldon cabaret at 1300 West Madison and led you by the hand through the honeysuckle gardens.

"Well, I ordered some beer and cut in to win. I had a little conscience at first because there was another girl dead struck on me, but after Joyce and I had danced together once we both knew that we were meant for each other.

She Makes the Leap.

"She took the girl's leap year prerogative and asked me to marry her, and I didn't stall or say I'd be a brother to her, I said yes. This all went on while Neil Littler and Dr. Thompson were sitting there and say they were sore!

"Saturday at noon, less than thirty-six hours after we first saw each other, we went to the city hall, got a marriage license, and called on Judge Barrett who married us. She had only been in Chicago seven months, and next Thursday we are going to say good-bye to the loop and the old gang for good. We are going down to her home in Louisville, Ky., and settle down to be regular married people.

Best Thing He Could Do.

"When I got married Judge Barrett said it was the best thing I could do, and so did my father and mother. All my friends, and they include all the good fellows, male and female that make life blad on the loop, were surprised at my marriage because they knew Joyce and I had been acquainted only a few hours.

"But that's love, now ain't it?" When yo up and shake those joy killers, prudence and logic, and follow the first impulse of the heart you are in love and that was the way with Joyce and me."

Mr. Kersten was looking for his wife last night, but until a late hour had not been successful in locating her. He said that she had a cabaret engagement somewhere and he had neglected to ask for the address. He said they wern't used to domesticity yet, or such a slip would not have occurred.

This About Joyce.

Miss Joyce La Pearl (that was her real name) was a member of the actor's colony at the Saratoga hotel, where she had lived since coming to Chicago seven months ago. She was well known in the cabaret life, having entertained as a singer at many of the loop restaurants before taking a place at the Sheldon.

Young Kersten lives with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Frank C. Kersten, at 6152 Justine street. Last June he was sentenced to serve three months in the bridewell for stealing a watch from the mother of his sweetheart, Helen Eagen of 7200 South Halsted street. He said last night that he had never served the sentence.

The prosecutor said that he was a slick young con man, and Kehsten himself admitted, last night that he possessed a superior mental agility which frequently tempted him to slap his less fortunate brothers on the wrist and take away their gilt.

But he insisted that was all through now, and he was going back to old Kaintuck with the sweetest little girl in the world and make her the best eighty-eight pound husband in the United States.

SAGE TEA DANDY TO DARKEN HAIR

It's Grandmother's Recipe to Bring Back Color and Lustre to Hair.

You can turn gray, faded hair beautifully dark and lustrous almost over night if you'll get a 50-cent bottle of "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound" at any drug store. Millions of bottles of this old, famous Sage Tea Recipe are sold annually, says a well-known druggist here, because it darkens the hair so naturally and evenly that no one can tell it has been applied.

Those whose hair is turning gray, becoming faded, dry, scraggly and thin have a surprise awaiting them, because after one or two applications the gray hair vanishes and your locks become luxuriantly dark and beautiful—all dandruff goes, scalp itching and falling hair stops.

This is the age of youth. Gray-haired, attractive folks aren't wanted around so get busy with Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur to-night and you'll be delighted with your dark, handsome hair and your youthful appearance within a few days.

HOW MRS. BEAN MET THE CRISIS

Nashville, Tenn.—"When I was going through the Change of Life I had a tumor as large as a child's head. The doctor said it was three years coming and gave me medicine for it until I was called away from the city for some time. Of course I could not go to him then, so my sister-in-law told me that she thought Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound would cure it. It helped both the Change of Life and the tumor and when I got home I did not need the doctor. I took the Pinkham remedies until the tumor was gone, the doctor said, and I have not felt it since. I tell every one how I was cured. If this letter will help others you are welcome to use it." —Mrs. E. H. Bean, 625 Joseph Avenue, Nashville, Tenn.

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, a pure remedy containing the extractive properties of good old fashioned roots and herbs, meets the needs of woman's system at this critical period of her life. Try it.

If there is any symptom in your case which puzzles you, write to the Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co., Lynn, Mass.

MUCH JUNK IN WOUND

Tommy Had Button, Pocket Knife and Part of Shell

A remarkable wound is described as follows in a letter home from a British officer in Flanders: "Here is a fact which I had direct from a surgeon who was down at a Loos attack. A man was brought into the field ambulance with a wound in right groin. The projectile had torn away the flesh, exposing, but not touching, the femoral artery. Then it buried itself in the left thigh. He dug it out, and in order named excavated: (1) Blade of man's pocket knife; (2) Bone of same; (3) Calico button of his right-hand trouser pocket; (4) The projectile. It was the screw ring of the head of a German shell (I saw it and handled it) and the thread was as perfect as the day it left Krupp's. The man is doing well."

PUT STOMACH IN FINE CONDITION

Says Indigestion Results From An Excess of Hydrochloric Acid

Undigested food delayed in the stomach decays, or rather, ferments the same as food left in the open air, says a noted authority. He also tells us that indigestion is caused by Hyper-acidity, meaning there is an excess of hydro-chloric acid in the stomach which prevents complete digestion and starts food fermentation. Thus everything eaten sours in the stomach much like garbage sours in a can, forming acrid fluids and gases which inflate the stomach like a toy balloon. Then we feel a heavy, lumpy misery in the chest we belch up gas we ernctate sour food or have heartburn, flatulence, water-brash or nausea.

He tells us to lay aside all digestive aids and instead, get from any pharmacy four ounces of Jad Salts and take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast and drink while it is effervescing and furthermore, to continue this for a week. While relief follows the first dose, it is important to neutralize the acidity, remove the gas-making mass, start the liver, stimulate the kidneys and thus promote a free flow of pure digestive juices.

Jad Salts is inexpensive and is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice combined with lithia and sodium phosphate. This harmless salts is used by thousands of people for stomach trouble with excellent results.

SERBIA NOT BEATEN HER PREMIER SAYS

CORFU, January 26th, (via London).—To-day I had an interesting chat with the Serbian premier, M. Pachitch, at the hotel at Corfu which serves as the seat of the Serbian government.

The Premier is a fine type of the virile Slav race which seems to thrive on the misfortunes and the reverses of war. His white beard gives him a patriarchal air, but despite his years his carriage is upright and physical vigor unimpaired. His whole bearing and mental alertness show little or no traces of suffering endured in the Serbian retreat, either during the exodus from Serbia or later during the journey from Scutari to the coast.

Often during the first phase of the retreat when the army and government were seeking safety in the wild Albanian hills, no bread was obtainable, and when it could be got as much as 15 francs was paid for a few stale crusts. M. Pachitch's face is a trifle bronzed by exposure to the bitter cold during the shelterless days and nights in the Albanian wilderness, but otherwise he is in splendid health, and he rises early. He had already returned from his morning constitutional and was busy as work when I saw him.

"It is hardly time for newspaper interviews, but still I realise the people of the allied countries take the deepest interest in the doings and welfare of the Serbian nation. Their sympathy towards us has been demonstrated over and over again. Serbians are not forgetful beither are they ungrateful."

"You ask me concerning the future. Well, as yesterday, so to-day. I am more convinced than ever of the final victory of the allied cause. Even if you were to be beaten (which is wholly unlikely) we should attempt to go on fighting. It is true we are now defeated, but Serbia is not beaten and never will be beaten while a dozen Serbs remain alive to handle their rifles. Serbia is unconquerable. Her territory may be occupied but the Serbian spirit with the love of liberty and reverence of the fatherland, is unquenchable.

"No nation in the records of history has been more sorely tried, perhaps, than Serbia. Before to-day fire and sword have passed over our beloved land, leaving in their reach desolation and chaos. We were crushed by the Turk and our national independence was temporarily lost but never our national aspirations or our determination to be free to the end. It was a long road to travel but Serbia arose afresh from the ruins of the past, a nation of soldiers and free men.

"So events to-day are simply a phase of our history—a cruel and bitter phase, perhaps. We have gone down before a multitude of enemies but we have gone down fighting. Germans, Austrians and Bulgarians combined have trampled on our national existence, but I say to our enemies now: 'You cannot kill Serbia although you slay her people.'

"The to-morrow will bring us our triumph. It may be in two months or two years, but come it will assuredly. The storm clouds of war have enveloped Serbia, but the national star of Serbia will rise again and our independence and liberty shall be restored to us by the valor of our own and the allied arms.

SCORNED TO MAKE PEACE.

"Peace could have been ours yesterday if we had been willing, but when our fortunes were at the lowest ebb we scorned conditions which meant the conclusion of a dishonorable peace and a peace which would have detached us from our allies, who have so bravely fought for Serbia. I say better death than dishonor. Our enemies already have expressed admiration at the courage and self-sacrifice of the Serbian army. They did it the credit of saying it fought with unparalleled heroism. Never shall we permit them to say we proved unworthy of the name of Serbs, and deserted our allies.

"History proves that the will of a people rightly struggling to be free generally prevails. The French revolution and the wars that succeeded it were dark days for France, but the soul of the people was in the fight, and in the end what a triumph was theirs!"

Discussing present conditions in Serbia, the Premier said that he feared the unhappy population of the districts occupied by the enemy were cruelly tried. Food was scarce, and news that he had received was to the effect that small quantities of bread were doled out and that all the food possible was collected and transported to Germany and Austria to feed the populations there, who seemingly were running desperately short. Americans who did such splendid rescue work in Belgium asked permission of the Serbian Government to send food and supplies to aid the Serbian population, which of course was granted.

SERB SOLDIERS IN PITIFUL PLIGHT.

Meanwhile the French are doing their utmost to alleviate the lot of the stricken Serbian army, large detachments of which are arriving daily. At the sanitary stations at Corfu harbor thousands have already been inspected by the French medical mission. The plight of these survivors is terrible, pitiable. Hunger and exposure during the retreat have done their deadly work. The majority of them were pale, emaciated physical wrecks.

Some of those whom I saw to-day could barely crawl ashore and up the winding path to the sanitary station. Others there were who could not even walk ashore and had to be carried. The short run across the mainland was not accomplished without mortality. When the roll was called ten did not respond to the bugle summons. Death overtook them in their even in sight of the blissful isle of Corfu. To-day over twenty newly arrived Serbs died in the hospital as a result of starvation. Ten days' rest are expected to restore the others to health if not to strength.

The French doctors and nurses are showing the tenderest sympathy for the suffering Serbs. Some of the latter, officers and men, whom I saw, shuddered when referring to the inferno of misery they had passed through. With tears of gratitude they spoke of the splendid efforts of the French and indeed of all the allies to rescue the remnant of the main battered Serbian army. The French are furnishing new uniforms and complete equipment to the Serbs who recover and are found fit for military service.

DID YOU EVER

notice the number of times you have heard Zam-Buk recommended for skin diseases and injuries? Don't you think there must be good reason for this popularity? Did you ever think just what this reason might be? Some have said advertising. Advertising may lead one to try Zam-Buk, but merit alone can induce one to buy a second box. Zam-Buk's popularity is based on Zam-Buk's power to cure.

A person who has suffered half a lifetime from eczema, ulcers, or some skin disease, is persuaded to try Zam-Buk, and is cured. What more natural than that that person should tell other sufferers? So it has been, until to-day wherever one goes, are evidences of the marvellous healing power of Zam-Buk.

If you have never tried Zam-Buk, and are suffering from any skin disease or injury, send this article and 1c. stamp to Zam-Buk Co., Toronto, for free trial box.

ZAM-BUK

Operating Under Difficulties.

When on a trip in Little Tibet, Dr. Neve, in his book "Thirty Years in Kashmir," tells how three importunate women blind with cataract arrived at his camp at Shayok imploring treatment:

"I had my box of instruments, but how should I sterilize them, and how should I light a fire? I told the Ladakis, and they tried to strike sparks with flint and steel, but the tinder seemed moist. One of them produced a little gunpowder and placed it on a stone, tore off a rag from his shirt and, fraying it out, laid it by the powder, then with flint and steel ignited it. Then a cooking pot was produced, and soon water was boiling. What an anachronism between the aseptic surgery aimed at and the primeval method of fire production!

"While the instruments were being boiled I cleaned the eyes and instilled cocaine; then, kneeling in the sand, removed the three cataracts, completing the operations just before a gust of wind came, laden with dust and grit, which would have put a stop to the work. The gratitude of the people knew no bounds."

Foes to Memory.

Among the worst foes of the memory are too much food, too much physical exercise and, strangely enough, too much education.

People do not lack strength. They lack will.—Victor Hugo.

"HAD ALMOST GIVEN UP."

Sarnia, Ont.—"About 27 years ago I was taken very bad, my blood, too, was in bad shape. I got so I had to go to bed and I was there for over three months I could not eat and suffered untold agony. I had three of the best doctors I could get but it just seemed nothing was going to help me. I had almost given up. I thought I would never be any better and was willing to give up and die rather than suffer as I was. A neighbor of mine told me of Dr. Pierce's wonderful remedies and I decided to use them. My husband bought me six bottles of 'Favorite Prescription.' I had not taken it long until I felt better. In less than six weeks I was out of bed, and in less than six months I was cured and have been well ever since. Do all my own work. I have raised three daughters, two are married and have children. They have used it and they are healthy, so are their children. I am sure it was all on account of my having them use the medicine.

"I keep all of Dr. Pierce's medicines in the house. Have 'Favorite Prescription,' 'Golden Medical Discovery' and 'Smart-Weed'—anything prepared by Dr. Pierce is good. I also have a copy of the People's Common Sense Medical Adviser, which I have had 26 years; it has been very valuable to me."—Mrs. J. Way, 232 Ontario St., Sarnia, Ont.

If you are a sufferer, if your daughter, mother, sister need help, get Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription in liquid or tablet form from any medicine dealer to-day. Then address Dr. Pierce, Invalids' Hotel, Buffalo, N. Y., and get confidential medical advice entirely free.

A most valuable book in any home is Dr. Pierce's Common Sense Medical Adviser. A splendid 1008-page volume, with engravings and colored plates. A copy will be sent to anyone sending fifty cents in stamps, to pay the cost of wrapping and mailing only, to Dr. Pierce, Buffalo, N. Y.

Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets are the original little liver pills, first put up nearly 50 years ago.

The Peterborough Examiner

PETERBOROUGH, ONT., CANADA

THE newspaper in the Peterborough zone of Ontario to be granted Newspaperdom's "Winning Daily" emblem was the EXAMINER. After investigating the local field, the following conclusions were established: First, the EXAMINER has a materially larger circulation than any other Peterborough daily; second, it is the leading evening newspaper of Peterborough and the tributary territory; third, it is supreme in volume of advertising published—and this volume is made up of gilt-edged business from local and foreign advertisers in Canada and the United States. Local advertisers unanimously endorse it for its result-getting efficiency. It invites correspondence regarding the Peterborough zone as a business possibility in 1916; the possibility of dealer cooperation, etc.

Sensational Statement Made By a United States Senator

Senator Walsh Claims British Warships Search Vessels in Order to Obtain Trade Secrets From the American Mail--German Ammunition Train Wrecked With the Loss of One Hundred Lives.

A SUMMARY OF TO-DAY'S WAR CABLES

WASHINGTON, Jan. 28.—Senator Walsh to-day sprung a sensation in the Senate by reading from what he said were British order to blockade vessels to obtain trade secrets from illegally opened American mail.

From this mail, "seized wantonly on the high seas," he said, Great Britain had obtained secrets which would be used by its merchants in undermining American commerce.

He demanded a cessation of all trade with the Allies unless the blockade was amended to accord with international law.

BRISTOL, Eng., Jan. 28.—Strongly worded resolutions advocating drastic reductions in armaments and other measures designed to prevent future wars, were adopted at the closing session to-day of delegates representing more than two million British labouring men.

Another unanimous resolution urged that as far as possible the cost of war be met by heavier taxation on large incomes, and by State acquisition of railways, mines, shipping interests, and business of insurance and banking. The resolutions were offered just before adjournment, and passed with hurrahs from all sides of the hall. They urged that the final peace agreement at the conclusion of the present war include these features:

First—Agreement by all European powers upon drastic reduction of armaments as a measure in the interests of peace.

Second—An international agreement that no territory shall be acquired by any power without the consent of its inhabitants.

HULL, Eng., Jan. 28.—Later advices from Liverpool said the Appam carried about 200 passengers in addition to her crew of about 160.

Crowds of anxious relatives besieged the Elder-Dempster Line offices here and at Liverpool, when reports came from Hull that the steamer Tregantle had encountered one of the Appam's empty life boats. Though the Appam is a week overdue, officials said they had not entirely given up hope that the Appam may yet reach port.

Other smaller vessels, it was reported in shipping circles this afternoon, are missing as the result of a severe storm that has swept the Eastern Atlantic for more than two weeks.

ST. JOHN, N.B., Jan. 28.—"The Germans will be driven out of Belgium in the spring without a doubt," said Lieut.-Col. Odell, of the Canadian Heavy Artillery, who arrived yesterday on the Pretorian. "I believe that the Allied armies on the western front will push forward at least 25 or 30 miles with the opening up of spring, but when they come to the Rhine they will find a big barrier which it will be well nigh impossible to get over."

Speaking of the new commander on the western front Colonel Odell said: "Sir Douglas Haig is a Scotchman, and I bank every time on Scotchmen. They will stick to it. They are men of action, and I believe that Haig will make a splendid commander on the western front.

LONDON, Jan. 28.—The Press to-day displayed prominently a despatch from America, reporting that the United States would ask that all guns be removed from belligerent merchant ships, and London newspapers unanimously declared that British shipowners would never comply with such requirement.

PETROGRAD, Jan. 28.—One hundred soldiers and train employees were killed by the wrecking of a German ammunition train, en route from Lido to Smorgen, according to advices received here to-day.

OTTAWA, Jan. 28.—The debate on the address will continue into next week and may not be concluded until Tuesday.

The speakers to-day will include J. H. Burnham, of Peterborough; Ernest Lapointe, of Kamouraska, and J. D. Taylor, of New Westminster.

Arrangements have been made by the Militia Department for officers' training course for members of the House. About a score have already signified intention of attending the opening lectures which will commence on Tuesday next. Should the war continue until another session is held, it is believed that the House will meet with a large number of the members absent at the front.

TORONTO, Jan. 28.—"I make no secret of the fact that I would be glad to see the whole traffic in intoxicating liquors done away with." This was the statement made by Col. W. A. Logie, commanding fifteen thousand men in training here for overseas, in a letter to Organizer Warburton, of the Committee of One Hundred, now canvassing all Ontario with petitions for full prohibition.

Reports from all parts of Ontario are very encouraging to prohibitionists. It looks like from seventy to eighty per cent. of the names on the voters' lists in Ontario are in favour of the petitions.

CALGARY, Alta., Jan. 28.—Fifteen months' imprisonment was the sentence imposed by Judge Simons at Red Deer on John Reid, a Socialist candidate for the Legislature, on a charge of sedition, he having stated publicly the British were just as bad as the Germans, and advising people not to enlist or give to the Patriotic Fund. Reid is British born, and a Boer War veteran.

SUDDEN FLOOD AT GALT DOES $1,000,000 DAMAGE

Grand River Went On Its Annual Rampage This Morning—Many People Rescued by the Fire Department

RECEDED QUICKLY

Special to The Examiner:

GALT, Ont., Jan. 28.— The Grand river to-day went on an annual rampage, causing damages estimated at $100,000. Never in the history of the oldest resident has the flood come and gone so suddenly. Within fifteen minutes after the ice began to come down, Water street was turned into a river for half a mile, but within half an hour it had receded. Manufacturers and residents along the river had no time to escape from the buildings. The Fire Department was called out to make rescues of marooned people. The Getty and Scott Shoe Co. were the heaviest losers, their loss being estimated at any way from $30,000 to $40,000.

You Can't Do It!

You can't waste spare time, and not damage the time you are paid for. You can't remain untrained and pull down a trained man's salary. Training comes easy nowadays. Perhaps the fellow next to you is getting by mail the knowledge that will make him your boss. He's mastering principles and practices that will make him an expert. When will you begin to train yourself by study in spare time? When will you decide that you are not going to work under a trained man, but be one yourself? It rests with you! Give the answer now that you are starting to study in the I.C.S.

THE INFLUENCE OF WEDNESDAY'S MEETING WAS FELT YESTERDAY

Five Norwood Recruits Passed the Doctor---Forty Recruits Accepted the First Four Days of This Week---Musketry Examination Results Announced---Promotion For Sergt. Playford---To-day's Military News.

The influence of Wednesday night's recruiting meting at Norwood was felt yesterday when five Norwood men visited the Armouries and all five were successful in passing the medical examination. In addition, five Peterborough recruits joined yesterday, so that the day saw ten more comrades added to the ranks of the 93rd. For the first four days of this week forty men passed the Doctor.

Here is yesterday's list with the addition of two who were accepted this morning:

Thos. Bagnall, 480 Aylmer street.
Fred B Gallick, Norwood.
Gordon T. Puffer, Norwood.
Wm. J. Puffer, Norwood.
A. J. McKenty, Norwood.
A. T Searight, Norwood.
Wm. Purcy, 594 Waterford Street.
Geo. Hawke, 140 Park Street.
E. C. Foy, 97 Rubidge Street.
Ben Jinke, 344 Simcoe street.
Fred Markwick, 112 Sophia Street.
Wm. Woodrow, 161 Lake Street.

A despatch to the Toronto News says that Lieut. Gordon (Pete) Campbell of Peterborough, who has been at the front with the 48th Highlanders (15th Battalion, has been attached to the staff of the 3rd Infantry Brigade, commanded by General Leckie. His many friends will be glad to learn of his success.

To-Day's Orders.

No. 198602 Pte. E. G. Cole, B Company, Jan. 27th.

J. E. R. Munro, Captain.
Adjutant 93rd Overseas Batt., C.E.F.

The results of the musketry examinations conducted by Q. M. S. Goodhouse among the officers and noncome. of the 93rd Battalion have been announced and the showing made was a splendid one. Capt. Munro, Adjutant of the 93rd, headed the list with Company Sergt. Major Calladine of B Company, second. Major Lech, Company Serrt. Major Harts born, and Battalion Sergt.-Major Miller were next in order.

Sergt. Jack Playford, Platoon Sergeant of No. 2 Platoon, A Company, is to be appointed Company Sergeant-Major of D Company of the 93rd. His friends will congratulate him on his promotion. Sergt. Playford has seen service at the front in the present struggle, but joined up again a week after he reached home.

Major Lech has returned to duty at the Armouries after having been away several days through illness.

In to-day's issue appears a picture of Pte. Jas. W. Marsh, son of Rev. Dr. Marsh of Holstein, formerly of Springville. Pte. Marsh, who is training with the Canadian Grenadier Guards at St. Johns, Quebec for overseas service. Pte. Marsh was for two years a student at the local Collegiate Institute after which he took a position on the testing floor of the Fairbanks, Morse Gasoline Engine Works. Succeeding in that he was sent to the Grand Trunk Pacific Railway to look after the interests of the company there, as the Fairbanks Morse engines were used in the construction work. Since the finishing of the road he was employed by the government as mechanical superintendent re water supply, and is now on leave of absence to fight for the Empire.

Lieut. Grant Mowat, son of Public School Inspector Mowat, has been attached to the 93rd Battalion for duty and instruction.

The following members of the 33rd Battery are home on final leave from Kingston before going overseas, and will be given a send-off to-morrow night on their departure:

THE DANGERS OF SKATING ON "GOOSE POND"

The prolonged spell of warm weather and the resulting thaw has been responsible for raising the water in Jackson's Park Creek to a height never attained within the last half century—at this time of the year, according to the recollection of a west-end veteran.

Parents who allow their children to skate on that part of the river known as "Goose Pond," seem to be tempting "Providence". If the skaters would confine their operations to the bay all would be well, but many venturesome youths prefer the thin ice, out near the centre, where the current is swift.

To those who live near the spot and are able to observe the habits of the river, it would appear that the civic authorities should erect a sign warning skaters against venturing out beyond the stump.

An accident with grave consequences was narrowly averted at the beginning of the week, when a young girl was knocked down by a couple of boys chasing the puck, and was surrounded by a large crowd out where the ice, three days later, had entirely disappeared. If a near-by resident had not rushed to the scene and scattered the bunch, they might have been precipitated into the swiftly running river where their rescue would have been exceedingly difficult. A word of timely precaution is better than waiting for some fatality to occur.

JANUARY OPEN AIR PANSIES

Mr. D. H. Moore came down town this morning proudly wearing a boutonniere of pansies, plucked in full bloom in the open air on January 28th. British Columbia or the Isle of Wight can't beat this.

RETURNED SOLDIERS WILL GET THE PREFERENCE

PTE. JAS. W. MARSH
With the Canadian Grenadier Guards. He is a son of Rev. Dr. Marsh, formerly of Springville, and was a stndent for several years at the Peterborough Collegiate.

And Soldiers' Aid Association Formed Last Night Will Look After the Wounded and the Unwounded and Will Secure Employment For Them.

ALD. STRATTON, CHAIRMAN

WILL GIVE PREFERENCE TO RETURNED SOLDIERS.

"That the Government of the Dominion and the Province, the Corporation of the City of Peterborough and all other public bodies in the City and County of Peterborough, the manufacturers and all other employers of labour in the City and County be requested whenever it is possible and practicable to do so, to give preference to the returned soldiers in the making of appointments or the engaging and hiring of labour."—Carried.

In the organization of the Peterborough Soldiers' Aid Association, a branch of the Soldiers' Aid Commission of Ontario, at a meeting in the Collegiate Institute hall last night, the citizens demonstrated their desire and determination to fulfill their promises to their volunteer soldiers when they return either before or after the conclusion of the war. The objects of this association is to secure adequate employment for returning soldiers who will be able to resume work. It applies to the wounded and to those who come through unscathed. Those who may be rendered unfit to take up their former employment will receive special care and training for positions they will be able to accept; those who escape injury or other disability will be returned to their former work.

The scope and plans of the provincial commission and local association were outlined by Mr. J. B. Laidlaw, of Toronto. Mr. W. D. McPherson, K.C., was unable to come to Peterborough. The very name of the association suggests its activities, and its inauguration should provide additional assurance to recruits that public sentimen recognises the sacrifice they are prepared to make and will stoutly support them in the happier days of readjustment.

The Local Officers.

On motion of Mr. Matthews, seconded by Mr. V. Eastwood, it was decided to form a Soldiers' Aid Association in Peterborough.

On the suggestion of Mr. F. D. Kerr a nominating committee was appointed, consisting of Mr. T. F. Matthews,

Matter Discussed and Approved of at Annual Meeting of Police Commissioners Yesterday Afternoon —Referred to City Council

OTHER MATTERS DEALT WITH

The annual meeting of the Board of Police Commissioners was held yesterday afternoon with His Honour Judge Huycke in the chair. The report of Chief of Police Thompson, which appears in another column, was received and was followed by a discussion of certain recommendations embodied therein. At the opening of the meeting, Judge Huycke extended a welcome to His Worship Mayor Duffus, who was present for the first time. The chairman also stated that if there were any members of the police force who wanted to enlist, he would, personally, encourage them to do so. Such a move, he said, as far as he was concerned, would count for them and not against them.

The Dan Spence Ambulance.

The recommendation of Chief Thompson to have the Dan Spence Ambulance transferred to the Police Department was discussed at some length. At the present time the Dan Spence Ambulance was in charge of Messrs. Comstock who received $200 a year from the city for looking after it and attending calls from the citizens.

Magistrate Dumble believed that if it was used for the dual purpose as suggested in the Chief's report, the ambulance would come to be looked upon as a "black Maria." Many citizens would not care to be carried to the hospital in it if it was used to convey criminals to and from the police station.

Judge Huycke didn't believe it would be wise to use it as a patrol waggon.

"If used only for ambulance purposes, would it not be advisable to have it under the Police Department?" asked the Chief.

Mayor Duffus thought that as the Dan Spence Ambulance was a memorial provided by the citizens, it

"Peterborough Possesses Possibilities Unsurpassed."

FRIDAY, JAN. 28, 1916

A QUERY.

If, as happened recently, a civilian hockey team defeated the military hockey team of the 93rd, doesn't that go to show that there are at least seven stalwart young men that are not in khaki? Civilians that can defeat Canadian soldiers at hockey must be of superb physical fitness [illegible] and we believe him, Canadian soldiers are the best fighters in the world. Hockey is a great game, but there is a greater game that appeals, or should appeal more strongly to the young men of Canada.

WEAK EVIDENCE.

Our evening contemporary could easily hang its neighbours if evidence only as strong as it accepts to convict Liberals of a desire- "to run the country into the horrors of a general election" were all that was needed. It quotes Mr Carvell of Carleton, New Brunswick, as saying in the course of a speech in the House that "when the people of Canada got the opportunity they would move a vote of censure upon the Borden Government much more effectual than anything we could say in this House." The somewhat oscillatory member from West Peterborough jumped at the conclusion that "this is for a general election," and our contemporary coincides. This is absurd. Ever since parliaments were in being, orators on both sides have been addicted to making just such vague oratorical menaces as the member from Carleton used. They know that a general election would come in due course, and had hopes that then the electors would give the government of the day a trimming. The Review and the other supporters of the government didn't say much about "the horrors of a general election in war-time" while the Government was preparing the machinery for a "general election in war-time." If it had not been for the loyal adherence of Liberal leaders to the party truce; if it had not been that the Liberals had thought more of the interests of the country and the empire than of party advantage; if it had not been for the keen opposition of the Liberals to a war-time election, we should have had the country split asunder by the disintegrating effects of a general election any time the past eighteen months.

RECRUITING METHODS.

The Examiner fully agrees with the remarks of the Review, in regard to the undesirability of certain newspaper correspondence in the interests of promoting recruiting. With the very best intentions behind them some of the methods of stimulating the enlistment of young men, employed by some persons are open to objection, in that they create antagonism instead of enlisting sympathy. Abuse of persons who do not at once enlist is a bad and unwise thing. Bulldozing methods of this kind smack too much of the German way to have the desired effect upon free born and free-will Canadians. While it is the duty of every able and Canadian young man to join the ranks, to induce this, his reason, as well as his patriotism, is to be convinced. Hundreds of young men are doubtless thinking the matter over and, like Felix of old, are "almost persuaded". In such cases, a little reasoning argument may bring decision, and bring recruits; but hard words create revulsion of feeling, and perhaps, a recruit is lost. Recruiting for the 93rd may be slower than desired, but if is to be remembered that this city and county have been pretty thoroughly combed for recruits; that in proportion to its population, Peterborough has furnish as many recruits as any district in the country, and more that many. But there are many more that should enlist; and the way to get them, as we are sure they will be got, is not by abuse and hard words and stinging insinuations, but by reasonable and reasoning methods. That the recruiting spirit is still alive is shown by the fact that enlistment is steadily going forward. The rate of actual enrolment would be better if so large a proportion—about one in two—were not rejected as physically unfit. This goes to show that many of the young men the unthinking think should be in the ranks have the consciousness that they could not pass. But there are doubtless others who are fit, who are not offering, and should be brought in; and scores of them will be brought in if moderate and prudent methods of persuasion are used. Men have to be convinced of their duty to enlist. This is easy, because at heart nearly every young man recognizes this duty. But the next thing to do is not so easy—to make him appreciate the situation — make him feel the necessity of every able-bodied Canadian being in the ranks, in order to save the empire and preserve our liberties. There are scores that do not appreciate the immense seriousness of the situation. When they are made to understand that, though the line of Canadian defence is three thousand miles distant, in the plains of Flanders and France, it is as really our line of defence as if it were upon our own borders. Convince them of this fact, and of the absolute necessity of more men, and enlistment will be promoted. But harsh methods will convince nobody.

A SUBSTITUTE.

In 1914 there were 2112 new works of fiction published in Britain; last year the number dropped to 1,000. However, the war correspondence more than made up for the deficiency. —Hamilton Herald.

UNANIMOUS.

Opinion seems to be divided on the advisability of having such mild weather, but there's no division when the effect on the coal bin is mentioned.—Guelph Mercury.

AND ELSEWHERE.

BEGIN AT HOME.

Before Mr. Lodge gets over his excitement about murders of American citizens, he should attack our own lynching horrors and propose federal intervention in the states of the Union, where the rights of American citizens and also country jails are periodically torpedoed by mobs without warning.—Springfield Republican.

WHAT IS "DRUNK?"

Chairman Flavelle of the Ontario License Commission, has solved the question, "When is a man drunk?" He says a man is drunk when he is not acting as he would act if he had not been drinking intoxicating liquors. If this view was acted upon there would be few real drunks.—Hamilton Times.

GERMANY'S MORAL ISOLATION.

A Swiss banker who has been studying Germany from the inside says she is suffering from "moral isolation" while the entente allies are fighting with the approval of the world. History repeats itself again in this instance. It has been written of Wellington that he discovered the ruin of Bonaparte's affairs by his own probity. "He argued ill of the Napoleonic empire as soon as he saw that it was mendacious and lived by war." With this encouraging grasp of eternal principles Wellington trudged for years in Lisbon and from that far-away base he worked north to the sure success of Waterloo. The applause of "the gallery" helps a lot, especially when the democrats of the world make up that gallery.—Brooklyn Eagle.

OUR MILITARY RESOURCES.

An estimate of Canada's resources in men of military age was made recently by The Daily News. By rule-of-thumb methods of calculation, it was shown that the married and single men between 19 and 40 would not be far short of 1,000,000, and therefore that Sir Robert Borden's demand for a half million of soldiers was not an excessive requirement. Since that article appeared Census Bulletin No. XVIII. has come to hand. This document, issued in 1914 still deals with the figures of 1911, but is official, and therefore dependable. It classifies the population by ages and makes most interesting reading.

The number of Canadian-born men between the ages of 20 and 39 inclusive was, in 1911, 881,857. Those of similar age born in other portions of the British Empire numbered 243,286. Without counting Americans or other friendly persons of foreign birth, our military man-power four years ago was 1,079,412. In that time, the age-group from 15 years to 19 came into the ranks of the available, while the 35 to 39 group slipped out. As the former age-group exceeded the latter by 97,250, we obtain a grand total of 1,177,362. Eliminating the unfit and taking into consideration the British immigration of the past four years we may regard 1,000,000 men as available for the armies of the Empire. We ask for 500,000. Nearly half that number has been secured. This is our war. We are fighting for British freedom in Canada and for our honour as British people.—Toronto News.

GERMAN ESTIMATE OF UNITED STATES' CONDITIONS

A German book on the United States by Edward Meyer is reviewed in the London Times literary supplement. This Meyer is a professor of history in Berlin University, and his brother Kuno Meyer, who recently toured the United States on a political mission, is a famous Celtic scholar. Both of them are shaping un as specimens of the kaiser-poodle breed.

Kuno Meyer is the author of various works on the ancient literature and laws of Ireland, several of them published by the Claredon Press of Oxford, e. g., his "Selections from Ancient Irish Poetry," his translation of the Cath Finntraga (Battle of Ventry), and the expensive facsimile edition of Irish MSS. of the 11th and 12th centuries ($46.75.) Here, then, decided the powers in Germany is just the man to send to the United States to line up both the German and Irish hyphenates, and maybe the full Americans, too. He is a professor, and in the United States they think professors quite harmless, non-partisan, uncorrupted and incorruptible, large and vague-minded cosmopolitans, viewing matters of politics and international friction in the dry light of reason. They do not see red nor even pink, but see life steadily and whole, doubtless the American believes, judging from the home product. So out came Brother Kuno, full of Irish lore and missionary zeal for his master at Berlin. Expecting to benefit by the American professor's reputation for fairness, detachment, independence and reason. As Brother Edward says in his book, Kuno went out "to work for our cause among the Germans and the Irish."

But this whole apostle does not seem to have got such results as were hoped for, and his brother Edward, who also has been in the United States spying out the land like a good German Joshua and forerunner, writes a book to show how disgruntled are the Brothers Meyer with the Americans and all their works. He finds a diametrical opposition of deals between them and the Germans—thank heaven for that. He says:

"The cultivated German, from the moment when he lands on the quay of New York until he leaves it again, feels himself under an unwonted sense of oppression, the yoke of public opinion, which is exercised not only by the press and by politicians, but also through all the forms of social life. His behavior and his utterances are all controlled and dragged into publicity; he has no freedom of movement nor of opinion; it is surely the greatest problem of the land of contrasts that the Americans regard themselves as a free people."

Of course, if there is a diametrical opposition in general ideals, it is not much wonder that a promisent Hun, and a marked one, too, like Meyer, brother of a political emissary of the Dernburg and Von Papen class, should find himself under rather hostile and restraining observation. It is no wonder he should feel a lack of freedom, even some constraint, moving about in a country that has been given good reason to detest the kaiser's policies and poodles. Doubtless the New York Press has been a particular oppression to his mind, especially as that press had so accurately and easily gauged such men as himself and brother. So far as liberty is concerned, he prefers the tyranny of the German policeman to the rule of public opinion, the stupid and soulless tyranny of militarism to the intelligent powers of a free press and a free society. Underhand bombers and assassins and their allies naturally find American public opinion more hostile and punitive than a despot's police.

Meyer arraigns the American people as decadent, neurasthenic and cowardly—afraid to make war except on weaker peoples thm themselves. "The manly spirit of chivalric sentiment," he says, "has almost wholly perished among them." This is very good coming from a Hun! He seems to think, however, the Americans to be worth threatening. They cannot be won by honest suasion of good dogs like him and Brother Kuno; well, then let them look out. German victories will prove that German ideals are right and true, might will prove the right, as in the old days of trial by combat, and take notice, United States:

"In regard to Germans both at home and abroad there remains to us the duty of calling to them ever again, and hammering into their minds as a guide for their dealings with foreign nations the words, Be hard."

If Americans fail to see the significance of menace like this from the kaiser's household pets, there is no excuse for them. They have seen how Germany for years past plotted the murder of European nations. They shold know well against whom they have to stand on their guard.

REDUCTON OF HOURS.

The following part of an editorial from the "Ottawa Citizen" shows that the reduction in the hours during which liquor may be sold in Liverpool, has produced remarkable results. Imagine what it would have been if it had been prohibited entirely.

"The war has shown the necessity for economy and the cutting off of non-essentials. When such are in addition, harmful to the individual and family—the foundation of society — there should be no hesitation in curtailing their sale or altogether prohibiting it.

Britain, where the liquor interests are more strongly entrenched than in Canada, has seen the beneficial results of its restrictions regarding the sale of liquor. Liverpool, where the anti-treating law has been strictly enforced, declares that the new regulations have proved the virtual salvation of the community, in safe-guarding the families of the poor, and others, from actual poverty. The city formerly had the reputation of being one of the worst in the Kingdom; now it has become one of the soberest, and a drunken person on the streets is a rare sight. With added sobriety has come a remarkable increase in industry, and the authorities believe that troubles with dock workers and other classes will now be less frequent. The hours for drinking in Liverpool, are limited from noon each day to 2.30 p.m., and from 6.30 to 9.30 p.m. Outside these hours, it is impossible to buy liquor in Liverpool.

The Liverpool regulations have proved more successful than those of London, simply because they have applied to rich and poor alike. In London they were aimed at the poor, and not until this week did the authorities close down on the fashionable cafes where dancing and drinking continued ito the early hours of the morning. But the recent action of the London authorities may soon cause a condition of affairs in the Capital similar to those in vogue now in Liverpool.

In Ontario the decision of the Government will be hailed as an earnest of its intention to deal with the problem in response to public demand. We spend and waste about half a million dollars a day through the liquor traffic. Can we afford it?—H. Arnott, M.B., M.C.P.S.

would not be fitting to use is as a patrol waggon. However at this time he believed it should be used to a greater extent than it was. In reply to Judge Huycke he stated that he believed the Dan Spence Ambulance could be made a motor vehicle, and a garage in which to keep it in, built, at a cost not exceeding $700.

Judge Huycke thought that such an investment on the part of the city would be a good one.

It was moved by Mr. Dumble, seconded by Judge Huycke, that the part of the Chief's report, referring to the Dan Spence Ambulance, be sent to the Council for their consideration.

Pensions for Police Force.

Regarding the recommendation of Chief Thompson in regard to inaugurating a system of pensions for the local police force, the Board took no action, other than authorizing the Chief to write to other cities of a similar size and get particulars of systems in vogue.

The Estimates For 1916.

In last year's estimates there was a balance left of $512.50. Chief Thompson suggested that Detectives Newhall and Meagher and Sgt. Brown each receive fifty dollars increase in salary. Also that Sgts. Reid and Kidd be made patrol sergeants, at an increase of fifty dollars each.

Mayor Duffus said that he was opposed to any increase being made this year. He believed the force could be cut down, to curtail expenses at this time.

"I certainly wouldn't agree to cutting down the force," said Judge Huycke. If it was not for the war I would move to add three men to the force. While we retain the single police officers we would prefer them to enlist. They will be treated better when they come back. A man too old to go to the war told me the other day that he would do policeman's duty at soldier's pay if there were any members who wanted to enlist."

"I don't suppose you want to place yourself on record as compelling these men to enlist?" asked Chief Thompson.

"I would recommend them strongly to do so," replied the Judge.

Made Patrol Sergeants.

Upon motion of Magistrate Dumble and Mayor Duffus, Sgts. Reid and Kidd were made patrol sergeants.

On motion of Judge Huycke and Magistrate Dumble the salaries of Detective Meagher, Sgts. Kidd and Reid be increased each $25.

P. C. Wigg was appointed permanently to the force.

Mayor Duffus proposed reducing the estimates to $14,000, instead of $14,104.34. However, it was decided to leave them as presented with the salaries of Detective Meagher, Sgts. Kidd and Reid amended as above.

They are as follows:

WHERE TO GO FOR ADVICE

"If I wanted to become a tramp I would seek information and advice from the most successful tramp I could find. If I wanted to become a failure I would seek advice from men that have never succeeded. If I wanted to succeed in all things, I would look about me for those that are succeeding, and do as they have done."

—Joseph Marshall Wade.

There is some very sensible advice from a distinguished man. Many an ambitious man has accomplished the ruination of his career by selecting as his advisor some lazy, miserable failure. That kind of a man is always willing to condemn anything that is good. "Misery loves company," save the old adage. The man too lazy to study and make something of himself will always advise others not to study, for he does not want to see them do better than himself.

If you want advice from someone about taking a course with the I.C.S. don't ask it of some man who has never taken a course, and who as a result of his lack of education has never been able to earn a decent living, don't ask it of some student who has merely enrolled—then laid his Instruction Papers away on a shelf to gather dust and cobwebs because he was too lazy to study them.

In short, as Mr. Wade says, don't ask advice of a failure. Seek the advice of some successful student. We have a book giving the names and addresses of over one hundred thousand successful I.C.S. students. We can if necessary, refer you to plenty of successes to whom you can go for advice. No need to seek the bad and worthless counsel of those in the "misery-loves-company" class. They will do all they can to keep you down with them, if you will let them.

Peterboro Will Become A Large Industrial City

Every lot I own lies high and dry close outside the present city limits and must become city property very soon. Regardless of above facts I want to sell about 40 lots and 5 houses to close up my business. Wise ones say I cannot do so. I say I can and I will, because there are always a few wise people who know a good bargain when offered and I intend to give such to every buyer. The big rush at close of war will double rents and prices of all lots, this should cause renters and all who want to make money to buy now. Pay a small deposit and secure what you want to use in spring or resell with big profit. Good profit to every buyer of my lots or houses is a certainty beyond any doubt. No interest until May, then 6 per cent and any reasonable terms desired. Call for particulars.

THE NEW YORK STOCK MARKET

Examiner Special:

NEW YORK, Jan. 28.—The rebound from the stock market slump caused by profit-taking, following the resumption of the dividend on United States Steel common, came at the opening of the Stock Exchange today.

Crucible steel was the biggest gainer, among market leaders, selling at 69 up 1¾. United States Steel gained ⅜ at 88¾. Baldwin and Industrial Alcohol each gained a point. The railroads were not so strong as the industrials. Erie was up a ½ at 36¾.

War stocks led by Crucible steel ruled on the market while bull traders circulated reports that 125 million dollars additional war orders is about to be placed in this country. Crucible had advanced 8¼ points above yesterday's close at noon, and was selling at 72¾. Sales of Crucible were 55,000 shares, against 26,000 shares of United States steel at prices ranging under 84. Baldwin Loco. sold at 109½ up at 2¼, and Republic Steel and American Loco. were strong. The rails were almost stationary.

Trading was dull in the second hour after noon. Prices were a fraction under high for the day in most cases. Steel made a high of 84 1-4; Crucible 73 1-4; Mexican petrol 105 3-8.

MORNING MUSICALE IN THE EVENING

The next meeting of the Morning Musical Club will be held in the evening—next Monday evening, Jan. 31, in the Conservatory Hall. This will be a special meeting of the Club in that it will be open to others than members. Everybody is invited, and the more the merrier; for there will be a silver collection for a patriotic purpose. The members of the Club are busy knitting socks for soldiers, and the silver collection is to provide funds to purchase yarn.

There will be a very attractive musical programme; all the more so because a former Peterborough favourite will contribute. Mrs. W. Graham (Julia Choate), of Rosetown, Sask., is in the city and will give one or two violin numbers, which will be a treat to music-lovers, and be a reminder of the days when her artistic violin playing gave so great pouplar delight.

Don't forget the date of the next morning musicale—in the evening at 8 o'clock at the Conservatory Hall, on Monday evening, Jan. 31st. By attending you will be giving yourself a musical treat and helping a good cause.

STOLEN MONEY RECOVERED

Special to The Examiner:

CHICAGO, Jan. 28.— Seven thousand, eight hundred dollars, said to be part of the money stolen by bandits in a daring robbery of Washington Park National Bank yesterday, was recovered to-day by the police in a raid on a west side rooming house, in which five men and three women were arrested.

The money, all in currency, was tossed from a winodw of a rooming house in a box, and was picked up by a newsboy.

The men arrested were betrayed by a woman.

No Inspector For House of Refuge

The Lame Man Leaping, Acts 3.

Golden Text: Peter said, silver and gold have I none, but what I have, that I give thee. In the name of Jesus Christ of Nazareth, walk. Acts 3:6.

1. Verse 1. What are the advantages of forming the habit of attending church regularly?

2. Of how much help is it in living a holy life, for each Christian to have a very intimate spiritual friend?

3. Verse 2. As it was no fault of this man that he was born lame, is there any reason why we, or God, should think less of him than if he had been born physically perfect?

4. Why would you say, or not that no sickness, or bodily infirmity, is necessarily sinful?

5. What proportion of our sickness is unavoidable, and what proportion is a result of our personal sin?

6. To what class of persons do those who are in need generally go for help?

7. Verse 3. As begging is illegal, is the state under moral obligation to maintain all persons who cannot maintain themselves?

8. What can you say for the righteousness, or the unrighteousness, of the laws which forbid begging?

9. Verse 4. In endeavoring to impart spiritual benefit, what, if any are the advantages of looking the person to be helped straight in the eyes?

10. Verse 5. In teaching of any kind how much depends upon the scholar and how much upon the teacher?

11. Verse 6. What were the advantages, or disadvantages, to Peter and John, and to the impotent man, that none of them had any money?

12. How can you prove that the lack of money, or ability, need not be any barrier to any man, in doing the work in life to which God has appointed him. (This is one of the questions which may be answered in writing by members of the club.)

13. What effect would it have upon our work if we always invoked the name of Jesus Christ while doing it?

14. Verse 7. By what power was this man healed, and may we expect sick people to be healed by the same power to-day?

15. Verse 8. Would it be wise, or not, and why, if we made more outward demonstration in returning God thanks for the wonders of his love?

16. Verse 9. If we were to make greater outward demonstration what reason is there to believe that the work of God would go on faster?

17. Verses 10, 11. What would you say is the greatest of all influences in advancing Christ's kingdom?

18. Verse 12. Is it a sign of faith, or unbelief, when we "marvel" at the fulfilment of any of God's promises? Why?

19. Verses 13-16. Which was the guiltier, Pilate of the chief of the Jews, for the murder of Jesus?

20. Verse 17. If a man does wrong through ignorance when he could have known better, is he guilty as if he knew better? Why?

21. Verses 19-20. Why should a man be more concerned about his salvation than about all other things, and how may he be saved?

Lesson for Sunday, Feb. 6, 1916. The Boldness of Peter and John. Acts 4:1-31.

RUMANIAN GRAIN BOUGHT BY THE ALLIES

$50,000,000 Paid for 80,000 Wagon Loads to Prevent Teutons Getting it.

BUCHAREST, Jan. 27—An Anglo-French corporation with a capital of $50,000,000 has been formed to buy up all available grain so that the Central Powers will be unable to import needed supplies.

"The British Legation and the Rumanian Central Commission for the purchase and exportation of grain has concluded an agreement for the acquisition of 80,000 wagon loads of grain for £10,000,000. We are glad to announce this agreement, which will be of the greatest service to the economic life of our country."

The agreement was signed Jan. 14.

GERMANS COMPLETE RAILWAY IN SYRIA

LONDON, Jan. 27.—German's campaign in Egypt is meeting with unexpected obstacles, it is announced here, due to the lack of coal to operate the railroad which they have constructed southward through Syria to the edge of the desert, approaching the Suez Canal.

The construction of the railroad had been largely facilitated by French rails and material for a similar line, which was partly constructed, but the absence of coal prevents the actual opening of the road to transportation.

This lack of coal has led the Germans to reopen the old Turkish mines in Syria. The capacity of these mines is limited to 500,000 tons annually.

A large force of Turkish laborers is developing the mines, which are now the chief reliance in getting the railroad to Egypt in operation.

THE EXAMINER'S OWN PRIZE CONTEST
FOR DOLLAR DAY

An Estimate Blank for every dollar paid into the Examiner for Subscriptions, old and new, and Accounts for Advertising or Job Printing. . . . . .

SO much interest was taken in the Examiner's prize contest on last DOLLAR DAY that it will be repeated again this year—

THURSDAY, FEBRUARY 3rd
DOLLAR DAY

This year looks like the greatest event yet, as the merchants are making tremendous preparations to eclipse all records in Dollar Bargain giving, and the crowd in the City that day is expected to be a bumper one.

To add to the interest of the day's proceedings, THE EXAMINER will

Give Away $35.00 in Cash

It will be divided into prizes, to be given

To Those Who Make The Nearest Correct Estimate as to the Number of Coppers in The Jar

which will be on display in the window of Trebilcock's Bookstore, next our office, for a week previous to Dollar Day.

PRIZES
will be awarded as follows:

PRIZES IN DOLLAR BILLS

First Nearest Estimate		..	$10.00

RICHARD HALL & SON LIMITED

House of Refuge Maintains Inmates At $2.75 Each a Week

TOTAL MAINTENANCE $5,686.84

The report of the Committee of the House of Refuge management was presented to the County Council yesterday afternoon by Mr. E. Deyell of Otonabee, the chairman for 1915, as follows:

According to the regulations requiring by Statute, I have prepared the annual report re House of Refuge.

As you will notice in the attached report there were in the House at the close of 1915, 40 inmates, the majority of the same being men. There is also one infant who will receive the usual attention given in such cases.

All furnishings and equipment of the House gives evidence of good care by the Matron.

Some provision, as a result of number of men was necessitated, and following your instructions to proceed with the necessary provision, I had a part of the attic provided with proper heat and rooms, and some more beds and furnishings.

The stock on the farm are a credit to the County and management of the institution.

The old people are in good spirits and most of them appear fairly healthy.

In supervising or acting as Inspector I have come to the conclusion that the incumbent should be somebody, not a member of the Council who could be made responsible to the Board for all sales and purchases and conduct of the institution.

Yours respectfully,
E. DEYELL,
Chairman.

Mr. Deyell stated that the case of two mentally deficient men who are inmates, should be taken up with a view to removing them to a proper institution. They are unable to help themselves and place too heavy an additional care to those in charge of the House. He also suggested that a silo be erected on the farm, and advocated the appointment of an independent inspector to occasionally visit the House. Mr. Deyell said there was no question about the work of the caretaker and matron or of the committee or management. But other municipalities employed such an official.

A Good Job For You

Times are always good for the man with something worth selling. There's plenty of work for the specially trained, and plenty of money to pay them big salaries. If you are out of a job or worrying lest you may be, what is the reason? If promotions have been as scarce as snowballs in the summer time, what is the answer? It is that you have no special training; none of the knowledge that would make you safe with responsibility. There's plenty of prosperity ahead. Learn to give a satisfactory answer to the unavoidable "What can you do?" It is up to you to "know how". Local Office, 160 Charlotte Street. International Correspondence School.

NOTHING LIKE IT FOR COLDS

Mrs. Holland Ferguson, Sheffield, N. B., writes: "Dr. Chase's Syrup of Linseed and Turpentine has cured my children and myself of severe colds. We are never without it in the house. There is nothing like it for colds and throat troubles and it is so soothing and pleasant to take, my children would drink a whole bottle if they were permitted."

The heavy winter milber is usually the best and most persistent cow; give her an opportunity to make greatest profit.

Tribute To New Pastor of St. Andrew's

Presbytery Accept Resignation of Rev. T. H. Mitchell, Who Will Come to Peterborough to Fill Vacancy Created by Temporary Absence of Capt. Jas. Rollins

RESOLUTION ADOPTED

LONDON, Jan. 28.— At a special meeting of the Presbytery of London, held in St. Andrew's Hall, it was decided to accept, with regret, the resignation of Rev. Thomas Mitchell, pastor for the last ten years of the New St. James' church, this city. D. C. McGregor, pastor of St. Andrew's church, was appointed interim moderator of the session, and will declare the pastorate vacant on February 20.

Rev. Mr. Mitchell's resignation takes effect on February 13. He will for a time supply in the church of Rev. James Rollins of Peterborough, formerly of King street Presbyterian church, London, as Mr. Rollins is going overseas as quartermaster of the 99rd battalion now being trained in Peterborough.

A resolution, moved by Rev. J. G. Stuart, and seconded by Rev. Mr. McGillivray of St. Thomas, that the resignation of Rev. T. H. Mitchell be accepted with keen regret, was passed.

Pay High Tributes.

A large delegation from the New St. James' church was present, and all paid the highest tributes to the departing pastor and expressed the deepest regret that he is leaving. Those who spoke were Rev. F. Ballantyne and James Gray, from the session, Sheriff Cameron and J. A. Campbell from the board of management, W. D. Beemer and M. S. Aikenhead from the Sunday school and W. W. Gammage and Postmaster Dr. McDonald from the congregation.

In replying to what had been said, Rev. Mr. Mitchell spoke of the pleasure it had been to him to work for the past ten years in New St. James'. He had grown spiritually, mentally and physically, he said as a result of his labours, and had had to do a great amount of reading to keep up with the progress of his people. His relations with them had always been most pleasant and he would always cherish a warm spot in his heart for London and the people of New St. James'.

Presentation To Mr. Lee

Foreman at De Laval Honoured by His Fellow Employees

A very pleasant evening was spent at the home of Mr. E. Lee on 26th January, when the boys of the De Laval Machine Shop gathered together to say farewell to their former foreman, Mr. Lee, prior to his departure to take up a lucrative position in the States.

The boys always found him as a foreman, a gentleman and a friend. And to show their appreciation of him, and as a remembrance they presented him with a beautiful signet ring.

Afterwards Mr. Lee made a suitable reply, thanking the boys for their thoughtfulness, and good wishes, and informed them that he would take with him to his new home many kind recollections of the time he spent among them.

Short speeches were given by all the boys, and they all joined in wishing Mr. and Mrs. Lee a safe journey, and health, and prosperity, in their new home. After which they joined hands, and sang "For He Is a Jolly Good Fellow," and "Should Old Acquaintance Be Forgot."

CITY HALL PARAGRAPHS

Several of the aldermen have spoken in favour of the proposal to have the care and operation of the Dan Spence ambulance transferred to the Police Department, where it will be available to the public at all hours, and manned by men trained in the art of rendering first aid to the injured.

City Hall Employees.

Complaints have been made regarding the number of single men eligible for military service in the employ of the city. So far as is known the city buildings harbours only one man that might come under the foregoing classification.

WITH OTHER MUNICIPALITIES.

The members of Elgin County Council unanimously decided to give $70,000 to the Elgin County Patriotic Fund. St. Thomas City Council recently voted $30,000 to the fund, making the county's latest contribution $100,000.

Alnwick Township Gives $1,814.

A canvass held in Alnwick township for patriotic purposes has netted $1,614. It has been divided as follows: Canadian Red Cross, $1,075; British Red Cross, $430; Patriotic Fund, $109.

Huron Votes $2,000.

Huron Count Council in session here, voted $2,000 to the Soldiers' War Auxiliary, and to be applied for recruiting and other purposes.

GERMANY PLACES WAR ORDERS

BERLIN Jan. 26.—Commenting on the action of the Bundesrath in creating a monopoly for buying and selling foreign exchange, the Overseas News Agency says that one reason for the movement of the exchange market against Germany is that orders have been given for war materials, to be delivered in Germany after peace is concluded.

57TH CHAPTER'S D.O.E. MEETING

Interesting Report of the Work Done in the Past Month

The regular monthly meeting of the 57th Chapter, I.O.D.E., was held on Thursday afternoon at the Y.W.C.A., Mrs. Mills, Acting Regent, in the chair.

After the confirmation of the minutes, the secretary read an interesting report of the dinner that was given last month to returned soldiers, and it is hoped something else may be done in the near future along the same lines.

The Hospital committee visit the hospitals each week and supply reading matter and comforts to sick soldiers.

Last month 209 pairs were divided as follows:
50 pairs to Pte. Henry.
59 pairs and 1 scarf to Pte. McIntosh.
50 pairs to Dr. Young and 50 pairs to Major G. Hall.
15 pairs to individuals.

A contribution of $3.00 for wool from Mrs. J. C. Davidson.

Votes of thanks were passed to the following:
Employees Bonner-Worth Co. for 59 pairs socks and 1 scarf.
Women Teachers' Guild, 24 pairs socks.
Bridgenorth ladies, 10 pairs socks.
Morning Musical Society, 33 pairs socks.
Cheese Board, $25.00.
Messrs. Grafton & Co., $5.00.
Y.M.C.A. for use of dining room for soldiers' dinner, and also for use of room on Wednesdays for distribution of wool.
Managers of Oriental for use of tea-room.
Miss F. Davidson for knitting needle shields.
E. F. Mason & Co. for tea and sugar.

The Chapter decided to contribute $25.00 to the National Chapter towards the equipment of a Home in London for Canadian soldiers, who are on leave from the front.

HALIBURTON GAVE BATTALION $1,500

Haliburton County Council gave the 109th Battalion $1,500, one thousand dollars for the Battalion as a while, while $500 is especially for D Company, which is recruiting in Haliburton.

TIRED WORKING MEN

A Local Druggist Suggests a Remedy For Overworked, Run-down Men.

The following letter from Manager Hodes recounts the experience and condition of many Peterborough men. Read this letter and our offer which follows:

Brooklyn, N. Y. "I am a general office manager, and became so nervous and run-down in health that I lost my appetite and finally my health broke down completely, largely because of overwork. I tried Beef Iron and Wine, and other remedies without help. I saw Vinol advertised, and soon after taking it I noticed an improvement. I now have a hearty appetite, sleep better, feel better and have gained considerable in weight." Samuel Hodes, 501 Stone Ave.,

The reason Vinol is so successful in such cases is because it contains the three oldest and most famous tonics, viz.—the medicinal elements of fresh cod livers without oil, peptonate of iron and beef peptone.

We ask every run-down, over worked man in Peterborough to try a bottle of Vinol with the understanding that their money will be returned if it fails to help them as it did Mr. Hodes.

COUNTY'S PATRIOTIC GRANT TO BE PAID BY THE 1916 TAXES

Council Turned Down Proposal to Issue Debentures for Five Years—Reeve Anderson Made a Strong Appeal

$1,650 FOR ELEVEN MONTHS

At the December session of the 1915 County Council, $1,650 was granted the Patriotic Fund, and the continuance of this monthly contribution was left over for the new Council. Yesterday it was considered in committee and this morning finally decided in open Council. Some of the members felt that this sum totalling all but $20,000, should be met by a five year debenture issue. They held that this would lighten the present burden and would be more favourable for men on rented farms.

Mr. McIntosh moved, seconded by Mr. Coben, that the debenture method be adopted.

Mr. Squire moved, seconded by Mr. Anderson, that the Finance committee's report for a direct payment this year be adopted.

The amendment carried and the County grant will be paid out of this year's taxes.

In seconding the amendment Reeve Anderson, of Otonabee, made a splendid and timely address that electrified the Council and drew practically every member to the support of the whole payment being made this year.

Peterborough county, he said, had prospered during the past year and had but lightly felt the touch of the war. But this was the time when thousands of our citizens are preparing to make the greatest of sacrifices, and for those who are not brought into as close contact with the demands of the struggle as their fellow citizens who are going to the front, or sending sons there and losing them, they at least can assume the light sacrifice presented to them. Hence, Reeve Anderson urged that this grant of $20,000 be paid this year by a tax levy. No one could foresee what appeals might be necessary a year hence, but every one realized that the county is now in a sound position and can afford to make this payment without inconvenience. He pointed to the practical phase of the question, that of making the payment while the money was in hand, and not assuming the debenture debt. There would not be the extra interest to be paid and especially the citizens of the county would not be shirking one of the lightest sacrifices they could make.

Wanted for Night Staff, 15 or 20 Machine Operators. Also a few experienced operators for Flag Dept.; day work. Apply J. J. Turner & Sons. 3d-22

REEVE W. A. ANDERSON, Of Otonabee, who seems to loom larger at every meeting of the County Council. His address before noon to-day was a credit to the sentiment of this county.

Auto Owners Tell County Council The Advantages of Highways Act

The County Council and Automobile Association held a conference yesterday afternoon on the question of good roads. Mayor Duffus introduced the autoists, who numbered about twenty-five. The Secretary, Mr. S. J. Keyes, explained the working of the new Highways Act. He stated that automobile owners in this section are contributing this year about $10,000 for licenses, and practically all this money can be secured for expenditure on local roads if the new Act is adopted in this country.

Under this measure roads radiating around a city six miles are termed suburban roads; for their upkeep the city and county pay thirty per cent. each, and the province forty per cent. Main roads, such as that between Peterborough and Port Hope are called trunk roads or interurban, and for the upbuilding of these the County pays 33 1-3 per cent., and the Province 66 2-3 per cent.

The third classification is rural roads, such as those between Peterborough and Lakefield, or Buckhorn, which receive 60 per cent. support from the County, and 40 per cent from the Government.

Shall we take advantage of this measure? Mr. Keyes asked. He pointed out that the County spent over $20,000 last year and 13,517 statute labour days, which at the small estimate of $1.50 per day, provided another $20,000, or a total of $40,000, spent on the roads. Do you get good value for your $40,000, Mr. Keyes asked; and expressed a poor opinion of the statute labour method. With the Highways Act capable road commissioners will be engaged and the roads built with a prospect of permanency.

Mr. Keyes dwelt upon the advantages of good roads to the farmer, to the city people, and to auto owners, who are now becoming more numerous in the country.

Dr. Amys, Mr. G. A. Gillespie, Warden Darling, Reeve Anderson, Reeve McIntosh, Reeve Walsh and others all spoke in favour of good roads and the question will receive future consideration.

FARMERS' BANK SHAREHOLDERS

TORONTO, Jan. 28.—The Farmers Bank shareholders have lost again in their appeal to the Courts. Mr. Justice Lennox to-day sustained the finding of Referee McAndrew and dismissing appeals of certain shareholders who argued that the Bank never was a bank, legally, and therefore they were not shareholders. Mr. Justice Lennox's verdict means that shareholders must contribute their double liability. It is likely however there will be still further appeal to a higher court.

Tie a Tin Can To Trouble "Twin Beds" IS COMING

Voice of The People

To the Editor of the Examiner,—

Sir,—Seeing that these recruiting officers and sergeants are needing so many men, why do they not get after some of the unmarried fellows in the factories, etc., in this town? The army pay and distinction of officers and men is too much. How is it that doctors' sons and lawyers can go and buy commissions and get major's and captain's pay, and another man who is fit for these jobs can only get in as a private, because it is all red tape. They will be a long time filling up the 93rd at this rate. Yours,

INTERESTED.

To the Editor of the Examiner,—

Sir: In reply to the poor, simple-minded female who wrote through your columns regarding Adjt. McElhaney allow me to say that it is ignorance that causes her to speak in such manner.

In the first place I am not a Salvationist nor do I expect to be one, but I believe in fair play, and when I see an injustice done to a man whom every man in khaki respects, I feel like telling our cheap flag waving patriotic friend, who perhaps has a son who ought to be in uniform, that she ought to be put away where her pro-German attitude could be attended to; for she evidently is trying to hurt recruiting. I am a father of three children and am wearing the only style of men's attire (khaki) and am willing to do my little bit, and the Adjutant also if possible, if it will keep him going at his present vocation, helping recruiting.

This city should be proud to own him as a citizen, and I venture to say without the slightest fear of contradiction that if he had been appointed recruiting officer for the Battalion, we would not have to be begging for recruits, as we are at the present time, for men to fill the ranks of the 93rd. Dear lady, anything that you or anyone else may say concerning Mr. McElhaney does not lower him in the estimation of the men who have seen their duty, and are trying to do their bit by wearing the king's uniform, and die if necessary for the honor of their country, wives, mothers and children. I place Mcelhaney like you along with the shirkers of this city.

FAREWELL MARRIAGE

To the Editor of the Examiner,—

Dear Sir,—If you can spare me a little space of your valuable paper I would like to reply to "Patriotic Mother's" letter. I did not intend to start a discussion and would like it to be clearly understood that I was casting no reflections on the volunteers. They have done, and are still doing well in all parts of the Dominion in answering the call for men. But that does not excuse those who are still hanging back. Those who have been rejected have my sympathy, but I suggest that they try again, as I see a recruit just added to the strength of the 93rd who has been rejected three times and at last has passed. I would like to remind "Patriotic Father" that I was speaking of Peterborough B. A. bandsmen, not adherents. I know of the bandsmen of the 57th, but they were not recruited by Adjt. McElhaney but went entirely on their own account, and are not recognized by the adjutant as B. A. bandsmen when they are home on leave. But apart from that, personally know of quite a number still in the band who are neither working on munitions or been rejected. I also know of a few wives who object to their men enlisting. I know from experience that it is hard to let them go, but it is very necessary, and we are proud of our boys who have taken their stand and are doing their duty. I hope that Patriotic Father is not one of the three rejected as medically unfit, for he shows a real fighting spirit, and I am sure would be a help to our 93rd Battalion. Yours truly,

PATRIOTIC WOMAN.

To the Editor of The Examiner:

Dear Sir,—Personal liberty, I take it, is largely what so many thousands of Canadians are fighting for in the trenches, yet here in Canada—in Peterborough in fact—we find this very principle being trampled upon, and an effort being made to snatch a catch verdict. This is being operated by some slackers who ought to have been among the first to offer themselves in defence of the Empire. I refer to the movement now going on for prohibition, the committee in Peterborough being headed by Ald. Wm. Langford, an officer for years in the militia, who never lost an opportunity of decking himself out in uniform and parading at all dress affairs, but where is he now? Going around with a petition for the abolition of personal liberty while his former comrades are fighting for it in the muddy trenches. Oh, no, William is not going to have the polish taken off his shoes or his delicate hands soiled. If there was any excuse for this it would be different, but he has no dependents, is physically fit so far as known, yet never a move on his part to "do his bit." Does the whole thing not look too ridiculous for anything? Does it not smack of supreme impertinence for this man to be soliciting intelligent citizens to sign any such petition? Citizens who are asked to sign would be well advised if they not only refused, but told this man and his agents what they think of such as he. Just read what that able and conscientious man, Bishop Fallon, of London, has to say, in part, in a statement issued by him:

"I am opposed to the principle of prohibition in regard to the manufacture and sale of intoxicating liquors. I regard the present agitation in Ontario as a dangerous invitation to the State to meddlesomely interefere with the rights of the citizen and as an equally dangerous attempt to regulate all human conduct by statute. We are threatened with a multiplication of the functions of the state that will grievously narrow the circle of individual rights."

His Lordship adds that the very principle for the vindication and safe-guarding of which the British Empire is now engaged in, its conflict with Germany, is "precisely the principle which, in my opinion, is menaced by the present attempt to force the enactment of prohibition legislation."

As we see here in Peterborough and I have no doubt the same state of affairs exists elsewhere, it is the extremists who are operating this movement, for did not a majority of the temperance people of this city pronounce against a local option campaign during war times. Not being satisfied at that time, the extremists get into another scheme and we have the present petition. These people—or some of them—ought to be better employed just now.

It remains for the people here to pronounce upon such actions in such a manner as to keep Wm. Langford, ad others like him, quiet for a time at least.

Yours,

CITIZEN.

Says Best Moving Picture Shown in Peterboro'

Dr. F. L. Robinson called at the Examiner Office to-day and stated that he desired the public to know that he was showing to-day and to-morrow "The Eternal City," featuring Pauline Frederick and he believes it to be the best moving picture that has appeared in the City. First performance starts at 7 o'clock sharp, and you will be greatly pleased if you attend the Empire Theatre to-night and to-morrow.

BAD FLOOD IN CALIFORNIA

Special to The Examiner:

LOS ANGELES, Cal., (by wireless) —With cities and towns marooned hundreds of families homeless, orange trees up-rooted by gale, and property damage estimated at over a million dollars, southern California was virtually prostrated to-day by a second flood in two weeks. A Committee Appointed To Investigate Superannuation Fund

County Council Adopt Report of the Standing Committee on Schools —School Inspectors Requested to Spend Part of Their Time in Their Respective Offices.

The following report of the Standing Committee on Schools was adopted at to-day's session of the County Council:

1. That the following councillors be a committee to investigate the Superannuation Fund re school teachers and inspectors, with power to oppose the bill: Messrs. Wardell, Squire, Anderson, McIntosh, Fitzgerald, Fennel, Brown, and Coben.

2. That all communications in connection with the above matter be handed over to the above committee.

3. That the inspector's report be received and adopted, referring the clause relating to Superannuation Fund to the Special Committee.

4. Moved by Mr. Fitzgerald, seconded by Mr. Crough, that the county pay 25 per cent more towards continuation classes grants than the amount granted by the Provincial Government.

Moved in amendment, by Messrs. Eason and Bullied, that the matter remain as it is now.

The amendment, on being put to the committee, carried.

5. That the sum of $10 be granted to the county pupil receiving the highest number of marks at the entrance examinations, 1916.

6. That Mr. Lees be paid the sum of $400 to cover all expenses, printing and postage, in connection with the inspectorate and examination work.

7. That Mr. Broderick be paid the sum of $145 to cover all expenses, printing and postage, in connection with the inspectorate and examination work.

8. That Mr. Lees be requested to be at his office in the Court House on Saturdays from 1 to 3 p.m.

9. That Mr. Broderick be requested to be at the School Inspector's Office in the Court House at least the first Saturday in each month.

IN ITS ORIGINAL FORM, WILL BE HELD ON

THURSDAY, FEB'Y 3rd, 1916

And judging by the enthusiasm of the Merchants, promises to far surpass all previous events of the kind in the City. The Stores have all had a good season's business, and propose to show their appreciation of the patronage they receive from the home district by giving the BIGGEST DOLLAR VALUES they have ever attempted, with the triple object of giving their customers in some of the bargains that will be offered something for practically nothing, clearing out odd lines and balances of winter goods and making Dollar Day a memorable one and the biggest event of the year in the district. In addition to the splendid Dollar Values, the merchants are giving away

$175.00 CASH PRIZES

This money will be given away in this way:—With every dollar purchase on that day, an estimating blank will be given to the purchaser. You will fill in your name and address, and a number representing your estimate on the following question.

Estimate the Number of these Blanks that will be Filled In and Dropped Into the Ballot Box at "The Examiner Office" by 10:15 p.m. on Dollar Day

The nearest correct estimate will be awarded the First Prize of $25; the Second $20; the Third $15, and so on

56 CASH PRIZES

Nearest correct estimate,	1st Prize $25.00
Next nearest correct estimate,	2nd Prize $20.00
Next nearest correct estimate,	3rd Prize $15.00
Next nearest correct estimate,	4th Prize $10.00
Next nearest correct estimate,	5th Prize $10.00
Next nearest correct estimate,	6th Prize $5.00
Next nearest correct estimate,	7th Prize $5.00
Next nearest correct estimate,	8th Prize $5.00
Next nearest correct estimate,	9th Prize $5.00
Next nearest correct estimate,	10th Prize $5.00
Next nearest correct estimate,	11th Prize $5.00
Next 5 nearest CORRECT ESTIMATE	5 Prizes, each $3.00
Next 10 nearest CORRECT ESTIMATE	10 Prizes, each $2.00
Next 30 nearest CORRECT ESTIMATE	30 Prizes, each $1.00

For your guidance in estimating, we might say that The Examiner is Printing and Distributing to the Merchants, for use on Dollar Day, 36,000 Blanks, and it is only necessary to estimate what number each purchaser thinks will be used on the great day. Should any store run short of blanks, The Examiner will print more, so that the number printed might reach as high as 50,000. The number of estimates put in the first Dollar Day Campaign was in the neighbourhood of 16,000. With this information, an estimate can be made before coming to town. Of course as many estimates can be made as the purchaser has blanks, and they will get one with every Dollar purchase they make.

☞ Make up your mind what and where you want to buy and come to PETERBORO' on THURSDAY, FEBRUARY 3rd, expecting the greatest economy shopping event of your lives.

SOLDIERS AND ELECTRICS WILL CLASH TO-NIGHT

Change in Weather Has Made a Good Sheet of Ice Possible and the Battle of the Season Will Be the Result—Both Teams Are Confident of Victory

The change to colder weather has provided a good sheet of ice for to-night's clash between the 93rd Battalion and the Electric Intermediates and fans can look forward to the game of the season. The 93rd Band and Rooters' Club will be on hand, and it promises to be a red-hot session. The soldier team will be strengthened by the addition of a new defence player in the person of Lieut. Sexton of Halifax, while Pte. Windsor, who played such a good game on Monday night, will be on the line-up. The Electrics will have the best of their junior team in line and state that to-night's team is the best balanced that has represented them in an O.H.A. game this season. The teams have agreed on Lou Marsh as referee, and he will ring the bell sharp at 8. 30. The teams will line up as follows:

93rd		Electrics
	Goal
Widdifield		Legros
	Defence
Sexton		Spratt
Dupuy		F. Montgomery
	Rover
R. Montgamery		Evans
	Centre
Windsor		W. Hamilton
	Right Wing
Blewett		McMartin
	Left Wing
Ketchum		Rose

All other Electric players are requested to be at the rink early to-night.

RETURNED SOLDIERS WILL GET THE PREFERENCE

Mr. A. E. Coulthard and His Honour Judge Huycke. Their slate of officers were adopted as follows:

Chairman— Alderman A. H. Stratton.

Vice-Chairman—Mr. E. F. Mason.

Secretary-Treasurer—Mr. F. D. Dobbin.

Finance Committee— Mr. G. Logie, convenor Alderman Edgar, Mr. R. G. Kingan, Mr. Harry Phelan and Mr. J. W. McDermid.

Employment Committee—Mr. Edgar Worth, convenor, Mr. W. C. Switzer, Mr. Jas. H. Hamilton, Mr. Chas. Hammacott and Alderman Galbraith.

The Association will have an office in the City Hall now occupied by Alderman Dobbin.

All in Favour of the Movement.

Mayor Duffus presided, and during the evening short addresses promising support for the movement in whatever way possible were made by Rev. B. D. Peever, Mr. Matthews, Mr. J. A. Aylmer, Judge Huycke, Mr. F. D. Kerr, Mr. Edgar Worth, Mr. R. B. Rogers, Reeve W. A. Anderson of Otonabee, Mr. Eastwood, Mr. E. F. Mason, Mr. E. A. Peck, Mr. Geo. Gladman, Mr. C. Hammacott and Miss Lillian Pearse, who spoke on behalf of the ladies present.

Speaking as an employer, Mr. Matthews said he would place soldiers back at their work even if it were necessary to discharge those who should have gone. "That is our attitude and, I believe, the correct one."

Mr. Worth said he had recently engaged ten men and would have been pleased to give the preference to returned soldiers, but none were available.

Mr. Gladman expressed his complete sympathy with the association's aims.

Mayor Duffus voiced the city's attitude. The Council had already appointed a Soldiers' Aid committee to receive men who return and to care for them in the first instances. The Council had signified its intention of placing returned soldiers in preferance to others.

Mr. Hammacott, representing organized labour, stated that the various unions would do their part. He was not prepared to state in what way, for the question had still to be discussed by them.

Mr. Laidlaw's Address.

In Mr. Laidlaw's address there was not a great deal of information which was not already known, but his presence and appeal bore the sanction of the Soldiers' Aid Commission for Ontario, and hence indirectly with the provincial government. He told of the attention that is given to returning soldiers from the time they leave English hospitals until they reach their homes or convalescent hospitals now established in Toronto, Ottawa, Hamilton an dKingston. In the Toronto hospital for convalescent soldiers there is the best of apparatus, and the city's first doctors are giving their services voluntarily. The Commission's records show that eighteen soldiers have already returned to Peterborough, and Mr. Laidlaw pointed out that the local Association will be required to begin its work right away. Each soldier is a problem in himself. Some will be unable to return to their former work, but by vocational training may be helped to other employment, and thereby become self supporting with their pension and wages. The object is to afford them every opportunity of re-establishing themselves.

Mr. Laidlaw cited the case of a railway employee who had returned from the front. He had been a conductor or a brakesman, but had lost an arm and was unable to take up his former work. The Commission is providing him with a course in telegraphy and his railroad experience should be a decided asset to him as a future telegraph operator.

However, the scope of the Association is very wide, and it is now proposed to elicit the support and sympathy of all branches of labour from manufacturer to farmer and to prepare the way for the demands that must be met.

A constitution outlined by the Commission was adopted last night was read by Mr. S. R. Armstrong, and Mr. E. A. Peck's keen perception caught the words "who return during the period of war." The words were finally struck out of the local association's constitution. Mr. Laidlaw intimated that this point had been only recently brought out in Ottawa, and there was every expectation that the limiting phrase would be removed in the near future. Certainly, he said, it was the intention of the Commission to provide for wounded soldiers, and also all those who return when the war is over. Ten years from now, he observed, the soldiers will be this country's leading citizens.

BOWLING.

The DeLaval team took two out of three games from the C.G.E. in their regular scheduled game last evening.

At times it takes courage and firm resolution to tell the simple truth.

Insecure Property.

There were 222 doors and windows of shops, offices, etc., found open by the police while on night duty during the year 1915.

The proprietors were either notified when their premises were found open, or made secure by the police after being satisfied that no burglars were inside, or that they had not been tampered with or forced open.

Dog Licenses.

The following are the number of dog licenses taken out and the amount collected by the police during the year 1915:

Number of licenses taken out—554
Amount collected for licenses ... $646.00

Lodgers.

During the year there were 96 persons who were in search of work received lodging in the cells, and those deemed deserving persons were supplied with breakfast.

Outages of Street Lights.

During the year the police reported daily to the inspector of lights (Fire Chief Howard) all defective lights that came under their observation, which are given as follows:

Number of lights out all night	658
Number of lights that went out at intervals during the night	1092
Total	1750

Telephone Calls.

During the year there were 4,405 calls responded to by the police.

Fires.

Visits to Residences Temporarily Unoccupied.

During the year the police visited twice every night, 42 dwelling-houses that were temporarily unoccupied, and while under our care I am pleased to report, none were broken into.

Lost Children.

During the year, as usual, a large number of children who had strayed from their homes were taken care of by the police until their parents could be located and notified.

In addition to our local work, there were a few arrests made for other police departments, as also for the military authorities, which are shown as follow:

John Lasure—Horse stealing at Tara.
Harold Varley—Theft of automobile at Toronto.
Private Wright—Army deserter at Kingston.
Private Raymond—Army deserter at Kingston.
Private Gant — Army deserter at Kingston.
Private Gummer—Army deserter at Kingston.
Private Rouselle—Army deserter at Kingston.
Private Scully — Army deserter at Kingston.
Private Baxter—Army deserter at Halifax.
Private Lindsay—Army deserter at Ottawa.

Recommendations for 1916.

Chief Thompson makes the following recommendations in connection with his report:

I again suggest to your Honourable Board the advisability of establishing a Pension Fund for the Police Department.

I consider this an opportune time for such a question. As you are aware, the Department at present consists of practically all young men, and it would be many years before there would be any withdrawal from the fund. It would also affect the members of the Department in this way: After having a number of years' service, they would not be so inclined to resign, as they wound undoubtedly first consider their future pension. I would therefore urge you to consider this matter seriously, as it is a recognized fact that pensions are adopted in all well-governed forces, and has proved to be a great factor in keeping them up to a high standard of efficiency.

Another matter which I wish to bring before your Honours is with reference to the "Dan Spence" ambulance waggon, which is the property of the city. It is customary in other cities to have such conveyances handled by the Police Department, and I would suggest that the matter be taken up with the City Council with the view to having the waggon converted into a motor vehicle, to be equipped for ambulance and patrol purposes, and to be operated by the Police Department.

A garage could be built adjoining the rear of the Police Station at very little cost, and the waggon would be ever ready, night or day, to accommodate the public, and when called for ambulance purposes it would always be accompanied by members of the Department who could administer First Aid to the injured.

I would also recommend that First Aid appliances be purchased and kept in the Police Station to be used in cosese of emergency.

Remarks.

I desire to express my highest appreciation for the able and efficient manner in which our Police Matron, Mrs. McElhiney, has performed her duties.

There have been 33 female cases dealt with in Court this year, which necessitated their appearance in the majority of cases twice before being disposed of, and our Police Matron was always by their side. She has also dealt with a great number of juvenile and family matters without publicity, the majority of which have proved satisfactory. She has been ever willing, day or night, to do her part in blotting out any immorality that has come under her notice, and her kindly disposition and Christian character has been triumphant.

I also wish to thank Adjutant McElhiney, who has been ever ready to assist the Department, and has often made provision for the poor where it would have been difficult for the Department to handle.

I desire to express my thanks to Fire Chief Howard and his staff for their willingness to assist the police, both Departments being perfect harmony.

I also desire to thank the Press of the city for their assistance, which at times has proved valuable in making inquiries.

I regret that Mr. George Cochrane, agent for the Children's Aid Society, who has so efficiently conducted his duties during the past years, has been incapacitated for some time, and I trust his full recovery is near at hand.

I also wish to express my thanks to Mr. E. L. Goodwill, solicitor for said society, for the manner in which he has devoted his time and ability to the poor and neglected children of the city, and his valuable assistance in connection with the Juvenile Court.

I am pleased to say that the general health and conduct of the Department has been good.

The Chief Constables' Association of Canada is scheduled to meet in convention for 1916 at Kenora, Ont., and I trust, gentlemen, you will make it convenient for me to attend, accompanied with the necessary appropriation.

I again take the opportunity of thanking the citizens of Peterborough for their kind assistance to the Police Department at all times during the year.

In conclusion, I sincerely thank your Honourable Board personally for the courtesy I have received, and for your efforts in endeavouring to keep the Department up to a high standard of efficiency.

D. Thompson,
Chief Constable.

TOWN WAS EVACUATED

Guns from San Giovanni di Medua Were Sent to Brindisi.

PARIS, Jan. 28—The Matin's Rome correspondent says that the town of San Giovanni di Medua was evacuated ten days ago, in anticipation of attack by the Austrians, and that all the guns were sent to Brindisi.

The Serbian soldiers have gone to Durazzo according to the correspondent, and it will be difficult for the Austrians to advance from Medua to Durazzo, as the journey involves seven hours' march over roads which are now knee deep in mud.

WORK OF THE I.C.S.

The I.C.S. is doing more than making skilled brain workers to direct industries. Its representatives are working everywhere, inducing men to give up idleness and spend spare time in study. It takes the careless off the street and out of the saloon. By preventing waste of money on drink and useless pleasures, the I.C.S. puts clothes on the back and food in the mouths of wives and children. It inspires to self-denial, concentration, and self-reliance, and makes forceful men, who do things.

SOCIAL AND PERSONAL

Mr. and Mrs. A. W. Creasman have left for an extended trip to Florida.

Mrs. Harmin Nichol was a recent visitor to Norwood, the guest of Mr. and Mrs. Richard Nichol.

Mrs. M. S. Doupe left yesterday for Winnipeg, where she was called owing to the serious illness of her daughter.

The many friends of little Buster Manners will be pleased to hear he came through his operation very successfully at 583 Chamberlen Street.

Mr. H. Newton, London Street, received the sad intelligence of the death in Toronto of his mother, the late Mrs. John Newton. Mr. Newton has gone to Toronto, where he will attend the funeral to-morrow.

Her friends will be glad to learn that Mrs. Mann, wife of Pte. Harry Mann, of the 99rd Battalion, who has been ill in Nichols Hospital for the past three weeks, has so far recovered as to be able to return to her home.

Mr. H. P. Kennedy, Toronto, is in the city to-day. Mr. Kennedy is vice-president of the Edmonton Shell Co., of Edmonton, which made their first shipment of shells this week, and will ship a carload every other week. The company also has their own plant for the manufacture of boxes.

Miss Lottie L. Tillotson, of the Hawaiin Islands, who is giving one of her celebrated entertainments in St. Andrew's Lecture Hall on Friday evening is to be a guest at St. Andrew's Manse. "At the close of the entertainment given by Lottie L. Tillotson at the Congregational Church, the Pastor rose to his feet and said: 'Mr Chairman, that was the best lecture I ever heard. I move that this splendid audience vote its thanks to the gifted speaker.' The audience responded heartily."—Quebec Telegram (Quebec, Canada.)

Series of Receptions

A series of receptions in aid of the work undertaken by the Ladies' Aid Society of Murray St. Church are being held. To-night such an evening takes place at the home of Dr. Scott, corner of Hunter and Stewart streets, with Mrs. Scott and Mrs. Robert Scott as hostesses. All who care to call whether Murry St. people or otherwise (both ladies and gentlemen), will be welcome, and will be at liberty to leave at their convenience or remain for the evening. Music, etc., will be provided, and refreshments served. An opportunity will be given for the making of an offering which will be received by the young ladies of Mrs. Scott's Sunday School Class.

County Gets a 5 1-2 Per Cent. Overdraft Rate

M. W. H. Dunsford, of the Bank of Commerce, appeared before the County Council this morning and discussed the question of finances for the new year.

On motion of Messrs. Coben and Squire, the Warden and Treasurer were authorized to sign the necessary agreements with the Bank of Commerce in order to borrow money by way of overdraft for current purposes at the rate of 5½ per cent. per annum for 1916.

WEDDING BELLS

ARGUE—KENNEDY.

A very quiet wedding was solemnized at Highland Farm, the home of Mrs. Hamilton Kennedy, on Saturday, Jan. 22, when her daughter, Olive, was united in marriage to Mr. Hallard C. Argue, the Rev. W. H. Higgs officiating. The bride who was given away by her brother, Mr. Hugh Kennedy and was dressed in a simple gown of white and carried a large bouquet of carnations and ferns, her only ornament being a pendant set with pearls, the gift of the groom.

Miss K. Best, of Minneapolis, played Lohengrin's wedding march.

After the ceremony a buffet luncheon was served after which the young couple left for their home, "Roseneath Farm" Cavan. They will not be at home to their friends until after the first of March.

HANBIDGE—ARGUE.

On Tuesday, January 18th, a pretty but quiet wedding took place at "Roseneath Farm," Cavan, the home of Mrs. C. Argue, when their daughter, Gertrude Emma, was united in marriage to Mr. J. Wasson Hanbidge of Peterborough. The bride, who was given away by her brother, Mr. H. C. Argue, entered the drawing room to the wedding march played by Miss Eleanor McBean of Millbrook, and wore a dress of white silk crepe de chene, carrying a boquet of pink and white carnations.

After dejeuner the happy couple left on a trip to Ottawa, the bride travelling in a suit of grey broadcloth trimmed with seal, and hat to match. After their return, Mr. and Mrs. Hanbidge will reside at 709 Aylmer Street, Peterborough, and will be at home to their friends after the first of March.

OBITUARY

GEORGE FAIR.

George Fair died at Blaine, Mich., on Thursday, Jan. 20th, aged 86 years. He was married three times. He resided in Millbrook several years ago, and was proprietor of the Milbrook Foundry at the station. Mr. Dawson Fair, of Toronto, is his son by his second wife. His last wife, nee Miss Windrim, and several children survive him. He is the last of his generation.

MR. ROBT. BOYS.

Mr. Robert Boys, an old resident of Peterborough, passed away in Toronto on Monday, Jan. the 24th, from heart disease, at the age of 64. The late Mr. Boys lived in Peterborough many years and was well known here, having been employed with the George Matthews Co. for a number of years, and was also well known in Port Hope and Orillia. His death will come as a great shock to his many friends. He is survived by a widow, four daughters and one son.

The funeral took place from the family residence, 104 Wheeler avenue, Toronto, to Norway Cemetery, on Wednesday, Jan. 26th.

THE LATE MISS KENNEDY.

The subject of this brief sketch was born in the Township of Cavan, 71 years ago, and resided here all her life. Her death on Wednesday, Jan. 12th, was learned with deepest regret by her host of friends. Deceased lady is the last of a family of thirteen. She was a member of St. John's Church. Ida, a faithful Christian, and a most excellent neighbour, highly respected by all. She resided with and kept house for her nephew, Mr. James Kennedy, for several years. Her nieces, Miss Elva Elliott, of Winnipeg, Man., and Miss Annie Kennedy, of Burk's Falls, were with her during her illness and death. Her brother George died in Manvers on March 11th last, and her brother Laughlin died at Allandale on Dec. 31st last, the three passing away within twelve months. Messrs. James and Archie, of Cavan, are nephews. The funeral on the 14th inst. to St. John's cemetery, was largely attended. Rev. Canon Allen conducted the services at the house and grave.

EYE TALKS SERIES

No. 9—THE TIME TEST

Some eyes stand the test of "Time" exceedingly well, while others soon require help. The way to defeat the ravages of "Time" is to be before him in preparedness. At least let Fowler test the eyes and tell you their condition. They may be good for years, and in that case you will get an honest opinion about them, and you will be at no expense if none is required. Many people go on using their eyes, when they need glasses, and that only makes things worse due to the strain. Also sometimes eyes trouble when the system is the cause, and Mr. Fowler would simply advise you to see your doctor.

Fowler's business has stood the test of "Time". It pays to have his guarantee of satisfaction.

FROST A FOE OF ITALIANS.

NEW YORK, Jan. 29. — Harry J. Personeni, an importer of 486 West Broadway, who returned yesterday from Italy on the liner America, said that he had been over to Milan to present a three-ton motor truck to the Italian Red Cross. He volunteered to join the organization, but was informed that no foreigners were permitted to serve with the Italian army in any branch.

He said that about 600 wounded soldiers arrived in Milan daily and many of them were suffering from frozen feet and hands through the rigors of the climate on the Alps. The Italian women have opened offices in all the principal cities, where all kinds of skins are brought by the people to be made into garments for soldiers.

An Appeal to Wives

You know the terrible affliction that comes to many homes from the result of a drinking husband or son. You know of the money wasted on "Drink" that is needed in the home to purchase food and clothing. ORRINE has saved thousands of drinking men. It is a home treatment. No sanitarium expense. Can be given secretly. We are in earnest when we ask you to give ORRINE a trial. You have nothing to risk and everything to gain, for your money will be returned if after a trial you fail to get results from ORRINE.

ORRINE is prepared in two forms; No. 1, Inside Treatment; ORRINE No. 2, the voluntary treatment. Costs only $1.00 a box. Ask us for booklet.

Two German Attacks Were Repulsed West of Arras

Munitions Depot Blown Up By the French Artillery--Bulgars Have Stopped All Communication Across the Rumanian Frontier---British Steamer Sunk in Mid Ocean.

PARIS, Jan. 29.—Official statement recorded repulse of two German attacks west of the Arras-Lens road. Mine exploded in the Artois region. Munition depot blown up by the French artillery.

PARIS, Jan. 29.—Bulgars stopped all communication across the Rumanian frontier on January 23, according to a Geneva despatch.

HULL, Eng., Jan. 29.—Captain of the liner Cario reports attack on his vessel near Dover last Sunday by a German aeroplane. No vessels in the vicinity were damaged.

NEW YORK, Jan. 29.—Passengers reaching here from London say submarines are again operating around the British Isles.

BERLIN, Jan. 29.—French aeroplanes shelled Frieburg while the people were celebrating the Kaiser's birthday, doing considerable damage. There were no casualties.

BERLIN, Jan. 29.—French troops with hand grenades attacked the Germans near Neuville and captured one mine crater.

Lusitania Dispute With Germany Assuming Grave Proportions

WASHINGTON, Jan. 29.—With President Wilson to-day on a tour in behalf of his preparedness programme, officials close to the Executive admit that the Lusitania dispute with Germany is again assuring very grave proportions.

The Administration has caused Germany to understand that prompt compliance with this Government's demands for disavowal is necessary to avoid a break in friendly relations of the two countries. Germany is informed that if the next response in the Lusitania negotiations shows continued desire to delay satisfaction, grave consequences may ensue.

That the Administration's patience is taxed over the dilly-dallying of Germany in the conversations of Ambassador Bernstorff and Secretary Lansing has been made known to the Berlin Foreign Office.

THE VALUE OF TRUTH

Truth in business is just as important as truth in every-day life; truth creates confidence, establishes good-will and builds a reliability that will not be wrecked by the storms of competition.

Through three generations people have learned to place reliance on the advertised words of Scott's Emulsion, because they are untarnished, unexaggerated truisms about a household remedy of real and actual worth.

The popularity of Scott's Emulsion is increasing as intelligence advances, because in these days of adulterations it continues to guarantee pure cod liver oil medicinally perfected with glycerine and hypophosphites to build strength, improve the blood and strengthen the lungs. It is free from harmful drugs—a wholesome food-tonic, truthfully advertised.

County Council Cancel Grant To 109th Batt.

Councillors of Victoria County Claim That the Officers Made Unkind Remarks About the Grant

A DAY'S PAY

LINDSAY, Jan. 29.—The granting of money to the 109th Batt. was brought up at yesterday's session of the County Council. Reeve Morrison asked that $3,000 be given the 109th but Reeve Alton considered that the $1600 should be withdrawn as the officers were not satisfied. He read an extract from a Toronto paper, showing that the Government equipped all battalions.

Reeve Babcock was annoyed to think the officers were unkind in their remarks about the grant. He said it was an insult for them to talk as they did about the amount.

Reeve Hawkins—"I admire the soldier, and while the responsibility is great our responsibility is greater, and I do not favour a grant."

Reeve Morrison —"we are not at war, but other countries are suffering, and we should grant freely to the 109th Battalion."

Reeve Lee — "Do they need the money or not?" If they do not I would not give them five cents."

Reeve Peel—"It is to the boys in the trenches we should give, not the battalions at home."

Reeve Tiers said the officers thought the $1,500 looked small and the men would have to be taxed to make up the amount required.

Reeve Mulligan said he would rather give to the 109th than to the Kaiser.

The motion to cut the grant out was carried by a majority of the council, ten voting for it.

"Nothing To Eat" Explains Montenegrin Defeat

Sovereign in Exile Confident Allies Will Protect Him From Calumny—King Nicholas Tells Mr. Poincare of Faith in the Cause

PARIS, Jan. 29.—"My presence and that of my family and my government here," said King Nicholas of Montenegro to a correspondent of the Journal in Lyons, "shows my unbounded confidence that France will protect me from calumny, I do not need to make an apology.

"My grandson, Prince Humbert, Crown Prince of Italy, when I saw him in Rome the other day, asked me why I was sad.

"The child, saddened, then asked, 'You had nothing to eat in your country?'

"Thus my eleven-year-old grandson summed up the causes of our defeat better than the diplomatists and the chancellors have done."

King Nicholas sent to President Poincare Thursday a telegram giving assurance of his devotion to the Entente Allies The President replied with a telegram in which he said the Allies would "continue the war until the oppressed peoples are liberated from the Germanic Powers."

The Matin's Rome correspondent says the town of San Giovanni di Medua was evacuated ten days ago in anticipation of attack by the Austrians and that all the guns were sent to Brindisi. The Serbian soldiers have gone to Durazzo, according to the correspondent, and it will be difficult for the Austrians to advance from Medua to Durazzo, as the journey involves seven hours' march over roads which are now knee deep in mud.

LITTLE FIGHTING IN MONTENEGRO.

ROME, Jan. 29.—Mr. Robert Mayerick, one of the Americans who had been sent, at the request of the Austrian government, to protect the interests of Austrian prisoners of war held by the Serbians, has returned to Rome after a brief trip to Durazzo. He says there has been little fighting in Montenegro and Albania and that the Austrians are not making any useless efforts. He adds that the conditions resulting from a shortage of food are indescribable.

GERMANY STRIVING TO SEPARATE THE ALLIES

Hanotaux, Noted French Publicist, Says Teutons Are Trying to Discredit Italy

BY GABRIEL HANOTAUX,
FORMER FRENCH MINISTER OF FOREIGN AFFAIRS.

PARIS, Jan. 29.—Recent events show clearly that Germany is still playing the insidious game of trying to divide the allies. That is probably her supreme resource.

Details more or less precise are being given out of how the Russian Conservative party is attempting to force a separate peace. The Russian armies, fighting heroically and victoriously, give the best reply to this campaign.

Nevertheless the intrigue goes on. The seed of discord has been strewn between the allies.

A similar campaign is being carried out with the object of creating suspicion toward Italy. Following the capture of Mount Lovcen, the Italians are reproached with not having attempted to help King Victor's father-in-law.

These inimical critics ought to say what Italy really could have done to save Montenegro. The allies owe Italy a lot. She retains five or six hundred thousand Austrian troops on her frontier. Imagine what this army could have done against stricken Russia last year if Italy had not joined us!

Italy is also accused of not declaring war against Germany. I have discussed this point many times with highly placed Italians, who are firmly pro-ally. They all reply:

"The war against Austria is fundamentally popular in Italy, but a fight against Germany would not necessarily be popular, because such a war would not be 'nostra guerra,' but one waged in the interest of other countries.

"The neutralist party in Italy remains very strong, and would strike at the first mistake the Government made. No mistake could be graver than that of making a war on Germany, which might not win popular support.

"We are not inspired by Machiavelian policy. Our signing of the London pact not to conclude a separate peace demonstrates our complete solidarity with the allies."

We should do well to look the truth fairly in the face. We have now had the undignified spectacle of the Greek King and a "high French authority" indulging in a public polemic. But not a word is said about the real truth of that situation.

Only by strong united action at Athens can the allies smash the German intrigues and demonstrate their unity.

The destinies of the Orient will be decided at Athens. The Entente Powers, including Italy, must make their enemies, open and concealed, declare themselves, and then strike a decisive blow. Such a policy alone can ensure victory.

CHINESE REBELS ROUTED.

PEKIN, Jan. 28. — Government troops have inflicted a severe defeat upon the Chinese rebels of Yun Nan province, the war office announced today. The battle took place on the western border of Yun Nan, where the rebels had concentrated large forces.

The Government forces engaged in the conflict numbered 60,000 men. The rebels were completely routed.

Another Engagement.

PEKIN, Jan. 28.— Three thousand Government troops from the Province of Kwang Si have entered Yunnan province and defeated a force of 1,000 revolutionists there.

Health Wrecked Through La Grippe

It Generally Leaves the Patient Debilitated and An Easy Victim to Other Diseases

One of the foremost medical writers says: "It is astonishing the number of people who have been crippled in health for years after an attack of la grippe or influenza." The real danger from this disease, which sweeps over Canada every winter, is during convalescence, when the characteristic symptoms, the fever, the catarrh, the headache and the depression of spirits pass away. Grip leaves behind it weakened vital powers, thin blood, impaired digestion and over-sensitive nerves—a condition that makes the system an easy prey to pneumonia, bronchitis, rheumatism, nervous prostration and even consumption. It is a condition that calls most emphatically for a tonic for the blood. Dr. Williams' Pink Pills are a tonic especially adapted to meet this need as they purify and enrich the blood. They tone up the nerves and give vigor, strength and health to the debilitated system. Mrs. Howard D. Chaffey, Indian Island, N.B., says: "For several winters in succession I was attacked by la grippe which left me weak and badly run down. In each case I used Dr. Williams' Pink Pills with the most beneficial results. Last winter when the trouble was again prevalent I took the precaution of fortifying my system with Dr. Williams' Pink Pills and escaped the trouble, while many of my neighbours were down with it. In fact I enjoyed the best of health all spring and feel sure this medicine will so fortify the system as to prevent the trouble."

These Pills are sold by all medicine dealers or may be had by mail at 50 cents a box or six boxes for $2.50 from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co. Brockville, Ont.

LINDSAY'S FORMER CHIEF OF POLICE HAS PASSED AWAY

J. T. B. Chilton Succumbs to An Attack of Pneumonia---Was well Known in Peterboro and Surrounding District

LINDSAY, Jan. 29.—Word reached Lindsay of the death of Mr. J. T. B. Chilton, formerly Chief of Police in Lindsay, but latterly of Listowel and Brantford, Ont. A week or two ago friends received word that Mr. Chilton was suffering from a severe attack of measles, which was followed by pneumonia.

The late Mr. Chilton and family resided in Lindsay about two years, leaving for Listowel, where he entered the moving picture business. He prospered and deciding to branch out moved to Brantford, where he was proprietor of one of the up-to-date picture theatoriums.

While in Lindsay the late Mr. Chilton was identified with several fraternal societies and was highly respected by a number of friends.

ITCHING PIMPLES ON FACE AND ARMS

Inflamed and Were Sore. Some Nights Could Not Sleep. Cuticura Healed Within a Month.

Shaw Brook, Moncton, N. B.—"Some time ago there were some broke out on my face and arms. They appeared like little pimples and itched intensely and were all red and inflamed-like and were sore. It caused bothing and burning and some nights I could not sleep.

"I took a treatment to no avail. The trouble lasted for nearly a month. So I thought I would try Cuticura Soap and Ointment. Two applications gave me relief. The sores began to dry up and within a month I was cured without a scar left." (Signed) Miss Chas Ashtville, July 8, 1914.

Germans Skin Dead Horses

Nothing Allowed to go to Waste Even in Balkans

LONDON, Jan. 29.—As an instance of German thrift and thoroughness, the Germans remove the hides from dead army horses, says the Mail's Balkan correspondent in describing a trip from Constantinople to Nish, over a road from which the evidences of war, he stated, had been almost entirely removed.

The correspondent found bridges and tunnels which the Serbians had blown up, repaired in substantial manner and with astonishing rapidity. Broken bridges were lying in the water at the side of new ones, and the skinned carcasses of horses along the route were the only signs of the recent fighting.

The writer paid a tribute to the German system of espionage, stating that instead of one man being detailed to shadow a suspect the work is done by three or four. He concludes with the statement that he had been informed on good authority that German uniforms had been stored in immense quantities at Nish for Bulgarian troops in the event of fighting in Greek territory.

KAISER "GIVES" BULGARS BOOTY WON IN SERBIA

"Generous" Donation Makes Great Impression, Says Former Minister.

BERLIN, Jan. 29.—(Via London.)—Emperor William has presented to the Bulgarians all war materials captured by German troops in Serbia, according to an interview with the former Bulgarian Minister to Italy, M. Rizow, printed in The Duesseldorf General Anzeiger.

M. Risow told the interviewer that the booty was "very great," comprising more than 30 cannon, numberless machine guns, tens of thousands of rifles, quantities of ammunition, 17½ baggage and hospital waggons, and sanitary material.

"The booty is worth probably thirty to forty-million marks," the diplomat added, "and this generous gift has made a great impression on us."

THE PEACE MEETING

(BY FELIX CLARE)

It is only on rare occasions that the village of Ribblespool wakes up to the true dignity of its position as the hub of the Universe. But at such times it speaks its mind with no uncertain voice.

He shuddered to think of war and came to the conclusion that as a minister of the Gospel he ought to put a stop to it. He decided to call the people of the village together, to protest against the war, and to demand the immediate cessation of hostilities.

With him, to think was to act. The meeting was held in the schoolroom of Little Bethel.

After he had briefly and pointedly outlined his views, he threw the meeting open.

As was appropriate, Alec Chapman the oldest inhabitant, led off. He thought all war was atrocious. If nations took his advice, they would settle their differences amicably, and not fight over them.

George Panter, a local farmer in a small way, agreed with all the old gentleman had stated. He wished Mr. Asquith would come and manage his farm for a few months; then he would see the terrible inconvenience this war was causing to the hard-working farmers of the country. It was abominable that the Government should have no more thought for the welfare of the farmers, on whom the nation depended for its food!

"This idiotic war is simply ruining the country! Never in my life have I known provisions so terribly dear. The people blame us shopkeepers, and think we are making fortunes at their expense, but it is a fact that we get less profit than ever. What we really want is to get a few shopkeepers into Parliament."

It went without saying that after Martin Goodley had finished his discourse, Charlie Read, the village blacksmith would put in a word. Goodley was Read's landlord, and Read never forgave him for the bright money he was forced to hand over on quarter-days. Moreover, Read was a bit of a Socialist.

"No sane man would dispute what Mr. Goodley had said as to the dearness of things. We all know it to be true. But he has not told you the secret of it all. Wars are not fought by the people—they are got up by the rich classes, for the benefit of the rich folk, and for the sake of the grasping landlords."

He looked fiercely at Martin Goodley.

By this time the feeling of the meeting was growing somewhat bitter, and at a sign from the Pastor, Mrs. Montrose tried to pour oil on the troubled waters.

That lady was the feminine backbone of the village, so to speak. She was in possession of a fair private income, and was famed far and wide for her good works.

"Ah, my dear friends," she said, "I am so pleased to hear you speak as you have done against this awful war. War is such a cruel thing. It makes me shudder to think of it. Do you know, I saw a soldier the other day, and he was carrying a rifle.

"He explained to me that he could fire several shots a minute, and that each shot might go through two or three men and kill them! Just think of it, my friends. And on the end of it there was a sharp, long blade, which he called a bayonet. He explained that, too. He said that if he met a German he would run that long blade right through him! Yes, he actually stood and told me that in cold blood, and I nearly fainted! I beg of you all to give your earnest support to our dear Pastor in his efforts to stop the war."

The cheers that followed this touching appeal were long and hearty.

When they had subsided, the Pastor looked round, half hoping that no one else would spoil the effect by attempting to speak. But he was disappointed.

This woman was something of a mystery. She had lived in the village a long while, her husband being a farm labourer in the district, and everybody knew her as Hannah Smith. Yet she was so quiet and reserved that folks never properly understood her. It was indeed a surprise that she should attempt to speak.

Hannah Smith walked shyly to the front, leading a little girl who had been sitting with her. The child was unknown to the others, having come to stay with Mrs. Smith only a couple of days earlier.

"Of course I agree with you all friends, that this war is a terrible thing and ought to be stopped. I don't know much about how it affects farming and smithing, and all the other things you've been talking about, but I do know something about it, and I want to tell you. I had a sister once, and she married a Belgian, many years ago, and went to live in Belgium. They had a wonderfully pretty little cottage—I spent a fortnight there once—and as time went on they had six children, two boys and four girls. They were poor, but very happy in their little home until this war started. Then, suddenly, the Germans came on them. They took them by surprise, none of them thinking they would be interfered with in their cottage. All the family were brought out into the road, and my sister's husband was shot before the eyes of his wife and children."

"I suppose he was a soldier," said old Alec.

"No more soldier than you are, Daddy Chapman. He had never handled a gun in his life, and half the time he was almost an invalid. But they shot him, and then they outraged my sister and her three young girls—the other girl had managed to hide for the moment. They found her later, but in the meantime the two boys, aged ten and twelve, tried to defend their sisters, and the Germans ran their bayonets through the two lads and killed them."

Mrs. Montrose had fainted, and someone was trying to revive her with water.

"Yes," continued Mrs. Smith. "And when they had worked their will on the poor girls, they ran bayonets through them also, and left them to die on the roadside. The one who had hidden tried to get away, and was chased by a German, who cut out one of her eyes with his bayonet and wounded her in the back, leaving her for dead. But she was helped to escape. This is the child—look where they stabbed at he eye."

She lifted a shield which had lain over the mite's eye, and the villagers gazed and renewed horror.

"That is why I ask you men to do what you can to stop this horrible war."

She did not get any further, for at this moment Charlie Read, the blacksmith, sprang to his feet with a roar.

"By Heavens! If those devils can do things like that, I'm off to-morrow morning! I'll help stop the war, but not till I've wiped out some of those brutes!"

"Read, old chap, that's just my sentiment! I'm too old to go and fight myself, unfortunately, but I tell you what, you can leave your wife and kiddies with the knowledge that they shan't want for anything till you come back, while I've got a shilling."

More cheers, and then Farmer Panter came forward.

"Beg pardon, Pastor. It's quite true what I said about the farm; but I don't reckon that matters much when such things like this are going on. I shall leave my missus and the boys to see to the farm, and I'm going with Charlie Read."

"I'm another!" "I'm coming too!"

All was excitement and eager chatter, and Pastor Jones rose to his feet in dismay.

He was going to call the folks to order and remind them that they had come to oppose the war. But as he opened his mouth he caught sight of the little Belgian girl. And with stunning force there came into his mind the words:—

"A little child shall lead them."

And the only words that came from the good man's lips were the familiar phrases of the Benediction.

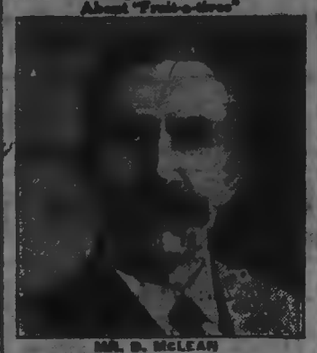
WILL WE EVER WALK ON AIR?

Train Of Thought Inspired By a Letter About "Fruit-a-tives"



MR. D. McLEAN

Orillia, Ont., Nov. 29th, 1914.

"For over two years, I was troubled with Constipation, Drowsiness, Lack of Appetite and Headaches. I tried several medicines, but got no results and my Headaches became more severe. One day I saw your sign which read 'Fruit-a-tives' make you feel like walking on air. This appealed to me, so I decided to try a box. In a very short time, I began to feel better, and now I feel fine. Now I have a good appetite, relish everything I eat, and the Headaches are gone entirely. I cannot say too much for 'Fruit-a-tives', and recommend this pleasant fruit medicine to all my friends".

DAN McLEAN.

"FRUIT-A-TIVES" is daily proving its priceless value in relieving cases of Stomach, Liver and Kidney Trouble—General Weakness, and Skin Diseases.

For Chapped, Blotchy, Red or Wrinkled Skin

Don you realise that just beneath that coarse, rough or discolored complexion, there's an exquisitely beautiful skin of youthful tint and delicacy? If you could only bring this complexion to the surface, discarding the old one? You can—in the easiest, simplest, most natural manner imaginable. Just get an ounce of ordinary mercolized wax at any druggists. Apply nightly like cold cream, removing it mornings with warm water. The wax assists Nature by gradually taking off the lingering particles of dead and half-dead surface skin, causing no discomfort whatever. Cutaneous defects like sheep pimples, blotches, liver spots, moth patches, freckles, of course disappear with the old skin. Nothing else will accomplish such wonderful results in so short a time.

Fine lines and even deeper wrinkles often appear at this season. In such cases nothing is better than a face bath made by dissolving one ounce of powdered saxolite dissolved in ½ pint of witch hazel. This is remarkably effective.

LESS BEER FOR GERMANY.

Horrors of War Will Make Themselves More Apparent.

BERLIN, Jan. 28.—Additional measures aimed at German beer drinkers are in prospect. A Bundesrat order is expected to be issued this week limiting the production of breweries to forty-five per cent. of the quantity produced in peace times. Limitation to sixty per cent. of the peace production has been in force, almost a year, forty per cent. of this amount being reserved for the armies.

WASTED HEROISM

The pathetic thing about the world is not that there is so little heroism, but that there is so much heroism that is useless.

What are the causes of useless sacrifice? What things make all this wasted heroism? Let us see.

First, is fear. If a danger is inevitable we shall meet it all the better if we approach it unafraid. If it is not sure, fear is vain. In any case, fear disturbs the judgment, weakens the moral force and doubles the dangers.

Then comes ignorance. Our first duty is not to follow our convictions, but to have rational convictions. Let us first find out whether the things we believe are facts and not inventions. A little time spent in honest investigation will save us a deal of misery.

Ask yourself. "What is worth while?" Examine all apparent duties by the light of the greater issues of life. Let health and love and to-morrow have their say. There's many a nonsensical duty we take up which we would never have considered if we had looked at it from the larger, higher viewpoint.

Two good questions to ask one's self are: "What's the use?" and "How will this look to me in ten years from now?" Time is the test that is surest.

There are sacrifices that are unavoidable, and the making of them ennobles us. There are plenty of occasions of heroism, many loads that we ought to bear. But enough are called for by intelligence and a well ordered conscience, without manufacturing fictitious struggles.—Dr. Frank Crane, in Woman's World for February.

TO SAVE IRISH BABIES

WASHINGTON, Jan. 27.—At a meeting here to-day in honour of the Earl and Countess of Aberdeen, it was announced by Lady Aberdeen in behalf of Lord Aberdeen and herself that they had begun a campaign to raise $50,000 in the United States to help save Irish babies from starvation and lack of proper medical attention. The war and other causes had made the care of Irish babies imperative if the race was to be perpetuated, said Lady Aberdeen. There was a tremendous infant mortality and a decreasing birth rate. The movement in this country, she said, would be under the auspices of the Women's National Health Association.

A letter from Cardinal Gibbons to Lady Aberdeen indorsing the movement was read at the meeting. Cardinal Gibbons said:

My Dear Lady Aberdeen—I am happy to learn of the great and good work which you have accomplished in Ireland, through Health Association, in combating disease, and therefore promoting the success and happiness of that beloved country. It is especially gratifying to know of the determined and successful efforts that have been made against tuberculosis, the toil of which is in so large measure in every country unnecessary.

I sincerely hope that your efforts to continue this merciful work will meet with a most hearty result of the future will even surpass those of the past.

Praying God to bless this undertaking and all who support it, I am,
Very faithfully yours,
J. CARD GIBBONS. .....

Lord and Lady Aberdeen will leave Washington in a few days to tour Eastern and Southern States in the interest of the movement. They will go as far West as Chicago. It is expected that John D. Crimmins will be Chairman and Treasurer of the New York committee.

DUTCH NOT RE-EXPORTING.

Importer Declares Overseas Trust Scheme is Invulnerable.

S. de Leeuw, Jr., an importer of Amsterdam, Holland, discussing reports that Germany is getting supplies in great quantities through neutral European countries, denied those statements yesterday so far as Holland was concerned. He said it was practically impossible to re-export goods from Holland into Germany.

"About one year ago" he said "the Netherlands Overseas Trust Company was organized at The Hague to handle just such a situation. Before goods can be imported by Holland the Overseas Trust Company has to guarantee that they are intended for Dutch consumption only, and will not be sent to Germany or any nation with Germany.

"Before the Dutch merchant can get goods from neutral countries he must first communicate with the officials of the Netherlands Overseas Trust Company, telling from whom he wishes to import these goods, the quantity desired, the weight, and the value of the articles desired. If the committee of the Overseas Trust Company approves the application of the Holland importer, the importer is notified, and another department of the trust sends him a contract to be filled out by himself and his banker, in which the importer and his banker make an affidavit that the goods to be imported from the United States or other country are for Holland consumption only, and that if any part of the shipment gets into Germany, the importer will have to forfeit an amount several times the actual value of the shipment to the trust, and if he is unable to pay the forfeit his banker agrees to pay for him.

"Furthermore, the importer has to secure the same guarantees from his own customers, and secure a guarantee that the customers will also take the same precaution to keep the goods from reaching Germany or any of Germany's allies. So you can see that dealers and firms of the very highest financial standing, whose integrity is beyond question, are in a position to get import permits from the Netherlands Overseas Trust Company. I am in a position to state that there is not a firm in Holland that could supply Germany if it wanted to."

25 cent bottle destroys dandruff and doubles beauty of your hair

Within ten minutes after an application of Danderine you can not find a single trace of dandruff or falling hair and your scalp will not itch, but what will please you most will be after a few weeks' use, when you see new hair, fine and downy at first—yes—but really new hair—growing all over the scalp.

A little Danderine immediately doubles the beauty of your hair. No difference how dull, faded, brittle and scraggy, just moisten a cloth with Danderine and carefully draw it through your hair, taking one small strand at a time. The effect is amazing—your hair will be light, fluffy and wavy, and have an appearance of abundance; an incomparable lustre, softness and luxuriance.

Get a 25-cent bottle of Knowlton's Danderine from any drug store or toilet counter, and prove that your hair is as pretty and soft as any—that it has been neglected or injured by careless treatment — that's all — you surely can have beautiful hair and lots of it if you will just try a little Danderine.

WIDOW ACCUSES SONS OF $2,000 JEWEL ROBBERY

CHICAGO, Jan. 28.— Mrs. Louise Becker, a widow of 65 West Schiller street, appealed to the police to arrest Adolph Schinker, a son by a former marriage, whom she accuses of having robbed her of $1,000 worth of jewelery. Another son, William Schinker, who is married and lives in the rear of 1816 Wieland street, is being held at the Hudson avenue station as an accessory to the theft.

"My son Adolph is no good," Mrs. Becker told Lieut. Muller. "He never works, and frequents the lodging houses around Clark and Van Buren streets, where he is known as Adolph Schmidt and Otto Becker. He never comes to see me except to obtain money or clothes. He has robbed me of heirlooms and jewelry twice before in the last five years.

Tells of Son's Tricks.

"He came to see me Saturday a week ago." 'Mother,' he said, 'don't you trade over at the butcher's in Sedgwick street any more.' I had been feeling badly for several days and had not been in the store. I suspected from his remarks that he and some other men had been watching to waylay and rob me on the way to the store. 'Why, yes,' I replied, 'I'm going over there to-day.' 'Well,' he said, 'you go to store, and I'll wait here at the house until you come back.' 'No,' I replied, 'if I go to the store, you'll have to come with me.' I was afraid to leave him alone in the house. I showed him my purse to let him know I had only a small amount of money with me.

Put Jewels in Muff.

"I became alarmed and put my diamond rings and earrings worth about $1,000 in a muff and locked it up in a closet upstairs. Last Monday Adolph came back again. On that day an agent from a real estate firm came to look over the property with a view to buying it, and I showed him through the house. He looked into the closet where I had the diamonds, and I forgot to lock the door again.

"I didn't think about the jewelery any more until to-day, when I went to get some of it. All had been taken. Then I remembered Adolph was here on the same day as the real estate agent. At that time too, I recalled having seen William Schinker and another man waiting for him across the street. I'm sure they got my diamonds. I would have had Adolph arrested before, if relatives hadn't begged me not to."

William Schinker denied knowledge of the theft, but was locked up, pending the arrest of his brother, for whom the police are searching.

The Jumper Frock For Spring

Trim of Line and Easily Freshened With Various Guimpes

Ribbon as Trimming For Hat and Gown

NEW YORK, Jan. 29.—It is interesting to follow the trend of fashion each season, to note how surely and completely we come to approve of even the most decided change after it has been presented to us in attractive guise, at different times and on various occasions. It surely does seem, too, upon looking back some few years, that each season's changes are for the better. For instance, the full skirt; how we all poo-pooed it when the whisper first began to circulate that it was to be revived, and that our trim, youthful narrow skirt had had its day. Today, however, the full skirt is one of the approved features of the modes, and is still growing fuller. We smile upon it approvingly now, and what, at its first appearance was looked upon as bulk and clumsiness, is now considered quaint and daintily feminine.

Black Taffeta Jumper Dress

Ribbon as Trimming.

Ribbon is being used profusely as trimming on both hats and frocks. It ranges in width from the inch-wide faille or moire banding, girdling the waist of the sevens little frock of taffeta or serge, or forming the perky cockade on the chic chapeau, to the wide satin, moire, or taffeta ribbon which forms the entire skirt or bodice of the dance frock or dinner dress. In many of the new dinner and evening dresses ribbon bows of all descriptions are used for trimming; there are perky little bows, wide, graceful bows simple bows with flying ends tacked on to bodice and skirt at various angles. Mme. Jenny is particularly given to ribbon trimmings; some of her dainty dresses have their sheer full skirts banded around the bottom with wide metal-edged ribbons, giving them a most effective appearance.

Jumpers Still in Vogue

For late spring and early fall there is nothing quite as satisfactory as the jumper dress of taffeta, serge, or a soft, lightweight wool. Worn with guimpes, or over the regulation shirt-blouse of crepe re chine, crepe Georgette or taffeta it makes an attractive costume for street and general daytime wear, perfectly suitable without coat or other wrap. Such a dress has all the appearance of a one piece frock, with the added attraction of being easily freshened and changed by the addition of a contrasting guimpe or underblouse. One of the most attractive of these jumper dresses is illustrated here, developed in black taffeta, with accompanying underbodice of white crepe Georgette. The high collar, smart sleeve, and flaring skirt present a pleasing picture. The second frock is also in jumper effect; one of the dainty rib bon girdles, with long, flying ends and small cravat bow is a feature. The skirt is unusual and new, and the jumper particularly simple and smart of cut. This idea is nicely suited to either taffeta, or a fine serge. The open throat, which will probably continue in favour, during the summer, is an attractive detail of the underblouse of crepe de Chine.

SIGNS OF KIDNEY TROUBLE.

In the early stages kidney troubles are known by backache and urinary disorders. Later come dropsy, stone, rheumatic pains and perhaps diabetes. But don't wait for these. Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills will help you in a few hours. Their thorough action on the liver, kidneys and bowels will clear away the pains and the aches and make you well again.

CRUDE THOUGHTS FROM THE EDITORIAL PEN

WHAT IS HOME?

Home's not made of palace walls,
Though with pictures hung and gilded;
Home is where affection calls—
Filled with shrines the heart hath builded;
Home to which the faithful dove
Sails beneath the heaven above us.
Home is where there's one to love—
Home is where there's one to love us.

Home's not merely roof and room;
Home needs something to endear it,
Home is where the heart can bloom.
Where there's some kind lip to cheer it!
What is home with none to meet,
None to welcome, none to greet us?
Home is sweet—and only sweet—
Where there's one we love to meet us.

A lady received the following reply from a neighbour in answer to the question why she allowed her children and husband to litter up every room in the house, and the sentiment will find lodgment in the heart of every home-loving person in the land: "The mark of the little muddy feet upon the floor can be easier removed than the stain when those little feet go down into the highways of evil. The prints of the little fingers off the window pane cannot shut out the sunshine half so much as the shadow that darkens the mother's heart over the one who is but a name through the coming years. And if my John finds his home a refuge from care and trouble, and his greatest happiness within its four walls, he can put his boots in the rocking chair and hang his coat up on the floor every day in the week. And if I can stand it and he enjoys it, I cannot see that it is anybody else's business."

TRUE STRENGTH OF MANHOOD

Small boys often conceive the false idea that it is manly to chew tobacco smoke and swear. Older boys and young men are prone to conclude that moral integrity and religious purity are elements of weakness whilst immorality and infidelity are evidences of strength. No greater fallacies ever entered the human mind. Which is stronger, the boy or young man who resists temptation and does right, or the one who yields and does wrong? The one who resists the inclination to indulge in strong drink and lives a sober, useful life, or the one who pandera to appetite and becomes a miserable drunkard? Which is the stronger, the one who honors his Maker by keeping himself pure in thought and word and deed, or he who dishonors God by defiling himself in mind and speech and conduct? Who does not know that it requires strength of purpose, of will-power, of mind to say to the tempter, "begone!" and to resist the devil till he flees away? Who does not know that his evil deeds are the results of his moral cowardice?

The Old Family Doctor.

Under the above heading an exchange says: Never. Not while there is a doctor left in the world who knows the peculiarities of the family ailments from grandpa's rheumatism to baby's teething troubles as intimately as a watchmaker knows his own product. Not as long as there lives a sympathetic old friend of the family whose familiarity with the physical and mental state of each member tells him exactly why the temperature is high, the tongue coated, or the pulse erratic. Not while there can be found an authoritative person who can bully father into staying away from the office or out of the fields for a few days, or who can persuade the youngsters to swallow it after the rest of the family have abandoned effort. Are we to give up the friend of the family who cheers us up and leaves us smiling and confident, and to take in his place the business like man who looks us over with a coldly calculating professional glance and scribbles off a prescription with an order to go to the hospital to take it. Why, the old family doctor is the one lone agreeable phase of sickness. Give him up? Well, we should say not!

The Call of Mother.

You are tired to-night. You expected this morning to have an easy day but you have answered to the call of mother until the sun is set and its departing glory almost makes you long for the beyond. Now there are the children to be put to bed. Your limited circumstances may not permit you to have a nurse, but remember you cannot keep them with you long and your patient service will be richly rewarded. Go lovingly, prayerfully; you know not when the last time may come. Death wounds deeply, even if we have been kind to our friends. Comb the golden tangle carefully smooth the pillow and straighten the little dream-dress and laying your cheek close by your little darling's, listen to "Now I lay me," and then wait patiently for the ruby lips to slowly ask God for some wished for toy. Kiss a fond good night. In short, lock the door of the day gently and leave the child heart-happy. Let some of the shadows that come with riper years slant athwart the youthful threshold of the soul. The weary foot that rocks the cradle may be lulling a future president or governor. Rock on fond mother, sing your lullaby. God has use for the frail humanity that smiles in its infant dreaming. Never let discontent enter your happy home. Keep a cheerful tone and a helpful hand and answer the call of mother.

* * * *

Every unholy passion we conquer becomes a good angel in us, making us stronger and truer. Every outside evil we resist and defeat leaves us safer and abler to fight and conquer in the next battle. Conquered temptations becomes allies and friends.

In all countries and in all ages men earned money and women spent it. The war has changed all that. Now both men and women earn money, men spend it, and women save it. Women, therefore, are the real economists. Economy means to do without something that you want. If you don't want it and don't have it, or if you do want it and do have it, that is not economy. True economy consists in pinching and squeezing yourself for the proletariat of your country.

The mistress of a house should take a sharp look round and see what she can do without. Now it is obvious, if she is not lazy and inefficient and stupid, that she can dispense with (1) servants, (2) food, (3) drink, (4) fuel, (5) laundry, (6) dress, (7) amusements, (8) books, (9) a house.

Any woman who is worth her salt can light her own fires, scrub her own floors, cook her own food, and do her own washing. If you have children, you will find it a delightful relaxation to attend to them in the intervals of work. Spare minutes are the gold dust of time. Wear a large apron when washing dishes so that you may be able to remove the fragments conveniently, and use chamois gloves to keep the kitchen soap from chapping your hands. But if by any means your hands or face should become roughened do not waste money on cosmetics. Keep a few geese in your garden, and kill one occasionally. You will find it cheaper than butchers' meat; you can make soap with the giblets, and goose grease is one of the finest things in the world for hair, hands and face.

See that the butcher cuts the exact weight of your joint without fat and without profanity. Eat less meat, less butter, less bread. Eat less of everything. If you eat practically nothing you will be able to cook it beautifully with a gas ring and a hay box. Your husband will be surprised at the result, so will you.

Sift the ashes. Carefully blow out any matches you use, and keep them in the oven with the cabbage leaves and carrot stems for kindling. You will seldom require a fire in your sitting rooms, as you will always be warm with your work, and you will not wish visitors to stay long. Sprinkle your coal with soapsuds and dish water— the waste oils penetrate the coal and add greatly to its heat and perfume. Wear out your old clothes or anybody else's clothes that you can get cheap. If you can't get good old clothes, make your own.

Do not read anything, or waste money on books, magazines, or papers. Reading is an idle habit. In fact, when you scrub, cook, bake, wash, mend, make your own and the children's clothes, dig in the garden, etc., etc., you will find a long walk more bracing and less expensive than a silly novel. A great deal may be saved by co-operative housekeeping. You may pool your mental, physical and financial resources with those of your mother-in-law in a joint household; or, if you are so unfortunate as not to possess a mother-in-law, you might take in a paying guest. If you have a garden and can rig up a summer-house with a few planks and boards and a sheet of corrugated iron and live there a good part of the year while you let your house furnished to an army officer at a handsome profit.

The two great reasons for our amazing extravagance are — (1) we have been taught to believe that food, clothes, and shelter are really necessary to sustain life, and (2) that a moderate degree of comfort and some recreation contribute to happiness. The woman who keeps an idle dog or boils potatoes into squash is aiding and abetting the enemy, while the woman who fries bread in dripping instead of making toast and butter saves her country more than a law officer of the Crown. Of course a saving wife will naturally expect her husband to live up to her high example. She will cause him to look around and see what he can do without, and if he says he can easily do without a wife like her, then he is a beast and a traitor to his country, seeing that every cigar he smokes and every whiskey and soda he drinks nullifies the efforts of the patriotic and efficient woman who is disgraced by his name.

PARIS IDLE CUT FROM 220,000 TO 79,447

PARIS, Jan. 28.—The number of unemployed of both sexes in Paris which at the beginning of the war amounted to 220,000, has been reduced to 79,447, according to the official figures gathered in the period from November 20 to December 14, 1915. The statistics show that men in general have found work more readily than women.

All the unemployed comprised in the official lists have been entitled to receive a government allowance of 25 cents a day, payment being made fortnightly. Ten cents a day is granted for each child in a family of unemployed.

ADVERSITY AND HOUSEKEEPING.

We knew that all of us, having attained our growth, had to have only sufficient strengthening foods to care for the day's wear and tear, and this is a small amount. We learned that milk, eggs, cereals, peas, beans, lentils, cheese, fish and meat all supplied this needed food stuff. And it is easy to determine which ones of these are the cheapest.

Our experience and common sense would say to all of us that milk, cereals, eggs, fish and meat are more easily digested than peas, beans, lentils or cheese, and old as well as young people should have the more digestible materials. Milk is a better food for the young, and eggs for the old; but both are good.

Cereals may be better food for older people than meat, but they rarely like them as well, because most meat has more flavor. But there is a great difference in price, and not so great a difference in nourishment.

We learned that we had to depend upon our food for all the strength to do our daily work, and that the best foods to produce this working power, this energy, were foods rich in starch and sugar, rich in digestible fat, but best of all those cereals again. On cereals and whole milk and bread and butter, if we would we could live, and probably live long and healthy lives.

Meats and cakes and desserts are all expensive things. They should be used occasionally, but not continually for all the reasons given. Fruits and vegetables should be used just as much as one can. The only thing to be careful about is to buy those in season, and this, of course, varies for different parts of the country. The undue cost of food comes largely from buying for flavor instead of nutrition, foods out of season.

By this I mean that one has to find out for herself what is cheapest for her family. We did not find the cheap cuts of meat always economical for our four people. In fact, after much experimenting, we now always buy porterhouse in preference to other steaks, because it fills the needs of our family much better.

This, it seems to me from watching, is where so many fail. They just buy food, as they buy many other things, to make it do, without any thought or study over the real food or money problem. And too many are ready to sacrifice what they fancy they like to what they really need.

Where men and women are working at very different kinds of labor than we are, much heartier meals would have to be prepared. I do not believe Henry could plough all the morning, or any large part of it, on an orange, two slices of bacon, two rolls, and a cup of coffee. He would have to have a sufficient quantity of cereal and milk, with more rolls and bacon and coffee, or rolls, doughnuts and coffee. And if he began ploughing at six o'clock in the morning, his noon dinner would have to be a very different affair than our small and simple luncheon. He wants, meat, plenty of vegetables, and he probably demands pie.—Woman's World for February.

EXAMINER PATTERN SERVICE

BOY'S DRESS.

By Anabel Worthington.

7345

Clothing little boys is never a very difficult task. Some mothers like to keep their boys babies as long as possible, while others like to make them little men as soon as possible. This idea is at the bottom of the dressing of the little chaps.

For the boy who is to be a baby the dress is always best liked and for this large class the garment shown in the illustration is sure to be acceptable. The dress is of sacque cut, falling in an unbroken length from the neck to the hem. There is a narrow belt made either of the material or of leather which makes a break at the waist line, but thinks only for the eye; there is no seam at this point.

The closing of the dress is placed in the centre of the front and is made in coat style, with buttons plainly visible. The neck is high and is outlined by a small flat collar of contrasting material. If preferred a band finish may be used at the neck and separate collars worn as desired.

The sleeves are full length. They have no fulness at the shoulder, but there is a little where the material is gathered into the band cuff at the wrist. If a shorter sleeve be preferred there is an ornamental turnback cuff to act as a finish.

These frocks are made of the new plaid poplins, of striped materials and of plain color serge and gabardine. For such very little men wash materials are often preferred, even in winter, and linen, linene, gingham and the like are appropriate.

The dress pattern, No. 7345, is cut in sizes one, two and three years. Medium size requires 1¾ yards of 36 inch material, with ⅝ yard of 27 inch contrasting goods to trim.

This pattern can be obtained by sending ... cents to the office of this paper.

When ordering remember to give your name and address as well as the number and size of pattern required, and age of a child.

Price 15 cents, or 2 for 25c.

Help to Make Her Dream Come True

SHE is one of some Three Million Belgians who, since they refused to sell their honor to Germany, have lived on the brink of starvation. A thriving industrial people, used to life's comforts, they have been reduced to a state where they dream, not of luxuries or pleasures, but of having enough to eat!

True to their character as the war has unmasked it, the Germans callously refuse to help the starving. The task of feeding them has been undertaken by Belgium's Allies and Neutral Nations, through the

Absolutely none of the supplies go to Germans, and most of the food taken into the country is paid for by Belgians who have still a little money. But to feed those who cannot pay, nearly $2,500,000 a month is needed!

Surely no people ever deserved our sympathy and aid more than do these starving Belgians! They face a winter of necessity, while we are living in plenty. The Fund needs regular weekly or monthly contributions rather than larger but spasmodic gifts. Let us plan to deny ourselves, if necessary—share with our needy Allies—and help to save their lives.

Send your contributions to Local or Provincial Committees or to the Central Executive Committee, 69 St. Peter Street, Montreal.

WOMEN WHO PREY ON WAR SUFFERERS

The Criminal, be it Male or Female Always Find a Good Opening For Crime—A Few Instances

The war, with its toll of tragedies and its surfeit of suffering, has been used by wily women as a means of trickery. It is deplorable that anyone should practise deceit at the expense of those who are cruelly bereaved. Even the most despicable swindlers would, one would imagine, respect grief, and refrain from fattening like ghouls upon the agonies of the war widow and the stricken mother.

Alas, it is not so! Human nature at its best has shown itself to be superb; the war has also revealed it at its worst. A favorite trick which is being practised with impunity all over England is for the woman swindler to ascertain from the casualty lists and other sources of information the names of soldiers who have fallen in battle.

Comes to Bring a Message

She then makes judicious inquiries in the neighborhood and hears all about some poor woman who has lost a dear one. Armed with this knowledge she proceeds to call. She represents that she was present at his death-bed in the capacity of nurse, and that he begged her to deliver a message for him.

Sometimes she comes with good news—the man for whom they mourn is not really dead after all. But whatever her message, she invariably finds before she leaves that she has lost her purse, or mislaid her railway ticket. In nine cases out of ten the grateful and distressed relative makes good the loss.

Until the street collections were stopped by the police, a good living was made by many unscrupulous women, who collected for all sorts of non-existent societies. The Belgian refugees were especially exploited by these pests.

The Game Got Too Hot

Another trick is to pose as a girl who has just come from the provinces to London to take up a Government position through the shortage of men. Lodgings are taken; a deposit is paid, but the next morning the girl has gone and all portable valuables have disappeared also. One girl who adopted this dubious manner of earning a living obtained an immense haul in all quarters of London before she found the game too hot. She has not been heard of lately.

Love that is only half remembered is only half delight.

The lover who pays in sighs is repaid in hopes.

A man is dead while yet alive if there is no peace at home.

NEGLECTED COLDS VERY OFTEN TURN TO CONSUMPTION.

Never neglect what at first seems to be but a slight cold. Your head becomes stuffed up; you start to cough; an irritation in the throat follows; it gets lower down; settles on the lungs; you start to raise phlegm of a greenish, yellowish color sometimes streaked with blood, and you cough persistently.

You think perhaps you are strong enough to fight off this trouble, but colds are not easily fought off in this northern climate. Colds if not attended to will sooner or later develop into some serious lung trouble.

Mrs. Willis H. Monk, Lower Ship Harbor, N.S., writes: "Last winter I took a severe cold on my lungs, and I would cough and spit up phlegm and blood. I had the cough for nearly a month, and I got medicine from the doctor, but it did me no good. I thought I had consumption. My friends advised me to use Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup, which I did, and it gave me great relief. I am the mother of ten children, and I always keep a bottle of 'Dr. Wood's' in the house. I will highly recommend it to all, especially to all who have little ones to care for."

Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup is the best cure for coughs and colds. It has been on the market for the past twenty-five years. It is put up in a yellow wrapper; three pine trees the trade mark; price, 25c and 50c.

LINCOLN ESCAPED TO BOOST HIS BOOK

Spy Credited With Desire to Gain Publicity for His Revelation

Sends Letter to Secret Service Men Offering Terms—Washington Expects Him to Turn Up.

NEW YORK, Jan. 27.—It was reported last night that Ignatius T. T. Lincoln, the self-confessed German spy, who escaped on Saturday night from a Deputy United States Marshal in Brooklyn, had made his plans carefully to get away at the time when the publicity would best advertise his book of revelations of his work as a spy, which was published yesterday.

Lincoln escaped from Marshal F. J. Johnson while he was dining in a restaurant at Pierrepont and Fulton streets, Brooklyn, and it was suggested that he had outside help in making good his escape.

Lincoln has written to one of Captain Offley's Secret Service men offering to surrender himself if this Government will consider him a political refugee rather than as a prospective inmate of a British forger's cell.

Captain Offley made the announcement yesterday, but at the same time he refused to allow the entire contents of the letter to be printed.

"I think that we will pick up our man in a very few days now," said Captain Offley, speaking about the letter. Captain Offley showed more confidence in the speedy and successful termination of the pursuit than he has exhibited at any other stage of the case.

Lincoln published another letter yesterday in The American, in which he asserted that his escape was a serious matter, and that unless certain requests which he declared he had made to this Government were granted, he would take steps to lay the whole story of his flight before the American people.

The letter made it clear that the writer felt hurt to think that his old guard, Deputy United States Marshal Johnson, was leagued with his pursuers, and said that if Johnson did not at once drop out of the hunt for him he would "consider it as a deliberately unfriendly act and speak out."

Marshal Power in Brooklyn yesterday was entirely confident that Lincoln would be speedily returned to his quarters in the Raymond St., Jail. It became known yesterday that the Marshal and several of his men received a tip on Thursday which led them into New England after Lincoln. What the tip was could not be learned, but the Marshal and his men came back in a few hours alone.

Some of the Government detectives said last night that they believed the fugitive was being harbored by members of "Group B" the secret organization of political exiles, and ex-Nihilists which through its influence and agitation prevented Jan Pouren from being extradicated to Russia for murder.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 27.—Unofficial information came to Washington to-day that the escape of subsequent letter-writing activities of Ignatius Trobich Lincoln, who insists that he is a German spy, are part of his scheme to advertise his book describing what he says he has done in the way of espionage for the German Government. An official of the Department of Justice said he would not be surprised if this information turned out to be true. Lincoln, the Department officials said, was smart enough to get free advertising out of his adversity, but they expressed doubt of information they heard that he would give himself up as soon as the advertisement had been carried far enough to ensure the book's success. Their reason for this doubt, they said, was that the man is charged with forgery and has been held by United States Courts for extradition to England for trial.

Law officers of the Government have admitted that they had no doubt from the evidence laid before them that a case had been made out of which would justify extradition. If he gave himself up, it was said, the probable reason would be that he knew it would be useless to try to get away, and that he realized it was only a matter of time when he would be caught.

VARIOUS USES FOR DRIED VEGETABLES.

In winter we are too prone to use the can opener and neglect the cheap and nutritious dried vegetables. Yet so rich are dried beans and peas in the elements which make muscle that they are often called "the poor man's beef" and analysis of lentils show them to contain three per cent. more flesh and bone-building materials than the beans. A thing to remember about all dried vegetables is that they must be soaked over night in cold water, then drained and cooked gently until tender in water to which a little baking soda has been added. This aids in removing excess sulphur which causes flatulency of which some people complain after eating dried vegetables not properly prepared.

Instead of meat for dinner have once in a while a vegetable roast made as follows: Mash a pound of cooked beans or put them through the meat grinder, add half a pound of cheese, salt, pepper and onion juice to flavor, and enough bread-crumbs to make a stiff roll. Bake in a moderate oven, basting with butter and water, and serve with tomato sauce.

Lentils, parboiled, then baked with a few chopped nuts, or with alternating layers of diced cheese and lentils, are delicious when served with tomato sauce. One morning try dried-pea griddle cakes made by mincing thoroughly two cups of peas mashed through a sieve, a teaspoon of butter, salt and pepper to taste, two well-beaten eggs, a cup of milk and a cup of flour sifted with half a teaspoon of baking powder.—Woman's World for February.

EXAMINER DOLLAR DAY

IN ITS ORIGINAL FORM, WILL BE HELD ON

THURSDAY, FEB'Y 3rd, 1916

And judging by the enthusiasm of the Merchants, promises to far surpass all previous events of the kind in the City. The Stores have all had a good season's business, and propose to show their appreciation of the patronage they receive from the home district by giving the BIGGEST DOLLAR VALUES they have ever attempted, with the triple object of giving their customers in some of the bargains that will be offered something for practically nothing, clearing out odd lines and balances of winter goods and making Dollar Day a memorable one and the biggest event of the year in the district. In addition to the splendid Dollar Values, the merchants are giving away

$175.00 CASH PRIZES

This money will be given away in this way:—With every dollar purchase on that day, an estimating blank will be given to the purchaser. You will fill in your name and address, and a number representing your estimate on the following question.

Estimate the Number of these Blanks that will be Filled In and Dropped Into the Ballot Box at "The Examiner Office" by 10:15 p.m. on Dollar Day

The nearest correct estimate will be awarded the First Prize of $25; the Second $20; the Third $15, and so on

56 CASH PRIZES

Nearest correct estimate, - 1st Prize $25.00
Next nearest correct estimate, 2nd Prize $20.00
Next nearest correct estimate, 3rd Prize $15.00
Next nearest correct estimate, 4th Prize $10.00
Next nearest correct estimate, 5th Prize $10.00
Next nearest correct estimate, 6th Prize $5.00
Next nearest correct estimate, 7th Prize $5.00
Next nearest correct estimate, 8th Prize $5.00
Next nearest correct estimate, 9th Prize $5.00
Next nearest correct estimate, 10th Prize $5.00
Next nearest correct estimate, 11th Prize $5.00
Next 5 nearest CORRECT ESTIMATE 5 Prizes, each $3.00
Next 10 nearest CORRECT ESTIMATE 10 Prizes, each $2.00
Next 30 nearest CORRECT ESTIMATE 30 Prizes, each $1.00

For your guidance in estimating, we might say that The Examiner is Printing and Distributing to the Merchants, for use on Dollar Day, 36,000 Blanks, and it is only necessary to estimate what number each purchaser thinks will be used on the great day. Should any store run short of blanks, The Examiner will print more, so that the number printed might reach as high as 50,000. The number of estimates put in the first Dollar Day Campaign was in the neighbourhood of 16,000. With this information, an estimate can be made before coming to town. Of course as many estimates can be made as the purchaser has blanks, and they will get one with every Dollar purchase they make.

☛ Make up your mind what and where you want to buy and come to PETERBORO' on THURSDAY, FEBRUARY 3rd, expecting the greatest economy shopping event of your lives.

OUR DAILY SHORT STORY

The Three Professors.

[Copyright, 1915, by T. C. McClure.]

It used to take a good deal to surprise a town in the far west such as Cheyenne or Deadwood. One of these towns was surprised at the arrival of Professor Henry Thorn, botanist, Yale college, and ten days later by the coming of another professor, who registered himself at the same hotel as "Professor Charles Witbeck, Criminologist, Harvard College." For an hour or two his name on the register excited some little comment. That was because those who read it didn't know whether his profession related to claim jumping or railroad engineering. The landlord finally explained that a criminologist was a fellow who had had to jump out of Texas for shooting a man and had arrived in Dakota to open a faro game and make a new start in life. That satisfied public curiosity and accounted for the professor strolling around the town day and night. He also took in all the fine points and particulars.

The two professors under one roof fought shy of each other for a couple of days. Professors have their jealousies as well as dime museum freaks, though greater efforts are made to conceal them. At length, however, they introduced themselves and shook hands and began to respect each other. Some professors of botany can't be led to admit that there is anything interesting in anything but their own special hobby. So with professors of criminology. These two professors were different, however. They deferred to each other. They made admissions. They permitted each other to talk without interruption.

The botanist held up a half withered violet that he had culled on the prairie and delivered an interesting lecture on its roots and stem and petals, and the criminologist described the head and face of the criminal with such clearness that had there been an audience present none could have failed to secure a mental photograph. The points he made were, first, a slanting forehead; second, a head that ran downhill on the back side; third, the narrow space between the eyes; fourth, a bulging over the eyebrows, and, fifth, a cruel expression about the mouth. In addition to particularizing these points, he was good enough to say that Professor Thorn didn't betray a single one of the characteristics. On the contrary, an infant had only to take one look at him to know that he was as gentle and innocent as a woman.

Professor Thorn couldn't do less than return the compliment. He returned it by saying that all flowers represented human characters. For instance, the Canadian thistle represented a chuckle headed man, the burdock a man full of envy and jealousy, the pigweed a weakminded person, the hollyhock a conceited ass, and so on. What typified the character of Professor Witbeck was the lily. That stood for purity of soul and thought. A man that represented the lily was always subscribing to orphan asylums and buying up old horses to turn out to pasture for the rest of their lives. Just what the professors said of each other when alone is a private matter. The first occasion they had to distrust each other was when they met at night in the vicinity of a clothing store. One of them had been examining the fastenings of a rear window and the other the fastening of a door. Professor Witbeck observed that he thought the study of botany required daylight, and Professor Thorn replied that he failed to see how the study of criminology could be pursued without the aid of a lantern. There was a second meeting on a second night, and from thence on the relations between the two great institutions of learning seemed to be strained.

It was not to last long, however. One night after the botanist had spent a whole hour to effect an entrance to a store by way of a skylight and photographer's parlors it was to come upon the criminologist, who had got in by a door and was just preparing to bore the safe. By the aid of two dark lanterns and the English language some very sarcastic remarks were passed as to hypocrisy and false pretenses, and then they sensibly agreed to divide the labor and the boodle. They were working with this aim and object in view when a third party crept out from his hiding place and interfered. He began by handling his gun in a reckless manner and introducing himself as Professor Twister of Columbia college. He had been dispatched to the great plains of the west to gather specimens of the bygone days when alligators thirty feet long and elephants twenty-four feet high used to paddle up and down the river and gambol o'er the meadows green. He had finally found a couple of choice specimens, and he bade them come with him. They didn't want to, but they had to. It was a late hour, but the enterprising and patriotic citizens were ready to turn out and build a big bonfire and throw ropes over the limbs of trees. There wasn't much to be said. There was no particular novelty in it for the crowd, and the two men standing on the heads of barrels seemed to figure that they had better save their wind for the uphill journey. No one remembered much about it next day, but now and then to this day some stranger reads the double epitaph on the headboard and is a bit curious:

"Sacred to the memory of the two professors who tried to play it low down on another professor and this town. Don't no galoot steal this 'ere board."

WITHIN AN ACE

Miraculous Escapes From Death Occur in Teuton Armies

Professor Dr. L. Hofer, chief surgeon of one of the Austrian army corps, reports a number of remarkable escapes of officers and soldiers struck by bullet or fragments of shells. Major-General Foltz, while directing battle on the eastern front was stunned by a violent blow against his chest. The General dropped to the ground for a moment and when he regained his senses he found that a rifle ball had smashed the iron cross on his breast. His life was saved by the iron cross and a large silver coin which he carried in his breast pocket. Baron Medalsky, a captain of one of the Austrian reserve cavalry regiments, was saved by a large roll of banknotes. He did not even know that he had been hit until, several hours after the battle, he found a flattened bullet embedded in his torn roll of money. While Lieutenant Traeger of the Ninety-ninth Austrian Infantry Regiment was observing one of the Russian positions in Galicia a bullet tore his eyeglasses from his hands and his eyeglasses from his nose, but he was not hurt. Joseph Sworoneck, a corporal of the same regiment, was struck by fourteen bullets from a Russian machine gun, but in the hospital the surgeons found that one of his wounds was dangerous. He recovered completely in less than three weeks. On the Isonzo front, Franz Hagerer, a Tyrolean soldier, was shot in the chest and within four weeks returned to the firing line. That he escaped alive he owes to the lucky fact that the muscles of his heart were in a state of contraction when the bullet struck him. A fraction of a second later, at the expansion of the heart, he would have been killed instantly.

Industries After the War.

Arrangements are being devised in the metallurgical industries for the utilization in industry after the war of the factories and mechanical equipment which have been erected in England for the purpose of producing munitions. It is recognized that this material will form an admirable nucleus for the evolution of new peace industries, and will go far to enable British capital to cope with the competition of central Europe. A host of articles in the electrical and mechanical trades, hitherto furnished by large German factories, will in future be produced in England.

India has 523 languages and dialects, and a population of over 300,000,000, which is almost three times greater than that of the Roman Empire when at the height of its power.

Canadian Thinks Wounded Holiday

"It's a holiday to be wounded," a young Canadian officer remarked in England. The reason for this remark was that he was staying at the beautiful house which King George has handed to the Canadian Red Cross for use as a convalescent home. This home, when complete, will hold five hundred beds.

Young Heirs to Wealth

The nine-year-old son of Capt. Charles Monck, who was slain in the great war, has become heir to his grandfather, Viscount Monck. Lord Congleton, is succeeded by his brother, the Hon. John P. Parnell, an army lieutenant.

HOW YOU MAY THROW AWAY YOUR GLASSES

The statement is made that thousands wear eyeglasses who do not really need them. If you are one of these unfortunates, then these glasses may be ruining your eyes instead of helping them. Thousands who wear them "wirelessly" may prove for themselves that they can dispense with glasses if they will get the following prescription filled at once, go to the Warne Drug Company, or to any active drug store and get a bottle of Bon-Opto tablets; fill a two-ounce bottle with warm water and drop in one Bon-Opto tablet. With this harmless liquid solution bathe the eyes two to four times daily, and you are likely to be astonished at the results right from the start. Many who have been told that they have astigmatism, eye-strain, cataract, sore eyelids, weak eyes, conjunctivitis and other eye disorders, report wonderful benefits from the use of this prescription. Get this prescription filled and use it; you may so strengthen your eyes that glasses will not be necessary. Thousands who are blind or nearly so, or who wear glasses, might never have required them if they had cared for their eyes in time. Save your eyes before it is too late. Do not become one of these victims of neglect. Eyeglasses are only like crutches, and every few years they must be changed to fit the ever-increasing weakened condition, so better use if you can, like many others, get clear, healthy strong magnetic eyes through the prescription here given. The Talmage Drug Co., of Toronto, will fill the above prescription by mail, if your druggist cannot.

GETS HIS RURAL MAIL BY PULLEY TO DOORWAY

WHITESVILLE, Mo., Jan. 27.—C. R. Thompson, farmer has organized a new method of having his mail brought directly to his door. Some time ago Thompson decided it was a waste of time and shoe leather to make the daily trip from the house to his mail box down on the road, so he set his mind and hands to work on a device to make the trip unnecessary.

Now by means of wires and a pulley, the trick is accomplished, and it's fine in deep snow weather. After the carrier's visit Thompson has only to step to his door and draw in his mail box and all in the same manner the box is sent to its post by the roadside.

SULTAN ONLY A FINANCIAL BURDEN NOW

PARIS, Jan. 26.—News received in Paris this afternoon that the heir apparent of Turkey is seeking to bring about a seperate peace in conjunction with high Turkish officials directly inspired by the Kaiser's secret agents has created a real sensation. The best informed Paris circles give entire credence to the sensational report from the Athens correspondent of the Paris Tempts and find fullest confirmation in the following significant circumstances:

First—The abandonment of the Turkish expedition to Suez, which they say cannot occur this year because the railroad for the transportation of troops cannot be built before the hot weather.

Third—The admission by Secretary of the Treasury Helfferich in the Reichstag that Germany's financial situation is precarious;

Fourth—The quartering of 50,000 Germans in Constantinople to check the imminent revolution.

Turkey a Dead Weight.

The closest students of events here point out that Turkey has long been a dead weight on the Kaiser's hands. The bankrupt Ottoman empire is only able to uphold its end of the war as long as Germany contributes the money for troops and munitions.

French critics now point out Germany cannot contribute Turkey any longer, proof of which is contained in the inability of the the Turks to proceed against Suez and Salonika without Germany's help which Helfferich's speech indicated would not be forthcoming.

Furthermore the best informed Frenchmen say the Central Empires are increasingly alarmed at the growing menace of the Russians on the Galician front. They cannot afford to squander the slightest resource of men, money or arms on Turkey in the face of a Galician crisis.

Kaiser Would Drop Burden.

Hence in view of the widespread disaffection of the Turkish proletariat and the lack of the slightest immediate reciprocal advantage to be derived from co-operation with the Sultan, the Kaiser has decided to make a wild stab at ridding his shoulders of what has always been an embarrassing burden.

He hopes to be able to push Turkey to conclude peace with the Allies on a basis of status quo and the most absolute guarantee of the neutrality of the Dardanelles. Paris opinion adds that it is extremely improbable that the Allies will fall for the Kaiser's scheme.

The Milan Gazette Popolo prints a Constantinople message which says the old Turks and the young Turks are holding secret meetings with the object of forcing separate peace.

ZURICH, Jan. 26.—La Suisse states that three Turkish diplomats are now engaged in Switzerland in preparing a scheme for Turkish peace proposals.

WILL BE AN OUTSIDER.

Rosika Schwimmer Not to be Member of Peace Council.

LONDON, Jan. 28.—Telegraphing from Stockholm, the Post correspondent says: "Mme. Rosika Schwimmer, who is a Hungarian, will attend the Food Peace Conference merely as a consulting expert from a belligerent country, and will be excluded from taking part in the actual working out of peace conditions."

ITALIANS FIRST TO FLEE

From Mount Lovcen — Details of Montenegro's Surrender.

BERLIN, Jan. 28.—The Overseas News Agency reports that the Austro-Hungarian forces advancing on Mount Lovcen encountered among its defenders 800 Italians, who were the first to flee. The first Austrians to enter Cettinje on January 18 were greeted by a centenarian, the hero of many fights against the Turks in former years.

"On the same day two Montenegrin officers with a flag of truce and bearing a letter written personally by King Nicholas, arrived in Cettinje. The letter asked Emperor Francis Joseph for graceful conditions for the unhappy country.

"On Jan. 16 three delegates appointed by the Montenegrin government, arrived, bringing with them a written declaration signed by all the ministers and stating that the unconditional surrender of the army had been accepted."

TAKE "CASCARETS" IF HEADACHY, BILIOUS AND CONSTIPATED

Get a 10-cent box.

Sick headaches, biliousness, coated tongue, head and nose clogged up with a cold—always trace this to torpid liver; delayed, fermenting food in the bowels or sour, gassy stomach.

Poisonous matter clogged in the intestines, instead of being cast out of the system is re-absorbed into the blood. When this poison reaches the delicate brain tissue it causes congestion and that dull, throbbing, sickening headache.

Cascarets immediately cleanse the stomach, remove the sour, undigested food and foul gases, take the excess bile from the liver and carry out all the constipated waste matter and poisons in the bowels.

A Cascaret to-night will surely straighten you out by morning. They work while you sleep—a 10-cent box from your druggist means your head clear, stomach sweet, breath right, complexion rosy and your liver and bowels regular for months.

COUNTY JAIL WITHOUT AN INMATE TWO YEARS

WARRENTO, Mo., Jan. 27.—A report of the Grand Jury of Warren County to Circuit Judge Barnett shows the county has not been compelled to pay for board for a single jail prisoner in the last twenty-four months, and that for more than a year there has been no occasion for a petit jury in the Circuit Court.

The report states special attention was given to the drawing up the Grand Jury, and "it was found that the saloons of Warren County are under the control of keepers who try to conduct their business in as careful and orderly manner as could be reasonably expected in that vocation. Attention is called, however, to various irregularities and the saloon keepers are cautioned to conduct their business in an even more careful manner than they have in the past."

Warren County has twelve saloons.

Norway's Riches On The Increase

Stock Speculation by School Children Marks War Year.

CHRISTIANA, Norway, Jan. 29.—Although there is scarcely any industry, trade, or business in Norway that has escaped the influence of the war, the year-end surveys of economic conditions have generally shown the country as a whole to be richer than it was a year ago, at least from the viewpoint of the capitalist.

The closing of the usual markets on which Norway has been dependent for such necessities as coal and grain—doubling the price of flour and fuel, during the coldest winter the peninsula has experienced in seventy years—has caused no little suffering among the poorer people, but outside this class it appears that more money is in circulation than usual.

It has been difficult for the farmers to get sufficient quantities of fodder and fertilizer, but prices on farm products have been higher than they ever were before.

General trade has had many obstacles in its way, but notwithstanding this new industrial enterprises are constantly being founded, with plenty of capital at their command. An incidental feature of this new capitalization is the fact that there has been much speculation on the part of young people. Even office boys and school children have been speculating in stock, eager to get rich quick. A common practice has been for people without means to subscribe to stock in the new companies, and then, after a few days or weeks, when the stock is rising, even before any capital has been paid in, to sell at a profit.

The Government is forming a measure that will require the stockholder to pay a certain amount in cash before he can advertise it stock, and that will forbid any transaction in stocks on which nothing has been paid down.

The Norwegian shipping trade has flourished as never before. The high freight rates, which show no signs of reduction, and the scarcity of foreign tonnage, have made the Norwegian ship-owner a rich man. And this notwithstanding that the loss to shipping as a direct result of the war has been heavy. In all fifty-four Norwegian steamers and twenty-eight sailing vessels, altogether representing $13,000,000, have been blown up with the loss of seventy-one sailors. New ships have been added at a faster rate than ever before, and still the yards are unable to keep up, with the demand.

A number of ships have been ordered at American yards, and some of them sold several times over before ready to be launched.

The fishing industry has had a good catch, with prices doubled. Such a product as raw cod liver oil sold at $5 a barrel a year ago. It is now sold at more than $50 a barrel. Fishing in the North Sea has practically been abandoned because of the war, and is in that way protected. Experts declare that fishing there after the war will be extremely profitable.

NO PUBLIC MEETINGS FOR FORD PILGRIMS

Stockholm Will Not Permit Demonstrations by Peace Party.

STOCKHOLM, Jan. 28.—Another telegram was received here to-day saying that William J. Bryan is to join the Ford peace delegation. The newspapers of Stockholm say that the arrival of Mr. Bryan will add considerably to the authority of the delegates, of whom only Dr. Charles F Aked is now here, although Mrs. Jos. Fels of Philadelphia is expected Of the alternate delegates only John D. Barry of San Francisco and Louis P. Lochner, secretary of the delegation, have arrived. Mr. Lochner said that Dean Kirchway, Miss Emily Black, the Rev. Jenkins Lloyd Jones, and Judge Ben Lindsey are expected to reach Stockholm soon.

The peace delegation will open an office in the Grand Hotel, with the expectation of forming the delegations from the other neutral countries. No public meetings will be permitted here.

SOFIA TO BE GERMANIZED.

PARIS, Jan. 29.—A despatch to the Times from Saloniki says a German Municipal Commission has arrived at Sofia to consult with the authorities in the Bulgarian capital with regard to the measures to be taken for organising the municipality on German lines.

The Bulgarian Government, the correspondent adds, at the request of Germany, will present a bill in Parliament, making the teaching of German obligatory in all the Bulgarian schools.

GET WISE IN TIME

WHY not get wise in time? Why wait till it is too late? People all over the country, north, south, east and west, are getting wise to the ruinous results of out-of-town buying. THINKING people are NOW refusing to patronize out-of-town houses. Are we going to wait until we are knocked down and run over before we "get wise"? Let us spend our money in building up something that is OURS. Patronage of home business means the building up of a strong industrial community of our O W N. Neglect of home business interests means the building up of a machine that will one day crush us without mercy. Let us build for ourselves and for our friends and neighbors. Let us get wise before it is TOO LATE.

ACIDS IN STOMACH SOUR THE FOOD AND CAUSE INDIGESTION

"Pape's Diapepsin" Fixes Sour, Gassy, Upset Stomachs in Five Minutes

If what you just ate is souring on your stomach or lies like a lump of lead, refusing to digest, or you belch gas and eructate sour, undigested food or have a feeling of dizziness, heartburn, fullness, nausea bad taste in mouth and stomach headache, you can surely get relief in five minutes.

Ask your pharmacist to show you the formula, plainly printed on these fifty-cent cases of Pape's Diapepsin, then you will understand why dyspeptic troubles of all kinds must go, and why it relieves sour, out-of-order stomachs or indigestion in five minutes. "Pape's Diapepsin" is harmless; tastes like candy, though each dose will digest and prepare for assimilation into the blood all the food you eat; besides, it makes you go to the table with a healty appetite; but what will please you most, is that you will feel that your stomach and intestines are clean and fresh, and you will not need to resort to laxatives or liver pills for biliousness or constipation.

This city will have many "Pape's Diapepsin" cranks, as some people will call them, but you will be enthusiastic about this splendid stomach preparation, too, if you ever take it for indigestion, gasses, heartburn dyspepsia, or any stomach misery.

Get some now, this minute, and rid yourself of stomach misery and indigestion in five minutes.

COUPLE ARRESTED IN CHICAGO MURDER CASE

CHICAGO, Jan. 28.— Frank Pace and a woman said to be his wife are in custody in connection with the robbery of the Cook Tourist agency and the murder of P. A. Johnson, a policeman, last Friday.

At the rooming house where the two were arrested the police found three wigs, one of them answering the description of the colors of the hair of the woman accomplice in the murder and robbery. A hat similar to that worn by the woman also was found.

At the police station the woman said that she and Pace were married in Canada last September and that they since had been at Pace's home in Kansas, coming from there the day before the Johnson murder.

TAKE SALTS TO FLUSH KIDNEYS

Eat Less Meat if You Feel Backachy or Have Bladder Trouble

Meat forms uric acid which excites and overworks the kidneys in their efforts to filter it from the system. Regular eaters of meat must flush the kidneys occasionally. You must relieve them like you relieve your bowels, removing all the acids, waste and poison, else you feel a dull misery in the kidney region, sharp pains in the back or sick headache, dizziness, your stomach sours, tongue is coated, and when the weather is bad you have rheumatic twinges. The urine is cloudy, full of sediment; the channels often get irritated, obliging you to get up two or three times during the night.

To neutralize these irritating acids and flush off the body's urinous waste, get about four ounces of Jad Salts from any pharmacy; take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days and your kidneys will then act fine and bladder disorders disappear. This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for generations to clean and stimulate sluggish kidneys and stop bladder irritation. Jad Salts is inexpensive; harmless, and makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water drink, which millions of men and women take now and then, thus avoiding serious kidney and bladder diseases.

Butcher Held Despite Statement of Himself and Friends He Was Driving only a Legal Speed.

CHICAGO, Jan. 28.—Seven year old Anna Adcock of 1340 West Forty-ninth place was killed at Ashland avenue and Forty-ninth street by an automobile driven by Theodore Wohlgemuth, a butcher who, with a party of friends, was returning from a christening on the west side.

In the machine with Wohlgemuth, were Joseph Sweitz of 2422 Forty-seventh place, Edward J. Pnaielkie of 4625 South Ashland avenue, and Stephen Mielcarek of 1021 Division street. All told the police the accident was unavoidable.

"I was driving at a speed only about ten or fifteen miles an hour when the girl darted directly in front of my car," said Wohlgemuth. 'I didn't have time to apply the brakes or turn to one side.

Wohlgemuth was taken into custody, however, and is being held pending the outcome of a coroner's inquest this morning. The girl suffered a [illegible] of the skull and died a few minutes after the accident.

NEW BRITISH SHELL DEATH TO U-BOATS

Makes it Possible to Determine the Exact Depth of its Explosion—Our Navy to Use it.

When the list of new ships to be built for the United States Navy was published recently, it is probable that a great many people were very much surprised to see that besides a number of submarines, there was a relatively large proportion of battleships.

"Surely," they said, "if there is one thing the war has shown, it is that battleships are useless against submarines. Why, they don't even dare to leave harbor unless they are guarded by a flotilla of destroyers."

And yet there are some very clever men in the Navy Department, who have not decided to build those battleships without a good deal of reason.

Moreover the wonderful submarine blockade that was to starve England to submission in three months seems to have been a considerable failure. The English are not starved by any means, in fact, they are carrying on a nice little blockade of their own in the Baltic, while the terrible new German submarines lie rotting in the North Sea ooze. And the reason for their failure is the reason why America—like some other nations—continues to build battleships.

That reason, according to information which has now reached this country is the British submarine shell.

When the submarine problem began to press for solution the British tried a number of devices. They planned nets in like sorts, as poachers do in the run of a hare; they disguised patrol boats as peaceful fishing craft; they sent out a boat of light power boats with wicked little cannon in the bows to scout over every yard of the seas and follow the submarines like mosquitos. But the problem remained unsolved.

Submarines were caught of course—a good many of them—but that didn't mend the fact that Britain's great fleet hardly dared to sail the open seas, and the British couldn't forget that in the big fight in the North Sea their battle cruisers had been forced to turn and run from their burning and almost defenseless enemy by the mere glimpse of two or three tiny periscopes "feathering" across the surface.

What was needed was some effective way for the battleship to defend herself, to strike at her enemy directly without having to depend on destroyers or reduce her speed and manoeuvring capacity to an appalling extent by the use of cumbrous underwater structures to resist torpedoes.

Shells Ricocheted on the Water.

After all the real work of the dreadnought is to destroy the enemy's big ships. To do this she must free herself from the menace of the submarine. The trouble was that when a submarine was submerged it was impossible to hit it. It could steal along twelve feet below the surface, watching the battleships through its periscope, and unless the battleship was lucky enough to shoot away the periscope she hadn't one chance in a hundred of escaping the torpedo. Those twelve feet of water were like an elastic cushion off which the big shells, fired at a flat trajectory, bounced—ricocheted is the technical work—like so many tennis balls. As for hitting the periscope, one couldn't even see it save at short range, and short range meant the risk of a torpedo with its thousand pounds of guncotton.

So the British set themselves to find a shell that would not bounce.

Right at the beginning of their experiments they made one pleasing discovery. A shell exploding under water has several times the effect of a shell exploding in the air. Thus forty pounds of lyddite exploded at a depth of twelve feet would smash like an eggshell the sides of a submarine a hundred feet away, or would rip off the propellers and rudder of a battleship. At fifty feet even the battleship hull would be very badly damaged.

They next found that if they made the nose of the shell of a certain shape instead of ricocheting along the water it would dive when it touched the surface, even though fired with a flat trajectory. It it was aimed at a submarine it would plunge right at it the moment it struck the water.

But another difficulty still remained. Instead of exploding by concussion on striking its target, or by a time fuse set to act a given time after leaving the gun, it was necessary to have a shell that would explode at a certain depth below the surface so as to deal with the submarine most effectively. One could not hope to make a bullseye with under-water shooting, but one did not need to do so. Four hundred pounds of guncotton would smash any submarine within 1,000 feet; all that was wanted was the explosion at approximately the right depth, quite irrespective of time or concussion.

At this point the memory of one of the experimenters came to his aid. He recollected that years ago a somewhat primitive automobile he then owned had suffered from the stoppage of its gasoline feed pipes, and he had found that while liquid will not run freely along a small tube under atmospheric pressure if a thin wire be placed in the tube capillary attraction will draw the liquid along the wire quite as freely as it is needed. Not only did he cure his automobile with this device, but he patented it and sold the patent to a firm of aeroplane builders.

'TOO MUCH FAIR' CAUSE OF STUDENTS' FAILURE

BERKLEY, Cal., Jan. 27.—Over-indulgence in the joys of the Panama-Pacific Exposition was given as the reason for the unusual number of students refused admission to the University of California on the ground of defective scholarship.

Out of a registration of 6,977, 194 students have been notified that their scholastic standing during the exposition year fell below the minimum requirements, and that they would be excluded from college for six months.

MOTHER! GIVE CHILD "SYRUP OF FIGS" IF TONGUE IS COATED

A child simply will not stop playing to empty the bowels, and the result is, they become tightly clogged with waste, liver gets sluggish, stomach sours, then your little one becomes cross, half-sick, feverish, don't eat, sleep or act naturally, breath is bad, system full of cold, has sore throat, stomach-ache or diarrhoea. Listen, Mother, See if tongue is coated, then give a teaspoonful of "California Syrup of Figs," and in a few hours all the constipated waste, sour bile and undigested food passes out of the system, and you have a well, playful child again.

Millions of mothers give "California Syrup of Figs," because it is perfectly harmless; children love it, and it never fails to act on the stomach, liver and bowels.

Ask your druggist for a 50-cent bottle of "California Syrup of Figs," which has full directions for babies, children of all ages and for grown-ups plainly printed on the bottle. Beware of counterfeits sold here. Get the genuine, made by "California Fig Syrup Company." Refuse any other kind with contempt.

FIERCE FIGHTING IS RESUMED ALONG THE WESTERN FRONT

German Official Statement Claims the Capture of 1000 Yards of French Trenches and 1000 Prisoners--French Reports State That Every German Assault Was Repulsed--Action Took Place on a Wide Front

HEAVY FIGHTING AT SEVERAL POINTS

PARIS, Jan. 29.—After a several hours' violent bombardment, the Germans yesterday launced a new offensive against the French positions south of the River Somme, the War Office reported this afternoon.

They charged the French trenches on a front several miles wide, extending from the bend of the Somme to Frise and southwards.

Every attack was repulsed, the official statement asserted.

Meanwhile there was no lull is the heavy fighting north of Arras, particularly on the sector from Neuville to Givenchy. The French last night by Evely counter-attack recaptured a portion of the trench positions taken by the Germans west of Hill No. 140.

In the region of Villesfecht our heavy artillery set fire to a German ammunition depot, said the official statement. Numerous explosions resulted.

LONDON, Jan. 29.—German official statements to-day claim the capture of a thousand yards of French trenches near Somme, with one thousand French prisoners and thirteen machine guns.

LONDON, Eng., Jan. 29.—German statements this afternoon claiming the capture of a total of 2,700 yards of trenches, 1,200 prisoners, and twenty-four machine guns were received here with incredulity in view of the later statements from Paris intimating the French troops had repulsed all principal attacks. It is pointed out here that the Germans make no claim of capturing field guns, which indicates that they were unable to penetrate beyond the advanced trenches of the Allies. Further details are anxiously awaited.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 29.—The situation between the United States and Germany over the sinking of the Lusitania is graver to-day than at any time since the negotiations with Germany began. This statement was made unreservedly to-day by a Washington official in a position to know every phase of the matter. While Secretary Lansing to-day denied positively that anything that could be called an ultimatum has been sent Germany, or that a definite date had been given Germany in which to announce her disavowal of the liner's sinking, it became known that events of the past week have served to bring the nations close to a breaking point.

LONDON, Jan. 29.—The small sailing vessel Crystal has been sunk, it was announced to-day.

HULL, Eng., Jan. 29.—By a zig-zagging flight across the North Sea, the Wilson liner Carlos escaped damage from bombs dropped by a German aviator, who pursued the steamer for several hours, her officers reported on their arrival here.

The aeroplane dropped six bombs during the chase Wednesday, but all fell into the sea.

ABOARD LINER ROTTERDAM, via Wireless to Sinsconnset, Mass., Jan. 29.—The Ford peace delegates, returning from the job of bringing the boys out of the trenches, are approaching New York to-day, tired but still in good voice.

The Rotterdam's captain discouraged the holding of peace meetings en route to New York, fearing some of his belligerent passengers might make war on the pacifists.

Ford's business agent, Crisp, estimates that expenses thus far total $600,000. Of this amount $100,000 comes under the head "miscellaneous."

PARIS, Jan. 29.—Fear that the Allies are about to launch another great offensive to capture Lens and break the German lines, has inspired the furious German attacks in the Artois region, according to prisoners taken by the French near Lafolde.

When the British began a heavy bombardment of German positions early this week, the Bavarians prepared to meet a sudden blow against the lines, the prisoners said.

Heavy German artillery was ordered into action.

The Bavarians then launched counter-attacks to improve their positions before the expected movement of the Allies began.

BERLIN, via Amsterdam, Jan. 29.—Col. E. M. House to-day met Under Foreign Secretary Zimmerman and several leading Berlin financiers, having previously met Chancellor Von Bethmann Hollweg and Foreign Secretary Von Jagow.

PITTSBURG, Pa., Jan. 29.—Warning the people of the United States that new circumstances have arisen for which the country must prepare itself, President Wilson to-day asked all to tend to business and prepare not for war, not for aggression, but for national defense. Thrust aside your personal ambitions and act for the welfare of the country, he said, in the first of his speeches on his Middle Western tour in the interest of preparedness. We are in the midst of a world we cannot alter, and therefore as your responsible servant I met tell that dangers are grave and constant.

We are even dependent now to warring nations ser movement of our commerce, he said, and where there is contact there is likely to be friction. Nations engaged as many now are they are likely to become stubbornly steadfast in their proposals and convictions. The President's words stirred an audience of more than 4,000 people which had crammed into Memorial Hall.

LONDON, Jan. 29.—A special cable from Odessa says that 170 Turkish ships have been sunk by the Russians in the Black Sea since the beginning of a new blockade of Turkish ports.

LONDON, Jan. 29.—The search of the steamer Stockholm, bound from New York for Scandinavian ports, revealed the presence of 142 tons of mail not accounted for in her manifest, it was announced to-day. It was said that the meat item had been deleted from the manifest after the Consul had sealed her hatches.

The meat will be confiscated by the British authorities.

OBITUARY

EDWIN ANDREWS.

The death occurred last night at midnight of Mr. Edwin Andrews at his late residence, Erskine Avenue, North Monaghan, at the age of 73 years. He was born in England but had lived in North Monaghan for many years. His wife predeceased him 26 years ago. Four daughters Mrs. Redding, Hamilton, Mrs. Beaslip, Peterborough, Mrs. Talbot, Peterborough, and Mrs. Wood, California, and one son, Mr. Fred Andrews, this city, are left to mourn his loss.

The funeral will take place on Monday at 2 o'clock from the above residence to the Little Lake Cemetery.

WEDDING BELLS

CUNNINGHAM—McMAHON.

On Wednesday, January 26th, the marriage took place of Miss Edna McMahon, daughter of Mr. Arthur McMahon, Millbrook, to Mr. George Cunningham. The wedding, which took place at the home of Mr. J. Reynolds, 500 Chamberlain Street, was attended by the immediate relatives and friends of the contracting parties.

Mr. and Mrs. Cunningham will reside on Frank Street, this city.

THE ORIGINAL DOLLAR DAY AGAIN THIS YEAR

Great Inducements and Special Events by the Merchants to Make the Day Attractive

You will remember Dollar Day of 1913, when the great big, good-natured crowd of enthusiastic shoppers filled the city. Well, this year, following the original plan, with greater attractions than ever, it is expected that Dollar, (Thursday next), will eclipse anything in the shape of a shopping day ever attempted in this city. To add to the interest, there has been so far announced the Merchants' cash prizes of $175.00; The Examiner cash prizes of $35.00; an Eight-Day Clock, by Oak Hall, a $59.00 set of dishes by the Turnbull Co., all to be given away FREE to those who will exercise a little thought in the contests.

$59 FRENCH LIMOGES DINNER SET TO BE GIVEN AWAY AT TURNBULLS

What should prove a great attraction for Dollar Day is a very beautiful French Limoges Dinner Set which the Turnbull Co. have decided to give away on that day. This is one of their regular stock patterns, and no doubt has been longingly admired by many lovers of beautiful china before this. We understand anyone purchasing goods on "Dollar Day" from them has an equal chance of getting it. No doubt their advertisement, which appears next week announcing how this can be secured, will be read with much interest.

A Good Job For You

Times are always good for the man with something worth selling. There's plenty of work for the specially trained, and plenty of money to pay them big salaries. If you are out of a job or worrying lest you may be, what is the reason? If promotions have been as scarce as snowballs in the summer time, what is the answer? It is that you have no special training; none of the knowledge that would make you safe with responsibility. There's plenty of prosperity ahead. Learn to give a satisfactory answer to the unavoidable "What can you do?" It is up to you to "know how". Local Office, 160 Charlotte Street. International Correspondence School.

Lecture Was Very Enjoyable

The address by Miss Lottie L. Tillotson, of the Hawaiin Island, before the Mission Band of St. Andrew's Church last evening was a delightful success. Miss Tillotson, who has circumnavigated the globe, is full of resources. She not only has something to say, but knows how to say it, and has a most pleasing delivery. Miss Tillotson was dressed in the garb of some of the native women she described, and her address was most instructive. Those who failed to hear her missed a treat.

Peterborough Leaders Of The 59th Band

BANDMASTER W. PERYER

SERGT. GEO. CHAMBERS

In their admiration of the splendid band of the 93rd Battalion, Peterborough people are inclined sometimes to lose sight of the fact that Peterborogh has supplied the greater part of the Band of the 59th Battalion. Here are photographs of Bandmaster W. Peryer, formerly of the Salvation Army Band, and Sergt. Geo. Chambers, for many years a member of the 57th Regiment Band. These two Peterborogh men guide the destinies of the Band of the 59th.

MAYOR CHURCH OF TORONTO WILL ADDRESS MEETING

Toronto's Chief Magistrate to Address Recruiting Gathering in the Armouries at 8.30 O'clock To-Morrow Night---106 Men Added to the Strength of the 93rd in Past Two Weeks---To-Day's Military News

The public generally will be interested in knowing that the services of Mayor T. L. Church of Toronto have been secured for the big recruiting rally to be held in the Armouries at 8.30 o'clock to-morrow evening. Mayor "Tommy" Church is a well-known figure in public life, and is a vigorous speaker who will be well worth hearing. The band of the 93rd Band will supply music, and Capt. Chas. Ackerman will act as Chairman. There will undoubtedly be a huge crowd on hand to hear Mayor Church's stirring message.

Duties—

Orderly Officer for to-day, Lieut. J. Cools.

Orderly Officer for to-morrow, Lt. Mc. Stevenson.

Orderly Officer for Monday, Lieut. A. P. Stock.

Parades—

The Battalion will parade on Sunday, Jan. 30th, for divine service, headed by the senior officer of each denomination on parade, at 10.20 a.m. to the undermentioned churches:

Anglicans—All Saints' Church.
Baptists—Murraw Street Baptist.
Methodists—Trinity Church.
Presbyterians—Knox Church.
Salvation Army—S. A. Temple.
The Roman Catholics will parade at 10 a.m. for divine service.

Strength Taken On—

The following men having enlisted are taken on the strength of the 93rd Overseas Battalion, C.E.F., and posted to the companies placed opposite their names from the date mentioned:

No. 196564 Pte. B. Beavis, January 23rd, Signallers.
No. 196810 Pte. W. Woodrow, January 28th, B Company.
No. 196806 Pte. F. Markwick, January 28th, B Company.

Transfers—

No. 196461 Pte. R. L. Anderson has been transferred from A to B Company from Jan. 24th.

Promotions—

Pte. A. Ringer to be Lc.-Corporal, January 28th.

Leave—

Good conduct is essential in order to receive passes. No leave will be given to a man for 14 days after conviction of a minor offence or for 28 days after a regimental offence.

J. E. R. Munro, Captain,
93rd Overseas Battalion, C.E.F.

Another example to the young men of Peterborough is furnished in the fact that Mr. Wm. Stanley, assistant caretaker at the Armouries, has enlisted in the 139th Battalion at Cobourg and leaves on Monday to join his regiment. Mr. Stanley's action is the more striking, inasmuch as he has three sons in the Canadian forces. Pte. Horace Stanley, at the front, with the 8th C.M.R., Corp. Fred Stanley with the 8th C.M.R., and Sergt. Albert Stanley with the 93rd Battalion. And still there are hundreds of young men holding back.

The members of the 33rd Battery, who are home on leave from Kingston, will be given a send-off to-night. The Artillery boys are asked to fall in at the Armouries at 8.30 o'clock sharp for the parade to the station.

Gunner Jack Pethick of the 40th Battery, and defence man on last year's Peterborough Intermediate O. H. A. team, was in town last night saying good-bye to his friends before leaving for overseas. Gunner Pethick who has been playing for the 40th Battery's Senior O. H. A. team, was an interested spectator at last night's hockey game. His opinion was that the Electrics threw the game away by poor shooting.

In the last fifteen days the 93rd Battalion has added 106 men to its strength, the best two weeks' gain in a long period. The parade state this morning showed a strength of 650.

It may be interesting to know that the following Boy Scouts belonging to No. 5 troop (Knox Church) have followed in the steps of their Scoutmasters, Milby and Brooks, and answered their country's call, viz., Black, Fuller, Sheppard, Sloan, Roots and Gibson.

Yesterday, Wm. Woodrow, Choir Master of St. George's Church, "took the King's shilling." He is the last male member of the choir old enough to enlist, and the last of the male members of the congregation not too

Big Night To-Night At Brock St. Rink

Band From the 93rd Battalion to be Present—First-Class Ice

After an absence of a week's skating Brock St. Rink will be open again to-night with a fine programme. Skating all the time from 7:30 to 10:30. Band from the 93rd Battalion will present a fine programme of continuous music, and the ice will be cleaned at half time.

The price of admission for skaters is only 15c, and for spectators to-night 10c.

If you don't skate enjoy the band and the sight of the hundreds of skaters skating to good music.

GIVES CONFIDENCE TO THE ALLIES

The Collapse of the Opposition to Conscription in the British Parliament Has Brought That Result Among Others

SUMMARY OF WEEK

LONDON, January, 28.—The collapse of the opposition to conscription in the British Parliament has already produced momentous results. The first of these is greater confidence amongst her allies of England's iron determination to make all sacrifices to win this war.

In Paris I found that French opinion was ignoring our internal difficulties and a small division was enormously impressed by this extraordinarily tranquil subversion of our national traditions.

The second result is a considerable modification in the political values of our chief public men. In this respect Premier Asquith reaps the richest reward. Everybody, in all parties, acknowledges that he alone, with his incomparable gifts of tact and pursuasiveness, could have maintained the unity of his mixed cabinet and made easy the passage through the House of Commons of such a difficult measure.

One of his most adroit moves was to leave absolute charge of the bill to the hands of Andrew Bonar Law, whose able conduct of the bill has enormously enhanced his reputation. Bonar Law is now regarded as the next Prime Minister in case that accident deprives England of the services of Mr. Asquith. As things look now, however, Mr. Asquith will remain the Premier until the end of the war.

The third unexpected result of this last event is the decided enhancement of the position of the Irish party and the irony of this result.

Irish Party Stronger in Ireland.

All Irish leaders had looked with grave apprehension of a struggle over conscription. On one hand they had reason to count with the intense hostility of Ireland to conscription and upon the other with a secret campaign of well paid pro-German cranks who whispered that the Irish party would betray Ireland. Of course no such thing was possible, but the bold, tactful stand taken by the Irish party and their success in getting the unanimous approval of the Ministry, including such strong opponents as Bonar Law, A. J. Balfour and Lord Lansdowne to agree to the exclusion of Ireland, has given the final blow to this always insignificant and now extinct minority.

In spite of the violent speeches and resoltions the general opinion now is that no labour movement or other serious resistence will confront the operations of the conscription bill, especially if the administration of it be conducted with tactful consideration. The mere passage of the measure will produce such a response as to make the application of the compulsory powers of the bill entirely unnecessary.

The Irish in Saloniki.

Some correspondents in America have asked me regarding the composition of the Inniskilling regiment who saved the British and French armies by their brave rear-guard action at Saloniki. The great majority of these battalions came from the Nationalist counties of Fermanagh, Cavan and Tyrone, but some of the battalions are mainly Protestants.

I am glad to say that these sectarian differences of home life have entirely disappeared in the trenches.

A Cabinet minister asked me, beginning with the complimentary observation that I was something of a seer, what did I think would happen in England after the war. I have already repeated the remark which I first made "We shall not be any longer able to talk of wicked dukes," which, as the Minister was Mr. Lloyd George, had just that touch of irony which makes the eyes of that great

LIFE AT FRONT DESCRIBED BY PETERBORO BOY

"IT'S A GREAT LIFE"

Signaller Jack Heron of Peterborough, who is at the front with the 5th Battery, C.F.A., writes the following interesting letter to his parents, Mr. and Mrs. A. Heron, 541 Gilmour street:

My Dear Parents,—Many thanks for letters and parcel received O.K. The latter, I fear, is the sole survivor of a trial by fire and flood through which it passed uninjured, but in which its mates failed.

You see there was a fire in the sheds at Folkestone and there were two mail boats sunk in the Channel with mail aboard. However it's alright—we still holler "Brittania rules the waves." We thought Fritz was very nice to allow us peace to enjoy our Christmas dinner, but he might have gone the "whole hog" and spared our parcels.

Say, I did enjoy that plum pudding. It looked so tempting I gave the boys the cake first so they could not eat much pudding and I had a good share for myself without appearing greedy—not very nice of me perhaps, but I thought it rather a good stratagem.

The fellows were tickled to death with the cakes and candies—only they find the usual fault with all good things and wish me to pass down the order "salvoes" instead of "battery fire."

Say, mother, I never appreciated your cooking half. I ate about quarter of your pudding cold and felt no ill effects, but day before yesterday I had a very very little of someone else's hot, and missed four meals over it. This morning at breakfast was the first meal I had since dinner Sunday—this being Tuesday. So much about parcels.

About three weeks ago when I went up to the forward trench station I relieved a Peterborough boy—Blanchard is his name. He has gone back to the horse lines now as a driver.

In that letter printed in the "Examiner" from L. C. McNabb he mentions an aeroplane which he saw brought down. I saw this aeroplane under very different circumstances than his.

It was on my first journey to the trench—a very cold, frosty night, slightly misty. As I did not know the way, one of the men from the forward observing point was sent to show me the way. All went well until we got within about 300 yards of the trench when we came to three paths. My companion chose the right hand or lower and we went along quite blithely until we decided quite suddenly and conclusively that we were on the wrong (if not very broad) path. We accordingly beat across to the centre path, but met with no better success there, so once again moved our centre of operations. This began to be rather tiresome as I was loaded with two days' rations, blankets, waterproof sheet, water bottle, haversack (full) and my great coat, so when yet again we had to move I shed my superfluous equipment, bidding my companion to sit down and keep it warm while I went forward to reconnoitre. I worked on the belief that the trench would enter our front line somewhere, but I had not the experience to tell if it would stop there and not run as a no stop through route to the German lines and an internment camp for yours truly. There were places where the water was three feet deep—not including mud—with ice on top which I had to break with my hands in order to proceed quietly. I came to a place where four trenches branched off and I chose the large one to the left, which seemed to be good going. At the third traverse I was stopped by the aeroplane mentioned by L. C. McNab. Of course I was more interested in getting to my dugout than in collecting curios or I might have cut a piece off the frame. I tried another

SATURDY, JAN. 29, 1916

A GOOD YEAR.

The annual general meeting of the Toronto Savings and Loan Company, was held at the head office here yesterday. The report, printed in another part of this issue, indicates that the company has had another prosperous year, a reflection of a condition of general prosperity in the country. The net earnings of the company last year amounted to $141,668.66. This amount increased by the profit and loss credit balance of last year made $287,691.78 for distribution. This permitted the payment of dividends at the rate of 10 per cent. per year; of the transfer of $80,000 to the reserve fnd, which now totals $980,000, equal to 90 per cent. of paid up capital. There remainded the sum of $67,691 to be placed at the credit of profit and loss account. On the whole the report shows a year of prosperity for the company, and the fact that all payments on account of interests, rents, etc., have been promptly met indicate a condition of gratifying general prosperity. Mr. H. C. Cox was elected president, and W. G. Morrow and Richard Hall vice-presidents, the other directors being Messrs. D. W. Dumble, E. T. Malone and E. R. Wood.

DO IT NOW.

We are busy recruiting; we are calling for soldiers; we want them now "Now" is the watchword of our duty in this war. We must fill up the ranks now; we must keep the Patriotic Fund up to the mark now. We must make our sacrifices now; for we don't know what burdens and responsibilities the future may hold for us. Mr. Reeve Anderson of Otonabee was right in demanding that the County should make its Patriotic Fund contribution a "spot cash" transaction. When, in the trenches and on the battle field, our soldiers are sacrificing health and life—when widows and orphans are sacrificing what we cannot know—when our women are sacrificing their leisure, their pleasures, and even their gossip, to work for soldiers, certainly the tax payers of the county can sacrifice the comparatively little involved in paying a little extra taxes, now. When this war is over, the work of national readjustment will be difficult enough without wrestling with deferred duties as the payment of the patriotic fund would be, years from now, when the spirit of patriotism that nerves us for sacrifice now, will be replaced by the hum-drum duties of ordinary life under ordinary conditions. The rate payers of the county will never feel so much like paying as they do now, under the spur of the patriotic enthusiasm and loyal determination that dominates us all to do our bit, and win the day. We shall find in that achievement compensation for all the sacrifices we are making and will be called upon to make.

THE CITY BEAUTIFUL.

When the aldermanic deputation from Peterborough, a few days ago, went to Ottawa on the Pigeon Creek bridge matter, they did not confine themselves to their mission; they had a little "time" of their own—took a side trip, so to speak. But it was one that did them credit. Instead of wasting their time in listening to parliamentary puerilities, they went to a meeting of the Civic Improvement Commission.

Whether their visit was a profitable one, depends upon what they there learned. They have not told us this; but it is to be assumed that they learned something about town-planning, which is one of the functions of the Commission.

It is to be hoped that our Aldermen got some good ideas; and it is more to be hoped that they contemplate giving them effect.

Our Aldermen are sent to the city hall to do something greater and more important than levy, and collect, and spend taxes. The future of the city is in their hands; and, as leaders we expect them to lead.

It takes something more than shop buildings and fine residence structures to make a beautiful city—to make it a desirable place of residence.

They must have a back-ground—a setting.

If a man should contemplate building a fine country residence he would, if he were a man of taste, and wanted to make a home as well as a dwelling place, make it his first care to see that his site were provided with trees. If the trees were lacking his fine residence—no matter how grand in the way of brick and mortar—would be about as home-like as the House of Refuge at Lakefield.

He would try to realise in building his new residence, the conditions expressed in the familiar lines of Felicia Hemans:

The stately homes of England!
How beautiful they stand
Amid their tall ancestral trees
O'er all the pleasant land.

If our Aldermen learned much about town planning, they learned of the value of street trees as a setting, and one of the indispensable conditions of the city beautiful.

If they live up to their responsibility in this regard they will have taken some resolution regarding tree planting.

It is possible for a man to find in the country a site for a country seat with the trees already grown.

But in a city that is expanding, the trees have to be planted; and, as it takes time for them to grow, no time should be lost in setting them growing.

And we are losing valuable time. The city is growing, especially to the south and west. New streets have been opened and built upon, but the city has planted never a tree upon these streets—done nothing more ornamental than impose and collect taxes.

It is the business of the city to do this work for they have control of, and responsibility in respect of, the streets.

If this work is rightly taken up by the city, the work will be well done—the proper kind of trees for the soil of the locality will be planted in even lines and at proper distances; and, after planting, watered and protected.

If the aldermanic deputation did not learn something like this by their visit to the Commission at Ottawa, they failed to learn one of the first and most important lessons in proper town planning and the making of the city beautiful.

Are we to have any specific attention to tree planting this year? If so it is time something was done—a little looking ahead.

In thousands of farmers' homes last night—if not before—thousands of farmers' heads were busy planning the planting of their fields—deciding what was to go in this field, what in that field. The good farmer doesn't wait till seed time to decide these things. He looks ahead and prepares.

Our Aldermen should be doing something of the kind. We, who notice, know that in the lines of beautiful street trees that make the glory of our city in summer, there are gaps that should be filled; and there are many streets where the city should do tree planting.

Now is the time to look after the matter; to look over the city and see where trees, and what kind of trees, and how many, are needed to fill gaps and plant new streets.

Orders for them should be placed at once, in order to have them in time for planting.

It would not be an expensive matter to plant 400 or 500 street trees this spring. Five hundred trees, at 30 feet apart — the proper distance—would plant three miles of streets, and could be put in for $200 to $250—only a fraction of what the city may spend on deputations this year.

In ten years the beauty of these tree-planted streets would be intensified ten-fold, and the taxable value of the adjacent property correspondingly enhanced.

Let any citizen or any alderman sit down and think, and he would end his thinking by thinking that, in view of improving the appearance of the city; in view of making it a desirable place of residence, a small amount expended each year by the city in planting trees upon the streets would bring an aesthetic value as well as money value ten times in excess of the cost.

If the aldermanic deputation didn't learn something to this effect at the meeting of the Commission on Civic Improvement, they were wasting their time, and might as well have gone up to the Parliament Buildings and listened to the parliamentarians killing time.

Good old Lovelace sang—"Stone walls do not a prison make"—as long as the soul is free. Neither do brick and mortar and pavements make the real city, unless there is present the soul of beauty in the form of trees and flowers and parks and pleasant places and like delights, that appeal to the soul of man—things that make houses homes, and the whole city a joy and delight—a pleasant place to live in.

A Political View Of The Prospects For Prohibition

For the last fortnight members of Parliament have been buttonholed, so to speak, by the federal prohibition movement. Secretary Seybold has written letters to each member asking where he stood, and how he might be expected to vote. How to answer these—that was the question. How to answer them without turning the proposition down cold, and yet leave a ray of hope. Silence would not do—this was a straight question, and Secretary Seybold was entitled to at least an oblique answer. The Conservative members, being in a more responsible position than their Liberal colleagues, naturally waited for a lead from one of their responsible statesmen. They got it from Sir George Foster, who is the original Foxy Grandpa when it comes to writing answers that commit nobody to anything.

Considering Sir George's life-long career on the water waggon, and also considering what the water waggon did for Sir George in the way of making him a cabinet minister in Sir John Macdonald's government, and shaping his subsequent success, Secretary Seybold naturally expected that Sir George might want to do something for the water waggon. So he wrote to Sir George, pointing out what a vast saving could be effected if the people of Canada swore off strong drinks and turned the money over to the Patriotic Fund and the war debt.

Now Sir George may lack the enthusiasm of his youth for great moral causes, that is to say, he may have come to the conclusion that it is hard to make the world good all of a sudden and by process of law—which is a conclusion mellow philosophers generally arrive at — but he is just as quick at the uptake as ever. He saw Mr. Seybold's point at once, and gave him his answer. Not such an answer perhaps as he would have given, say thirty years ago, when he had just emerged from a college professorship, and was a regular Woodrow Wilson for uplift, but such an answer as might be expected from a politician who has been thoroughly tanned by experience. It was a clever answer, and covered the whole ground from Sir George's present point of view, but there wasn't much comfort in it for Dominion-wide prohibition as outlined by Secretary Seybold.

To cut the story short Sir George Foster replied that the nation-wide prohibition was a consummation devoutly to be wished, a beautiful ideal—an ideal being something that is never reached—and that no doubt the money wasted on drink would adequately support the Patriotic Fund and pay off the national debt "if it could be collected and devoted to these purposes." I do not quote Sir George's exact words but that was the hang of it. He left the impression, some way or other, that the Dominion treasury would be the last place the booze money would think of using as a bank. This was the cue Sir George's humble and inferior associates on the back benches were looking for, and since that time Secretary Seybold's morning mail has been as leaves in Vallembrosa. Every government supporter has seized the opportunity to put himself on record as a prohibitionist of the Sir George Foster variety. They cannot copy a better man. The answers Secretary Seybold is receiving are marvels of equivocation. There is about as much hope for prohibition in them as there is blood in a turnip.

Meanwhile a resolution has been drafted looking to "the prohibition of the manufacture and sale of intoxicating liquor during the war, and the constructive period of three years thereafter." This resolution will be introduced to the House by two members of Parliament, preferably one Conservative and one Liberal member, although doubt is expressed whether a Conservative member can be found who will act as the goat.

On the fate of this resolution opinion is about evenly divided. Will it gradually drift into the boneyard of adjourned debates? Or will it be voted on and passed? The movement for prohibition will probably be as near becoming a law of the land one way as the other.—Gadsby.

Voice of The People

To the Editor of The Examiner.

Sir,—In reply to the "most respectful" (Farewell Isabella), I, the poor, simple-minded female, would like to inform him, that I am (most certainly) not a pro-German, and that I have done more for my country than he has. One of my boys died for his country, two more are in the trenches now, and another one in khaki, ready to go.

Now, Farewell Isabella, if you wish to go any further in this matter, do not waste so much space in the Examiner, but get my name from the Editor, and give me a call, and I will convince you that you are in the wrong, and therefore if you are a man (I am sorry I cannot say, gentleman) you will apologize.

Another Patriotic Woman.

To the Editor of The Examiner:

Dear Sir,—Will you allow me to express my appreciation of "Farewell Isabell's" letter which appeared in your paper last night.

Not that I think Adjutant McElhiney requires any vindication or that his actions need explanation, as it seems to me this gentleman is "above reproach," and his time (like the One whom he serves) is spent in going about doing good."

I have had the privilege of being a recipient of the Adjutant's kindness and have been in a position to observe his manner of living perhaps more than some people and I cannot help but take this opportunity of testifying to his nobility of character and largeness of heart.

Adjutant McElhiney is indifferent to unjust accusations and does not allow the public sentiment to stand in the path of right and public duty and I am proud to have shaken his hand. Mere words are inadequate to express my esteem for this gentleman whom I think of as "God's good man."

When I hear words of condemnation spoken of such a man as our Adjutant I feel more than indignant on his behalf. I think of his influence for good in this city, his eagerness to assist in time of need and trouble, his never failing sympathy and broad understanding, his unflinching scorn of all that is mean and vile and his tireless energy, above all the practical consistent carrying out of the religion he stands for. I say, when I think of all this, I could exclaim, "Well done! Good and faithful servant!"

I am sure this city has felt the good influence of Adjutant McElhiney and his faithful partner, Mrs. McElhiney, a lady of gentle and sympathetic disposition, and it cannot but be the better for the presence of these two who are ever and always "at your service." I could wax eloquent on this theme, but space does not permit.

However, I am sure any amount of criticism will not discourage Adjutant McElhiney from persisting in his "good fight," but will rather spur him on to fresh effort. It is true that the best of us cannot but be hurt, but when we think of benefits bestowed and forgotten. Yet the knowledge of our own integrity and singleness of purpose is all the reward we covet. I am sure this is true of Adjutant McElhiney. Scores of people as well as myself could sign themselves, Grateful.

Two Interned at Amherst—One Says He's Glad Of It.

ST. JOHN, N.B., Jan. 28.—Herman Fulkandort and William Warran were taken from St. John to the internment camp at Amherst. They are Germans who were employed as stewards on the American ocean-going tug Ramos, formerly the Tabasco, of New York.

Fulkandort said he was glad to be arrested and would much sooner remain in prison in Canada until after the war than return to Germany. He came from a village in Saxony, and his father and three brothers had already been killed.

Peterboro Will Become A Large Industrial City

Every lot I own lies high and dry close outside the present city limits and must become city property very soon. Regardless of above facts I want to sell about 40 lots and 5 houses to close up my business. Who ones say I cannot do so. I say I can and I will, because there are always a few wise people who know a good bargain when offered and I intend to give each to every buyer. The big rush at close of war will double rents and prices of all lots, this should cause renters and all who want to make money to buy now. Pay a small deposit and secure what you want to use in spring or resell with big profit. Good profit to every buyer of my lots or houses is a certainty beyond any doubt. No interest until May, then 6 per cent and any reasonable terms desired. Call for particulars.

SLASHED THROAT IN PRISON GOAL

Nathan Carr Brooded Over the Loss of Employment—Leaves Wife and Six Children

MINDEN, Jan 29.—Brooding, it is said, over the loss of his situation as a result of ill health, a married man named Nathan Carr, late of Port Perry, cut his throat in the lockup here, and died, as a result of his rash act, at the Ross Hospital, in Lindsay.

The unfortunate man had been spending some days with his wife's relatives at Maple Lake, until his health improved, but worry over ill health and the fact that he was out of employment, unhinged his mind and he became gloomy and despondent at times. His condition gradually grew worse, and last Monday he was placed in custody. While being examined as to his sanity he made a dash for liberty, knocking his wife down as he went out. He was later apprehended, and was returned to the cell. While at liberty he obtained possession of a pocket knife and during the morning while the papers committing him to Mimico were being made out, he slashed his throat.

After his discovery the unfortunate man was placed on a waggon and taken to Kinmount. From there he was taken by train to Lindsay and placed in the Ross Memorial Hospital where he lingered until after midnight, Drs. White and McCullough being in attendance. An examination disclosed the fact that the windpipe had been severed above the Adam's apple. It is said that the condition of the remains when they reached Lindsay disclosed the fact that the unfortunate man had received very little attention after he committed the deed as his clothes were saturated with blood. He leaves a wife and six children.

You Can't Do It!

You can't waste spare time, and not damage the time you are paid for. You can't remain untrained and pull down a trained man's salary. Training comes easy nowadays. Perhaps the fellow next to you is getting by mail the knowledge that will make him your boss. He's mastering principles and practices that will make him an expert. When will you begin to train yourself by study in spare time? When will you decide that you are not going to work under a trained man, but be one yourself? It rests with you! Give the answer now that you are starting to study in the I.C.S.

Warrant In Detroit For Edmonton Ex-Mayor

Offered Stock in Tractor Company Without State Board's Consent.

DETROIT, Jan. 29.—A complaint charging the Wolverine-Detroit Tractor Company with issuing and offering its stock for sale without the consent of the Michigan Securities Commission was issued by Prosecuting Attorney Jasnowski. The complaint is based on Michigan's "blue sky," which is under solution in the court.

William J. McNamara, former Mayor of Edmonton, Alta., is said to be the financial backer and general manager of the company. A warrant is out for him.

The first known of the existence of such a concern, it is claimed, was when McNamara opened the offices on Grand River Avenue. As far as can be learned by the commission and prosecutor's office, the company has built but one tractor, which is on exhibition in front of their offices.

SAYS WIDOW LURED FATHER OF HER 13

NEW YORK, Jan. 29.—Although Patrick J. Carey is the father of her thirteen children and has been her faithful husband for twenty-five years, Mrs. Elizabeth Carey alleges that his affections have been won from her by Mrs. Minerva B. Toler. The wife began an action in the Supreme Court to recover $50,000 from Mrs. Toler for alleged alienation of Carey's affections. Carey is said to be superintendent of an apartment house owned by Mrs. Toler, who is a widow.

Together with the complaint in the proceeding a petition for a bill of particulars was filed by Mrs. Toler. The petition will be heard by Justice Donnally to-day. Mrs. Carey declares that she lived happily with her husband until February 14, 1914, but that they have since separated because of Mrs. Toler.

The complaint says that the widow "wilfully, wickedly, and maliciously, gained the affections of Mr. Carey and persuaded him by gifts, offers of money and otherwise to leave the plaintiff without support and to live with the defendant."

Mrs. Carey asserts that her husband and Mrs. Toler were unduly intimate in March, 1914, at Springfield, Mass., and again during the same month in a house in West 101st street. Mrs. Toler denies the charges against her. She wishes to know in her bill of particulars "each of the alleged acts complained of," denying at the same time that any of them ever took place. She says she never was a disturbing element in the Carey household. The information sought in her petition is essential to a defence of the proceeding, she asserts.

Trolley Directors Arrested on Writs

BRIDGEPORT, Conn., Jan. 29.—As a result of alleged gross mismanagement, three directors of the Bridgeport and Danbury Electric Railroad Company have been arrested on body writs to satisfy a 450,000 action brought by J. E. Henshaw, of New York, trustee of the estate of George E. Pond, of New York. John Sanders, president of the trolley company; S. W. C. Jones, secretary and treasurer and E. W. Sperry, one of the directors, were arrested and Benjamin T. Saunders, of Danbury, a director of the company, is also named, but he has not yet been found.

The three officials were released under bonds of $10,000. The late Mr. Pond was a large stockholder in the Danbury and Bethel Street Railway Company, which has been consolidated with the Bridgeport and Danbury Company. Mr. Henshaw contends that the directors have so mismanaged the affairs of the two roads that the value of the Pond holdings have been greatly decreased. Besides asking large damages, the plaintiff asks for an accounting to the Danbury and Bethel company, an injunction restraining the directors from selling more bonds and an order restraining them from acting as directors of the concern.

The novelist's small boy had just been brought to judgment for telling a fib. His echo having died away he sat for a while in silent thought. "Pa," said he, "how long will it be before I stop getting licked for tellin' lies an' begin to get paid for 'em, like you do?"

HIS DOG KNOWS TELEPHONE RING

Double Call at Fireman's House Always Rouses Bud, and He Keeps Master Punctual.

WINSTED, Conn., Jan. 29.—Bud, a Boston terrier, owned by W. B. Pinney, an employee of the Southern New England Telephone Company and a member of the Volunteer Fire Brigade, can distinguish his master's telephone call—two rings—from the other numbers on the 316 line.

When the bell rings twice and Pinney is at home and does not hear the call, the dog searches for him. By barking and other means he attracts his master's attention.

When Pinney fails to respond at night to the double ring, Bud dashes to his master's room and rouses him. That is one reason why Pinney never fails to report for duty at a night fire.

TO REDUCE YOUR WEIGHT EASILY AND QUICKLY

If you are overstout the cause of your over-stoutness is lack of oxygen-carrying power in the blood and faulty assimilation of food. Too little is being made into the harder tissue of muscle and too much into little globules of fat. Therefore you should correct the malassimilation and increase the oxygen-carrying power of the blood. To do this go to any good druggist and get oil of orilene, only sold in original packages and in capsule form, and take one capsule after each meal and one at bedtime till your weight is reduced to what it should be on all parts of the body. The effect of oil of orilene in capsule form is remarkable on a weight reducer, and it is perfectly safe.—E. J. T.

Any druggist can supply you or a large size box will be sent on receipt of $1.00. Address E. J. Little Drug Co., Box 1249, Montreal, Canada.

Miss McLaughlin's Flight a Mystery

Efforts to Learn What Valuables Wealthy Young Woman Carried are Fruitless.

NEW YORK, Jan. 29.—Efforts to find just how much wealth Miss G. McLaughlin, daughter of the late P. H. McLaughlin, took with her when she disappeared on December 9, failed. Mrs. Katherine Ingles, of No. 4 West 120th street, her aunt with whom she lived, learned that she had been to her safe deposit box the day she left home. That box is said to have contained more than $100,000 worth of stocks and bonds and $150,000 worth of mortgages, all of which she inherited from her father. It is known that she had $2,000 in cash when she left the house and $3,000 worth of jewels.

The aunt's search for the missing young woman, through agency detectives, was equally unsuccessful. Miss McLaughlin owned a racing automobile of peculiar design and through this the detectives reported they had traced her to various cities. Detectives are seeking her in Philadelphia.

George M. Stevens, owner of the garage in which she kept her automobile and who also disappeared on December 9, was admitted to the Catholic Church in November by the Rev. Thomas P. Larkin, assistant rector of St. Aloysius Church, 32nd street and Seventh avenue, which Miss McLaughlin attended. Father Larkin said yesterday that Stevens spoke to him of marrying Miss McLaughlin but as he said his wife's divorce action was pending the priest referred him directly to the Cardinal.

Must Return To Jail After Being Married

Canton Girl Willing to Take Man, Despite His Arrest.

CANTON, O., Jan. 29.—When Ray McKim of Canton appeared in Police Court, after he had been arrested for assaulting a man, the girl whom he was to have married told the judge she wanted to keep her promise to marry him, despite his arrest.

In answer to her plea, the judge, after sentencing McKim to 30 days in the workhouse, said that the prisoner would be kept in jail until today, and that, accompanied by plain-clothes men, he would then be allowed to leave, so that the ceremony might be performed.

Immediately after the wedding McKim will be taken to the workhouse to serve his term.

Banish Pimples!

Pimples, Boils, and other skin eruptions are an almost infallible indication that the blood is impure.

Abbey's Effervescent Salt is the simplest and most positive Blood Purifier that can be used. When we have perfect digestion, we must have pure blood, which supplies healthful nutrition to all the organs and tissues of the body; and as a result we must have healthy functions and the absence of disease in any form. Doctor Said Sciatica---Rheumatism--Lumbago

But He Could Not Help Me, and Endorsed the Use of Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills

Mr. Wm. Parker, 105 Cayuga street, Brantford, Ont., tells in the following letter of his remarkable experience with Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills: "My doctor treated me for some time for Sciatica, Rheumatism, Lumbago, but to no purpose, for I had to lay off work. The visiting officer of Sick Benefit called to se me and advised the use of Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills, stating that he had been cured of the same trouble by their use. I asked the druggist about them and he recommended them highly. Not being satisfied with this, I went back to my doctor, and when he said they were good I began their use. The promptness with which they enlivened the action of the kidneys and bowels was wonderful, and it was not long before I was rid of all my trouble.

"I was so bad that I could only walk by hanging on to a chair or the wall. My wife had to lace my shoes. Only those who have had this ailment can realize the way I suffered. I am writing this letter to let people who have my trouble know of these pills. You are at liberty to use this letter, and if anyone interested will call or write to me I will give every detail."

Write to Mr. Parker, enclosing stamp for reply, and he will verify this statement. He will do this out of the gratitude he feels for his cure and because he realizes how difficult it is to obtain the cure of these dreadfully painful ailments.

There are so many treatments recommended for rheumatism that you naturally doubt them all. Here is an opportunity for you to verify the cure and put this great medicine to the test. It will only cost you a quarter to try Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills. They get at the very foundation of rheumatism, and by removing the poisons from the system take away the cause of pains and aches.

Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills, one pill a dose, 25 cents a box, all dealers, or Edmanson, Bates & Co., Limited, Toronto.

THE EXAMINER'S OWN PRIZE CONTEST

FOR DOLLAR DAY

An Estimate Blank for every dollar paid into the Examiner for Subscriptions, old and new, and Accounts for Advertising or Job Printing. . . . . .

SO much interest was taken in the Examiner's prize contest on last DOLLAR DAY that it will be repeated again this year—

THURSDAY, FEBRUARY 3rd

DOLLAR DAY

This year looks like the greatest event yet, as the merchants are making tremendous preparations to eclipse all records in Dollar Bargain giving, and the crowd in the City that day is expected to be a bumper one.

To add to the interest of the day's proceedings, THE EXAMINER will

Give Away $35.00 in Cash

It will be divided into prizes, to be given

To Those Who Make The Nearest Correct Estimate as to the Number of Coppers in The Jar

which will be on display in the window of Trebilcock's Bookstore, next our office, for a week previous to Dollar Day.

PRIZES

will be awarded as follows:

PRIZES IN DOLLAR BILLS

MANY ARE FIGURING THE COPPERS IN THE JAR

Great Interest Being Taken in the Dollar Day Contest of the Evening Examiner

The Examiner has on view in the window of the Peterborough Bookstore the glass jar of coppers on which you are to estimate for the Examiner cash prizes on Dollar Day. In the window is a list of the prizes given. Everybody who pays any money into the Examiner Office on Thursday, February 3rd, (Dollar Day), whether for subscription or account, will be handed an estimate blank on which to estimate the number of coppers in the jar. The nearest correct estimates will receive the prizes, as follows:

First nearest estimate	$10.00
Second nearest estimate	7.00
Third nearest estimate	5.00
Fourth nearest estimate	4.00
Fifth nearest estimate	3.00
Sixth nearest estimate	2.00
Seventh nearest estimate	1.00
Eighth nearest estimate	1.00
Ninth nearest estimate	1.00
Tenth nearest estimate	1.00
	$35.00

In addition to the above every dollar paid into the Examiner Office will also entitle you to an estimating blank for the Merchants' Treasury Box prizes of $175.00, which is for estimating the number of estimates given out by merchants that will be dropped into the box in front of the Examiner Office. In 1913 there were about 16,000, but times and conditions will alter this somewhat and you will require to size up the situation as it exists.

Thursday, Feb. 3, (Dollar Day), promises to be the greatest in the history of the city.

COUNTY COUNCIL MAY ATTEND GOOD ROADS CONVENTION IN FEB.

Reeve McKee of Smith made a bid for $300 for what he called the "suspension bridge" during Friday afternoon's session of the County Council. Reeve Crough and Coben made a motion supporting his appeal, but an amendment by Reeves Anderson and Fennell, that no special grants be made, was carried. Mr. Anderson claimed that if Smith received this sum the other townships would be entitled to proportionate amounts.

Mr. Lean moved that $100 be granted for the main road through Burleigh, and Mr. Ketchen seconded it, but it was suggested that the Government should provide this conditional sum.

Mr. Brown secured a promise of instruction of Robinson's bridge, on the Asphodel Boundary.

Reeve McIntosh said he had received a wire from Northumberland and Durham counties, asking for a conference re the main road from Port Hope to Bobcaygeon, but action was deferred until the June session.

The appointment of a supervisor of the expenditure of the Government grant for agricultural short courses was also delayed until June.

Mr. J. H. Garbutt was nominated by Messrs. Anderson and Eason, and Warden Darling, by Messrs. McIntosh and Northey, but no action was taken for the present on the motion of Messrs. Squire and Brown.

The question of attending the Good Roads Convention in Toronto in February, was discussed, and Mr. Anderson and Warden Darling were proposed as delegates. Mr. Anderson replied that the matter might first be considered by the Special Committee to deal with the new Highways' Act. Mr. Squire and Mr. Eason moved to this effect and if the committee deems it advisable the members of the council will be notified of the proposed action. If it is decided to be represented at this convention all the members will be permitted to attend with the necessary expenses to be paid by the County.

Local Woman Pleaded Guilty To Serious Charge

Admitted Having Stolen Quantity of Goods From a George Street Store--Was Remanded For a Week For Sentence

HUSBAND HAS ENLISTED

Four silk dresses.
One underskirt.
One corduroy coat.
One man's shirt.
One boudoir cap.
One night cap.

The receptive possibilities of a lady's muff is exemplified by the foregoing list of articles that were alleged to have been removed from the store of Moses Fine 308 George street on Friday last. A local woman whose husband is a member of the Overseas Forces, appeared in Police Court this morning and pleaded guilty to a charge of stealing the above named articles, the value of which, is estimated by Moses Fine, at one hundred and twenty-five dollars. The goods were removed from the store with the aid of a muff. The woman, it is said, took up her position in the rear of the store, and while the proprietor was waiting on a customer at the front end of the store, took a generous helping of some of the most expensive finery.

Dresses Worth $50.

In Police Court this morning the goods were laid out on the table in front of the bench by Constable Blade. The lady's taste found a host of admirers among the legal luminaries and members of the Press. Even Magistrate Dumble became curious and demanded to know the value of some of the articles. Mr. Fine said that some of the dresses were worth fifty dollars each.

"Who do you sell them to?" enquired Magistrate Dumble.

"We used to have a trade for them," replied the owner.

The Court advised Mr. Fine to cease selling such goods, as it only tended to make poor husbands. Mr. Fine said that such dresses would cost anywhere from seventy-five to one hundred dollars each, if purchased in Toronto.

At this stage of the proceedings one of the court officials leaned over and warned the newspaper men, who were congregated around the exhibit, not to steal any of the diamonds that sparkled among the goods.

The prisoner was arraigned and given choice of summary trial, or trial in a higher court. She said she didn't care so long as her husband didn't get to know. Chief of Police Thompson failed to see how this could be avoided. With this the woman pleaded guilty to the theft of the articles and was remanded one week for sentence.

The merchants are racing to lead in Dollar Day value giving. Buyers get both the bargains and the free $175. in cash.

Bridge Caretakers Dispensed With

County Council Decides to Make a Saving During the War on all But Floating Bridges

After sleeping on the Roads and Bridges report, the County Council this morning decided to dispense with the services of all bridge caretakers except those on floating bridges. This applies to sixty bridges, including the Locks, Lakefield, Nassau and boundary bridges, in addition to all the others in the county. In thus rescinding a clause that was passed yesterday the County Fathers manifested a whimsical turn that is more characteristic of the City County. It is more likely that they required the night's intermission to screw their courage to the sticking point. Reeve McIntosh of Monaghan broached the subject this morning, stating that over $300 was spent on the bridges and practically no return was received for this money. In view of the extra expenses before the people he was in favour of lopping off this bill. Reeve Brown believed in economy, but was of the opinion that this move might prove more costly than saving. Reeve Coben moved, seconded by Reeve Walsh, that all but three caretakers be dispensed with. It was felt that the pathmasters would look after the bridges in the event of a washout, etc., and report to the authorities.

The New York Stock Market

Summary of To-day's Activities on the New York Stock Exchange

Special to The Examiner:

NEW YORK, Jan. 29.—Bearish sentiment forced prices down during the opening hour of to-day's market New Haven sold as low as 66 1-8 more than five points under yesterday's high and Baltimore and Ohio and Canadian Pacific were weak. U. S. Steel was quoted at 82 3-8.

THE ADVANCE IN COPPER

The great advance in the price of copper during the past week has been phenomenal and foreshadows tremendous earnings and a large increase in the price of copper stocks. The demand for copper all over the world is heavy and ready markets and greatly increased prices are obtainable. Messrs Chas. A. Stoneham of New York, who have a branch office at 20 Melinda St., Toronto, are specialists in all copper stocks and their quotations and other information are thoroughly reliable. All orders are executed for cash or moderate margins.

FIRST MEETING OF SOLDIER'S AID ASSOC.

A preliminary meeting of the Soldiers' Aid Association was held last night with Alderman Stratton presiding. It was decided to obtain complete particulars of the Peterborough men who have returned home, their disabilities, former employment, financial condition, and other details preparatory to providing for these men. It is intended to approach all employers of labour to get their attitude on the question of giving preference to returned soldiers, and, if necessary, present openings for men who may be able to resume work. The Association will meet again next Friday night for the purpose of elaborating the groundwork. Mr. Stratton and Mr. Edgar Worth will be in Toronto next week on private business, and will visit the Commission office for additional information.

FIREMEN ARE OVERCOME.

DETROIT, Jan. 29.—A stubborn fire broke out in the Layes drug store of E. C. Kinsel, and before it was under control the damage was estimated at $100,000. Six firemen were overcome by the smoke and several women fainted on the crush outside the store.

BRITISH CASUALTIES OVER HALF MILLION

Premier Asquith Makes Written Reply to Request For Information

INACTIVITY IS REFLECTED

LONDON, Jan. 29.— Premier Asquith, in a written reply to a request for information, says that the total British casualties in all fields of operations up to Jan. 9 were 549,467, of which 24,122 were officers and 525,345 of other ranks.

The winter's inactivity on the fighting lines is reflected in the comparatively light losses of the British during the last few weeks. The previous official British report, made by Premier Asquith on December 24, gave casualties up to December 9 at 508,227, showing a loss in the intervening months of 21,240, or 636 daily. During the heaviest fighting British casualties have run far in excess of this average. They amounted to 60,000 in the battle of Loos alone, in a period of two weeks last fall. The monthly average from the beginning of the war is about 32,000.

The British losses in the month preceding the period covered in today's report were still smaller. The total from November 9 to December 9 was 17,997.

Summary of Casualties.

The casualties were distributed as follows:

Flanders and France—Killed —Officers, 5,138; other ranks, 98,130. Wounded.—Officers, 19,217; other ranks, 248,220. Missing — Officers 1,691; other ranks, 53,344. Total, Officers and men, 400,510.

Dardanelles —Killed —Officers, 1,745; other ranks, 26,455. Wounded —Officers 3,143; other ranks, 74,952. Missing — Officers, 283; other ranks, 10,901. Total, officers and men, 117,840.

Other fronts — Killed — Officers, 918; other ranks 11,759. Wounded —Officers, 816; other ranks, 15,165. Missing —Officers 101; other ranks, 2,656. Total officers and men, 31,408.

Grand Total, 549,467.

WORK OF THE I.C.S.

The I.C.S. is doing more than making skilled brain workers to direct industries. Its representatives are working everywhere, inducing men to give up idleness and spend spare time in study. It takes the careless off the street and out of the saloon. By preventing waste of money on drink and useless pleasures, the I.C.S. puts clothes on the back and food in the mouths of wives and children. It inspires to self-denial, concentration, and self-reliance, and makes forceful men, who do things.

German Was Glad To Be Arrested

His Father and Tree Brothers Have Already Been Killed in the War.

ST. JOHN, N.B., Jan. 29.—Herman Fulkandort and William Warran were taken from St. John to the internment camp at Amherst. They are Germans who were employed as stewards on the American ocean-going tug Ramos, formerly the Tabosco, of New York.

Fulkandort said he was glad to be arrested, and would much sooner remain in prison in Canada until after the war than return to Germany. He said he came from a village in Saxony and his father and three brothers had already been killed. Out of the population of his village every man between 18 and 45 years of age had been at the front and he himself had been called for. Warran had little to say except that he felt sure Germany would win.

NO MEDICINE TO EQUAL BAY'S OWN TABLETS

Mrs. E. Cutler, St. Lazare, Man., writes:—"I have used Baby's Own Tablets for the past ten years for my five children and can truthfully say there is no medicine to equal them." The Tablets regulate the bowels and stomach, cure constipation and indigestion, expel worms and make teething easy. They are sold by medicine dealers or by mail at 25 cents a box from The Dr. Williams Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

Liner Battered By Pumice Stone From Volcanic Outbreak

SAN FRANCISCO, Jan. 29.—Pumice stone, presumably from a submarine disturbance were mixed with the waves which battered the Oceanic Steamship company's liner Sierra during a hurricane, three days out from Sydney, N.S.W., according to a report made by the captain of the steamer.

Captain Kongban said that a few hours before leaving Sydney, Jan 6, it was reported to him that seismographs there registered violent disturbances at sea.

The Sierra, he said, must have passed over the seat of the volcanic outbreak. For hours the ship was in a sea of pumice, pieces varying in size from a marble to a hat being thrown on deck by the waves.

Dog Saves 26 in Burning Hotel

Fox Terrier Deserts Her Puppies to Raise Alarm at Master's Door.

PITTSBURG, Pa. Wednesday, Jan. 26.—Forgetting her puppies, three weeks old, in her fidelity to her master, Ivy, a fox terrier probably saved twenty-six persons in the Terminal Hotel from suffocation.

A watchman at the hotel went to an upstairs room at two o'clock this morning for a short nap. Soon after four o'clock he was awakened by the barks of the fox terrier, running back and forth through the upper halls, seeking her master.

The barking of the terrier awakened those in the hotel among whom were fourteen chorus girls clad only in their night robes. All were rescued but not until two girls had been overcome by smoke.

SPRING PLOUGHING RECORD IS MADE.

ST. CATHARINES, Jan. 29.—What is almost a record in early spring ploughing is that of W. Harris, a farmer near here, who started in Thursday, and is hoping the present weather will hold out long enough to enable him to compelte this portion of the spring's work before the winter sets in again.

TORONTO SAVINGS AND LOAN COMPANY

ANNUAL GENERAL MEETING

The Annual General Meeting of the Shareholders of the Toronto Savings and Loan Company was held at the Head Office of the Company, 437 George Street, Peterborough, on Friday, the 28th day of January, 1916, at 2 o'clock p. m.

DIRECTORS' REPORT

The Directors submit herewith their Thirty-First Annual Report showing the result of the business for the past year, accompanied by the Balance Sheet to the 31st December, 1915.

After payment of interest on Deposits and Debentures, and all expenses of management, there remain net earnings amounting to $141,668.66, which, together with the balance brought forward in Profit and Loss Account from the year 1914 of $95,993.12, makes a total of $237,661.78, which amount has been disposed of in the following manner:

(1)	By payment of Four Quarterly Dividends at the rate of 10% for the year, amounting to	$100,000.00
(2)	By Transfer to Reserve Fund	50,000.00
(3)	By amount carried forward to Profit and Loss Account	87,661.78
		$237,661.78

The above addition to the Reserve Fund increases that account to $900,000.00 making it now 90% of the present Paid-up Capital.

All payments maturing during the year on the Company's investments have been satisfactorily met, and the rentals from the property owned by the Company have also been promptly paid. The books, accounts and securities of the Company have been carefully examined by the Auditors, and their Report is attached to the Financial Statement.

trench and in about five minutes I almost stumbled over a man—quite a little fellow. I bet I was a great deal more surprised to see a Scotch cap instead of a steel helmet than you will be to hear about it. It goes hard with an Irishman to ask guidance from a Scotchman in war, but believe me I did not think twice about asking him the way. I returned to my companion, who was by this time cold in more places than his feet, and we ran across country to our trench.

Say, I think Britain is crazy to allow the U. S. to supply Germany with ammunition. We can tell the American shells by two means. One—about one out of four goes "blind"—(that is does not explode); and two, by the driving band. I wonder if the U. S. has anything to do with the manufacture of the gas which the Huns sent over here a short time ago, or perhaps he leaves that to the coarser rabble while specialising in such refined implements of death as explosive bullets? I don't want to be hard on Uncle Sam, but I think it's time Britain saw that any nation which countenances such actions as Germany carries out every day will one day be as bad herself.

There's a law that any person refusing to assist a necessary a policeman arresting a law breaker, is guilty of an offence and subject to imprisonment or fine. Yet here is the U. S. not only refusing to punish but actually aiding and abetting a culprit who has broken all laws, human and Divine. Sometimes Britain makes me tired—but oh, I forgot the censor!

On Wednesday last I was out laying a wire and on the way passed a once peaceful village—and it is still peaceful, but with the peace of death. Not a single house was whole. Everywhere was the stench of ruins. The church was a mass of stone battered by scores of shells. Graves had been torn open by shells. Household utensils of all kinds were scattered among the debris. I noticed on the ruined wall of the church the remains of a crucifix. The cross was entire—not a piece gone, but the figure of Christ had been broken off—probably shattered by a German shell.

You can judge of the good time we have when I tell you of the many uses to which my knife has been put since I received it in England. It has cut cheese, meat, beacon, fruit, wood, string, telephone wire and leather; has sharpened numerous pencils; has spread butter and jam, sliced potatoes, turnips, carrots and onions, has been used as a ground for my phone, and last but not least, I used it once to dig my foot out of a trench where I was caught by a piece of timber. This is all with one blade. We are alright just now, but for how long.

I am sending a silk handkerchief on which all the boys of the telephone staff have signed their names. I call them boys, but half a dozen of them are married so I suppose are entitled to be addressed as men.

I had quite an entertaining letter from my friend of the G.T.R. About a year ago he delivered a speech in the A. S. K class on "Hard Times. Their Cause, Effect and Cure," and I was thinking of writing to him to ask for a paper explaining more fully the "cure." We know alright the cause and effect—especially the latter.

I don't know how on earth I'll work when I get home. This is a great life—6 hours' work out of 24—plenty of travelling, and the beautiful sights — including hundreds of soldiers in their lovely uniforms. I always did like seeing the soldiers march past, didn't you?

Say, since writing the above I have received two parcels from Canada, and one from Belfast. The notepaper and pencils are just what I want. I am also glad of the newspapers. I notice one of those you sent me last is decorated with a photo of a friend of mine now in England on active service.

Now I will close this letter and sleep—I am already "in bed"—meaning on the softest place I can find on a board floor. I sleep better here and rise more refreshed than I ever remember at home.

I start on another journey to the trench the day after to-morrow so shall post this to-morrow.

Captain Hill is, I believe, S.M. somewhere in Flanders.

Remember me to all my friends.

Your loving son,

JACK.

P.S.—I do not think I have anything in this I should not have, but in case of accidental breaches of rules I am sending to base censor instead of direct to you.

Say I just have to add a few lines. This is the 7th at 6.40 a.m. A few minutes ago I came on duty and heard our call almost immediately. Is Heron there? I shouted "yes," and back came "Hold the line, Nicky Martin wants to speak to him." Say I nearly fell off the chair. Clayton Martin worked in the G.T.R. office with me for nearly a year...but he left in January last. Clayton is coming to see me to-night. He is in the trench to which I was going when I saw the aeroplane. A few weeks ago I used to O.K. his battalion every half hour and was perhaps talking to him without knowing it.

JACK.

"WITH THE SKY PILOT ON THE FRONTIER"

Subject of Address to be Given by Supt. of Church Camp Missions at St. Luke's Church on Wednesday Evening Next

Mr. J. M. McCormick, Superintendent of the Church Camp Mission, in connection with the "Church of England, will give an address in the Sunday School Hall of St. Luke's Church on Wednesday evening next. His subject will be "With the Sky Pilot on the Frontier," and it will be illustrated with lantern views. Mr. McCormick is an able and eloquent speaker, and all are invited to hear him. Referring to his lecture a recent press notice says:

"St. John's parish hall, Norway, was filled to capacity last Wednesday when Mr. J. Miller McCormick, superintendent of the Church Camp Mission, delivered a lecture entitled "With the Sky Pilot on the Frontier," to the members of St. John's A.Y.P.A. The lecture was illustrated by many lantern views depicting scenes in lumber, construction and mining camps from coast to coast in Canada. The speaker vividly described life in the camps and told of the work done by the M.S.C.C. in the centres."

Roads and Bridges Committee Outlines its Work For the Year—Special Committee to Consider New Highways Act—Number of Bridges to be Inspected

BRIDGES ASSUMED AS USUAL

The report of the Roads and Bridges Committee was passed at this morning's session of the County Council, as follows:

That Messrs. McKee and Crough be authorized to procure material necessary for repairs to Chemong bridge.

That Messrs. Welsh, Darling, Brown, Squire and Anderson inspect Hare's bridge with power to act as to rebuilding.

That the Reeves of the municipalities be respectively commissioners for the expenditure of any county monies appropriated for roads or bridges in their respective municipalities, and that where money is voted towards a road or bridge on the boundary between any municipalities the Reeves thereof shall act in conjunction with each other.

That such commissioners be empowered to make such repairs from time to time as they shall deem necessary upon bridges or approaches of the county in their respective municipalities, and that the Treasurer pay therefore upon the certificate of such commissioners, but where such repairs are likely to exceed $100.00 the commissioner shall first obtain the approval of the Reeve of an adjoining municipality.

That the sum of $100 be granted to Burleigh and Anstruther, Galway and Cavendish, Chandos, Harvey and Belmont and Methuen, each.

That the committee named to inspect Hare's bridge, also visit Peter's bridge at Norwood, with power to act.

That Messrs. Coben, Walsh and Crough inspect floats prior to ordering any payment thereof.

That the painting of Otonabee bridges be left in the hands of Anderson and Eason.

That painting of Young's Point bridge be left in the hands of Mr. Walsh and Mr. McKee.

That Messrs. Welsh, and McKee, and Fitzgerald inspect Lakefield bridge with power to act.

That the matter of transfer to the Red Cross purposes re Harvey road grant of 1915 be approved.

That the Committee appointed to inspect Hare's bridge and Peter's bridge, adding Messrs. Fennel and Ketchen, inspect Matheson's bridge, Belmont; to report at June session.

That the matter of acting upon assumption of bridges be dealt with in future, as has been done in the past.

That Messrs. Walsh, Darling, Anderson, Brown, McKee, McIntosh and Crough be a special committee to ascertain what steps should be taken re taking advantage of the Highways' Act. Mr. Anderson to be chairman of such committee.

That all grants to municipalities save those already made be cut out for 1916.

That Robson's bridge be inspected by the Hare's bridge committee, with power to act.

That $100 be granted to Ennismore subject to inspection of the Warden and Mr Walsh, on condition that the Provincial Government expends $200.

That Norwood be granted $100 providing the Provincial Government grants $200, to be expended on the Peterborough Road.

That the County contribute 40 per cent of the total cost of a bridge at the end of the street railway adjoining Otonabee, providing the balance is provided from other sources, and that the County assume the maintenance of such bridge, and that Messrs. Darling, Robson, Eason, Anderson, Fitzgerald and McIntosh act as a committee to have this matter carried into effect.

A FRIGHTFUL DEATH! SUFFOCATED IN ASTHMA ATTACK

Every sufferer from asthma knows the terror, the abject fear that overcomes them when struggling for breath. The old fashioned remedies may relieve, but never cure. Best results come from Catarrhozone, which cures asthma after hope is abandoned. It's because Catarrhozone kills the asthma germ that it cures. Choking spells and labored breathing are relieved, suffocating sensations and loss of breath are cured. Every trace of asthma is driven from the system, and even old chronics experience immediate relief and lasting cure. Equally good for bronchitis, throat trouble and catarrh. The large one dollar outfit includes the inhaler and lasts two months, sold by all dealers or from the Catarrhozone Co., Kingston, Canada.

TRANSFER OF GERMAN VESSEL APPROVED.

LONDON, Jan. 29.— Lord Robert Cecil, Parliamentary Under Secretary for Foreign Affairs, acknowledged in the Commons that the Government had approved transfer of the German vessel Puralight to the Standard Oil Company. Consent had been given as part of an agreement with the company, upon which certain restrictions have been placed in respect of exportation of lubricants, paraffin and wax to neutral countries.

Brought In Gunmen Says Bandit Leader

Special to The Examiner:

CHICAGO, Jan. 29.—How New York gunmen have been imported to Chicago to terrorise a new police administration, was told to-day in a signed confession by Eddie Mack, Debanoir leader of the auto bandits who robbed Jake Stahl's Washington Park National Bank Thursday of $15,516.

With complete confessions from Mack and two others of the five bandits in their possession, State Attorney Hoyne, Police Chief Healy and Detective Chief Hunt, to-day launched a probe of police intrigue that may rival the Becker case.

"It is common knowledge," Mack told the State Attorney, "that a gang of gunsters and stickups have been imported from New York. The men behind the gang are politicians and policemen.

"TWIN BEDS"

When Selwyn and Company, sponsors for "Within the Law," "Under Fire," 'Rolling Stones," "The Show Shop," and "The Lie," present "Twin Beds," the laugh festival by Margaret Mayo and Salisbury Field, at "The Grand," next Thursday, Feb. 3, they bring with it the endorsement of a run of precisely fifty-two weeks in New York, where the rollicking farce of partment house life kept crowded houses in gales of laughter in the record run of last season.

"Twin Beds" is, first a clean farce, second, an overwhelmingly amusing one, and last, a farce with more than mere situation to recommend it, thick set as it is with the best of these. It has characterisation of the sort that made Margaret Mayo famous in "Baby Mine," and, before that, in "Polly of the Circus," and its group of amusing people, entangling themselves on calamity in their misguided efforts to escape each other and all future mention of neighbourliness, are all finely drawn types which exist in every community, and are recognizable by all their fellows.

The fact that their distresses arise from a too great proximity in an apartment house provided merely the skeleton for the action. Harry Hawkins and his bride, Blanche, a little lady too fond of making stray acquaintances, live below Signor and Signora Monti, he a great Italian tenor, and she his watchful wife, with plenty of reason for watching; and, above the Larkinses, also newly married, he a model husband, and she too suspicious to believe in the paragon she has captured. Every one of these six people is funny in a different way—distinctively his own. Particularly will audiences welcome Signora Monti, whose efforts to keep her tenor in the straight and narrow way are punctuated by lines of surprising and wonderful slang.

Selwyn and Company are sending the precise duplicate of the original highly successful New York production for the presentation of Twin Beds here, and a finely balanced cast which includes Ileen Poe, Adrian H Rosley, Hamilton Mott, Kathryn Mills, Margaret Allen and Thos. H Manning.

Ford Will Enlarge Plant

$10,000,000 Addition to Make it Thrice its Present Size.

DETROIT, Jan. 29.—According to official announcement made here to-day by Frank L. Klingensmith, Vice President and Treasurer of the Ford Company, the present plant in Highland Park is to be made three times its size. Work on the new buildings will be begun in thirty days.

The cost of the additions, it is estimated, may reach $10,000,000. This will be exclusive of the price of the sixty-five acre site, which is north of the terminal railroad tracks on Woodward Avenue.

"The plans for the buildings are being prepared and will be in the hands of the contractors soon," said Klingensmith. "The first building to be constructed will be almost a duplicate of the six-storey addition erected two years ago."

The output of the company, according to Mr. Klingensmith, will be trebled when the additions are finished. Eventually the company will employ 75,000 to 100,000 men.

The company already has announced its intention to produce 500,000 cars in 1916, and the number of employees at present is above 20,000.

Officials of Highland Park are already figuring to ascertain what their village will get out of the addition to the taxable property. They estimate that when the extensions are made the municipality will draw $301,000 a year from the Ford Company.

FARM HELP IS SCARCE.

KINGSTON, Ont., Jan. 9.—There is a scarcity of farm help in this district. George Hunter, immigration agent, is besieged with applications. It is feared the difficulty with spring seeding will be serious, so many experienced men having gone overseas.

A LUMBERMAN'S OPINION.

"I was troubled with palpitation of the heart and nervousness," writes Wm. Pritchard, Lumber Inspector, Lansdowne Mills, Ont., "and used Dr. Chase's Nerve Food with very good results, as my whole system was strengthened and built up. Dr. Chase's Nerve Food forms new, rich blood and restores the feeble wasted nerve cells."

Concentrated Economy

The beef of a whole bullock is required to make a dozen bottles of Bovril. You can safely reduce butchers' bills if you use Bovril in soups and stews. But—it must be Bovril, in the Bovril bottle. No substitute will do. The strength and nourishment of Bovril cannot be compressed into cheap cubes.

WHERE TO GO FOR ADVICE

"If I wanted to become a tramp I would seek information and advice from the most successful tramp I could find. If I wanted to become a failure I would seek advice from men that have never succeeded. If I wanted to succeed in all things, I would look about me for those that are succeeding, and do as they have done."

—Joseph Marshall Wade.

There is some very sensible advice from a distinguished man. Many an ambitious man has accomplished the ruination of his career by selecting as his advisor some lazy, miserable failure. That kind of a man is always willing to condemn anything that is good. "Misery loves company," says the old adage. The man too lazy to study and make something of himself will always advise others not to study, for he does not want to see them do better than himself.

If you want advice from someone about taking a course with the I.C.S. don't ask it of some man who has never taken a course, and who as a result of his lack of education has never been able to earn a decent living, don't ask it of some student who has merely enrolled—then laid his Instruction Papers away on a shelf to gather dust and cobwebs because he was too lazy to study them.

In short, as Mr. Wade says, don't ask advice of a failure. Seek the advice of some successful student. We have a book giving the names and addresses of over one hundred thousand successful I.C.S. students. We can if necessary, refer you to plenty of successes to whom you can go for advice. No need to seek the bad and worthless counsel of those in the "misery-loves-company" class. They will do all they can to keep you down with them, if you will let them.

Saves Woman's Life By Operation With Knife and Spoons

ELKINS, W. Va., Jan. 29.—With two tin tea spoons, a pocket knife and a piece of rubber tubing as his instruments Dr. H. W. Daniel of the Elkins hospital performed an operation on a woman apparently dying of diphtheria and saved her life, it was learned to-day. Called to the mountain home of Mrs. Thurman Coberly, the doctor found the woman unconscious.

Having no surgical instruments with him and realizing that death was near he made an incision in the woman's wind pipe with his knife and using the teaspoon bent double as retractors, inserted the rubber tube.

Respiration was restored and within a few hours the patient regained consciousness and it is said to-day that her recovery is expected.

Keep Dollar Day in mind it will be the best yet.

After the War?

Taking up the question in a more serious mood I enter on a slight forecast of some of the possible results. I must however, begin with the preliminary observations that nobody can speak with the least approach to definitiveness on a subject so remote and so uncertain. "God knows", said a prominent Unionist minister, to me, where we shall be or what we shall think. We shall have to revise our attitude to every subject under the sun."

This uncertainty as to the future is very much due to the feeling of national solidarity which the war has produced. The spectacle of the highest aristocrat starving, shivering, dying by the side of the miner or the docker; of the Irish of Scotch or Welsh soldier coming at the critical moment to the rescue of the English or vice versa; of the Orange Protestant on the best of terms in the same trench with the Catholic Nationalist—all of these things have helped to obliterate many of the divisions which for centuries have divided races and creeds and classes in Britain. This mingling of formerly opposing factors on the battlefield is augmented and symbolized by the coalition government, which has almost obliterated party spirit. It sound even still curious to my ears to hear myself addressed by Lord Robert Cecil, one of the most eager and passionate of the strictest school of Tories, and it is with a start that I see some of the stoutest Tories sitting immediately behind the most prominent Liberal leaders and "cheering", to use the English phrase, their work for them.

The Men From Overseas.

Further this topsy-turvy world has been made even more topsy-turvy by the extraordinary response of the Empire to the demands of the Motherland. You now knock up against an Australian, a Canadian or a New Zealander wherever you go. You find them in hotels dining side by side with Englishmen or Scotchmen or Irishmen. You hear their somewhat unfamiliar accent in the streets; you see many of them on crutches and limping, taking tea in the House of Commons or wandering through our picture galleries. Clubs especially for their benefit have been created with lightning rapidity and abound in good will. They call England "home" and they literally have found it a home, affectionate, hospitable and sympathetic.

The Dominions and Ttriff Reform.

I take up the suggestion made by this last statement first as forecasting one of the great chances in point of view which must come aftes the war; and that is a closer knitting of the bonds between the Dominions and the Mother country. This tendency may take either of two directions. The tariff reformers are still as eager as ever to find the path to closer ties in free trade within the Empire, or what the Germans call a "Zollverein". This scheme necessarily involves tariffs against countries outside the Empire, and of course, primarily against Germany. The feeling against Germany is of course, so fierce that any scheme to make war on her trade it bound to find strong acceptance among large sections of the people and to that extent the cause of tariff reform has been enormously strengthened. On the other hand, Liberal free traders—of whom I myself am one—see in any such proposals a deadly blow at the fiscal system which in our opinion, has made Great Britain reach so powerful a position among the commercial nations of the world.

A second path toward Imperial union, in which all parties will probably agree is some form of Imperial Federation. The movement for Imperial Federation has been steadily making headway, though rather silently, slowly and almost invisibly for several years. I remember once meeting a couple of young Orange Tories in the city of Toronto the day after I had made a speech on Home Rule. I had put Home Rule not as an isolated policy, but as part of a general scheme of the devolution of local affairs from Imperial affairs. My two friends said they agreed with every word I had said. But the possibility of a concordat on these lines were destroyed by the violent movement in Ulster, to which the name of Sir Edward Carson was added. Yet it did not die. Towards the close of the struggle, when every man not carried away by party passion, looked with horror on the perilous future, the idea of the Imperial Federation once more took hold of many minds in all parties. Strong Imperialist Federationists in the Liberal ranks got into touch with men of the same way of thinking on the Unionist side. The Liberationists were able to count at least a hundred Unionist members among the supporters of their idea. Meetings, interviews, negotiations were steadily going on between the two sections and possibly if it had not been for the war they might have hammered out a scheme which would have found a method of escape on the Ulster question, with the assent of all parties. With the war, however, and the necessity of putting the Home Rule bill in its original form on the statute book, these hopes had to vanish.

War Strengthens Federation Idea.

Since the war the idea has once more come to the front, and of course has been enormously strengthened by the gigantic support given to all such ideas by the actions of the Dominions and by the splendid bravery and magnificient services of their men on the battlefield. The idea and the programme are still of course vague. Mr. J. H. Morgan, a law professor in one of our greatest London colleges, has been trying to work the idea out in its details. Another gentleman who has been a student of politics for many years has gone down to an isolated house in a remote country district, and is hammering out a scheme there which will be presented in due time.

I initiated a debate on the subject during one of the sittings of Parliament, and my views were backed very strongly by Mr. Mackinder, a very able Unionist member for Glasgow who has been a professor most of his life and is a man of large knowledge and wide outlook. I must leave that part of the new future at this point for the present. Though we are all thinking of Imperial Federation, we at this moment are compelled to concentrate our minds so much on the conduct of the war, that it is impossible to work out, to speak or even to think of any other subject. But the idea is germinating, and I have a little doubt that it will have to be broached almost immediately after the war is over. Probably a project which was very strongly urged in the closing days of the Home Rule struggles—namely, appointing a Royal commission with plenary powers and bound to report within a definite period—two years was the time mentioned—will be carried out, and to this will be delegated the duty of laying a well thought-out and thoroughly complete scheme before Parliament. I have no doubt that when the scheme does come it will be considered by all parties in a more impartial spirit than was possible in the days before the war.

First Step Already Taken.

I may say that Professor Morgan rather points to a unification of executive than of Parliaments; that unification has already begun. The first step was taken when there was an Imperial Council appointed some years ago. That Council, though it did most of its work in private, had important results. One of the first of its achievements which had far reaching consequences was that the Premiers of the Imperial Dominions were given access to all the military and naval information at the disposal of the Imperial authorities, were thus brought into the ark of the covenant and were made acquainted with the military and naval dangers and with all the method and means adopted to confront them, which had been elaborated by the great soldiers and sailors of the home country. Of course th Dominion ministers were perfectly entitled to this confidence, but it did produce a new feeling in their minds when they were thus taken into our most sacred councils.

Another step in advance was the admission of Sir Robert Borden the Prime Minister of the Dominion of Canada, to a meeting of the cabinet council, and this fact announced in the papers produced an immense impression. The third step was taken when Mr. Harcourt, as secretary for the Colonies, announced that when the terms of peace came to be discussed the rulers of our Dominions would be consulted and would have a voice in declaring what these terms should be. These steps, momentous and important, lead inevitably to other and larger advances. I can therefore prophesy with some confidence that Imperial federation is on the march, and will pass in not many years from now, from an ideal and a dream to a practical realization.

May Have Elected Senate.

Finally these steps will probably lead to a transformation, both of the composition as well as of the duties of the Imperial Parliament. I do not think that any Unionist now is disposed to stand very sternly by the old composition of the House of Lords. Indeed, when the Parliament Act was under discussion, the Unionist opposition produced the reform of the House of Lords as its counter proposition. That plan could not be considered at the moment because of the fierceness of the Irish struggle. It will come up again, however, and it may be that an entirely elective Senate may be substituted for the House of Lords, or possibly a Senate partly elected and partly composed of some of the old aristocracy may be substituted. Anyhow I do not think it will be possible that the House of Lords will be retained in its present shape. The House of Commons, on the other hand, may be broken up into four local assemblies and converted entirely into a parliament dealing only with Imperial affairs.

NONTHLY MEETING OF COURT CHEMONG

The New Court Deputy Was Presented With His High Court Commissions

The semi-monthly meeting of Court Chemong 530. Independent Order of Foresters, was held in the W. O. W. Hall on Thursday evening. In the unavoidable absence of Bro. W. G. McKee, C.R., the meeting was presided over by Bro. D. Wallace, P.C.R. The new Court Deputy, Bro. A. H. Webb, was presented with his High Court commission. The presentation was made by Bro. G. W. Spring, D.S.C.R., assisted by Bro. W. Browe, C. T. Letters were read from Bro. G. M. Farrington, H.C.R., Picton Ont., and Bro. G. L. Dickson, H.S., Manotick, Ont., congratulating Bro. Webb on his appointment. Bro. Webb in accepting made an eloquent and suitable response.

Y.M.C.A. Work Among The Canuck Boys At Front

Providing entertainment for Canadian soldiers near the trenches in an old barn at night, without heat or light, is one of the interesting experiences of a Y.M.C.A. officer as related in a letter just received from France.

"Recently a colonel sent in a request for a night's entertainment for his men, but added that it might be wise to send someone in advance to view his accommodation, as all he had was an old barn," he writes. "We found the officers and all the men assembled in an old barn, and although without heat or light we had a merry evening. The piles of last year's straw served as desirable seats for a large number, the lofts made a serviceable gallery, while the over head beams were quite crowded with those who wanted unobstructed views. The curtain was suspended across the cobwebs and the gatheacope machine mounted on a couple of bully beef boxes, while the pramerphone was honoured with a small table borrowed from a farm house.

"No audience at a famous theatre could have enjoyed the evening better than these chaps. When the phonograph played pieces they knew they all joined in, and several times during the evening they entertained the barn with selections that were not known when the First Division left Canada. Eight reels of films were shown and when at the close of the evening the Colonel called for cheers for the Y.M.C.A. they made the rafters ring, and an officer from the column who accompanied me, said: 'The 'Y' sure has a place in the hearts of these men.'

"Five nights a week are spent in this way and so far the column have learned me a car so that these places can be reached. They average eight miles from the central 'Y.'

"Recently I asked an officer from an Ontario camp to accompany me on one of these nights and entertain the smaking crowd he gladly did. At the close of the evening he said: 'Do you know, the last time I was at the 'Y' they put me out for using bad language and since I have run through six films and haven't sworn once.

Nought Shall Make Us Rue, For Britain To Herself Is True

This is a sad day for Germany. For weeks the tone of the German press has shown how great were the hopes that the Huns were building upon the activities of Socialists in Great Britain in opposition to the Government's compulsory service bill. They had hoped to see Great Britain hopelessly divided upon the issue, the Government defeated, the hands of the British War Office tied, and the Entente Allies given to understand that they could expect no more help from Britain. But the British workingmen have crushed all these hopes at one swoop. At the great Labor conference in England two votes were passed supporting the Government in the measures taken to bring all the available manhood of the country into the army. One of these votes was passed by a majority of nearly one million votes; the second one was passed by a majority of over one and a half million votes.

This overwhelming testimony of the support of British labor in the determination to prosecute the war to the bitter end and to the utmost of the country's available resources is the most amazing expression of the popular will that has yet been given by any of the belligerent countries. It comes with all the more crushing force because of the Socialistic campaign which preceded it—a campaign which had raised doubts as to whether the heart of modern Britain was what it was when the immortal bard wrote:

Come the three corners of the world in arms,
And we shall shock them. Nought shall make us rue
If England to itself do rest but true.

A mightier war than Shakespeare dreamed of when he wrote these words has come, and in the supreme test England to itself is true—true to her breed, to her traditions, to that supreme spirit which has made the Union Jack the symbol the world over for liberty and justice. Our soldiers in the field will fight better because of yesterday's vote by the Labor party; our Allies will face the great tasks before them with renewed courage because of it; and Canada and the other Overseas Dominions will consecrate themselves anew to the fight because of it. As for Germany, she knows at last the full meaning of the quiet, deadly perseverance of Britain. Like some vast, resistless, elemented force, the spirit of Britain is focussed implacably on the one supreme task. It is a sad day for Germany.

Freight Question Getting Worse

Foodstuffs Are Held up as a Result The Market Situation

For still another week the feature of the grocery market and a change which will interest both retailer and housekeeper is the advance in potatoes. Delawares are up another 10 cents a bag and market on British Columbia and Ontario potatoes is still very firm with probable advances in sight. There is no other reason for these advances except what we have stated before, simply poor crop and poor quality.

The situation in freights gets worse and worse as the days and weeks go on. It is becoming serious. Not only is the question for the shipper, who wishes to export goods to England, whether he can get boats or not, but also whether the space he has had reserved on the boat will remain with him. A good many exporters have found recently that although they had previously arranged space in freighters, this was cancelled summarily. The wharves at ocean ports are crowded with different foodstuffs, all awaiting transhipment to England, but all of which may get away in a week or may get away in two months and the latter is the likelier time. Largely on this account, price of Manitoba flour is up 20c. All grains are firm, and other advances may be expected. There were advances too, in good seed oats and in Ontario oats as well.

Foresight Question.

The freight question is also playing havoc with the tea market. Importers on this side cannot get their stuff through. An importer was telling us that some teas which were ordered by him in October, and which were ready at the dock there to come over to Canada, are just arriving this week. That is a delay of practically four months. Not only is this a serious inconvenience to the importer and his customers and to the public at large simply by reason of delay, but also the importer has to pay interest and of course war risks and insurance are all higher. The freight question too, is one big factor in spice market, inasmuch as many lines come from the far East. The worst of it is there does not seem to be anything in outlook at present which would lead one to suppose that the congestion will be relieved and that freights will come forward more quickly and more frequently.

In fact, the reverse is the case. So far from there being more boats at liberty, soon, the Governments of the warring nations are likely at any minute to withdraw such boats as there are at present being used for commercial purposes. This is one big reason why the retailer is paying higher prices and therefore the consumer paying higher prices, and it is also a cause for impatience on the part of the retailer who can't get the goods forward from the manufacturer which he has ordered. The only thing to do is to "grin and bear it." It is one of the misfortunes of war and as such has to be reckoned with and allowed for.

New-laid eggs are coming forward more plentiful now and this is doubtless to be attributed to the milder weather which obtained this week. The question of new egg supply is simply a question of weather. If this premature mildness is going to continue, doubtless new-laid eggs will be more plentiful from now on. If on the other hand it is only a sudden mild snap and will be succeeded by colder weather again, then new-laids may be reckoned to be higher.

ANNUAL MEETING

Officers Elected by the Cheerful Worker's Bible Class

The Cheerful Workers' Bible class of St. James' Sunday school held their annual business meeting at the church on Thursday night, Jan. 27th. After the secretary-treasurer's report, which showed that the class had had a most successful year, the following officers were elected for the year:

Teacher—Mrs. Welbourn.
President—Miss A. Barrie.
Vice-Pres.—Mrs. Frys.
Sec.-Treas.—Mrs. C. Hill.
Asst. Sec.—Mrs. B. Mahood.

Different committees were formed and each member given work to do, after which the members enjoyed a lunch served by the social committee of which Mrs. W. Wright was convener.

Saturday Market Quotations

Pork and Beef Plentiful—Butter Remains Firm—Eggs Decline—Fresh Fish From Lake Ontario—Potatoes Two Dollars

The bad condition of the roads was responsible for a smaller market than usual this morning, and as a result the various products of the farm were very quickly snapped up, causing prices to stiffen up a little.

The mild weather of the last few days brought considerable quantities of apples out of their hiding, and this morning's offerings were quite numerous. Tallman Sweets sold for $1.00 per bag or $3.25 a barrel, Snitlowers for $2.00 a bag, Northern Spies 50 cents a peck, $2.00 a bag or $4.50 a barrel, Russets $1.50 a bag, York Imperials $4.00 a barrel and Greenings $4.00 a barrel.

Vegetables were somewhat scarce. Carrots sold at 15c. a peck, beets 15c, onions 25c., parsnips 15c., potatoes $2.00 a bag.

Two loads of mixed wood in four foot lengths brought $4.00 to $4.50.

Live hens were quoted at $1.00 each.

Pork sold at 14c., front quarter, and 15c. hind quarters. Beef brought 10 and 12 cents. Two vendors had lamb, one selling at 14 and 16, the other 18 and 20 cents.

Ladders were on sale at 20 cents a foot.

Basket Section.

Eggs were quoted all the way from 35 to 38 cents, the majority at 35 cents.

One lone turkey weighing 15 1-2 lbs., was held at $3.75.

Oranges brought 30 to 50 cents a dozen, lemons 25 cents and grape fruit three for a quarter.

Celery was 15 cents a bunch.

The ladies of the Canadian Kitchener League had samples of home-made cooking for sale, the proceeds to be devoted to the purchase of wool for socks for our boys in the trenches.

CARDINAL TO LEAVE ROME.

ROME, Jan. 29.—Cardinal Mercier, Primate of Belgium, who has been in Rome for some time, paid a formal visit to the Vatican to-day to take leave of Pope Benedict.

Would Wake Up With Smothering Spells.

There is nothing that brings with it such a fear of impending death as to wake up in the night with that awful sense of smothering. The terrible smothering, choking up and sinking feeling is caused by the heart and nerves being in a deranged condition, and calls for prompt relief.

Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills are the only remedy that can give prompt relief and effect a complete cure in all cases of such severity.

They strengthen and invigorate the heart, tone up the nervous system, and the trouble which is the cause of so much fear and anxiety becomes a thing of the past.

Mrs. Wm. McElwain, Temperance Vale, N.B., writes: "I am not much of a believer in medicines, but I must say Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills are all right. Some years ago I was troubled with smothering spells. In the night I would be seized asleep, but would wake up with my breath all gone, and think I would never get it back again. I was telling a friend of my trouble, and he advised me to use Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills. He also gave me a box which I tried, and I had only taken a few of them when I could sleep all night without any trouble. I did not finish the box until some years later, when I felt my trouble coming back. I took the rest and they have cured me entirely."

Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills are 50c. per box, 3 boxes for $1.25, at all dealers or mailed direct by The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

Why Dr. Jackson Objects to Bran Gems.

They are as unbalanced as white flour. They have little nutrition. They irritate and cause catarrh of the bowels, a worse condition than the constipation they are intended to relieve. Dr. Jackson's Roman Meal is a bran-containing food, but it also contains deodorized flaxseed, whose soothing properties counteract the irritant effects of the bran. It makes delicious porridge, pan cakes, gems, cakes, and bread. It nourishes better than meat. It prevents indigestion and positively relieves constipation or "money back." Ask your doctor. At all grocers, 10 cents and 25 cents.

Soldiers Laid Electrics Away By 5 to 3 In A Hard Battle

City Teams Clashed in a Lively Struggle at Brock St. Rink--Khaki Brigade Won Out in the Last Twenty Minutes

CLOSE ALL THE WAY

In a stubbornly fought battle that was in doubt until the last few minutes, the 93rd Battalion team defeated the Peterborough Electrics in an intermediate O.H.A. game at Brock St. Rink last night by 5 goals to 3. The even nature of the going is indicated by the period scores. At the end of the first session the tally was 2-2, and it remained there through the second period, and until a few minutes before the end of the struggle, when Blewett slipped in the tally that put the Soldiers in front. A funny incident marked the wind-up of the battle. There was a dispute over the time, the 93rd timer claiming that time was up, while the holder of the clock for the Electrics alleged that there was a minute to go. There was nothing for Referee Lawson Whitehead to do but split the difference and send the teams back for thirty seconds. A goal behind the Electrics threw six men up on the line in a dying effort to tie the game. Ketchum intercepted the puck, and with no one to beat but Legros, added another goal for the Soldiers.

It was a good game from the spectators' standpoint, closely fought and with lots of exciting incidents, but the hockey was all individual—there being little or no combination or team work, and every goal was scored by individual effort. There was little to choose between the teams on the play. Both were good as individuals, and until Blewett slipped in the winning goal in the dying stages the issue was always in doubt. Both teams lost glorious chances by failure to combine when in close.

For the 93rd, Harry Blewett, the sturdy right-wing player from Lakefield, was undoubtedly the star. He was always working and showed as much speed as any man on the ice, while his two long rushes for goals were bright features of the game. Ketchum on the other side of the rink also played useful hockey at all times. The centre-ice pair, Windsor, the former Cobalt Lake player, and Sexton, a newcomer from Halifax, were good in spots, but did not seem to be in shape. Widdifield played his usual star game in the nets, blocking a number of close-in shots in fine style.

Rose and Evans were the stars of the Electric team. The Junior captain was the best man on the ice in the first period, and until he was hurt early in the second session. He showed some of the prettiest stick-handling of the season in the early stages of the game. Evans was brilliant all through, tearing off some beautiful rushes. Legros was good in the nets, and he had to be as the Electric defence took lots of chance by playing up on the line, depending upon checking back to stave off the Soldiers.

93rd.	Electrics.
Goal
Widdifield	Legros
Defence
R. Montgomery	Spratt
Dupuy	F. Montgomery
Rover
Sexton	Evans
Centre
Windsor	Hamilton
Right Wing
Blewett	McMartin
Left Wing
Ketchum	Rose

The pace was fast from the start and Widdifield and Legros were both called upon to handle shots in the first few moments. The Soldiers were first to score when Ketchum hammered in a rebound after two minutes' play.

Hamilton drew a penalty for throwing Montgomery over his hip. The Soldiers were two up shortly afterwards when they secured a counter on a long shot by Sexton. The Electrics disputed the goal and the Soldier goal umpire was removed.

The Electrics started to come at this stage. Spratt got away for a nice rush up the side, and although the rubber was diverted behind the nets, Rose secured and slammed a goal past Widdifield.

For five minutes there was some brilliant hockey, and both goal-keepers tore off beautiful stops. Then Rose contributed the feature play of the night. Getting the rubber in the corner at his own end of the rink he dashed through the Electric forwards, skated around each of the Electric defence men in turn and slid the rubber past Widdifield. This tied the score, and when Evans, taking the puck from the face-off, dashed in and flipped a waist-high shot past Widdifield it looked rosy for the Electrics.

Blewett, however, duplicated the play by a rush down the side and a neat shot, and it was 3-3 at end of the period.

Neither team could find the nets in the second period, and the play was so even that when the teams took the ice for the last period there was nothing to indicate the final result. Fine work by both goal-keepers featured the session. The last period was a repetition of the second. For fifteen minutes the teams battled along until Blewett got away for another fine rush. His first shot was blocked, but he banged in the rebound and the Soldiers were in front. Electrics tried hard but could not even up. Then came the dispute over the time and the Soldiers' final goal.

Rose and Blewett were off for half the second period, when the former was put out of commission by getting hit on the knee with the puck.

The summary:

First Period.

1—93rd, Ketchum, 2 mins.
2—93rd, Sexton, 3 mins.
3—Electrics, Rose, 2 mins.
4—Electrics, Rose, 8 mins.
5—Electrics, Evans, 15 secs.
6—93rd, Blewett, 20 secs.

Second Period.

No score.

Third Period.

7—93rd, Blewett, 15 mins.
8—93rd, Ketchum, 3:45 mins.

STOVALL OF THE FEDERALS

George Stovall, "The Firebrand of the Feds.," is in New York, probably for the purpose of endeavouring to get a line on his baseball future. Under the baseball peace arrangements it appears that there is no longer much of a demand for firebrands, and George's friends are afraid that he may eventually be extinguished altogether.

It will be interesting to follow the career of the redoubtable George, and see what, if any, provision is made for him by his former employers, the Federal League magnates. If any man connected with the late, unlamented organization is entitled to the consideration of the folks who fostered the Feds, George is that man. He did more for the outlaws than any other individual, with the possible exception of Gilmore.

Joe Tinker, who is sometimes credited with having been responsible for the Feds, has landed in a nice job, but as a matter of fact Joe never did half as much work toward pushing the case of the third leaguers as Stovall. Naturally, this is no boost for George with the forces of organized baseball, but it should be remembered by his former employers, at least.

It was George who was up and about day in and day out grabbing players away from the other leagues. It was George who was dodging around in the minors snaring promising material ticketed for the American or National. It was Brother George who was the field missionary of the Feds generally, and for that reason the sense of gratitude of the late magnates is going to be put to a slight test when his case comes before them.

It is not likely that organized baseball will slay any fatted calves for George's benefit. Ever a stormy petrel of the game, George was persona non grata to a certain extent before the war broke out, and as a result of his efforts on behalf of the Feds he now stands about as well as a broken leg in magnatorial circles.

Tinker has ostensibly been forgiven, along with a number of other Feds, but so far George is still outside looking in. Organized baseball may owe him nothing, but it is a cinch that the Feds are in his debt.

EXCURSION TO COBOURG

The 93rd Battalion will run an excursion to Cobourg via a special G.T.R. train on Monday night, when they clash with the Lake Shore bunch. The band and nearly every member who is not on guard duty will accompany the soldiers.

Hot Race For The Intermediate Group

The Standing.

	Won	Lost	To play
93rd Batt.	4	1	1
Electrics	3	1	2
Cobourg	2	2	2
Campbellford	0	5	1

The defeat of the Electrics by the 93rd last night leaves the group race in an interesting condition. The soldier team, Electrics and Cobourg are all strictly in the running. Cobourg has lost two games, but they have to meet both Peterborough teams on their own ice, and they expect to take them both into camp. The soldiers have one game to play, in Cobourg, while the Electrics have the hardest task, meeting both Campbellford and Cobourg away from home. The 93rd visit Cobourg on Monday, and the Electrics play in Campbellford, so that Monday night's games will have a big effect on the standing. The soldiers will win the group if they can beat Cobourg and Tommy Moffatt's team stops the Electrics. On the other hand, if Cobourg and the Electrics win, Cobourg can get a three-cornered tie by beating the Electrics when they visit Cobourg.

HOCKEY

Mr. Donald Shook received a wire from Secretary Hewitt this morning, advising the Electrics of the fact that the postponed game with Cobourg would be played in that town on Wednesday night, next.

The City League will open on Thursday next with four teams participating. Mr. W. Breen has been secured as referee for the series.

Y. M. C. A. NEWS

We would like to express our sympathy to the spouse of Y.M.C.A. members who are suffering with la grippe and other kindred diseases. Every day gives us information regarding members who are afflicted. Apparently no one is spared. Our President, G. A. Gillespie, M.L.A., who has roomed temporarily at the Y.M.C.A., was confined to his room with the grippe for about six days. The general secretary was confined to his house with the grippe all last week. Mr. Frank Sherlock is confined to his room in the building with the same trouble. But cheer up, friends and members, spring is coming and the doctors' harvest will soon be over.

Mr. Business Man now is the time to connect yourself with a gymnasium class. We especially invite you to the class which meets on Monday and Thursday afternoon at 5.15. Healthful exercise will help you resist the ravages of disease.

Perhaps the best gymn. class meeting at the present time is the Jr. Employed boys who meet Monday and Thursday evenings from 7 to 8 o'clock. About twenty boys who were on the floor Thursday evening, and a livelier bunch of fellows we have never seen. We have the best corps of intermediate leaders this year that we have had in training for some years, and the friends of the Association who saw them in their recent exhibition will agree that these boys are developing very rapidly.

The wet weather has increased the attendance at the building and we are pleased to note that a good number of soldiers are accepting the "Y" invitation to use the social privileges. We have recently been requested by some of the enlisted men to help them out in their personal correspondence and aid them in other little ways. We cannot emphasize too strongly to enlisted men the fact that we desire to be of service in any way possible.

Sheriff Hall inspected the changes made in our building on the 27th, and incidently made a generous cash contribution to our work. Mr. Hall is a charter member of the Association being connected with the local Y.M.C.A. for over 40 years. He gave us some very interesting accounts of the early days and also his very hearty approval to the changes which have been made in our building and equipment as well as the social features that have been adopted by the Association in the past few years which are now past the experimental stage and are meeting with great success.

The following enlisted members who are quartered in other cities have been visitors at the building in the last few days: Manley Peever, Harold Knapman and Harold Devey of Kingston, and C. H. Patterson of Port Hope. We have now 148 members on our honour roll aside from those who have recently joined on the special soldiers' ticket.

H. G. Wright of Calgary, a former general secretary of our Association, was a visitor at our building yesterday.

H. B. Cowan will give the third of the series of talks on Bible Prophecy and the War Sunday afternoon at 4.15. Every man is invited.

MOTHER'S CLUB OF QUEEN MARY'S SCHOOL ELECT 1916 OFFICERS

A vote of thanks was extended to the retiring officers for the painstaking way in which they had shouldered the burdens of the society and brought the year to a pleasant and satisfactory ending.

Mrs. Waugh, the retiring President made a happy little speech in which she thanked the members of the Club for their hearty co-operation in helping the good work along. Mrs Waugh was elected Hon-President by a unanimous vote.

The retiring Vice-President and Treasurer also expressed their thanks to the club members

Then followed the election of new officers:

President—Mrs. C. B. Adair.
Vice-President—Mrs. Christie.
Secretary—Mrs. E. Bobbridge.
Treasurer—Mrs. Elliott.

The following committees were also elected:

Visiting Committee—Mrs. McDuffee (Convener); Mrs. Cranfield, Mrs Henderson.

Programme Com. — Mrs. Corley. (Convener); Mrs. Christie and Mrs. Morrison.

Reception Committee—Mrs. Conway (Convener). Other officers to be elected at next meeting.

WHO WILL GET THE OAK HALL CLOCK?

A Guess Will be Given Away With Every Dollar Purchase on Dollar Day

The clock is in the south window of Oak Hall Store, and was wound up tight by His Worship Mayor Duffus on Wednesday, Jan. 26, at 12 o'clock noon.

A well informed party says an eight day clock may run nine, ten and even eleven days. At any rate the clock will run till it stops.

Don't forget, it is only on Dollar Day you have the opportunity to win the clock, as an estimate will be given with every dollar purchase at Oak Hall on Dollar Day. The city merchants are making great preparations for Dollar Day bargains, and Oak Hall will have inducements to offer that will warrant the lion's share of the trade on Dollar Day.

What About Helping The Belgians? Meeting On Monday Afternoon

For the purpose of assisting in the relief of the Belgians, a meeting will be held in the Council Chamber on Monday afternoon at 4.45 o'clock to form a local organization that will definitely take up this duty in which the whole Empire is co-operating. It is unnecessary to dwell upon the reasons for contributing to this fund. Belgium first held up the German advance, and all but a sliver of the country has been overrun and a vast territory devastated. Not only has the country been ruined, but the invaders have systematically fined cities and provinces. The Relief Fund is carefully guarded, and is in fact the only protection for a great number of the unfortunate Belgians. It is hoped by the ladies and gentlemen behind the local movement that Monday afternoon's meeting will be largely attended.

Labour Conditions In Peterboro

During December conditions steadily improved in all lines of business except the building trades. A number of the factories were working overtime and reported they had more orders than for some years past.

Manufacturing was very active, most of the factories working overtime.

Unskilled labour has been fairly well employed, a good number in cutting ice and storing it. Female help was in good demand and wages were better than they have been for some time.

Lumbering was brisk and there was a good demand for men and for the camps.

CRAFT

A Sensational Story To Appear In The Evening Examiner

This Story Will be Commenced Shortly and Run in Serial Form Watch For Date

The Examiner will shortly commence the publication of the great photo-play story, "Graft," the novel being written by eighteen of America's most brilliant authors, including Anna Katherine Green, Irvin Cobb, Mrs. Wilson Woodrow, Wallace Irwin, Zane Grey, James Oppenheim, Louis Joseph Vance and others just as famous. The following is a synopsis of the story, which will be shown in photo-play at the Empire Theatre:

"A graft syndicate exists that controls millions upon millions of foul-won wealth. This syndicate holds in its iron grip men of every type, from every class of society. It is composed not of the lowest element, but of the "men higher up"—men whose interests represent traction, public institutions, foodstuffs, liquor, railroads, paving and subway companies, law-defying trusts and corporations—in short, men from channels of every private greed right up to public corruption.

This syndicate dealt in crime even more sinister, more threatening, than the crime of the burglar or yegg, because it was a secret, subtle series of machinations, which reared higher and mightier than the laws it defied. Pitted against this merciless graft syndicate was Dudley Larnigan, District Attorney. In his efforts to down this powerful graft syndicate, District Attorney Larnigan loses his life at the hands of a foul assassin.

In his dying moments Larnigan's son, his associate, swears to hunt down this vile syndicate and avenge the death of his beloved father. Thus the story opens with young Bruce Larnigan electioneering for the office of District Attorney to succeed his father. Bruce is in love with Dorothy Maxwell, the feautiful daughter of the head of the insurance interests. Then through the many episodes runs a thread of the most amazing, most spectacular, and most stirring events in the entire history of American politics—intensified and influenced by a heart-throbbing romance of the two young lovers, Bruce and Dorothy.

It is for the reasons of uplift, for the purifying of rotten American politics as it exists in this country, apart from the beautiful romance it reveals, that "Graft" will instantly commend itself to every liberty and fair play loving man, woman and child in this great and grand country of the Stars and Stripes, and you'll draw the patronage of every person who is interested in clean government for the people, of the people, and by the people."

LOCAL WILL CASE ARGUED IN TORONTO

The following will case was argued yesterday in the Appellate Division Osgoode Hall, Toronto:

Re H. LeBrun Estate.—J. M. Ferguson for widow of testator. H. E Rose, K.C., for sisters of Carisse Le Brun. H. S. White for Alphonse Le Brun. E. C. Cattanch for infant. Appeal by widow of testator from order of Britton, J., of Dec. 23, 1915, made on an originating notice and construing the will of Honore Le Brun of Peterborough. Appeal argued. Judgment reserved.

Also the case of Re A. F. Hoover and Re H. L. A. Hoover.—K. W Wright, for Inspector of P. and P. C. moved to transfer proceedings for letters of administration with will annexed of estate of H. L. A. Hoover from Surrogate Court to Supreme Court of Ontario and for removal of caveat filed. H. S. White for Martin R. Hoover. Motion dismissed with costs.

Leading Cities Of The World

However counts may vary, New York now leads London in its population, as was remarked some time ago. Meanwhile there have been other changes not noticed. Paris and Chicago still rank third and fourth, but Petrograd now has 2,300,000, and comes fifth, rising from eighth. Berlin now ranks below Tokio and Vienna. Its male population was decreased by the calling of the soldiers to the front, the loss being 282,547 since July, 1914. Berlin's total Jan. 10 was 1,837,889, compared with its maximum 2,088,889 in 1912, and 1,896,906 at the outbreak of the war. Berlin's female population is increasing largely, but not enough to recompense the loss of males or to keep Berlin's rank.

The world's next largest cities are, in order, Moscow, Buenos Aires, Constantinople, Osaka, Calcutta, and Rio de Janeiro. Most of these cities have suburbs which increase their numbers, but the suburbs of New York are now one of the sources of its leadership, and will soon make its primacy indisputable. Yet it was but a few years ago that New York was remarkable as the city without suburbs, so detached was it save through access by water. It is the unbroken lines of the dual subway, its bridges and tunnels, which gave it first place, and will keep it under all vicissitudes of population which can be foreseen.

Displace Platinum With Cheap Alloy

New Line of Scientific Research Opened—May be Soldered and is Non-Corrosive.

The announcement of a discovery that tungsten and molybdenum, two metals found in comparatively large quantities in this country, can be substituted for platinum in dental work is to be made at the meeting of the American Institute of Mining Engineers to be held in this city next month.

This discovery was made by Prof. Frank Alfred Fahrenwald of the Case School of Applied Sciences, Cleveland, Ohio, after a prolonged series of research tests and experiments conducted under the auspices of the Research Foundation of the National Dental Association, and it is believed by scientists who have been informed of the discovery that it will have far-reaching effects in dentistry and probably in other sciences and industries in which rare metals are used.

An authority on metallurgy who had received an advance copy of Dr Fahrenwald's paper that is to be read next month at the Mining Engineers' meeting said last night that the discovery probably would open up an entirely new line of scientific research regarding the uses of these metals and that he considered the discovery one of the most remarkable that had been made in metallury during recent years.

As about one-third of the world's supply of platinum is used for dentistry at the present time, and the price of this metal before the war ranged from $40 to $50 an ounce, and has jumped to $100 an ounce since, the discovery of a substitute is expected to have great commercial value. Both tungsten and molybdenum sold at between $600 and $700 a ton before the war, but owing to their demand for the manufacture of the highest grades of steel they have advanced to between $3,000 and $4,000 a ton since the war began. Both of them increase the tensil strength of steel to a great degree, and molybdenum is said to double the resistance. Molybdenum steel is being used for the inner tube of two huge guns now being made in the foreign armament factories, and in the manufacture of projectiles that are capable of piercing armor plate. The largest deposits of this metal on earth are found in Maine, while tung steel is bein used for the inner tube in Colorado. There are many other uses to which the metals are put, in cladding films in incandescent lamps.

Professor Fahrenwald's researches proved that while each metal by itself was brittle and hard, when they were alloyed with one another and treated in a gold bath they not only formed a perfect substitute for platinum, but were superior to platinum for dental work in some respects. The alloy conducts heat to a lesser degree than platinum, according to his papers on the subject, and makes possible the production of work that hitherto has been impossible.

Dr. Fahrenwald has a paper on the subject of his discovery in the January issue of the Bulletin of the American Institute of Mining Engineers, in which he says that the substitute for platinum can be soldered, in non corrosive, and that it will not oxidize when treated with the gold bath.

Installation Of Officers

At a regular meeting of the members of Division No. 1, A.O.H., the following officers were installed:

President—John J. Devlin.
Acting Vice-President — Patrick O'Toole.
Rec. Secretary—Jas. J. Nearey.
Fin. Secretary—Jas. Drain.
Treasurer—Jos. Kelly.
Sergeant-at-Arms—Edward Phalen.
Guard—Fred Whaley.
County Chaplain — Rev. P. J. Maher.

The Financial Secretary and Treasurer's report showed good the financial standing of the society for the past year.

BANK ROBBERY IN CHICAGO.

Five Youths, Armed, in Daring Hold-Up Secure $12,000.

CHICAGO, Jan. 28. — Adopting Jesse James tactics, four youths, all armed, entered the Washington Park National Bank five minutes after it opened for business, held up nearly a score of the bank's customers in the lobby, intimidated a dozen clerks and escaped with $12,000 in currency. They escaped in a small automobile, in which a fifth member of the gang had waited outside of the bank.

Of the blind persons in this country 32,443 are males, and 24,939 are females. The male majority is doubtless largely due to the extra liability of males to accidents, owing to their occupations.

FOWLER'S PEBLO GLASSES
EYE TALKS SERIES
No. 9—THE TIME TEST
Some eyes stand the test of "Time" exceedingly well, while others soon require help. The way to defeat the ravages of "Time" is to be before him in preparedness. At least let Fowler test the eyes and tell you their condition. They may be good for years, and in that case you will get an honest opinion about them, and you will be at no expense if none is required. Many people go on using their eyes, when they need glasses, and that only makes things worse due to the strain. Also sometimes eyes trouble when the system is the cause, and Mr. Fowler would simply advise you to see your doctor.
Fowler's business has stood the test of "Time". It pays to have his guarantee of satisfaction.

old or too young for military service, all the rest having enlisted long ago.

Mr. and Mrs. Simon Clancy, Rogers street, Ashburnham, have received a letter from their son, Signaller Vernol E. Clancy, Shorncliffe, England. He writes as follows, under date of January 12th, 1916:

My Dear Mother,— I have been transferred to the 19th Battery, 5th Brigade, as a qualified signaller. This change occurred on the 10th day of January. There are four other signallers with me who were also transferred. I am now attached to the headquarters staff.

Mother dear, the 19th is a battery recruited in Winnipeg and they are all western men. They are a fine party and I think I will get along fine in my new home. There is a big movement of troops from Ross Barracks this month for they have not enough accommodation to hold them all.

Well, mother, the hardest part is yet to come, for this brigade leaves for France very soon, so I think that by the time you receive this letter I will be in France.

Well, mother dear, I must close now, but I will write before I leave, so hoping to hear from you soon I am,

Your loving son,
VERNOL.

GREAT BRITAIN MINING BALTIC

Sea Now Impassable, Except Under Guidance of Official Pilots

REPORT TO WASHINGTON

Obstructions to Navigation Between Denmark and German Coast.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 31. — Great Britain is sowing mines so thickly at the entrance to the Baltic Sea that it now is practically impassable except to vessels under the guidance of official pilots.

Consul-General Skinner at London reported that the Admiralty had notified him of the location of a new mine field in the Baltic near the Sound, across the Channel southwest of Drogden light vessel, just off Danish waters. Obstructions to navigation also have been placed between the Danish territorial waters and the German coast southeast of Rixhoft.

Whether these precautions are related to Great Britain's reported intention of declaring an actual blockade of her enemy is not known to officials here.

Two German Infantry Attacks Repulsed With Severe Losses to Enemy

Indian Troops That Have Been Withdrawn From Flanders Are Now in Mesopotamia---French Recapture Lost Trenches.

PARIS, Jan. 31.—Official statement yesterday afternoon says two German infantry attacks by the enemy near Dompierre, south of the River Somme were repulsed with severe losses to the Germans. There is nothing to report on the remainder of the front.

BERLIN, Jan. 31.—Yesterday's official statement says most of the positions captured from the French Saturday have been retained.

SANDIGO, Cal., Jan. 31.—Many lives were lost and much property damaged in Otay Valley by a cloudburst.

PARIS, Jan. 31.—French troops near Hill No. 140 recaptured part of the lost trenches captured yesterday by the Germans. German attacks south of Frisc completely failed. French counter-attacks recaptured some lost ground. No mention was made of German claims of big victory.

BERLIN, Jan. 31.—Austrian vanguards have repulsed several strong Russian attacks near Berestiany, it was officially announced yesterday.

COPENHAGEN, Jan. 31.—Colonel House, confidential agent of President Wilson, left Berlin last night for Paris to bring about a settlement of the Lusitania dispute.

PARIS, Jan. 31.—British marines have landed in Albania to aid in the withdrawal of the Serbs. Thousands of Serbs were taken aboard the transports at Durazzo.

ATHENS, Jan. 31.—Allied aviators dropped bombs over German and Bulgarian troops near Lake Doiran doing considerable damage. Enemy troops are in a panic.
Aviators returned safely.

PETROGRAD, Jan. 31.—Large section of the Russian City of Vilna now held by the Germans was swept by the fire raging several days from a Russian bombardment.

SAN DIEGO, Cal., Jan. 31.—Those returning from Otay Valley report floods wiped out every trace of human habitation. Relief parties have no hope of finding bodies.

LONDON, Jan. 31.—General Lake reported he has joined forces with General Aylmer at Wadi in Mesopotamia.

A Five-Cent Breakfast in five minutes! What a boon to the busy housekeeper! Two Shredded Wheat Biscuits, heated in the oven to restore crispness and served with hot milk, make a complete, perfect meal, supplying all the strength needed for a half-day's work at a cost of four or five cents. The richest man in America can buy nothing better. Contains more real nutriment than meat or eggs and is more easily digested.

ZEPPELIN RAIDS ON PARIS SATURDAY AND SUNDAY NIGHTS

Twenty-Four Killed in First Raid—No Damage Reported in Second One—Testing Out Paris Aerial Defences

PARIS, Jan. 31.—In a new Zeppelin raid on Paris at 10 o'clock Sunday night, ten incendiary bombs were dropped. The authorities announced to-day that no damage was done so far as is known.

The Paris newspapers to-day in calling for immediate sky-rolls upon large German cities as measures of reprisals for the killing and wounding of more than fifty persons in Paris Saturday night, again sounded the warning that a whole squadron of Count Zeppelin's sky monsters, accompanied by several of the Fokker "air Uhlans' may sweep down upon Paris or London any night. The raids of Saturday and Sunday night, aeronautic experts wrote, undoubtedly were for the purpose of testing out Paris aerial defences, preparatory to greater raids.

LONDON, Jan. 31.—Later advices say 24 were killed and 27 injured by the Zeppelin raid on Paris Saturday night. Another raid occurred last night.

Shelling About Loos Has Been Very Heavy

LONDON, Jan. 31.—(Official).—The shelling about Loos has been very heavy, but has diminished a little.

PARIS, Jan. 31.—(Official.)—Fourteen French aeroplanes dropped bombs on enemy encampment at Bazarlite, North of Lake Doiran.

PETROGRAD, Jan. 31.—(Official).—Western "Russian" front has nothing to report, in the Caucasus. Our success continues.

ATHENS, Jan. 31.—A landing squad from torpedo boats debarked at Retimo, Crete, yesterday and arrested a former German consulate. Canea is said to be a Krupp agent.

THE TURKS CAPTURE RUSSIAN POSITION IN CAUCASUS

LONDON, Jan. 31.—The Turkish War Office claims the capture of a Russian position on the Caucasus front.

OTTAWA, Jan. 31.—A cable from the War Office, London, requests more Canadians sent overseas. Twenty thousand men will sail soon.

PETROGRAD, Jan. 31.—Russian forces surround Erzerum City, and are making a desperate attempt to join the British in Mesopotamia.

LONDON, Jan. 31.—The Frankfurter Zeitung says Germany will make no further concession in the Lusitania matter.

LONDON, Jan. 31. — Lieut.-Col. Hopkins, of Lindsay, Ont., was killed in an accident.

Renewed Battle on The Riga Front Predicted by Russian Military Experts

German Aeroplanes and Zeppelins Actively Reconnoitring The Russian Lines---Fighting Increases Along The Stripa.

PETROGRAD, via London, Jan. 31. —Early renewal of military activity along the northern end of the Russian front in the Riga and Dvinsk districts is forecast by Russian military critics. Their expectation is based in part on the unusual activity of German aircraft in reconnoitring the Russian lines. Not only aeroplanes but Zeppelins are being employed.

This activity, in connection with information obtained from prisoners captured in Bukowina concerning removal of German troops from that region, leads to the belief that the Germans may be preparing an offensive in the north for the purpose of countering the Russian attack in Bukowina.

Along the Stripa River the artillery fire of the Teutons is increasing daily in intensity, and it is assumed they are preparing an offensive under cover of the bombardment. Trench battles, in which hand grenades and mines are employed, are occurring along the banks of the Dniester and between Boyan and Rarance. Boyan is immediately to the east of Czernowitz, which indicates that the Russians are holding conquered territory close to that important centre.

The comparative inactivity in Bukowina during the last few days is explained by seasonal conditions. Mud is kneedeep, which is said to have much to do with bringing operations to a standstill.

Regarding the Caucasian campaign there has been no official report of a further advance since the recent successes were made known, and it is assumed the Russians have halted bfore Erzeroum fortress while awaiting the arrival of artillery.

According to a statement made to the foreign press by the military expert of the Birsheviya Vedomosti, it is a practical impossibility for the Germans to send reinforcements from Constantinople to assist the Turks at Erzeroum. Even the bringing of the forces which are facing the likely expedient, would mean the weakening of the forces which are facing the British in Mesopotamia.

The Russians are now within three or four miles of the outer fortifications of Erzeroum.

British Nation More Than Ever Bound To Win Peace Will Cost Teutons Dear

WASHINGTON, D.C., Jan. 31.—That the British nation and her allies are determined that the price of peace shall cost the Turco-Teuton alliance dear was made clear in an official despatch. In this advice it is further set forth that the Allies are more combined and more determined than ever to prosecute the war to a victorious finish and impose their own terms on the enemy.

Taking into consideration the military successes of the Germans it is deemed remarkable that the Allies still adhere to the unshaken determination that the Turco-Teuton alliance is beaten and that they now are only biding their time for the best peace terms they can get. It is further declared that there is not the least sign of weakening of any department or direction.

"One can easily imagine the plight of the enemy," the advice runs, "when the Allies, as they surely will do, sooner or later, turn the tables with military success on land."

In another paragraph of this message it is set forth that the Allies, being certain of ultimate success, are not prepared to even begin to listen to any vacillations on any condition whatever.

Here is the official message in full:—

"The temporary military successes of the enemy have not in the least affected the attitude of the British nation. The Allies are more combined and more determined than ever to prosecute the war to a victorious finish and upon their own terms to the enemy.

"It is a remarkable feature, this unshaken determination of the Allied nations in the face of the absence of outward victories. There is not the least sign of weakening in any department or in any direction. One can easily imagine the plight of the enemy, when the Allies, as they surely will do, sooner or later, begin to turn the tables on their enemies with military successes on land.

"There is ample evidence that peace on ostensibly most favourable terms to the Allies will now be willingly made by the enemy. But the Allies, being certain of ultimate success, are not prepared to even begin to listen to any vacillations on any condition whatever."

Subscribers To The Otonabee Patriotic Association Who Have Paid The First Installment

Mr. A. St. A. Smith, Manager of the Bank of Toronto at Keene, as Treasurer of the Otonabee Patriotic Association, has received the following contributions as a first instalment on accounts subscribed by the donors for the purposes of the Association. BRIGHTER CHILDREN

Children are probably brighter to-day than a generation ago—but are they stronger? That's a grave question. So many pinched faces, dulled eyes and languid feeling make us wonder if they will ever grow into robust, healthy men and women.

If your children catch colds easily, are tired when rising, lack healthy color, or find studies difficult, give them Scott's Emulsion for one month to enrich their blood and restore the body-forces to healthy action.

Scott's Emulsion is used in private schools. It is not a "patent medicine", simply a highly concentrated oil-food, free from harmful drugs. It cannot harm; it improves blood; it benefits lungs and strengthens the system. Your druggist has it—refuse substitutes.

OUR DAILY SHORT STORY

Who Won the Wine?

Montgomery Stout's business often keeps him late at his office, and at times when funds come in after bank hours he carries them home with him. A street car line passes within a few minutes' walk of his house, and in this distance lies the only danger. He carries a revolver, but what use is a weapon when one is dropped by a rap on the back of his head?

Stout was one of a younger set of men in his suburb who were together a great deal and constantly joking one another. He talked to them about his nocturnal trips home, his fear of footpads and what he hoped to accomplish in case of attack. One night when he was passing a dimly lighted place between the street car line and his house he was seized from behind by both arms, a hand was thrust in his pocket and $500 in bills taken, together with his revolver, so that when the robbers ran away he had no weapon with which to pursue them.

On reaching his house he found several of his friends, whom he excitedly told of his adventure and his loss. They sympathized with him deeply, and while doing so two others of the set, Mark Hamlin and Ben Turner, walked in. Stout was somewhat surprised to find callers so late at night—it was 11 o'clock—but, after all, there was nothing remarkable in their visit. After listening to his account of the robbery and asking many questions, Mark Hamlin handed him the pocketbook of which he had been robbed and confessed himself the robber.

Then there was a general jollification. Stout brought out drinkables and cigars, and all agreed that a very amusing and practical joke had been played.

Some months after this Stout was again on his way home at night, this time with $1,000 in his pocket that had come in late, when at the very same spot as before he heard the order:

"Hands up!"

At the same time he felt the cold muzzle of a gun near his ear and hands relieving him of everything he possessed. Then the man with the gun said to him:

"You walk around the block before you go home and remember that you're watched. Any attempt to use a telephone for the next half hour will result in a hole in you."

Now, the threat was lost on Mr. Stout, for he knew it had only been made as a bluff. The robbers would not be likely to wait to see that he completed his walk. Besides, the voice that gave the order was very like that of Mark Hamlin.

"Just wait a bit, my fine fellow," thought Stout, "and we'll see whom the joke is on this time."

He was within a stone's throw of his house. Darting to it, he went in, got a revolver—the robbers had taken the one he carried—ran back on tiptoe to find them dividing the spoil under a gas light.

There were but two men, and both raised their hands.

"Leave the things on the sidewalk," cried Stout, "and, mind, no lowering of hands."

Stout said this to gain time to think. The men remained motionless.

"Now turn your backs and go on down the street."

The men hesitated, then after a word with each other did as they were told. Stout followed till he came to his property, picked up every article, then fired his revolver.

At the shot the robbers took to their heels, and Stout went home and to bed chuckling at the way he had got even with his practical joking friends.

The next morning he telephoned "the gang" that Hamlin would break a bottle of wine at noon at a popular restaurant, telephoning Hamlin also to be there. At half past 12 all had arrived except Hamlin, who came a few minutes later.

"My friends," said Stout, "this practical joking has gone far enough. I drove off two of you last night and recovered the property you had taken. One of the two I know. Mark Hamlin, you owe me and this party the wine."

"I? The wine? What do you mean?"

"I mean this: When you played your game on me some time ago and I found the boys at my house, you and Bill Turner coming in later with my pocketbook, I took the joke good naturedly and opened my larder. Last night I turned the tables, drove you away and recovered my property. You owe the wine."

"Do you mean to say I robbed you last night?"

"Come; no bluffing! I made you and your pal, whoever he was, drop the swag. I got it and fired a shot after you to scare you, at which you took to your heels."

Hamlin continued to gape, but the others told him to own up like a man and pay the wine. He made another offer at a denial, but being met with the cry of "Shame!" pushed the button and ordered in champagne. For an hour there was a merry party—all except Hamlin, who never opened his mouth, bearing the chaff of his friends without irritation. At the end of the feast he said:

"I give you all my word of honor that I had no connection whatever with this robbery."

Then the party looked at one another.

"For heaven's sake," exclaimed Stout, "did I get the better of a pair of real robbers?"

And there was an explosion of laughter.

Had No Ambition To Do Her Housework.

System Was All Run Down.

Mrs. Herbert Doherty, Beaver Brook, N.B., writes: "I have used some of your Burdock Blood Bitters, and found it to be a great medicine. My system was in a run down condition for over a year. I suffered with bad headache, and did not seem to have any ambition to do my housework. In the morning I could not half eat, and what I did eat did not apparently seem to do me any good. After using four bottles of Burdock Blood Bitters I was an entirely different woman. I cannot recommend B.B.B. too highly to people suffering the same as I was."

The blood reaches every portion of the body to distribute nutriment, and remove effete matter and waste products, clearly then, any influence, good or bad, affecting the blood, must necessarily affect the entire system for good or evil as the case may be. To this fact is due the wonderful efficacy of Burdock Blood Bitters in removing every form of disease. It at once strikes to the root of the trouble, and quickly restores the depleted system to a condition of vigorous health.

B.B.B. has been on the market for the past forty years, and is manufactured only by The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

THE JOY OF MOTHERHOOD

Words of Encouragement to Childless Women.

Motherhood is woman's natural destiny, but many women are denied the happiness of children simply because of some curable derangement.

Among the many triumphs of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is its marvelous power to overcome such derangements, as evidenced by the following letter:—

Worcester, Mass.—"I suffered from female ills, and was advised to have an operation, but a friend who had taken Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and who has six children, told me to try it. It has helped me so much that I am now well and have a baby boy who is the picture of health, and I thank the Vegetable Compound for my restoration to health."—Mrs. BERT GARVEY, 20 Hacker St., Worcester, Mass.

In many other homes, once childless, there are now children because of the fact that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound makes women normal, healthy and strong.

Write to the Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co., Lynn, Mass., for advice—it will be confidential.

ON PROBATION.

It was not until the callers came that Celia realized that she was on probation. It leaked out, as things always do, that she and Harold were not engaged, that his family was, so to speak, trying her out. If Mrs. Royce's attitude did not proclaim it, the gossip of Mrs. Willis did. Celia suffered tortures of humiliation. It was hard enough to be lessoned by Mrs. Willis, as she constantly was, lessoned without kindness; to wait on her landlady and to have insufficient food. Celia estimated that Mrs. Willis was charging her what fuel and light came to, and dividing food for one into two portions.

But what was worse than her depressing home influences, was the fear of failure. What if, after all her efforts, she failed to please Harold's mother, failed to please Harold? Then what would become of her? She could never, stay in town. She would have to go some place where no one knew of her humiliation.

She realized that Mrs. Royce was putting her to too many harsh tests. She was testing her against girls who had had every advantage that money and environment could give, and doing this before Harold. More than that, she was inviting brilliant guests from neighbouring cities, so as to give her son every opportunity to see that he was throwing himself away on Celia. She was clever; she deceived Harold, not Celia.—Woman's World for February.

TO DARKEN HAIR APPLY SAGE TEA

Look Young! Bring Back its Natural Color, Gloss, and Thickness.

Common garden sage brewed into a heavy tea with sulphur and alcohol added, will turn gray, streaked and faded hair beautifully dark and luxuriant, remove every bit of dandruff, stop scalp itching and falling hair. Just a few applications will prove a revelation if your hair is fading, gray or dry, scraggly and thin. Mixing the Sage Tea and Sulphur recipe at home though, is troublesome. An easier way is to get the ready-to-use tonic costing about 50 cents a large bottle at drug stores, known as "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound," thus avoiding a lot of muss.

While wispy, gray, faded hair is not sinful, we all desire to retain our youthful appearance and attractiveness. By darkening your hair with Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur, no one can tell, because it does it so naturally, so evenly. You just dampen a sponge or soft brush with it and draw this through your hair, taking one small strand at a time; by morning all gray hairs have disappeared, and, after another application or two, your hair becomes beautifully dark, glossy, soft and luxuriant.

Famous War Horses.

One probable result of the introduction of mechanical vehicles into warfare will be the abolition of the old custom of cherishing the memory of famous war horses. When generals conducted campaigns on horseback, before the advent of the field motor-car, their favorite chargers used to receive many honors. When a statue of Lord Kitchener was erected at Calcutta, the famous soldier arranged that the sculptor should picture him mounted on a stone reproduction of his famous horse Democrat, which carried him through many important campaigns.

Wellington's famous charger, Copenhagen, when he died was buried with full military honors. The Iron Duke's horse was a magnificent chestnut, and he carried his master many hundreds of miles in Spain, and at the battle of Toulouse. "If he fell," said the Duke, "it was on standing corn as I sat in the saddle."

The First Skaters.

The first man or nation to skate is lost in the mists of antiquity. The Eskimos of the farthest north were found to be in possession of runners carved from whalebone when they were first discovered.

Skating is mentioned by a Danish historian about 1134 and Fitzstephen, in his History of London, says that in the 12th century young men fastened the leg bones of animals under their feet by means of thongs, in order to slide along the ice.

A pair of these bone skates is now in the British Museum. Londoners got the idea from Holland, probably via Lincolnshire, where skates have been used on the frozen fens from the very earliest times.

A Jewish Corps.

The Zion Mule Transport Corps has been formed in Alexandria, composed of refugees from Palestine. Those who were of Russian nationality expressed the desire to serve under the British flag, and the British military authorities immediately took steps to form a battalion. In a very short time 500 had enlisted. Officers and men will wear on their military caps the Jewish token, the crossed triangles, or "Shield of David," in addition to the British badge, and in the camp the words of command are spoken in Hebrew.

FOUNDED ON FACT.

Eugene Aram Was a Real Character, Executed in 1759.

Few of those who have read Thomas Hood's ballad of The Dream of Eugene Aram, or Bulwer's romance, Eugene Aram, or who were fortunate enough to have seen Henry Irving in the play founded on the Bulwer novel, know that Eugene Aram was a real character and that the ballad, novel, and play were founded on fact.

Aram was an English scholar, born in 1704 and executed in 1759. The early years of his life were devoted to study. How he gained knowledge is hard to comprehend. His father was a laborer and the educational facilities of two centuries ago were not what they are now.

However, his learning was soon recognized in a small circle, and while still a youth he served as an usher in a school at Knaresborough, his native village. Later, he married and wrote several text books, none of them now extant. When he was about 25 years old, he was implicated with a man named Clark in the robbery of a shoemaker of Knaresborough. Clark and Aram were both discharged from lack of evidence.

None of Aram's friends believed in his guilt, but the accusation appeared to weigh upon his mind, and soon afterwards he went to London to teach and study. Less than a year later Clark mysteriously disappeared.

In the succeeding years Aram taught at various schools and academies, and while teaching at an academy at Lynn in Norfolk he completed his comparative Lexicon, few parts of which are now extant, and which dwelt with the history of the English, Latin, Greek, Hebrew, and Celtic languages. Shortly after this he was arrested and charged with murdering Clark.

His wife, it appeared, had told it about that her husband and a man named Ferry were implicated in the murder of Clark years before. A skeleton was found in a cave near Knaresborough, which it was charged was that of Clark. Aram was tried, and, refusing all counsel, conducted his own defense. He dwelt upon the uncertainty of the evidence against him,—all of it being circumstantial—and the doubt of the identity of the skeleton.

The case created wide discussion throughout England, and public sympathy was with Aram. He had led a quiet, peaceful life, apparently caring little for the world's goods, and dividing his time between his studies and his wife and children.

Nevertheless, he was found guilty and sentenced to be hanged. When he saw there was no hope, he confessed the murder, his motive being to get rid of the only witness against him in the robbery of the shoemaker. The night before the day set for his execution he cut his throat, but his life was saved for the time being, and he was hanged the following day.

While in prison he wrote a long treatise on suicide and a history of his life.

Smart Retort.

When in December, 1897, on the death of Sir Frank Lockwood, the seat of York became vacant, Lord Charles Beresford stood for the election, and was opposed by Sir Christopher Furness, afterwards Lord Furness. The contest was close and exciting, and eventually won by Lord Charles Beresford with a narrow majority of eleven, after two counts, on a poll of over 11,000 votes. Lord Charles says:

"My brothers, Lord William and Lord Marcus, were helping me. Lord Marcus accompanied me to a meeting, and I told him that he must make a speech.

"'I can't,' he said. 'I don't know what to say.'

"I told him to begin, because he would surely be interrupted, and then, being an Irishman, he would certainly find something to say. Lord Marcus thereupon rose to his feet, and a voice immediately shouted:

"'Who are ye?'

"'It was enough; the fire was kindled.

"'Who are we?' cried Lord Marcus. 'I'll tell you who we are. We are three brothers, and our names are Shadrach, Meshach, and Abednego, and we have come here to put out the burning fiery Furness.'"

What Is Uric Acid?

THE CAUSE OF BACKACHE, RHEUMATISM, GRAVEL AND SUDDEN DEATH.

Ever since the discovery of uric acid in the blood by Scheele, in 1776, and the bad effect it had upon the body, scientists and physicians have striven to rid the tissues and the blood of this poison. Because of its overabundance in the system it causes backache, pains here and there, rheumatism, gout, gravel, neuralgia and sciatica. It was Dr. Pierce who discovered a new agent, called "Anuric," which will throw out and completely eradicate this uric acid from the system. "Anuric" has proved to be 37 times more potent than lithia, and consequently you need no longer fear muscular or articular rheumatism or gout, or many other diseases which are dependent on an accumulation of uric acid within the body. Send to Dr. Pierce, of the Invalids' Hotel and Surgical Institute, Buffalo, N. Y., for a pamphlet on "Anuric," or send 10 cents for a trial package of "Anuric Tablets."

If you feel that tired, worn-out feeling, backache, neuralgia, or if your sleep is disturbed by too frequent urination, go to your best drug store and ask for Dr. Pierce's Anuric Tablets. They are put up in 50-cent packages.

Doctor Pierce's reputation is best of this medicine and you know that his "Golden Medical Discovery" for the blood and his "Favorite Prescription" for the ills of women have had a splendid reputation for the past fifty years.

Doctor Pierce's Pellets are unequaled as a Liver Pill. One tiny Sugar-coated Pellet a Dose. Cure Sick Headache, Bilious Headache, Dizziness, Constipation, Indigestion, Bilious Attacks, and all derangements of the Liver, Stomach and Bowels.

HINTS TO HOUSEKEEPERS

Figs are delicious baked several hours, with lemon juice and lemon rind to give added flavor.

Ten cents worth of skim milk has more nourishment in it than the same money's worth of steak.

Three of the cheapest foods we have are hominy, corn meal and rice and there are many ways of using them.

Allow one level teaspoonful of salt to flavor a quart of soup, sauce or water in which vegetables are to be cooked.

The best time to clean the meat grinder is immediately after it is used. The particles of meat do not dry, and will wash off easily.

If a metal spoon is left in the saucepan, and contents will not boil quickly, because the spoon carries off a great deal of heat.

ALLIED TROOPS ENLIST FERRETS TO KILL RATS

LONDON, January 31.—Ferrets are the latest to be enlisted on the side of the Entente Powers.

The British Government has just closed a contract for 500 ferrets to be sent to Flanders to kill the enormous number of rats infesting the British trenches. "Rat squads" are being organized.

The demand for ferrets is becoming so great the price has risen from 15c to $1.25.

CALL OF THE CHRIST BOTH HEAD AND BODY

"As He Was, so Are We, in This World," Says the Apostle.

God's Work During the Gospel Age Peculiar—Justification Now Imputed, Not Actual—Purpose of This—Robe of Christ's Righteousness — Begetting to New Nature—New Creatures Tested in Blemished Mortal Bodies—God's Deep Love for the Church—Dear as the Apple of His Eye—High Calling and Restitution Vastly Different—Church's Experiences Like Their Lord's—Only a "Little Flock" Walk the Narrow Way—Attune With the Infinite.

[The matter under this heading is supplied by the Pastor Russell Leaflet Bureau, who conduct the Brooklyn Tabernacle (unsectarian) Bible Studies, and who have arranged for its publication.]

Fall River Mass., Jan. 30.—Pastor Russell delivered an able discourse here to-day, from the text, "Christ also suffered for us, leaving us an example, that ye should follow His steps." (1 Peter 2:22.) He said in part:

The Call of the Gospel Age has been unique. During this Age there is a different kind of justification from what the world will have during the next Age. The world will eventually have actual perfection of body, mind, and morals. But now, in His manifold Wisdom God has a different arrangement, so that from the time when we hear the Lord's Call and accept His conditions, we receive justification by faith—imputed justification, not the real thing; for it does not make us actually perfect. We have the same brain, the same mind, the same body, as before. It is merely a matter of reckoned righteousness.

But why will God reckon us right when we are wrong? He does so because we accept the One whom He has appointed to be our Advocate. "We [the Church] have an Advocate with the Father, Jesus Christ the Righteous." (1 John 2: 1.) By and by the world will have a Mediator, but the Church have an Advocate. We come to the Father through Him. We give ourselves by consecration to God, realizing that His arrangements are all in Christ. When we have done this, the merit of Christ is imputed to us and covers all our blemishes. This merit is figuratively called a wedding garment—an allusion to the plain white garment given to each guest at an old-time Jewish wedding.

The pure white robe of Christ's righteousness is put on by all who become disciples of Jesus. We are not appearing in the filthy rags of our own righteousness, but in the perfect robe of our Lord's furnishing. When we gave up our own wills and God accepted our sacrifice, we received the begetting of the Holy Spirit and became New Creatures in Christ. (2 Corinthians 5:17.) Old things passed away, and all things became new. This robe of Christ's imputed righteousness covers our flesh, which is imperfect. The New Creature needs no covering; for it is begotten of God. It is only because the New Creature has not yet received its new body that it needs its old body as a tabernacle and as an instrument of service.—2 Corinthians 5: 1-10.

This was not true with us before we became Christians. It is only since we became New Creatures that we are not at home in the body. God has prepared a Heavenly, spiritual body for every one of us who are His people. This spiritual body He will give us in due time, but not until we develop the necessary character in these old bodies. It is as if He said to us, "Keep this old body for a while, and let Me see how you will make out with it. Let Me see how you will fight against the flesh. But remember, however, that you are not to fight with carnal weapons, but with the weapons of My Spirit."

As Christians, we have the whole armor of God—the helmet of salvation, the girdle of truth, the breastplate of righteousness, the shield of faith, and the Sword of the Spirit, with which to fight against the Adversary and the imperfections of the flesh. (Ephesians 6:12-18.) The mind is the great battle-ground. Surrounded by the imperfections of the old nature and beset by temptations from without, we find it necessary to wage a continual warfare, to fight a good fight, that we may come off conquerors, yea, "more than conquerors, through Him who loved us" and gave Himself for us.

"The Father Himself Loveth You."

Meantime God is not looking coldly on and indifferently. "Like as a father pitieth his children, so the Lord pitieth them that reverence Him." (Psalm 103:13.) He is deeply interested in those who have become His children and are seeking to walk in the footsteps of His Son. "The Father Himself loveth you," said the Master. (John 16:27.) This is one of the most precious texts in the Bible, and one of the most wonderful as well. We might see how God could feel an interest in us as His offspring; but to think that God loves us, if we have become members of the "us" class!

"God so loved the world [with a sympathetic love] that He gave His Only Begotten Son, that whosoever believeth on Him should not perish, but have everlasting life." (John 3: 16.) But this love that God has for the Church is a special love, such as He had for His Only Begotten Son. (John 17:23.) They are as dear to Him as the apple of His eye. He sees to it that nothing shall hurt them. When the eye is in trouble, it has the attention of the whole mind. So it is with God's care for the members of His Church. We are very glad to have this special love which has led God to put upon us the robe of Christ's righteousness. Our Father is not now looking upon us as sinners; for our imperfect flesh is covered by the robe. But the flesh is not to be preserved. Our bodies have been presented as a living sacrifice. (Romans 12:1.) They are to be consumed.

High Calling vs. Restitution.

It is a wrong thought to suppose that God will give us who have consecrated ourselves the best of everything for our mortal body, and will so guard us as to prevent any injury to our body. It is the New Creature that the Father is preparing for glory, not the natural man; and this He is doing by means of His precious promises, which are all made to the New Creature. The old nature is perishing. God will not give us Restitution. That blessing is for the world in the future.

We who have received the High Calling cannot get Restitution. Like the child who went to buy a cake with a penny, and who found that he could not keep the penny and get the cake, we cannot get the glory of the High Calling and at the same time hold on to earthly blessings. We have become heirs of the Heavenly things, having been begotten again as spirit beings, like the Lord Jesus. Therefore let us not think that God is offering us Restitution also. We are to sacrifice our humanity. If you find that you have no sufferings for Christ, you have every reason to question whether God is dealing with you as a son.

God delivered up Jesus freely for us all, and permitted His enemies to smite Him, to spit upon Him, to put a crown of thorns upon His head, to mock and to crucify Him. Jesus truly said, "Foxes have holes, and the birds of the air have nests; but the Son of Man hath not where to lay His head." (Matthew 8:20.) The Father permitted all this because He was dealing with Jesus as His Son, whom He had begotten to a new nature, and who was demonstrating His worthiness by obedience in the things which He suffered. If we are true to the Lord, it will be so with us, even as it is written: "My son, despise not thou the chastening of the Lord, nor faint when thou art rebuked of Him; for whom the Lord loveth He chasteneth, and scourgeth every son whom He receiveth."—Hebrews 12: 5-11.

Not Few Find the Narrow Way.

God did not choose angels for this High Calling, but all who have received the begetting of the Holy Spirit, all who have been received to become joint-heirs with Jesus Christ. He must choose every one of them, because of the honorable and exalted position to which He has called them; and every one of them must receive chastening, disciplining, testing. It is a wonderful thing that God wishes to test the loyalty and faithfulness unto death of every one who will be of that glorious company. So then, instead of thinking that you are having such great trials, that you are always in some kind of trouble, that you are peculiar in that respect, you will rather think, "How is it that the Lord lets me have so few of those terrible trials? I should think that He would wish to prove me more thoroughly."

Not many will prove themselves worthy. "Fear not, little flock; for it is your Father's good pleasure to give you the Kingdom," said the Master. (Luke 12:32.) It is only a "little flock" that the Father is calling out now. He is the Chief Shepherd of this "little flock," who walk the narrow way. "Strait is the gate, and narrow is the way, which leadeth unto life, and few there be that find it." (Matthew 7:14.) The Heavenly Father is the One who has called us. We are following Jesus because God has appointed Him to be the Captain of our salvation, whom the Father made perfect through suffering. Every one who follows Jesus must first be called, then proven and found faithful through sufferings, even unto death. In all this the Father is deeply interested.

The Covenant by Sacrifice.

I remind you, dear friends, you whom God has called, if indeed it be that you have heard His voice, that Jesus did nothing but what He heard from the Father. He said, "My word is not Mine, but the Father's who sent Me." So the Message that Jesus gave us is the Message of the Great Chief Shepherd, the Father. This Message coming to us from the Father has been for the purpose of calling us now to be His sheep. "Gather My saints together unto Me," saith Jehovah, "those that have made a covenant with Me by sacrifice." (Psalm 50:5.) As the Apostle puts it, "Ye see your calling, brethren."—1 Corinthians 1:26-29.

This class are called to make a Covenant with Jehovah God by sacrifice. There are those who will come into covenant relationship with God without sacrifice, but not during this Age. But those who come now are called to sacrifice. There are no exceptions. If you are not a sacrificer, then you are not of this class. These have heard the Father's Call, and have presented their bodies to be living sacrifices, holy, acceptable unto God. (Romans 12:1.) Jesus, our great High Priest, has made an atonement for our sins, and thus has made possible our approach to the Father. He has become our Surety, our Advocate and makes us acceptable as sacrifices.

At the age of thirty, Jesus came to John the Baptist at Jordan. He came as soon as it was possible under the Law. There He presented Himself to the Father. What He did on that occasion we all know. The Prophet, speaking for Jesus and telling what were His heart sentiments says, "Lo, I come to do Thy will, O God!"—everything written in the Book of the Law and the Prophets. Everything that God had caused to be written respecting the Messiah Jesus was ready to do.—Psalm 40: 6-8.

There was the serpent which was lifted up in the wilderness by Moses. There was the bullock slain by the high priest, Aaron, on the Day of Atonement, in connection with the Tabernacle service. There was the lamb that was slain every spring at the Passover. All this was "written in the Book" concerning Him, the Lamb of God. It was prophesied, too, that He would be led as a lamb to the slaughter, and that as a sheep before her shearers is dumb, so He would not open His mouth.—John 3:14; Isaiah 53:7.

When at the time of His consecration Jesus said, "I come to do Thy will, O My God," as in the volume of the Book it is written of Me." He could not then understand all that was written. But nevertheless He said, "I delight to do Thy will, O My God!"—Whatever Thou hast written in the Book, show it to Me, dear Father. I cannot see it clearly now; but whatever is there I will delight to do it, no matter how severe or how great the sacrifice. Then Jesus symbolized His consecration unto death by His baptism in the Jordan, thus showing forth both His death and His resurrection.

Consecration Must Be to God Only.

This same figure of baptism in water is for all the consecrated, and it becomes an outward confession that whatever is written in the Book concerning us we will gladly do. We rejoice to do the will of God, and desire that His will may be done in us, even as it was done in our Master. This is the only kind of sacrifice that God will accept. Not all of God's people see this point, however. One says, I have consecrated myself to my church. Another says, I will consecrate myself to God and then will try mission work. Still another says, I will consecrate myself to work for God in the temperance field. But God has not asked them to do these things. He says that we are to consecrate ourselves to Him alone and to put no restrictions whatever around our sacrifice. "Thy will be done in me, whatever may be that will," should be the sentiment of our hearts.

So then we see what God has arranged for us, and how reasonable it all is that we should have been invited to become partakers of Christ's sufferings now in order that we may become sharers in His glory to follow. It has been an invitation, not a command. A command to sacrifice our lives would not have been just. God sets before the Church a great prize. (Philippians 3: 13,14.) He has made no threat, used no force. If we do not wish to come without being forced, we cannot come at all.

The bad back comes from the kidneys, and unless the kidneys are carefully watched and properly regulated many serious troubles may follow.

Doan's Kidney Pills will cure all forms of kidney trouble, and cure the kidneys so that they will stay cured.

Mr. J. A. Lebiniecki, Dauphin, Man., writes: "It is my pleasure to write you in regard to Doan's Kidney Pills which I have been using for some time for kidney trouble, which used to affect my back so that at times I could not bend down nor could I walk straight. I learned about your pills from your almanac, and I bless the happy hour I thought of buying this medicine. One time a druggist persuaded me to buy ——'s Kidney Pills, saying they were just as good, in fact he guaranteed they were. I yielded to his advice, and what was the result? I had bearing down pains in my back for two days, so I took the balance of the pills unused to the druggist and told him to give me Doan's Kidney Pills as they would stop the pain in twelve hours at the outside. He told me he was sorry I did not use more of the pills, and lengthen the time to await results. I told him there was no need of waiting with Doan's Pills; they go right to the spot. No substitute for me."

Doan's Kidney Pills are 50c per box, 3 boxes for $1.25; See that our trade mark, "The Maple Leaf," is printed on both the table and wrapper.

graph instrument. Waves of sound go out from that instrument clear across the Atlantic Ocean. But it is not everybody that can catch the message. The sending instrument is tuned to a certain key. If one has a good co-hearer, or receiving instrument, and yet does not have it properly tuned, he cannot receive the message. Often it is necessary to tune the co-hearer higher and higher before it gets in tune with the receiving instrument.

So you and I must have been in tune with God before we could hear His Message; and we must continue to keep in tune with Him if we would continue to receive messages from Him. God's messages pass over the heads of millions of people, and they do not hear. "Eyes have they, but they see not; ears have they, but they hear not." "Blessed are your eyes, for they see; and your ears, for they hear." In Jesus' day many had co-hearers that were not properly tuned to receive the Message of the Son of God; and they refused His words. Their thoughts were not attune. So it is to-day. God is finding the humble and sincere, those who are attune with Him.

I trust that we are in tune to receive the Message which our God is sending forth; that we have true co-hearers, and are keeping our instruments in tune with the Infinite One, so that we shall be able to hear the Message more and more fully; that we are continuing in that love which rejoices to lay down life itself in His service; for God has fore-ordained that all who would be of the Church class in glory must be copies of His dear Son. None others can obtain the prize of the High Calling.—Romans 8: 29.

"Change" of the Church at Hand.

Judging from the Word of God, we believe that the Church will soon reach the end of her race-course. We certainly are in the time when "men's hearts are failing them for fear." Every financier and every statesman is fearful respecting the future. The things coming upon the earth are causing great perplexity. But the Lord's true people, as they see these things beginning to come to pass, are lifting up their heads and rejoicing, knowing that their deliverance draweth nigh.—Luke 21: 26-28.

The time for the glorification of the Church is close at hand. When the door shall shut, no one else will ever enter therein. Then the door of mercy will be thrown open wider than ever; but the door which has been open for the Bride to enter in to her marriage with the Lamb shall be forever closed. So then, if we hope to be joint heirs with Christ, to suffer now and to be glorified shortly, now is the time to make our calling and election sure.

Is your election sure, dear brother? It is sure upon the terms which God has made? Have you met those terms? If so, it is absolutely certain with Him; for He will never fail you. The only uncertainty is with ourselves. If we are faithful to the best of our ability, God asks nothing more. All things are ours, if we abide in Christ. Let us continue in the spirit of the Master, growing in grace and knowledge and in His character-likeness.

Have a Good Complexion! The Flower of Good Health

The true secret of complexion lies in the blood. Keep it rich, pure, nutritious, and, above all, keep the system regular. No aid to complexion compares with Dr. Hamilton's Pills. They tone and enrich the blood, clear the system of waste products, promote good digestion, and, in short, establish sound health, which, after all, is the keynote to all happiness and well-being. Don't delay; the charm of a lovely complexion and all the blessings of health are yours, once you employ this old-time family remedy. All dealers sell Hamilton's Pills in 25c. boxes.

FARM AND GARDEN.

Plan to attend the farmers' conventions this winter. Agriculture must not lag.

It is stated that labour is going to be scarce this coming season; plan where you can save it.

With cheese from 19c to 19½c per lb. factories have poor excuses for closing down for the winter.

More milk will require either more feed or more judicious use of the feed fed. Study the rations.

Clean up the seed grain with the fanning mill, then hand pick it. The latter job may be a hard one but it pays.

Inspect the engines, motors, pumps and other machinery about the farm, and make frequent use of the oil can.

Every now and then a scare over trichinosis from eating infected pork is started. Thorough cooking is the surest prevention but recently it has been found that freezing the meat for twenty days at a temperature of 5 degrees destroys the parasites.

FUGITIVE PRIEST POLISHES SHOES

NEW YORK, Jan. 29.—Rev. Peter Belastegin, a Catholic priest, after escaping from a Mexican prison, where he was held for forty days and where, he said, he suffered mental and physical torture, was taken in charge by the police here and later sent to Bellevue Hospital for observation.

The police said they found Father Belastegin, dressed in clerical garb, in City Hall Park polishing shoes. A large crowd had gathered around him impeding traffic. Father Belastegin had a shoe polishing outfit, and on one side of the box was printed, "I am a Catholic priest, expelled by Mexicans." On the other side was the inscription in English and Spanish, "Shoe shine, five cents; Limpia botas." He was taken in charge by Policeman Tienken and taken to the Elizabeth Street police station.

At the station Father Belastegin told the police that he had been imprisoned by Carranza in Mexico for forty days in January and February, 1914. He said that he escaped from the prison and made his way to the United States, and that, owing to his clerical dress, he was unable to find employment here.

Papers found on him indicate that he is a musician and a painter. Letters confirmed his statement regarding his imprisonment. He said that he is forty-two years old and that he lives at 314 West Fourteenth Street.

"No one would give me work and I was without food," he said. "Last Saturday I made a shoe shining box and went into Fourteenth Street to earn some money. That day I earned thirty cents. Yesterday I earned five cents.

He decided yesterday to try the City Hall section, he said. His first customer did not need a shine, but paid him one dollar, he said. Soon afterward a crowd gathered and his arrest followed.

Three original musical compositions were found on Father Belastegin. They were entitled "Mariners' Song to the Stars," "O Mother, Remember Me," and "A Happy Marriage." The manuscripts were decorated with pen and ink drawings. The man said that he is a native of the Argentine Republic and that he was educated in France.

Before Magistrate Levy, in the Tombs Police Court, he was questioned by Father Diamond, of the Church of the Transfiguration, in Mott Street, who said that he is undoubtedly an ordained priest. Father Diamond declared, however, that there was no reason for him to polish shoes in the streets, as no Catholic priest had to resort to such methods to get a livelihood.

SWISS TO NURSE WAR PRISONERS

Over Hundred Consumptives — Half French and Half German—Sent to Health Resorts.

BERNE, Jan. 29.—Two hundred consumptive prisoners of war arrived in Berne. Half of them are French prisoners from Germany and the remainder German prisoners from France. They are the first soldiers to be brought to Switzerland under the agreement recently made for the treatment of consumptives at health resorts of this country. The French prisoners are bound for Leysand and the Germans for Davos.

The French and German Governments have given orders to the men to make no attempt to escape, and if any of them should do so they would be treated as deserters and subject to court-martial. They will not be watched by the Swiss authorities. Each nation will pay the cost of maintaining its own soldiers.

It is expected that about twenty thousand French and as many Germans will be permitted to avail themselves of treatment in Switzerland. Three hundred rheumatic prisoners of war from Germany and France will be cared for at Baden near Zurich.

Although in many cases the soldiers were affected with incipient tuberculosis before the time of mobilization, the maladies have developed during their term of service, on account of exposure and other hardships.

"CASCARETS" FOR A COLD, BAD BREATH OR SICK HEADACHE

Best for liver and bowels, bad breath bad colds, sour stomach

Get a 10-cent box.

Sick headache, biliousness, coated tongue, head and nose clogged up with a cold—always trace this to torpid liver; delayed, fermenting food in the bowels or sour, gassy stomach.

Poisonous matter clogged in the intestines, instead of being cast out of the system is re-absorbed into the blood. When this poison reaches the delicate brain tissue it causes congestion and that dull, throbbing, sickening headache.

Cascarets immediately cleanse the stomach, remove the sour, undigested food and foul gases, take the excess bile from the liver and carry out all the constipated waste matter and poisons in the bowels.

A Cascaret to-night will surely straighten you out by morning. They work while you sleep—a 10-cent box from your druggist means your head clear, stomach sweet and your liver and bowels regular for months.

THE SPARROW

SPARROWS are not obstrusive birds, either in plumage, song or action. There are some 40 species, with nearly as many subspecies, in North America. Not more than half a dozen forms are generally known in any one locality. All the species are more or less migratory, but so widely are they distributed that there is probably no part of the country where some cannot be found throughout the year.

While sparrows are noted seed eaters, they do not by any means confine themselves to a vegetable diet. During the summer, especially in the breeding season, they eat many insects and feed their young largely upon the same food. Examination of stomachs of three species—the song sparrow, chipping sparrow, and field sparrow—shows that about one-third of the food consists of insects, comprising many injurious beetles, as snout beetles or weevils, and leaf beetles, many grasshoppers are eaten. In the case of the chipping sparrow these insects form one-eighth of the food. Grasshoppers would seem to be rather large morsels, but the bird probably confines itself to the smaller species; indeed, the greatest amount (over 80 per cent.) is eaten in June, when the larger species are still young and the smaller most numerous. Besides the insects already mentioned, many wasps and bugs are taken. Predacious and parasitic hymenopterous insects and predacious beetles, all useful, are eaten only to a slight extent, so that as a whole the insect diet of the native sparrows may be considered beneficial. There are several records of potato-bug larvae eaten by chipping sparrows.

Their vegetable food is limited almost exclusively to hard seeds. This might seem to indicate that the birds feed to some extent upon grain, but the stomachs examined show only one kind, oats, and but little of that. The great bulk of the food is made up of grass and weed seed, which form almost the entire diet during winter, and the amount consumed is immense.

The snowbird and tree sparrow are perhaps the most numerous of all the sparrows. Examination of many stomachs show that in winter the tree sparrow feeds entirely upon seeds of weeds. Probably each bird consumes about one-fourth of an ounce a day.

NO SUCH RUSSIAN ORDER.

OTTAWA, January 29.—The Munitions Board is officially informed that there is no truth in the statements which have appeared recently to the effect that the Russian government is negotiating the placing of orders for ten million shrapnel and high explosive shells in the United States.

The board has recently placed an order with the lowest tenderer for 60,000 boxes for 4.5 brass cartridge cases. Tenders ranged from $1.32½ per box to $4 per box.

The Ontario Highways Act

Toronto, Jan. 20, 1916.

DEAR SIR:—

The Ontario Highway Act having been brought into effect by recent proclamation, I am directed by the Minister of Public Works and Highways, Hon F. G. Macdiarmid, to call the attention of your council to the leading features of county road legislation under which the Province subsidizes county road improvement to the extent of 40 per cent. for construction and 20 per cent. for maintenance. At the present time there are twenty counties in Ontario carrying on this work.

Plan of Roads.

A county council is authorized to assume, by by-law, a system of roads to be constructed and maintained by the county.

In a county such as Peterborough, the county road system is usually confined to the more densely occupied townships; while those omitted from the system may receive grants from the county in lieu of expenditure on a definite system of roads. A county system for Peterborough, under such circumstances, might comprise 125 or 150 miles of road.

In selecting a system of roads it is advisable,

(1) That the roads should be limited to the least possible mileage in order that the completion of the system would not take too long a period.

(2) That all parts of the county be served as equitably as possible.

(3) That the roads should be more especially of county importance, extending to local markets and shipping points.

In considering any proposed plan of roads, I would point out that it is not always desirable to select the roads which are at the present time the most heavily travelled; but that consideration should be given to the roads which, if properly improved and constructed, would best serve the traffic and would become the most heavily travelled market roads. At the present time many roads of the Province are travelled to a considerable extent merely because other roads more favorably located, are not improved and therefore impassable.

In distributing the roads among the townships it should be endeavored to combine the mileage with the probable cost per mile, so as to make the total expenditure in each township proportionate to its equalized assessment. On such a scale there will ultimately be expended in each township an amount equal to what it has contributed, plus the Provincial subsidy.

Method of Finance.

Should your County undertake the improvement of such a system of roads, I would strongly recommend that it be paid for, as far as the feeling of the people will permit, by annual levy the amount so raised to be supplemented by a small debenture issue such as will not tend to accumulate a large municipal debt. By at once imposing an annual levy on one mill or 1½ mills on the county assessment, a very sound scheme of finance might be created.

Using 1½ mills as a basis, funds for construction would accrue as follows:—

Levy of 1½ mills on $9,000,000 assessment	$13,500
Debenture Issue	10,500
Provincial subsidy, 40% of total	16,000
Total annual expenditure	$40,000

The annual expenditure created in the manner described would in ten years produce an asset in improved roads worth $400,000 with a county debt of only $105,000. To the latter figure might be added the cost of plant and machinery, to be purchased gradually, amounting say to $30,000. These figures are, of course, a proximate and suggestive only. The amounts to be raised annually may be varied from year to year if so desired.

It may appear to you that a limited annual expenditure would not be sufficiently flexible to meet possible conditions, or that it would be desirable to make immediate and large appropriations to hasten the completion of the system. It is no doubt the case, that when a county system is first adopted, the public expect immediate construction and pressure is sometimes exerted to that end. We find however, that, particularly in the initial stages when organization is new and experience limited, large expenditures increase mileage costs, and should be avoided.

Our view is that expenditure should not be in excess of economical limits, but that an effort should be made to meet public opinion by immediately extending an effective plan of maintenance to the entire county system—removing shoulders from gravel roads, improving drainage, and using the log-drag on earth roads, etc. Such a plan would have a splendidly educative effect on township road management. On such systematic works of maintenance, the provincial subsidy of 20 per cent. will be paid.

Statute Labor.

The statute labour along these roads remains in the control of the township councils, and may be commuted, or may be worked out on other roads.

This forms a considerable off-set to the amount required by the county rate. Each mile of road assumed will as a rule, represent 50 days of statute labour, or for 150 miles at $1.00 per day, a total value of $7,500 over the county as a whole.

Suburban Roads.

A new feature of our legislature is that, on application of your council, the city of Peterborough may be called upon to contribute equitably to the construction and maintenance of the main road adjacent to and entering the city.

Equalizing Expenditure.

It is frequently felt by councillors that expenditure should be made in the townships in proportion to assessment. While this is proper to a certain extent, there is a broader field of equity and fairness which should be considered, growing out of the fact that, with a general system of good roads, travel in a county becomes more diffused, and the resulting general benefit largely removes the meaning of town-line divisions.

It has been previously pointed out that a reasonable equality of expenditure may be reached by making the mileage of roads such that their total estimated cost is proportional to the equalized assessment of each municipality. In addition to this method, in some counties the plan is followed of equalizing the expenditure in a term of years; while in occasional instances, an extra rate may, at the request of the township be levied on the township to meet special expenditure or hasten completion of the work.

These details are mentioned to show that the plan is flexible and may be adjusted to the wishes of your council.

Superintendence.

The county council, in carrying on the work, should appoint a County Road Superintendent, who would employ a foreman on each outfit of machinery. The time of the road superintendent will be fully taken up in directing the work generally, as, in addition to the main machinery outfits, there will be minor work going on in various parts of the county, such as special grading, draining and the building of bridges and culverts. The road superintendent will, of course, work under the direction of the county council, and committee of the council, consulting the Reeve of each township in which work is undertaken. It is important that the road superintendent be a man of thoroughly practical ideas, experienced in the management of men, and with some knowledge of book-keeping so that he can keep the accounts and records of the work.

In Conclusion.

Street improvement in the towns and villages of the county may be effected by special county grants. These grants in the majority of counties are made proportionate to equalized assessment; and are supplemented by Provincial grants where the streets so improved are connecting links in the County Road System.

In carrying on the work, the services of the engineers of this Department will be available for advice and consultation at all times without cost to the County.

The general features of the county road system have been under the observation of members of your County Council for some time, and they are no doubt, acquainted with the ordinary methods of organization. But if further assistance or information is desired, we will be pleased to hear from them.

Should your council appoint a Committee to go further into details of a system for the county of Peterborough, I will be glad to hear from and co-operate with them.

Yours faithfully
W. A. McLEAN,
Deputy Minister of Highways

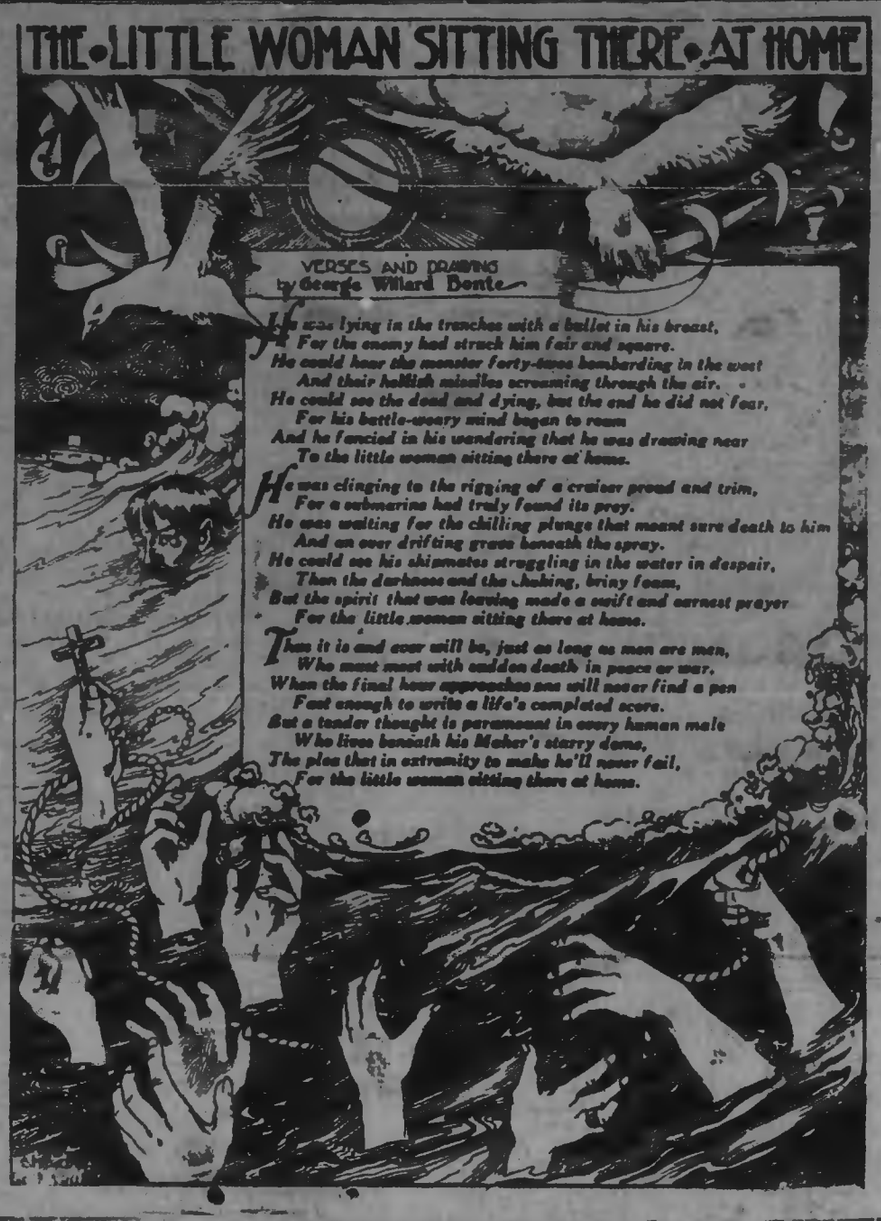
BAD COLD IN THE CHEST.

"I am happy to tell you that I used Dr. Chase's Syrup of Linseed and Turpentine, and was promptly cured of a very bad cold in the chest," writes Mrs. Josephine Gauthier, Dover South, Ont. You can depend on Dr. Chase's Syrup of Linseed and Turpentine to relieve and cure all inflammations and irritations of the throat and bronchial tubes.

THE LITTLE WOMAN SITTING THERE AT HOME



VERSES AND DRAWING by George Willard Bonte

He was lying in the trenches with a bullet in his breast,
For the enemy had struck him fair and square.
He could hear the monster forty-tons bombarding in the west
And their hellish missiles screaming through the air.
He could see the dead and dying, but the end he did not fear,
For his battle-weary mind began to roam
And he fancied in his wandering that he was drawing near
To the little woman sitting there at home.

He was clinging to the rigging of a cruiser proud and trim,
For a submarine had truly found its prey.
He was waiting for the chilling plunge that meant sure death to him
And an ever drifting grave beneath the spray.
He could see his shipmates struggling in the water in despair,
Then the darkness and the choking, briny foam,
But the spirit that was leaving made a swift and earnest prayer
For the little woman sitting there at home.

Thus it is and ever will be, just as long as men are men,
Who must meet with sudden death in peace or war,
When the final hour approaches one will never find a pen
Fast enough to write a life's completed score.
But a tender thought is paramount in every human male
Who lives beneath his Maker's starry dome,
The plea that in extremity to make he'll never fail,
For the little woman sitting there at home.

Comfort and Cure For Baby's Skin Troubles

Dr. Chase's Ointment Cured When Baby's Body Was Covered With Distressing Eczema

If every mother could try Dr. Chase's Ointment for the chafing, skin irritation and resulting eczema which tortures so many babies, what a blessing it would be for the little ones.

This letter will give you an idea of what a wonderful work this Ointment is doing in the way of bringing comfort to children who are so unfortunate as to contract eczema. It is so easy for this trouble to develop from chafing or irritation caused by the clothing, and so difficult to get it cured, that Dr. Chase's Ointment is appreciated when once its healing qualities are known.

Mr. M. L. Dusclos, Postmaster, Dugnayville, N.B., writes: "I believe it my duty to recommend Dr. Chase's Ointment as a cure for eczema. My baby was seized with eczema and his face and arms were covered with this terrible disease. After trying all sorts of ointments the disease continued to spread until it covered the entire body. When the itching became bad he would scratch himself and was sometimes found in his cradle covered with blood. Hearing about Dr. Chase's Ointment I bought two boxes and before this was all used the child was cured. That was a year ago, and there has been no trace of eczema since. I recommend Dr. Chase's Ointment to all who suffer from eczema as being the best treatment in the world for itching skin diseases."

Dr. Chase's Ointment is for sale by all dealers at 60 cents a box. It is a good idea to keep it at hand along with the bath soap to be used for roughness of the skin, chafing or irritation. Prevention is so much better than cure. Powders clog the pores, but Dr. Chase's Ointment cleanses the pores and thereby keeps the skin soft and smooth. Sample box free if you mention this paper. EXAMINER PATTERN SERVICE

LADY'S DRESS.

By Anabel Worthington.

The one piece dress reigns supreme this season and the only trouble seems to be to get enough styles of every sort to meet the immense demand for them. Princess effects are also prevalent and these are easily used in the one piece dress, giving it style and distinction.

The gown shown in the illustration is a one piece model and it is given the princess effect by means of the front panel, which is cut in one piece for its entire length. There is a slash at the waistline, which allows of fitting the dress at the sides, and the back has the waist and skirt entirely separate.

The closing of this dress is double breasted and is arranged at the side. The neck is then left a trifle open and it is finished with a small turn-over collar. The sleeve is entirely plain and extends to the wrist; a second sleeve has a fitted cap and below this the material is full and gathered into a cuff at the wrist. Both these sleeves are given in the pattern.

Such a dress as this will be beautiful if made of velvet or fine broadcloth, but it will also be handsome in serge, gabardine and in some of the pretty novelty cloths. Poplin has good body for it and will hold its shape.

The dress pattern, No. 7390, is cut in sizes 34 to 44 inches bust measure. Medium size requires 4¼ yards of 44 inch material, with ½ yard of 40 inch chiffon, ⅝ yard of 36 inch crepe for collar and ⅛ yard of 18 inch satin for girdle.

This pattern can be obtained by sending 10 cents to the office of this paper.

When ordering remember to give your name and address as well as the number and size of pattern required, and age of a child.

Price 10 cents or 3 for 25c.

BUSY KING EDWARD.

No Doubt Hard Work Caused Death of "Peacemaker."

"One night," says his lordship, "I was dining at the club, after King Edward had come to the throne, but before he had moved from Marlborough House into Buckingham Palace. He knew that I was in London for two or three days alone, so he sent over to ask whether I was at the club, and if so to bid me go across to him. I found him in his private sitting-room, all alone, and we sat smoking and talking over old times for a couple of hours. Towards midnight he got up and said: 'Now I must bid you good night, for I must set to work'—pointing to a huge pile of the familiar red boxes. 'Surely,' I said, 'Your Majesty is not going to tackle all that work to-night!' His answer was: 'Yes, I must! Besides, it is all so interesting'; and then he gave me one of his happy smiles and I left him. So interesting! That was the frame of mind in which he faced his work—he, the man who we are expected to believe could not be brought to attend to business!"

It might almost be said that King Edward killed himself with work. During the closing days of his life, ill as he was, he worked with his accustomed energy at Buckingham Palace, and "on the Wednesday," to quote Lord Redesdale, "when one of the permanent heads of the Civil Service was with him, he was seized with one of those terrible choking fits of coughing. When he got better his visitor ventured to remonstrate with him, and begged him to rest, and even to go to bed, but he ridiculed the idea and said, 'No, I shall not give in; I shall work to the end. Of what use is it to be alive if one cannot work?' That was how he fulfilled his declaration to the Privy Council on his accession, that 'so long as there was breath in his body he would work for the good and amelioration of his people.'"

Belgian Relief Committee

A meeting will be held today at 4.45 at the Council chamber, with the object of forming a local committee to assist our poor Belgian friends—our allies—in their present unprecedented distress. Those in charge of the arrangements will gladly welcome all and sundry to join in this movement. Come along and make the meeting worthy of the cause and of this fair city of Peterborough.

TO RUN-DOWN WOMEN

Detroit Woman Tells How To Regain Strength.

DETROIT, Mich. "I was in such a run-down condition I had no ambition to do anything. I had a chronic cough and cold and nothing seemed to give me any relief, and I was gradually getting worse, until a friend advised me to try Vinol, which I did. After the first day or two it seemed to put new life into me, the tired worn-out feeling began to disappear. I regained my appetite and was able to get a good night's rest. The cough gradually wore away, and I am now feeling like myself again, so that I can do all my housework and go about my duties as usual. Vinol is certainly a wonderful medicine." Mrs. W. E. Waters, Detroit, Mich.

Vinol restores health and strength in conditions like this, because in a natural manner it increases the appetite, tones up the digestive organs, enriches the blood and strengthens every organ in the body.

We guarantee that Vinol will do the same for any run-down person in Peterborough, or give back their money. McDermid & Jury and E. J. Payne, druggists, Peterborough, Ont.

GERMAN OFFENSIVE CHECKED BY FRENCH COUNTER ATTACKS

Germans Unable To Make Further Progress And Have Been Driven Out of Some of The Conquered Ground By The Hot Fire From The French Position---Explosions Caused At Four Points in The German Trenches.

A SUMMARY OF TO-DAY'S WAR CABLES

PARIS, Jan. 31.—The new German offensive has been checked by vigorous French counter-attacks, the War Office indicated this afternoon in a statement reporting Teutonic onslaughts diminishing in violence.

Having occupied some French trenches wrecked by their heavy artillery, the Germans have been unable to make further progress and have been driven out of some of the conquered ground by hot fire from the French positions. North of Arras, in the region southwest of Hill No. 140 two German hand grenade attacks were repulsed, said this afternoon's official statement. In the Champagne region, north of Fresnoe, our artillery caused explosions at four points in the German trenches. In mine fighting in the Argonne we destroyed an enemy gallery near Haute Crevauchee.

PARIS, Jan. 31.—Squads of labourers to-day are digging in the ruins of the five-storey tenement building, split in halves by one of the 600-pound bombs, for bodies. Auguste Petitjean, Zouave, had obtained leave of absence from the front, and had reached home Saturday evening, eager to escape the war for a few days with his family. While he sat at table with his wife, his two little boys, and three other relatives, the war came to him. The bodies of all seven were found in the ruins of the tenement house.

LONDON, Jan. 31.—An official statement issued to-day indicates that the casualties in the British army for January showed about five per cent. decrease from those of December.

BERLIN, Jan. 31.—German Zeppelin raids on Paris Saturday and Sunday night were in retaliation for French air attacks on the open German city of Freiburg, the War Office announced this afternoon.

LONDON, Jan. 31.—The Tennyson family received news to-day of the death of Naval Lieut. Harold C. Tennyson, a great-grandson of the poet.

ATHENS, Jan. 31.—It is reported from Salonika that in a raid by French aeroplanes on Bulgarian lines at Pasartzi a whole camp was destroyed.

THE HAGUE, Jan. 31.—Queen Wilhelmina of Holland, who has been suffering from at attack of influenza, has been forced to take to her bed, it was announced to-day.

PARIS, Jan. 31.—An official statement to-day said that twenty-six persons were killed and thirty-two injured in Saturday night's raid. The property loss was less than $100,000.

BERLIN, via Sayville Wireless, Jan. 31.—The Italians have landed another infantry division and several batteries of heavy artillery at Avlona, in Southern Albania, according to Vienna despatches to-day.

CHICAGO, Jan. 31.—President Wilson to-day authorized the denial of the Washington despatch that he had changed his views of the right of Americans to travel on ships of belligerent nations. He stated that he is not in favour of Senator Gore's bill, which would bar Americans from such ships, but stands on the principle that a citizen of the United States has unquestionable right on the high seas in any ship except war vessels.

OTTAWA, Jan. 31.—"I know all about the matter," said Major-General Sir Sam Hughes when questioned concerning the charges made by Lieut.-Col. Lochead of the 118th Battalion, "but I have no data to give out now."

General Hughes declines to even discuss the question.

William Welchel, M.P., for Waterloo, was not in Ottawa to-day, so that no comment could be secured from him.

It is probably that the matter will be brought up before the orders of the day are called in the House this afternoon.

OTTAWA, Jan. 31. It is anticipated that the shell business will be again brought up in the Commons by the process of the Opposition adjourning the debate to discuss a resolution urging the appointment of a commission of investigation. In addition to this, a vote on the question might be precipitated upon going into supply.

OTTAWA, Jan. 31.—"Its a tempest in a tea-pot. Pay no attention to it," said General Sir Sam Hughes at the conclusion of an interview with Lieut.-Col. Lochead of the 118th Battalion of Berlin, Ont.. Colonel Lochead arrived in Ottawa to-day in connection with certain charges made regarding Ottawa authorities in connection with sedition charges against Walter Meyer, of Berlin, Ont. "Colonel Lochead is all right, but don't worry about the matter," said General Hughes.

SERGT. A. F. BOYLE, C.D.A.W.B., Who was lately the Hon. J. R. Stratton's chauffeur, refused a commission in the Royal Engineers, preferring to win his promotion from the ranks..

ERZERUM NOW SURROUNDED BY CZAR'S TROOPS

Russians Are Steadily Developing Their Successes in Armenia—Turks Driven From Positions

A STRIKING SUCCESS

LONDON, Jan. 30.—An Athens despatch says:

The Russians are surrounding Erzerum, from which city the Turkish authorities have fled, according to reports reaching here. A strong Russian column is advancing to the Tigris Valley, the advices add.

Driving Turks Out.

A despatch to The Chronicle from Harold Williams at Petrograd says:

The Russians are steadily developing their successes in Armenia. Some Turkish Battalions who were left behind near Lake Tortum when the main body fled to Erzerum, are now being levelled back. But more important is the fact that the Turks are being driven out of their positions on the range thirteen miles north of Erzerum, which protects the left flank of the main defences in the Camel's Hump Mountain in front of the town.

To the southwest of the fortress the Russians scored a striking success in driving the Turks out of Khynysskala, a fortified position which lies 26 miles south of Erzerum, or nearly half way between Erzerum and Mush. From Khynysskala the Turks have fled, not northward to Erzerum, but southward to Mush, probably in order to try to keep a firm hold on the roads leading south to Bitlis and Kharput, and thence into Mesopotamia. To the northwest of Khynysskala the roads lead to Palantekin, which protects Erzerum from the south. The Turks have so far actively attempted to resist oyn! from the Camel's Hump and along Passin Valley, where they were repulsed.

OBITUARY

WILLIAM C. MAY.

The death occurred on Friday last of Mr. William C. May, 165 Broadview avenue, Toronto, who passed away at the age of 76 years. The deceased was born in Prescott and was a harness maker by trade. He was well known in Peterborough.

STEPHEN CARROLL.

The death occurred yesterday morning at half-past-five of Mr. Stephen Carroll, at his late residence, 209 Bolivar street. The late Mr. Carroll had been ill only a short time. He was 86 years of age and was born in County Galway, Ireland. He came to this country 54 years ago. His wife predeceased him seven months ago. Three sons, Messrs. John, Michael and Val. Carroll are left to mourn his loss.

The funeral will take place to-morrow morning at 9 o'clock to St. Peter's Cathedral, and thence to St. Peter's cemetery.

LOCAL BARRISTER OFFERED HIMSELF AS PRIVATE

Mr. Joseph Wearing, M.A., a local barrister of the firm of Wood & Wearing, offered himself on Saturday as a private in the 97rd Battalion, but was unable to pass the medical examination. To The Examiner Mr. Wearing stated that the reason he offered himself was because there are still several hundred men required to bring the Battalian up to strength, and that there are some who appear to be shirking the responsibility. A brother of Mr. Wearing has been at the front for some time with the Canadian Engineers, and another is in training at Barrie.

MORE CANADIAN BATTALIONS TO GO OVERSEAS SHORTLY

Twenty Units Will be Sent Over at Request of War Office as Soon as The Necessary Transports Have Been Provided

---Seven Men Added To The Strength of 93rd Battalion---To-day's Military News.

OTTAWA, Jan. 30.—Major-Gen. Sir Sam Hughes announced to-night that twenty thousand more troops from Canada have been asked for by the War Office and will be despatched from the Dominion within the next two or three months. An offer of more troops was made some time ago, following the rapid progress made in the training centres of the Dominion, and the War Office has accepted the offer up to a total of twenty battalions, for which accommodation is being provided in England. The battalions will be selected in the order of merit, those that have shown the most efficiency being the likely ones for first choice. They will be sent over as soon as the necessary transports have been provided.

Word has been received that Pte. Joe Hill, a Lakefield member of the 21st Battalion, has been admitted to hospital in France, suffering from the effects of German gas. Pte. Hill will be remembered by hockey fans as the goal-keeper of the Lakefield Hockey team.

A letter has been received from Pte. W. McKinlay, who left with the 8th C.M.R., acknowledging with thanks the receipt of a gift from Mrs. Veitch, Downie street, who sent a number of Christmas gifts to the Peterborough boys.

Writing from Somewhere in Belgium, Pte. J. H. Cobb, a Peterborough boy with the 21st Battalion, encloses the following parody on "My Little Grey Home in the West:"

I've a little wet home in the trench
Where the rain storms incessantly drench.
There's a sky overhead
Clay and mud for a bed,
And a stone that we use for a bench.
Bully beef and hard biscuit to chew,
It seems years since I tasted a stew,
Shells reach us and scare
Yet no place can compare
With my little wet home in the trench.

The Huns in the bench o'er the way
Seem to know we've come here to stay,
They shoot and they shout
But they can't get us out
Though there's no dirty trick they won't play.
They rushed us a few night ago
But we don't like intruders, and so
Some separated quite sore
Others stayed evermore
Near my little wet home in the trench.

So hurrah! for the mud and the clay,
Which bads to "Der-tag" that the day
When we enter Berlin
That city of sin
And make the black-hearted ones pay.
Yes, we will think of the cold and the stench
While from the Huns our payment we'll wrench,
There's be shed there I fear
Redder stuff than a tear
In my little wet home in the trench.

Then a column of peace we'll erect,
Henry Ford will be there you may bet
In his little Ford car
He will shine like a star
As contented he sits at the wheel,
Of that shaky old automobile,
But the people all yell
You should be in ——
Or a little wet home in a trench.

The following letter from Private R. H. Muir, No. 3 Company, 21st Battalion, 4th Infantry Brigade, 2nd Canadian Division, British Expeditionary Force, has been received by Mrs. R. H. Muir, 210 Dublin street:

"Just a line to let you know that I received your letter and was glad to hear that the children are all well. I am sure that Kitchener must be a big boy now. I spent New Year's in the trenches with bullets and shells flying over my head, but I was happy. I got some cigarettes sent to me from a Miss Hobbins in Peterborough, also a box of candy, a handkerchief, some cigarettes and chewing gum from Mrs. Veitch, Downie street, Peterborough. I also got a Christmas card from Mayor Buller. It cheered me to think that the people at home thought of the boys in the trenches who are suffering all kinds of hardship. I got a letter to-day from Mrs. Helson and was pleased to hear from her, and also one from my old friend Foster in Belleville. I hope you and the children had a happy New Year, and that I may be spared to spend next New Years Day with you.—R. H. Muir.

The number of pairs of brothers in the 93rd Battalion is steadily mounting. Another was added on Saturday, when Pte. H. A. Knowles, a younger brother of Sergt. Jack Knowles, joined the Peterborough Battalion.

Q. M. Sergeant Goodhouse, who has been conducting musketry classes in connection with the 93rd Battalion, for several months, leaves to-night for Cobourg, where he will carry on similar work in connection with the 139th Battalion.

The Sergeant-Major, Staff Sergeants and Sergeants of the 93rd Battalion were the hosts of a very enjoyable social evening on Saturday night. The event was attended by the wives and lady friends of the Sergeants, and a delightful repast in the recreation room was followed by an enjoyable social hour in the Sergeants' mess. Music was provided by Miss Madge Duthie, Miss Pollock, Sergt.-Major Hartshorn and Sergt. Leader. The gathering broke up at 10 o'clock.

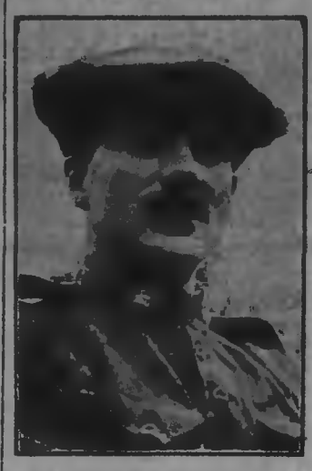
ANOTHER ROUSING RECRUITING MEETING



PTE. CHAS. STENNER

A Peterborough County man with the Princess Pats. Pte. Stenner is one of the few surviving original members of the famous regiment. He has been a resident of Deure for some eight or nine years, and will be remembered by, sporting fans as a contestant in the famous walking match in Brock Street Rink a few years ago. For a number of years he went to camp with the 3rd Prince of Wales Dragoons. His wife and family live in Deure.

Sergeant Bethune of Toronto Was The Chief Speaker in The Absence of Mayor Church—"Every Recruit Brings Peace That Much Nearer."

CAPT. ROLLINS REMARKED

Another rousing recruiting meeting was held in the Armouries last night, and, judging by the numbers that braved the elements, the enthusiasm of Peterborough's citizens has not died out, by any means.

Capt. Charles Ackerman, who acted as chairman, referred to the success of last Sunday night's meeting, and reported that twelve out of the eighteen who volunteered had passed the medical examination. "These men," said he, "will do their work and take the places of twelve men who [illegible] a year ago last August and who will not come back."

Mayor Church Was Absent.

He regretted the absence of Mayor Church, who was unable to come, and eulogized the heroic work of Sergeant Bethune, of Toronto, who had been sent in his stead. Sergeant Bethune was from the 2nd Field Ambulance, and belonged to that unit of the British army responsible for the alleviation of suffering among the men who are wounded, and would tell of his life at the front.

During the past week he had heard expressions of criticism about some things he had said last Sunday about conscription, but on the other hand he had spoken to many who were in entire sympathy with the efforts being made to add to the strength of the Battalion. Monday morning he was met by four men, three of them prominent business men, who told him they were going to enlist. During the week a woman called at his home, a woman who had given four sons, one of them now in a hero's grave, to see if there was any possibility of having her husband go. He wants to go. She wants him to go, and his boys are writing for him to come; the mother even is anxious to go as a nurse. It was then he realized, for the first time, that conscription would be better for Canada than the volunteer system.

Conscription.

If we had conscription it would not be necessary for that brave woman's family to be broken up, even if she wanted them all to go to the front. Two would go and two remain. Some say, "If he wants to go let him go," but it is also the business of those men who make that statement to go, and conscription would compel men of that type to do their duty. Others say, "I'll enlist if I can get a commission and be made an officer, and get the salary you are getting." At the city of Winnipeg at the present time there are 1,500 qualified infantry officers. In Kingston and other training points there are scores of officers qualifying, but the Minister of Militia has given the people to understand that no officers are going to leave Canada until they are efficient, and the process of elimination goes on as better officers are found.

In the trenches the officers and men share the same hardships, live on the same rations, and if there is a shortage the officers are the men who go short. The men do their work, and when relieved lie down and sleep, but the officer has to sleep with one eye open, since he has 54 or 56 men—a platoon—to look after. Then there comes the time when the officer receives the command to attack, and as he looks behind at his men, he would possibly prefer to change places with them.

TRAGIC DEATH OF LINDSAY OFFICER IN MOTOR ACCIDENT

Lt. Col. L. H. Hopkins Who Went Overseas With The First Canadian Contingent Killed When Car Skidded

HIS BROTHER INJURED

LONDON, Jan. 31.—At Clapham, near Worthing, yesterday afternoon, Lieut. Col. Frederick Holmes Hopkins of the Canadian Army, was killed, and his brother, Second Lieut. Robert Holmes Hopkins, seriously injured in a motor car accident. They were proceeding to Arundel on a visit to a relative, and the car, a Ford two-seater, skidded. Lieut.-Col. Hopkins, who was driving, was thrown out, and his neck was dislocated.

Lieut.-Col. Hopkins was a Lindsay man who went over with the first contingent. He was a lawyer, and practiced law with his brother. He was a married man.

His mother last week celebrated her 100th birthday. Lt.-Col. Hopkins was well known in Peterborough and his many friends will be shocked to learn of his death.

BEAUTIFUL LIMOGES DINNER SETT TO BE GIVEN AWAY

By The Turnbull Co. on Dollar Day

The Turnbull window showing the Limoges dinner sett which they are giving away "Dollar-Day" is attracting more than usual attention. This sett is from their regular stock in the china department, and was imported direct from France, each piece being stamped with the maker's name. The fortunate party securing this will certainly never forget Dollar Day or the Turnbull store.

SEE HIM AND SEE BETTER

Is the slogan adopted by Dr. Lacey, the eye specialist, of 440 George St. His hundreds of satisfied patients will testify to the truth of this. See him for any eye and head troubles, also repair work.

Another Veteran Of Peterborough

Mr. Northey was born in Lew Down, Devonshire, England, January 30th, 1837, and is this is his seventy-ninth year. His family came to this country when he was six years old, and settled on the 7th concession of Smith township.

His father, James Northey, was the seventh son, of the seventh son, and according to general report, was able to perform many cures such as stopping of hemorrhage. His brother James was the owner and publisher of the first newspaper in Peterborough, called The Gazette, issued from a building on the corner of Charlotte and Water streets, where the Empress now stands. Mr. Northey entered his brother's office at the age of eleven to learn the printing business.

Four years after this his brother purchased a paper in Toronto and Mr. Northey went with him to the Queen City. Returning to Peterborough a couple of years later he entered the office of the "Dispatch," which was published in a building where the Examiner now stands, where he remained two or three years before joining his father on the farm.

Mr. Northey was twice married. His first wife was Mary Tellow, who died one year after their marriage. His second wife was Mary Jane Stubbs, whom he married Nov. 9th, 1864. She passed to her reward ten years ago, leaving besides her husband, three daughters and two sons: Mrs. Joseph Sucee, Mrs. Edward Trennum, Mrs. Richard Heard, and Messrs. Jas. H. and Whitfield Northey.

Mr. Northey enjoys the best of health and his sunny, amiable disposition wins for him many friends. His family takes his first attention, next comes the cause of temperance and the Methodist church, and last but not least the principles which usually assert themselves most conspicuously on the glorious twelfth.

We have not our choice to be rich or poor, to be in health or sickness, but we have our choice to be worthy or worthless.

"Peterborough Presents Possibilities Unsurpassed."

MONDAY, JAN. 31, 1916

AN EXPLANATION.

The Munition Commission has got to the point of explaining the high cost of shell making which is part of the changes that have been made in the House. The explanation is made that high prices were set in the beginning in order to encourage manufacturers. This may be true, and to a certain extent, satisfactory, but it does not explain why politicians with a "pull," who had no plants and no machinery to make shells, had contracts awarded them at the fancy prices and "farmed" them out at much lower prices to factories which hadn't the necessary political "pull" to get orders. The operations of these political gentry is what should be investigated. If, to give encouragement, it was necessary to pay high prices in the beginning, it should have been provided that the high prices went into the making of shells, and not into the pockets of political profiteers.

NATIONAL DELUSION.

The mad Kaiser says the German people are "fighting for honour and liberty." Very well; one doesn't know a country that, ruled as it is, needs "honour" and "liberty" more than Germany. But the Kaiser is wrong. The militarists are forcing the people to fight for their own enslavement; though, no doubt the outcome of the fight will be the liberation of the German people from the worst form of enthralment a military despotism has ever been able to foster upon a naturally good people—delusion as to the aims and trend of the military cult which has by a long course of propagandism deluded the people into the belief that Germany is in this war for the good of the country. So thoroughly have the people been deluded that the process of disillusionment is slow. The war is founded upon German lies, and the German people are being fed upon German lies to-day, as they have been from the beginning. But the awakening is surely, if slowly, coming.

PARTIZANSHIP AND INVESTIGATION.

Partizanship vision has strong refracting powers. Things seen, through its medium take very crooked shapes. The Ottawa Journal, in dealing with the Carvell-Burrell episode, sees nothing in Mr. Carvell but a "dirty fighter," who assailed the stainless Mr. Burrell who is the most exaggerated concentration of all that virtue can produce. The charges made by Mr. Carvell were all false, first because Mr. Carvell is a political opponent, and secondly because Mr. Burrell, a political friend, denied them. His ipse dixit settled the matter for the partisan journals. As a matter of fact one man's statement, unsupported in either case, by important evidence, is as good as another, and the probability is that, as always obtains, the truth lies between the two. Mr. Carvell may easily have exaggerated in his charges, and Mr. Burnell may easily have exaggerated in his denials. In another case have we anything like proof. The only way to get proof is to have authoritative and impartial investigation. Mr. Carvell wants investigation and Mr. Burrell wants to stave off investigation. In this respect Mr. Carvell is superior to Mr. Burrell. Mr. Carvell wants investigation, which will disclose the truth or falsity of his otherwise unsupported charges which thus, amount to nothing. Mr. Burrell doesn't want investigation which would disclose the truth or falsity of his otherwise unsupported denials, which thus amount to nothing. Admitting that Mr. Carvell's charges were partisan, we must also admit that Mr. Burrell's denial was partisan. Investigation is the only way of eliminating partisanship and getting at the truth. If the government denies investigation it doesn't want the truth brought out. We are thus forced to the conclusion that the truth would hurt.

GOOD ROADS.

The County Council didn't go very deeply into the good roads problem. The decision, however, to attend the Good Roads Convention in Toronto is a good one. No council, county or city, can learn too much about good roads. At good roads conventions we can get oceans of information. But what we all lack is the spirit to put our information into practical effect—do something, besides theorize and talk. If the members of the County Council come back from Toronto, with a determination to do something, their visit will have been profitable, but otherwise, except for the incidental personal enjoyment of the trip, their visit will be valueless.

In the discussion of the good roads problem one notices that most of the attention is given to trunk roads. That is the automobile end of the question; for trunk roads are greatly in the interest of the auto. That fact doesn't, however, make them less desirable, for their use by the auto doesn't prevent their use by more humble vehicles. The government helps build trunk lines such as that great auto speed-way between Hamilton and Toronto, which is to be jointly used by the autoists of these two cities and the residents along the line of the road.

These trunk lines are good things; but are they not too much exploited at the expense of more important road interests? The great mass of the farmers of the province—the real province—are so situated topographically, that these trunk lines are of no use to them. The branch roads between their farms and the trunk lines are so neglected, and so villainously bad in the main, that the back township farmer cannot easily and conveniently reach the beautiful trunk lines to get the advantage of their use. Any system of county road-making that does not include attention to the needs and, what is more, the rights of every farmer—is very importantly defective. The trunk lines are built by the joint use of provincial funds and local taxation. As to the provincial funds the farmer in the back township has as much right to the benefits of their expenditure on good roads, as the farmer who lives along a beautiful trunk line—if not a greater right, because his need is greater. It is evident that the provincial scheme of road making admirable and excellent, as it is, could be greatly improved by providing for the concurrent expenditure of provincial funds upon the work of developing and improving the roads in the back townships, and in the remote parts of front townships. What does it benefit the owners of farms in the townships if millions are spent on trunk lines, that they cannot reach because of the bad state of the roads connecting their farms with the trunk lines that lead to market towns? If the good roads scheme were amended to provide that remote farmers should have consideration, by the systematic improvement, under provincial management of the connecting roads, its value would be unspeakably increased. If, in the construction of trunk lines of good roads, less were done, that is less distance covered, and more effort at the same time put upon the improvement of connecting roads, the public benefits from the expenditure of public money would be far greater and far more equitably distributed.

If some of the members of the County Council from Peterborough, who will attend the Good Roads Convention, would introduce and procure consideration of this phase of the good roads enterprise he would be doing a good thing.

NOT A PARTISAN DEMAND.

One of the main arguments of those who have undertaken the task of defending the Shell Committee is that a considerable proportion of the orders they have handed out have gone to Liberals. One even goes so far as to state that "seventy-five per cent. of the shell orders are alleged to have gone to Liberals." In view of Mr. Carvell's revelations, this claim is ridiculous. But even if it were true that Liberals had got 75 per cent. of the orders, what would that prove? It would simply prove that the demand for an investigation is not a partisan move.—Montreal Herald.

CRUDE PILFERING EXPOSED.

Must the Imperial Government be forced to conclude that in entrusting its Canadian purchases to the Government of the Dominion it is exposing itself to trickery worthy only of a coterie of crooks and confidence men? This is the question forced by Mr. Carvell's charges in the Commons. The story he discloses opens when the British Government entrusted the Canadian Government to purchase hay in New Brunswick. The export of hay was prohibited. The Atlantic Hay Company suddenly sprang into existence. Instead of buying from the farmers, the Government made a contract with this special creation, which seemed to be composed chiefly of Mr. D. F. Smith, the defeated Conservative candidate in Carleton, for 10,000 tons at $24 per ton. Farmers had no market except the abstract creation, so they sold to it for $11 and $12 per ton, some two or three dollars below normal prices. Mr. Smith's abstractions, after making from $48,000 to $80,000, got another contract for 15,000 tons. Some other Government friends wanted a share, so they got a small contract at $21.50, which they turned over to hay dealers, Liberals, at $20.50. A more disgraceful feature was the buying and re-pressing of condemned hay, costing $12 per ton in St. John, and selling it at $24. This might bring disaster to a British force depending on good fodder for movements in the field.

The crude and heartless dishonesty of these operations is astounding. At a fall fair an innocent-looking bystander discovers how the mysterious lock can be opened, and explains the process to the selected victim. But when he bets with the owner that he can do the opening trick he finds his special knowledge of no avail. This is no more crude and no more obviously plotted than the game played on the British Government and the New Brunswick farmers. The British Government has suffered through its confidence in the Canadian Government, and the farmers through their helplessness under export embargo. Mr. Carvell also stated that Hon. Martin Burrell implored him not to expose the trickery. He has taken the right attitude toward a public duty.

It will not be enough for the Canadian Government to prevent this company from making an additional $35,000 as threatened. Restitution in full should be made to the British Government of all the money dishonestly taken, and to the farmers of all taken from them through the unfair advantage given the operating concern. The Government should make restitution, just as any fall-fair crook would be glad to do when gathered in by the county constable. No expenditure will be more freely endorsed by Canadian taxpayers.—The Globe.

APPOINT A GUARDIAN.

It would be greatly to the advantage of the constituents of Captain J. H. Burnham, M.P., were they to appoint an Advisory Council to prevent him from making too many breaks.—Luxembourg (N.S.) Enterprise.

DEMAND FOR INQUIRY STANDS.

In his reply to Hon. Dr. Pugsley's call for an investigation into the activities of the late Shell Committee, Hon. Arthur Meighen, who spoke in the House of Commons on Thursday, did not meet the demands of the situation created by the charges. The case for an inquiry remains unimpaired after Mr. Meighen's defence.—Montreal Mail.

PROGRESS AND ECONOMY IN QUEBEC.

The Budget speech delivered in the Quebec Legislature this week by the Hon. W. G. Mitchell shows the finances of the Province to be in a most satisfactory condition. After defraying all expenditures, ordinary and extraordinary, and contributing no less a sum than $602,994 to patriotic and charitable purposes, there remains in hand a surplus of $194,416. The figures show that, while the Provincial Government have pursued their progressive policy with vigor, particularly as regards education, colonization and the construction of good roads, they have been ever mindful to keep expenditudes well within bounds.—Montreal Herald.

This Will Be a Long War But Not The Longest in History

Some of us talk of this as a long war, but it is not nearly in the class of long wars yet. Turning back to history we read of the Thirty Years' War, and the Napoleonic wars, which lasted twenty years and more. Coming down to more recent days we find that the civil war in the United States lasted four years.

In the American civil war the North had an overwhelming preponderance of territory, men, money and industrial development. It had all the advantages possessed by ourselves and our allies to-day and more. It was in the North that mechanical industry had been developed. In the South it had been neglected. The South was an agricultural country, and more than that, an agricultural country hampered by slave labour. The slave-holder was a man who had not been trained to do things for himself. It was said, partly in joke and partly in earnest, that he could not drive a nail or mend a fence. He could fight, but he had not been taught to work.

And yet it took the North four years to beat the South.

Now in our struggle with Germany we must not forget that the German has been taught to work as well as to fight. The German has been taught to be thrifty, while the Southern planter was brought up in an environment of careless generosity. In this case we are facing a war-crazed nation, but there is method in its madness. We are fighting a resourceful, scientific nation. We are fighting German chemists and mechanics as well as German soldiers.

In fact, we are up against one of the biggest jobs that was ever undertaken on behalf of humanity, and we may as well recognize it. We must use every ounce, not only of our fighting strength, but of our mechanical, our industrial, our commercial, our financial strength. We must win, but we must not grumble if it takes two, three, or four years to get the job done and done thoroughly.

And if it is done thoroughly, what a boon will be conferred upon humanity! Imagine a world freed from Prussian madness, Prussian brutality, Prussian greed, Prussian tyranny. Think of the glorious progress that the human race may make in the next century, if once the Prussian madness is curbed! It is worth fighting and suffering for a year or two more. The struggle is ours. The blessing we strive for is for the human race. The struggle is a matter of years. The results will be felt for centuries to come.

To Aid Recruiting.

The Oxford County Council made a grant of $500 to the recruiting and regimental fund of the 168th Battalion. The matter of raising money for the Patriotic Fund will not be taken up till next year. At a session last week the council raised the poll tax in the county from $1 to $5.

$2,000 Per Month.

Hastings County Council voted $2,000 per month to the Canadian Patriotic Fund until June, when the problem will be again taken up. One thousand dollars was voted to the regimental fund of the 80th Battalion and one thousand to the recruiting and regimental funds of the 156th Battalion.

Welland County.

At the annual meeting of the Welland County Patriotic Fund Association it was decided to endeavour to raise $84,300 this year for the fund. The amount raised last year was more than $50,000.

Welland town, with Crowland township, has assumed the task of raising $43,000 of this year's amount. The balance is divided among thirteen other municipalities. Judge Livingstone said that he already has pledges which assured him that Welland town would raise the full amount apportioned to it.

Machine Gun Grant.

At the session of Perth County Council the machine gun grant of $8,000 made by last year's council was cancelled, but the monthly patriotic grant was increased from $1,400 to $2,000. A like amount was set aside as a fund from which the township Women's Patriotic League can draw to purchase material for soldiers' comforts. The following grants were made: $1,500 to the 110th Battalion Band, $1,000 to the General Hospital, $200 to the Children's Aid Society. The council also increased the salaries of Clerk Wm. Davidson and Treasurer George Hamilton to $900 and $1,200 respectively.

Turner and His Pictures.

"The glory of Turner," writes E. W. Chubb in a study of this eccentric famous artist in "Sketches of Great Painters," "lies not in the details of his life, but in the beauty of his art. Personally, I shall never forget the shock of charmed surprise I experienced when first I entered a large room filled with the glorious coloring of Turner's landscapes. His pictures have an individuality that is never forgotten. But little knowledge of art is needed to recognize a Turner or a picture done in Turner's style. He belongs to the few who have the force of personality which bursts the bonds of convention. He is a pioneer. What Dryden said of Shakespeare may be said of Turner, 'He needed not the spectacles of books to read nature.' With sketch book in hand he trudged over Europe, absorbing beauty and sublimity wherever beauty and sublimity could be found. This man, so mean and sordid and uncouth, at least so regarded by a convenant society, must have had an inner nature marvelously beautiful and magnanimous and imaginative, for how else could he have seen the beautiful and sublime? The world without is but the reflection of the world within."

The First Sleeping Car.

The first real sleeping car was built in 1864. It was called the Pioneer, and the builder further designated it by the letter "A," not dreaming that he would soon exhaust the letters of the alphabet. The Pioneer cost the almost fabulous sum of $18,000. That was back when extravagance in a year when the cost of railroad coaches could be built at a cost not exceeding $4,000. But the Pioneer was blazing a new path in luxury. Without it was radiant in paint and varnish, in gay stripes and lettering. It was a giant compared with its fellows, for it was a foot wider and two and a half higher than any car ever built before. It had the hinged berths that are the distinctive feature of the American sleeping car today, and the porter and the passengers no longer had to drag the bedding from boxes at the far end of the car.—Exchange.

With Other Municipalities

Frontenac Council's Grant.

A grant of $30,000 was made to the Canadian Patriotic Fund by Frontenac County Council. The council also contributed $300 to the funds of the 146th Battalion.

To Simcoe Battalions $2,500.

The Simcoe County Council voted $2,500 towards the recruiting and supplementary expenses for the two Simcoe Battalions.

Lambton's Large Grants.

The Sarnia County Council passed by-laws giving $4,000 per month to the Dominion Patriotic Fund, and also a grant of $3,000 to the 149th Battalion for recruiting purposes. The grant to the Patriotic Fund totals $48,000 for the year.

Norfolk County Council.

Norfolk County Council raised its monthly grant to the Canadian Patriotic Fund from $1,000 to $2,000,

SING SING'S CHARMS PROMPTED ARSON

NEW YORK, Jan. 30.—"Are the cops looking for me?" asked a young lad of Policeman Flynn in the main corridor at Police Headquarters.

"Maybe they are," said Flynn. "Let's go down and see."

He took him down to Detective Bureau, and there Captain Dunn asked him what made him think the police wanted him.

"Why, for that fire at No. 53 Orchard street at 3 o'clock this morning," he said. "I thought sure they would get me by this time, and when they didn't I came around to see about it.

"Did you set fire to the tenement?"

"Sure, I did," the boy said. "Charley Greenburg lives there, and I thought I'd kill two birds with one stone. I wanted to get even with Greenburg for walloping me last week, and then I want to go to Sing Sing, where they have things pretty soft."

He was promptly placed under arrest as an incendiary and then questioned further. He said he was Benjamin Danishefsky, eighteen years old, of No. 51 Orchard Street.

"I've been wanting to go to Sing Sing for a long time," he said. "I broke into a flat last spring and was arrested. I pleaded guilty in court and thought sure I was going to get to Sing Sing when Judge Swann spoiled the thing by paroling me.

"After Charley Greenburg gave me the licking last week I saw where I could get even with him and get to Sing Sing at the same time. I could get even with him by burning him up."

"How about ninety other people in the house?"

"Well, maybe they could get out. Anyway, if they didn't, it would serve them right, for living in the same house with a fellow like that Greenburg. Say, do you think you can get me into Sing Sing for this?"

Danishefsky said he had pawned his overcoat for a dollar on Tuesday and purchased a quart of turpentine. He got up at three o'clock yesterday morning, sprinkled the turpentine in the hallway of No. 53 and then touched a match to it, he said. It probably would have been a disastrous fire had not a tenant on the second floor heard the incendiary, and spread the alarm before the fire could spread far. There was much excitement but small damage.

Because of the boy's peculiar aspect of morals he was turned over to Professor Bisch, of Columbia University, psychologist for the Police Department, who will make a recommendation what to do with him.

Its Coming, the Big Event of the Year, when there are bargains in every line of goods.

WHAT SWITZERLAND IS DOING TO HELP THE FOREIGN SUFFERERS OF THE EUROPEAN CONFLICT

A Swiss Relief Bureau For the Prisoners of War—Work is Carried on With the Help of the Russian and English Committees—Gigantic Charitable Work of the Swiss Postal Authorities

EXCHANGE OF PRISONERS

(By Maurice Widmer.)

A Swiss Relief Bureau for the Prisoners of War.

Besides the famous agency of the Prisoners of War at Geneva maintained by the International Committee of the Red Cross about whose stupendous activity numerous reports have already appeared in this country, there are a great many other benevolent institutions which Swiss generosity and brotherly love have long ago inaugurated to help the prisoners and other sufferers of the war.

Under the auspices of the French Embassy a Relief Bureau was thus founded in the Swiss Capital, Berne, in December, 1914. It's purpose is to alleviate the sufferings of French and Belgian prisoners of war and interned civilians of those nationalities, as investigations had lead to the discovery that these men were short of linen, outer garments and shoes and their food, too needed certain improvements.

Prisoner's Camps.

The Bureau started its activities by appealing first of all to a number of private parties that they organize committees whose task it is to collect donations and forward them on to Berne from where the gifts are judiciously distributed among the different camps for prisoners and interned civilians. In due accordance with arrangement made with other organizations which have been established for a similar purpose, the Swiss Relief Bureau in Berne has principally taken charge of the prisoners' camp in Baden, Wurttemberg and Bavafia, thus covering about 70 depots. Neutral delegates to whom the German authorities have given permission to visit the camps have been entrusted with the distribution of the gifts collected. When the work was started the prisoners of each camp had upon request of the Bureau to nominate a man of confidence, who is authorized by the commander of the camp to report regularly about the requirements of the men. This method enables the Bureau to provide each camp with those things of which an actual shortage has been reported. Individual requests made by the prisoners are only granted when they are duly reported by the afore-mentioned man of confidence. This step was taken to prevent certain prisoners from appealing to several relief organizations at once while some of their more modest and perhaps more deserving comrades would be left empty-handed.

Statistics covering the period from January 15 to March 31, 1915 show that the Berne Relief Bureau sent in bulk to the above indicated camps 20,000 kilos of foodstuffs and clothing and 1500 individual packages; in April, May and June, 1915 the total of such donations dispatched weight 41,000 kilos and in the two months of July and August 30,000 kilos.

Among the foodstuffs bread is reported to be the leader, regular shipments thereof being sent to the different camps. Relatives, home-organizations on behalf of those prisoners and other charity undertakings are given an opportunity to subscribe for them. The rate for such bread subscriptions is 3 francs (60c) for 1 kilo per week; 6 francs for 2kilos per week, etc. The loaves are made and twice baked in Berne; they are packed in individual white bags and are dispatched as fast freight to the different camps.

In order to facilitate communications between the families and charitable honors on the one hand and the prisoners of war on the other hand, the Relief Bureau in Berne is also taking care of the re-forwarding of packages. For April, May and June, 1915 this traffic reached the formidable figure of 150,000 Kg.,—from its foundation up to end of June, 1915 the Bureau received various donations amounting to a total of about 200,000 Francs ($40,000). These gifts originated principally from France, but Switzerland as well figures as a generous contributor.

Committees Jointed.

While the Relief Bureau takes particular charge of the camps in southern Germany, it has gradually become a centre of benevolent work on behalf of the prisoners. Already in March, 1915, it was joined by a Russian and an English committee; the latter being carried on under the auspices of the wife of the English Ambassador in Berne, which two committees are naturally concentrating their efforts upon relief work for prisoners of their respective nationality.

The Bureau maintains relations practically all the camps for prisoners and it publishes at regular intervals which refer alternatively to the German, French and English camps. It also collects lists asking for lacking necessities in the French camps and forwards them on for attention to the different German organizations for the relief of prisoners. The Bureau furthermore makes enquiries about the missing and furnishes information about the prisoners of war to their relatives. It transmits to the mothe special requests of prisoners for books, musical instruments, working material for painters and sculptors, etc. With the aid of affiliated associations it also organizes exhibitions and takes charge of the sale of articles which have been made in the camps.

It must also be pointed out that the Swiss Federal Railroads and the Swiss postal authorities are taking care of all these numerous and bulky transports entirely free of charge.

The Bernese Relief Committee

This is another charity organization which was formed in December, 1914 under the auspices of two noble Swiss women, Mesdames Valentin and Jaggi, with the double purpose of providing warm clothing for the poor captives and sewing to do for a number of needy women in Berne.

The committee started with a modest fund of $5, but it gained immediate favor among the Swiss and when the French commence to reorganize some of their relief committees for the prisoners' camps the Bernese Relief Committee was even entrusted with the care of the two great camps at Giessen and Pauhinen and a part of the Holzminden camp; it furthermore participated in some big collective shipments to the Grafenwohr and Luhfeld camps.

The Bernese Relief Committee for the prisoners of war is a strictly Swiss and therefore neutral organization and this very fact has enabled its members to do more good in the German camps than would have been possible otherwise. Charity alone guides this Committee; no distinction is being made between the different nationalities, although there exist separate funds for the prisoners of each country.

When the boat "Dresden" has ceased to pass through the country, many kind-hearted persons who had helped those unfortunates, homeless travelers, were ready to do work for another charitable undertaking and the Bernese Relief Committee was thus enabled to found branch sections in various sections. In French Switzerland, the Swiss Lyceum, an international feminine society, organized the sections of Geneva, Vevey and Lausanne. So successful have the efforts of this undertaking been that it is now able to take care of 400—500 prisoners per week and the touching grateful acknowledgements which are frequently received act as a constant reminder that as long as the war lasts there will always be a greater number of unfortunates to be cared for.

The Swiss Academic Relief Association.

Seeing that the war has also claimed many yong people who were still attending universities and other scientific establishments and who were thus obliged to suddenly interrupt their studies, the professors of the Swiss universities founded the so-called Academic Relief Association whose purpose it is to furnish such students who are now prisoners of war with scientific books and periodicals, so as to enable them to continue their studies during captivity.

A Gigantic Charitable Work

While the general business depression caused by the war has naturally also reduced post office revenues in Switzerland, it is interesting to see how that great Swiss institution has distinguished itself by its gratuitous activity on behalf of the prisoners of war and the numerous charity organizations now engaged in various relief work.

Switzerland allows free postage not only to letters, packages and money orders destined for prisoners of war, bt also all correspondence addressed by the prisoners and the interned civilians to their relatives and friends in some of the most thickly populated countries of Europe.

The mail matter which has thus been transmitted gratuitously since the outbreak of the war amounts into many millions and statistics covering the period from September 1914 to October, 1915, indicate that through the mediation of the Swiss Federal post office at Berne the following dispatches have been taken over and reforwarde:

To prisoners of war in Germany 29,342,183 letters and postals, also 2,146,044 small parcels.

To prisoners of war in France and her colonies 28,348,370 letters and postals, also 929,408 small parcels.

To prisoners of war in Austria-Hungary 980,775 letters and postals, also 239 small parcels.

To prisoners of war in Italy 446,-220 letters and postals, also 474 small parcels.

To prisoners of war in Great Britain and her colonies 50,810 letters and postals, also 920 small parcels.

To prisoners of war in Turkey 70,-780 letters and postals, also 180 small parcels.

In the same period parcels up to 11 pounds each were forwarded as follows:

10,454,786—To French prisoners in Germany; 697—To French prisoners in Austria; 118—To French prisoners in Turkey; 1,165,519—To German prisoners in France; 161—To German prisoners in Great Britain and her colonies; 1,814—to Austrian prisoners in Italy; 411—To Austrian prisoners in France; 1,047—To Italian prisoners in Austria; 418—To British prisoners in Turkey.

During October, 1915 the Post Office of Geneva took over and re-forwarded the following parcels for prisoners of war weighing up to 11 lbs.:

To French prisoners of war in Germany, 6,038 packages; To French prisoners of war in Austria, 11 packages; To German prisoners of war in Great Britain and her colonies, 33 packages; To German prisoners of war in France, 154,800 packages; To Austrian prisoners of war in France, 289 packages; To British prisoners of war in Turkey, 315; To French prisoners of war in Turkey, 8 packages.

In October last the Railroad Post Office at Basle transmitted 1,446,000 packages for French and British prisoners of war in Germany, a great proportion of them containing bread.

The Swiss postal athorities show for the month of October, 1915 a daily average of 219,094 letters and postcards; 16,913 small packages; 31,897 registered parcels weighing up to 10 lbs.; and 9,225 money orders for a total of francs 118,988 which have all been re-forwarded free of charge and which work requires, of course much extra help.

To French prisoners in Germany, 1,866,268 Orders, total value, francs 22,722,664; To German prisoners in France, 800,669 orders, total value, francs 6,111,799; To Austrian prisoners in Russia, 124,028 orders, total value, francs 3,2[illegible]; To Russian prisoners in Austria, 180,197 orders, total value, francs 3,174,866, and to prisoners of various nations in different countries, 37,819 orders, for francs 1,204,977.

How efficient war tactics have again been restored to in the present European conflict is illustrated by the fact that a great number of hostages have been taken in French territory occupied by the Germans and again in Alsatian territory occupied by the French. When disquieting reports about the sad condition in which these people found themselves began to reach Switzerland in October, 1914, a meeting was held at Basle beginning of November on the occassion of which it was debated whether it would not be possible to do something to brighten and relieve the lot of these unfortunates. The motion found unanimous approval and a Relief committee for War Hostage was immediately founded under the auspices of the international Red Cross.

The first task of this committee was to locate the hostage and to then enable them to communicate with their families. As soon as the existence of the benevolent undertaking began to be known, enquiries poured in an overwhelming number and while the commission has succeeded in obtaining the liberty of many, there remain still a great number, among which women, old men and invalids, who are pining away in captivity, although constant efforts are being made to relieve their sufferings.

As civilians and in many cases also persons evacuated from their homesteads are also held captive in the same camps, the commission has not the heart to give to some and refuse to others. A helping hand is consequently given as much as possible to all, seconded in many instances by German or French relief organizations.

The Basle Relief Commission has moreover undertaken to look after the welfare of numerous children who had spent their 1914 Summer vacation with relatives or friends and who were suddenly cut off from their parents when hostilitties broke out, also children whose fathers had to join the colors and whose mothers had been taken away as hostage by the enemy. A majority of these young sters have since been reunited with their parents or at least relatives.

Exchange of Prisoners.

Much has already been said and written about the wonderful way in which Switzerland has taken care of those sad transports of interned civilians, French "Evacues" and disabled soldiers of French and Teutonic nationality, a task which is by no means completed yet, for the latest reports from Berne indicate that another 20,-000 French women, children and old men are being conducted through Switzerland to the south of France from territory in northern France now occupied by the Germans, also that a fourth exchange of severely wounded men—including about 1,000 French and 350 German—has just been started.

Manifold and ever increasing is Switzerland's humane activity on behalf of the war sufferers and it is to be hoped that circumstances will permit the brave little country to continue this merciful work in spite of the fact that she herself is sorely tried by the deplorable conditions now prevailing in Europe.

SCENE FROM "TWIN BEDS"

The distinction of fifty-two weeks of incessant popularity on Broadway attaches to "Twin Beds," The Laugh Festival by Salisbury Field and Margaret Mayor which Selwyn and Company will present at "The Grand" on Thursday next, Feb. 3rd, with all the merits of the farce enhanced by their presentation by an admirable cast.

"Twin Beds" tells a thrilling story of how three couples who live on three floors of a fashionable big apartment building, first achieve neighbourliness and then have it thrust upon them and finally move to escape it, without any remarkable success.

Its situation, clean and wholesome and rapidly moving, are enriched by constant play by witty line and fresh-coined slang. Its characterization are sharply defin, etched no less for mirth than truth. The same company as appeared at The Royal Alexandra, Toronto, a few weeks ago will be seen here. Seats go on sale to-morrow (Tuesday) morning.

RICHARD HALL & SON LIMITED

Splendid Progress of Christianity in Province of Honan, China

Eloquent and Able Discourse by Rt. Rev. Bishop White of The Diocese of Honan, China, at St. John's Church Yesterday Morning

It was a message of splendid growth and increasingly greater interest in the activities of the Christian Church that Rt. Reverend Bishop White brought from the Diocese of Honan, China, to a large congregation at St. John's Church, yesterday morning. The diocese of Honan is under the control of the Anglican Church in Canada. In an eloquent and able manner Bishop White reviewed the work that has been accomplished in Honan during the past six years. It was an interesting story of what the Church is doing for the Chinese people in spite of many and great obstacles encountered. The work of the Church in the Diocese of Honan is three-fold, namely, religious, educational, and medical.

The Sermon.

His Lordship, in choosing his text took the words of the twenty-seventh verse of the 14th chapter of the Acts of the Apostles: "And when they were come and had gathered the Church together, they rehearsed all that God had done with them, and how he had opened the door of faith unto the Gentiles."

The occasion on which the foregoing words were spoken was when the first missionaries, Paul and Barnabas, returned to Antioch to tell the Church what God had done for them "I am in the same position this morning," remarked His Lordship, "I have come back to tell you what your missionaries are doing in China. For a long time the Anglican Communion in Canada didn't realize its great missionary opportunities. About six years ago the Canadian Church assumed definite responsibility in the foreign field, undertaking the support of two dioceses, one in Honan and one in Japan, as well as work in India and Palestine. The congregation of St. John's had done splendidly in its support of foreign missions, and, I am pleased to say, had exceeded its assessment."

Five years and a half ago, Bishop White stated, he and his wife arrived at Kai-feng, the Capital city of the Province of Honan. Some weeks later they were followed by other workers from Southern China. At first the obstacles to the work seemed insurmountable. The people didn't care for their message. At the first service they held only a few were present.

Institutions Founded.

In striking contrast were the results at the end of five years' work. There was now a strong Christian Church in the Province; where, before, people came to them in only two's and three's, they now came in hundreds. Last Easter Day in Kai-feng city four hundred and fifty people joined in the singing of Easter hymns, and heard the Easter message. Farther out from the city thirteen services were held, as well as in the several day schools that had been organized In the capital city many institutions had been started by the Church. St. Mary's boarding school for girls had an attendance of over fifty all the time. St. Andrew's College school for boys had eighty-four on the roll, fifty of whom had been baptised. The "Door of Hope' Orphanage had done valuable work during the famine in looking after several hundred of home less little ones. St. Paul's Hospital built by the congregation of St. Paul's Church, Toronto, at a cost of $11,000, was of immense benefit in carrying on the work of the Church. Many catechists now assisted the Church, as well as six colporteurs, who went about distributing Bibles. No missionary enterprise had made such progress as that in Honan. The work had rapidly advanced.

Causes of Growth.

Continuing, His Lordship referred to several reasons for this phenomenal expansion of the Church in this Chinese Province. The relief given to the suffering in the days of the famine provided the key to the hearts of the people. They begged the missionaries to organize relief work in their behalf. Then, secondly, the revolution had given the Chinese a new outlook on life. Following the revolution the President of China asked for the prayers of the Christians. Consequently a day of prayer was observed. At the service in Kai-feng the Governor of the Province attended with two hundred officials. This was an open recognition of Christianity. Also on a day set apart for prayers for the warring nations of Europe, the Chinese officials evidenced their approval by their attendance. The spirit of evangelism was now sweeping the country. Men of all classes were responding to the Gospel message.

Now is the Time.

Finally, Bishop White pointed out that the Chinese were really a religious people. They were considered by many to be very materialistic, but behind their astuteness and materialism was the great instinct of religion. The present time was opportune for the Church to enter and give them the message they were longing for. The Church here in Canada had done well for the work in foreign lands but not only with their gifts, but by their prayers, and by inspiring their sons and daughters to go forth as missionaries, they could do much towards bringing the Gospel message to these people.

Rt. Rev. W. D. Reeve, Assistant Bishop of Toronto, Preaches at All Saints' Church

The Sunday morning service at All Saints' Church was a of special missionary character, the speaker having spent [illegible] ministering to the spiritual needs of the natives of the Mackenzie River district, and his remarks were confined largely to his experiences in that far north country.

His text was taken from the first chapter of the Acts, the eighth verse: "And ye shall be witnesses unto Me both in Jerusalem and in all Judea and unto the uttermost part of the earth."

In uttering these words our blessed Lord had in mind the promise made to Him over one thousand years before; that contained in the second Psalm: "Ask of Me, and I shall give thee the heathen for thine inheritance, and the uttermost parts of the earth for thy possession." This was the promise to the Son. Now He was about to leave this earth. "I have finished the work given Me to do, I now give to you the work I have begun. I leave the work in your hands You must take my place."

These words were addressed to His disciples, very few, indeed, after three years' work, only about one hundred and twenty all told, and were the last He uttered before being called up into Heaven.

The truth to be learned from this is that we are to be Christ's witnesses in four directions: at home, in the neighbourhood, in the adjoining country, and as far beyond as we can go; as missionaries to go into all the world and preach the gospel. It is a duty incumbent on all who bear the name of Jesus Christ.

The cause of missions ought not to need any argument here in Canada, for what would Canada have been had not the missionaries come from the Old Land? All we are we owe to these men; the benefits are felt by everyone.

At home here in this parish of All Saints' you have your own duties to hear, where so many have gone to the front. While it is true that charity begins at home, it does not end there.

That Church is most alive which attends not only to its own needs, but also to the wants of others.

In the neighbourhood, right here in the Diocese of Toronto there is work to be done. Many connect the diocese of Toronto with the City of Toronto, but this is not the case, as it extends throughout the adjacent counties, taking in forty missionaries and one hundred and eighteen mission stations. We should do what we can to help in Gods' work in the neighbourhood.

But we must go on still further, say to the North West. Surely it is an adjacent country, and has many claims and calls upon us. Many of us have friends in Manitoba, Saskatchewan, Alberta, and the Peace River country. The cry comes insistently: "Send us help; we need it; we are suffering for want of it; we need more men, and more means for carrying on the work, that more may have the opportunity of worshipping in God's house."

Unto the uttermost part of the earth might be interpreted as meaning that part of Canada known as the Mackenzie River District.

Bishop Reeve had been a missionary in that region for thirty-eight years, having gone there in 1869, when the present flourishing city of Winnipeg was but a little hamlet of two hundred people, and Manitoba [illegible] the Indians and Esquimaux. Scattered over the country were a few Hudson Bay Company 'posts' where now railways extend in every direction like a spider's web, and people have gone in by the thousands. There is a great danger in attending to the needs of the civilised part, forgetting the needs of the natives, the Indians and Eskimaux, the people who first occupied the land, and from whom the land was taken.

They are our brethren in Christ. They are taught to say "Our Father Who art in Heaven," hence they are our brothers and sisters.

At this juncture the reverend speaker related an incident from his book of experiences, a visit to a far-off tribe who wanted some one to come to them and teach them. When the call first came he thought he could not undertake the work, but the following winter his settlement was very hard up for food, and for two months he and his family never had a square meal, living for that time on half rations, so he determined to visit this tribe, which would mean one less to feed—and set off with the mail carrier. After a tramp through the deep snows for twelve days he arrived among the natives who had craved a preacher. After some difficulties in overcoming the differences of dialect he won the peoples' hearts through singing hymns and the tribe decided to identify themselves with his Church.

Twenty-five years later as an Anglican missionary was floating down a river he heard a call from the shore. It came from an Indian who wanted his family baptised. Queried as to why they had never been baptised before, for the locality was nominally Roman Catholic, the Indian informed the missionary that years before, when he was a boy a Protestant missionary had journeyed to their country and baptised him, and now he wanted his children baptised the same as he had been.

Bishop Reeve was delighted to thus hear of the results of his labours. Truly bread cast upon the waters shall return in due season.

When he first went out into the West the Indians were heathen, now they are Christian, as truly Christian as any in this part of the country. They used to pitch the baby girls into the snow, there left to die; now we never hear of it. The Chiefs used to have several wives; now they never have more than one wife at a time. They used to practice acts of immorality, now they are living Godly lives, having family prayers. How many in this congregation have family prayer? Truly their lives might bring to many of us the blush of shame. He that hath ears to hear let him hear. Don't be outdone by an Indian or an Eskimo.

"In these times of stress and strain" said he, in addressing the soldiers who had assembled for worship, "you men may be witnesses for Christ." "Stand true to your colours as men of God. Never be ashamed to let it be known whose you are. Be proud to be known as a Canadian Christian. Be faithful witnesses of Him who died to save mankind."

—Paul Penman.

Will Encourage Pupils To Enlist

Department of Education Has Plan To Assist Embryo Teachers.

GIVE SPECIAL COURSES

Students After the War Will Have Their School Expenses Paid.

Although the Ontario Government, in order to maintain the standard of teaching in the province, is unable to follow the lead of the university in giving certificates to students training as teachers who enlist for overseas service, enlistment is to be encouraged and facilitated by an entirely different arrangement.

The proposition, which will be made known by the Acting-Minister of Education, Hon. G. Howard Ferguson, in the form of a circular to the students, is, briefly, this: Pupils now in attendance at High and Continuation schools in preparation for the next ensuing middle or upper school examination, and who desire to enlist for overseas service in the present war, will be admitted, on their return, to a special Summer course when necessary. At this course no fees will be charged, and the travelling expenses of those who attend will be paid by the department. Such candidates, on having obtained the necessary entrance certificates, and teachers in training at the Normal schools or the Faculties of Education who also enlist for overseas service will, on application to the department on their return, be admitted to one session of a Normal school or Faculty of Education, the former at the beginning of the session, and the latter about the same date as that of their enlistment, with exemption from fees and with an allowance for travelling expenses an an allowance for the rate of $8 a week for Board and lodging for one session.

The only condition attached is that both classes of applicants must agree to teach in the provincial schools of Ontario for at least three years after having obtained their professional certificates, or to reimburse the Department of Education at the rate of one-third of the total financial aid for each unexpired year.

The concessions, of course, are conditional upon the candidate's submitting with his application a certificate of honourable discharge from the military authorities.

According to Hon. Mr. Ferguson, requests have been received from a large number of students anxious to enlist without losing the time put in training as teachers.

"To have granted these young men their certificates, although they have not completed their courses, would have meant, in most cases, a lowering of the standard for such certificates and a resultant injury to our schools," said the Minister. "Recognizing, however, the patriotic zeal of these yong men, and intending that the department shall 'do its bit,' we have decided upon this course."

The merchants are racing to lead in Dollar Day value giving. Buyers get both the bargains and the free $175. in cash.

Sir David Beaty Makes Appeal For Great Religious Revival As Needed Step To Victory

LIVERPOOL, Jan. 31. — Vice-Admiral Sir David Beatty, commander of the first British battle cruiser squadron, whose ships defeated the Germans in the North Sea, has made a stirring appeal for a great religious revival in England as a necessary step to victory in the war. In a letter read at the annual convention of the Society for the Propagation of Christian Knowledge, he writes:

"Surely Almighty God does not intend this war to be just a hideous fracas. There must be a purpose in it; improvement must come out of it. In what direction? France has already shown us the way and has risen out of her ruined cities with a revival of religion that is wonderful. Russia has been welded into a whole, and religion plays a great part. England still remains to be taken out of the stupor of self-satisfaction and complacency into which her flourishing condition has steeped her. Until she can be stirred out of this condition, until the religious revival takes place, just so long will war continue.

"When she can look on the future with humbler eyes and a prayer on her lips, then we can begin to count the days towards the end. Your society is helping to this end, and so is helping to bring the war to a successful end."

Would Assign Bridge To Peterboro

Peterboro is Not Responsive to The Wishes of Victoria County— The Kinmount Bridge

LINDSAY, Jan. 31. — Kinmount Bridge, over Burnt River, was taken up among many others by the Victoria County Council. Victoria and Peterborough Counties were asked in a letter from the north, to take it over.

Mr. McNeillie said it had cost Victoria County $1,000 already to try to get Peterborough County to assist in taking it over. The charge in the law would hardly affect the matter now Victoria County was always willing to take over the bridge, but Peterborough County objected. Mr. McNeillie then took a map and pointed out the layout of the roads leading to the bridge and the reasons the road had been diverted on account of the rocky country. This diversion was the reason the county had not been able to get Peterborough county to assist. Somerville township undoubtedly had too heavy a burden, but Peterborough county so far had not been forced to assist. Reeve Morrison did not want to go to law about the matter, but wished in some way to pursuade Peterborough to do the fair thing.

The Entertainment in St. Andrew's

Friday evening the Sunday school hall of St. Andrew's church was filled with an appreciative audience to hear Miss Tillotson, of Hawaii, 'Globe' traveller. This resourceful lady gave a lecture on the Hawaii Islands and their inhabitants. Her description was very lucid and interesting, the details being followed with close attention. Miss Tillotson also favoured her audience with two elocutionary selections, in which she gave evidence of fine dramatic powers. The entertainment was interspersed with musical numbers, both vocal and instrumental, which delighted the audience.

Rev. Mr. Farquharson presided in a pleasing manner. The proceeds of the evening was in aid of the Young Ladies' Mission Band of the church.

MANY ARE FIGURING THE COPPERS IN THE JAR

Great Interest Being Taken in the Dollar Day Contest of the Evening Examiner

The Examiner has on view in the window of the Peterborough Bookstore the glass jar of coppers on which you are to estimate for the Examiner cash prizes on Dollar Day. In the window is a list of the prizes given. Everybody who pays any money into the Examiner Office on Thursday, February 3rd, (Dollar Day), whether for subscription or account, will be handed an estimate blank on which to estimate the number of coppers in the jar. The nearest correct estimates will receive the prizes, as follows:

First nearest estimate	$10.00
Second nearest estimate	7.00
Third nearest estimate	5.00
Fourth nearest estimate	4.00
Fifth nearest estimate	3.00
Sixth nearest estimate	2.00
Seventh nearest estimate	1.00
Eighth nearest estimate	1.00
Ninth nearest estimate	1.00
Tenth nearest estimate	1.00
	$35.00

In addition to the above every dollar paid into the Examiner Office will also entitle you to an estimating blank for the Merchants' Treasury Box prizes of $175.00, which is for estimating the number of estimates given out by merchants that will be dropped into the box in front of the Examiner Office. In 1913 there were about 16,000, but times and conditions will alter this somewhat and you will require to size up the situation as it exists.

Thursday, Feb. 3, (Dollar Day), promises to be the greatest in the history of the city.

THE WEATHER

The mild, foggy and altogether unseasonable weather still continues, with a freezing rain by way of variation. Yesterday's rainfall totalled .35 of an inch, and as the thermometer stood at 32 degrees most of the day the streets and pavements were a glare of ice, the rain freezing as it came down. Last night over half an inch (.55) fell, and as the thermometer still stood around the freezing point walking conditions were anything but safe or pleasant. There will probably be a change to colder again with snow flurries.—W.P.

"Don't it require a great mental effort to be a photographer?" "Yes, indeed," replied Mr. Snapsum. "You have to sit up nights learning funny stories to tell customers in order to make 'em smile and look natural."

Music & Drama

"A PAIR OF SIXES"

That well known and popular farce comedy, known as "A Pair of Sixes," was presented at the Grand on Saturday afternoon and evening. The play contains an abundance of wholesome comedy and is staged with special scenery and harmonious light effects. It is essentially a high-class and pretentious attraction, and was thoroughly appreciated by the audience. The play owes a large measure of success to the brilliant manner in which it is unfolded by an exceptional cast of skilled artists. One of the most original characters is that of "Coddles," a part that was very ably played by the well-known actress, Miss Lulu Sutton.

No Trace of U. S. Sub.

Special to The Examiner:

WASHINGTON, Jan. 31.—Missing since 1 o'clock Sunday morning, no trace of Submarine K 5, "lost in the fog" off Charleston, S.C., had been found up to an early hour to-day. The gravest fears for the missing submarine and her crew of six men were expressed. Officials held out hope, however, that the submarine may have merely lost her way or become disabled.

"I say, old chap, I'm in shocking luck I want money badly, and have not the least money where I can get it." "Well, I am glad to hear that—I thought perhaps you had an idea you could borrow it from me!"

Capt. Rollins.

After expressing his regret that Mayor Church had been unable to come, Capt. Rollins appealed for the sympathy of the citizens seven days of the week, a sympathy that would help the officers and men of the 93rd to obtain better results in the great work they are trying to accomplish. "If you cannot go to the front," said he "you can make your influence felt in creating an atmosphere that will cause recruiting to become spontaneous. Suppose you make disparaging remarks, hitting this, that and the other thing, is that not the kind of work that will please the Kaiser. I consider it next to smuggling a rifle across and joining the Germans."

Adjutant McElhiney.

"Life's too short to take any notice of curs barking at your heels," triumphantly exclaimed Adjutant McElhiney in referring to the happenings of last week, "and I say it in all kindness."

"We have a big job on our hands. We have been recruiting in Peterborough for eighteen months, and every possible pressure has been brought to bear; and we have found so much idleness, so little realisation that war is on, so much indifference, I had almost prayed for a Zeppelin to drop a bomb in Peterborough, and seeing I could not get a German to do it, I thought I would do it myself; and I promise you there are a whole lot more bombs to come."

The Adjutant said a gentleman had rung him up and wanted to know what he was going to do with all the young fellows hanging around. "We are going to make it as uncomfortable for these fellows as we possibly can. If we cannot get them by legal conscription we'll get them by moral conscription—we can't get them any other way."

One of the finest sights he had witnessed lately he saw at Norwood last week, when a grey-haired man came forward, and with tears running down his cheeks, said: "I have been honoured many times by this community, but the proudest moment of my life is to-night, when I tell you that my son Russel has fallen in the fight for his King and country."

"This is a serious proposition," continued the Adjutant. "We can talk about winning all we like—and I don't want to be pessimistic—but we are not winning. We can wave all the flags we like, but Belgium is gone, Serbia is gone, Montenegro and Russian Poland are gone, and if the war stopped to-night we have not won; but thank God the war is not stopped, and we are going to win. We may have to fill up another battalion. I believe in this war. All our civil and religious liberties were bought with blood, and this war has to be won with blood. We are in danger. Canada, the motherland, the Allies are in danger. It is not small folks we are dealing with."

"Put me into a corner and I'll fight for my life. You would fight for your life, for your wife, your children, your liberties, and you may have to."

Soldiers' Aid Association.

Capt. Ackerman then read a note that had been handed him, saying that three men invalided home had received the cold shoulder and had been turned down by different factories.

"Tell me who these men are," said the Captain, "and I'll assume the responsibility of getting these men work."

There has recently been formed in Peterborough a branch of the Soldiers' Aid Association for the purpose of looking after returned soldiers, with Ald. Stratton as president, who will see that returned soldiers receive employment.

Sergeant Bethune.

In introducing the speaker of the evening, the chairman referred to the fact that the sergeant, as stretcher-bearer, had been responsible for saving the lives of thousands of men at the front. On those memorable days in April, the 22nd, 23rd, 24th and 25th, he and the Sergeant had been on the same ground, and the stretcher-bearers, who seemed to have charmed lives, could be seen threading their way through the battlefield, amid shell fire, bringing in ammunition and food, and carrying out the wounded. All these days until the afternoon of the 25th they had worked unceasingly as men never worked before.

Sergeant Bethune has the happy faculty of being witty and humorous, and with a liberal sprinkling of hyperbole, managed to keep the large audience in a happy responsive state of mind.

"The British Empire is on fire," said he, "and Canada is in danger of being burned alive, which is being prevented at the present time by the grace of a few thousand men in the trenches."

"These men have gone to protect you. These men are giving their lives to protect you. They are your saviours, and you don't know it."

"Some say the Germans are phlegmatic, cold, indifferent; instead, they are at white heat; every German is saying—What can I do? Unless you get into it you are going to lose Canada. You're grandfathers saved it once, what are you going to do?"

Directing his attention to the ladies, he said that women were doing some great things in the war. The socks they knit are appreciated by the boys. It has been said that an army marches on its stomach, but it marches on its feet too, and the big boots are hard on the socks. When he went to the front he took 18 pairs of socks with him, and they were all gone in three weeks, and soldiers are no good to mend socks.

A Time Coming.

There is a time coming when the women of Canada will do men's work. In England titled ladies are going into the workshops, driving 'busses, and working in munition factories.

"Don't tell me that women cannot be trained, and any man who says he is indispensable is a gas bag of vanity."

In addressing the young men, he said there were as many chances of living in France as here in Peterborough. At the present time there are fully 50,000 Canadians under shell fire, and to-morrow there will be not more than twenty casualties. Said he—"I would rather be killed by a German bullet than run over by a hearse in Peterborough any time." "It is only an odd one that dies, and he has the satisfaction of dying a hero's death. It is better than catching the grip and dying at home with a $300 doctor's bill, to say nothing of the funeral expenses. Everyone has to die once."

"The life in the army," continued the Sergeant, "is the biggest picnic you ever were on in your life; there is more fun than any show you ever went to; good grub, good pay, and the satisfaction of doing the right thing."

An Open Sesame.

"The khaki uniform is an open sesame to every door in England. There, a Canadian is a little tin god, and the first and second battalions made them so. He has so much money they think he is a millionaire. They look up to the chaps who have come three or four thousand miles to help them. Canadians get a lot of credit; probably more than they deserve, but they take it just the same."

In France it is just the same. They say "a la brave Canadiene."

It is true the trenches are not as comfortable as a Pullman car, but it is no colder than it is outside to-night, and when the Germans commence shelling, crawling into the dug-outs is just like coming in out of the rain.

You may get wounded with a few pieces of shrapnel, then the hospital is like heaven. Tommy says: "Pick me out a good hospital with pretty nurses and a few good gramaphone records."

When the chaps come back, and the bands are playing, and the German helmets hanging to their belts, are you going to wear an easy conscience?

A private has more privileges than a lieutenant-colonel, and is four times as safe.

Why did Britain loose at Loos? Because she had not enough men. You will have to go to the trenches or the trenches will come to Canada.

A Stirring Appeal.

The Sergeant then concluded with a stirring appeal very much similar to an old-fashioned Methodist revival, when sinners were invited to "Lit the trail." He requested all men between 18 and 45 to stand up. Many complied. He then invited those who could show a paper that they were medically unfit to sit down. Then as a climax he invited all who wanted to join to come up and take their places on the platform.

The band stimulated the efforts of several recruits by playing patriotic airs, and before the singing of the National Anthem ten young men had volunteered for the service of the Empire.

Every recruit brings peace that much nearer.

MERRY MILKMEN! "HAVE A GOOD TIME"

They Present Newly Wed Members With Clocks

The members of the Peterborough Milkmen's Association are a lot o' good fellows, bound to give each other a good time, if the presentation of clocks, as matrimonial remembrances will do it. Of late an epidemic of matrimony has broken out. The President, Mr. J. A. Hunter, was the first victim, and he was duly presented with a clock. Recently Messrs. Wm. Robinson and Robert Dalby simultaneously succumbed to a sharp attack. Mr. Dalby has leased Braeside Farm, Monaghan, and Mr. Robinson has planted his home on the corner of Park and London Streets. It was the scene of a happy gathering on Friday night when about fifty members of the Association invaded it, and presented the new-made benedicts with a clock each. An address was read to each by Mr. Hunter, the President and the presentation of two beautiful clocks was made, respectively, by Mrs. W. L. White and Mrs. J. A. Hunter, with suitable acknowledgements by the happy recipients.

Then followed congratulations and an entertainment, consisting of music recitations, speeches and refreshments, and a little informal dance filled in the time delightfully till the "wee sma' oors" of the morning.

REWARD GIVEN FOR FORTITUDE

LONDON, Jan. 31.—We are authoritatively informed that the recent decoration of Miss Laura Ryerson, of Toronto, as Lady of Grace of St. John of Jerusalem, was in recognition of her "courage, fortitude and unselfish devotion in the Lusitania disaster."

COUNCIL DISCUSS THE PIGEON CREEK BRIDGE

Victoria County Council Believes The Bridge Would Be a Valuable Asset to Peterboro

LINDSAY, Jan. 31.—The matter of the Pigeon Creek floating bridge was taken up by the Victoria County Council. A joint deputation from Peterborough and Victoria County councils had gone to Ottawa on the matter of rebuilding the bridge.

Warden Robertson gave a report of the deputation's work at Ottawa. They had been promised consideration. They had also been told that owing to these strenuous times the government were not spending money on bridges, but if the Buckhorn dam had affected the bridge it seemed as if the counties had a claim on the government.

Valuable to Peterborough.

Reeve Morrison stated that $12,000 would be required to repair the bridge temporarily, and that it would cost $85,000 to $100,000 to rebuild it. Reeve Morrison explained how the cost would be proportional between the two counties, and what a benefit it was to the City of Peterborough. All lumber camp supplies and so forth were bought in Peterborough when the bridge was in shape. It undoubtedly was very valuable to Peterborough city, and was not much value to Victoria county except to those people living right near it. Lindsay would lose by it.

Reeve Wilson.

Reeve Wilson stated that $12,000 had recently been voted by Peterborough county toward either rebuilding or repairing the bridge. He was not positive, as he had obtained the information in a roundabout way.

Built by Peterborough County.

Mr. McNeillie stated the bridge was originally built by Peterborough county. Lately it was put under the joint control of the two counties. Peterborough county made all repairs and charged them up to Victoria county.

It was stated by another member that conditions had altogether changed in the last few years. Good markets were now obtainable on account of the railway at Dunsford and Bobcaygeon.

Reeve Wilson said that it was a benefit to the ratepayers near the bridge, and that the repairs could be made for $9,000, if one of two ratepayers named were to be trusted. They offered to do the work for that amount. The matter was left over.

Missing Man Has Bad Reputation

Robert Duffy Was Given a Chance to Enlist But Failed to Pass The Doctor

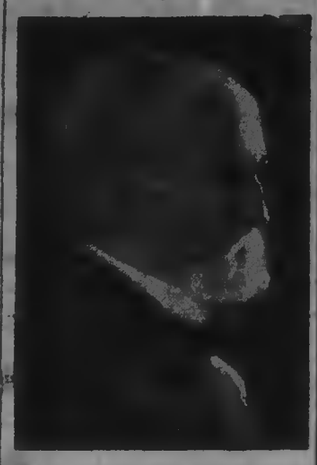
COBOURG, Jan. 31.—In the Counties' Judges' Criminal Court Robert Duffy was let off on suspended sentence on a charge of stealing a horse in Newcastle, the arrest having been made here. He was let off on condition that he join the 130th Battalion, but on a medical examination he was unfit and turned down. His counsel secured for him a position of the farm of Jas. A. McLeod at Plainville, where he started to work on Friday. On Monday morning Duffy was missing, as well as $4 and a Winchester shotgun. Duffy has a bad reputation, as he has been liberated but 5 months from the reformatory after serving a six year sentence when he stole the horse. He is described as a young man of about 18 years of age, but looks older than that, about 5 feet, 4 inches tall, and weighs about 130; clean shaven, pigeon chested, brown suit and a brown overcoat, and a lumberman's rubbers.

Observed His 91st Birthday

Mr. Edward Green, 332 Water St. Emigrated to Peterboro Over Eighty Years Ago

Yesterday, Mr. Edward Green, 332 Water street, observed his ninety-first birthday. Mr. Green's health is failing, and for some days past he has been confined to his bed.

Mr. Green was born in Ireland in the County of Meath, January 30th, 1825. He emigrated to this country with his parents when but a child, and at the age of twenty-two years, started to work for himself, his first employment being with his brother, Benjamin, who kept a grocery store on George street, almost opposite Peter Connal's. For many years he conducted a window-blind business after which he became market clerk, a position which he held for upwards of twelve years. During many years of strenuous life Mr. Green found time to engage in many diversions, the chief one being a sideline in music. For many years he was a member of the first town band, which met for practice in a little rough-cast building near the corner of Water and Hunter streets.



MR. EDWARD GREEN

A Veteran of '66.

In the exciting days of '66, Mr. Green was one of the first to volunteer for service against the invasion of the Fenians, and he recalls with amusement the service provided by the railway companies for transferring the troops from Toronto to Kingston. The trains were made up of old box cars, the floors of which were covered with straw.

Mr. Green has been twice married. His first wife, Mis Cullen, died a few years after their marriage, leaving a daughter, now Mrs. James Logan of South Partage, Muskoka. His second wife was Miss Mitchell, who was spared to her husband until about three years ago, when she passed away leaving one son, William.

A Tussle With A Prisoner

Turnkey Ferguson of The County Gaol Was Attacked

COBOURG, Jan. 31.—Turnkey Sam Ferguson of the Counties' gaol had quite a tussle with a soldier prisoner who appears to be slightly demented. The prisoners were being fed, and Mr. Ferguson had just opened the door of the corridor in which this prisoner was confined, when he sprung at him and grabbed him by the throat and attempted to choke him, at the same time grabbing him by the shoulder with his teeth. The soldier was a husky one, but Sam's early training in the wilds of Cavan stood him in good stead, as with a well directed blow he placed the would-be rowdy on his back, and then hustled him into a straight jacket.

KILLED MOTHER AND WOUNDED DAUGHTER

Special to The Examiner:

BUFFALO, Jan 31.—Mrs. Charles Teiper, aged 65, of 195 Richmond Avenue, this city, and her son, Frederick, were murdered, and Grace Teiper, a daughter, was mortally wounded, by a negro, on the Orchard Park Road, about two miles from this city, this morning. The negro attacked the party with a revolver while their auto was being repaired in the highway. Much mystery surrounds the affair, as no motive for the killing is apparent, Chief of Police Martin at once dispatched a squad of detectives to investigate the case.

MR. WM. McCLAREN MADE A HIT IN QUEBEC

At a recent concert given by the Quebec Glee Club in Quebec city, Mr. Wm. McLaren, of Peterborough, assisted with several readings. Of his work, the Quebec Chronicle makes the following comment:

The audience was very enthusiastic over the reading of Mr. W. McLaren. He first gave "Call it a Draw," and as the audience insisted on hearing him again he returned with a humorous number entitled "At The Golden Gate," with which he took the house by storm.

The Weather Prospects For The Month of February Numerous Storm Periods

The Moon Will Be in Eclipse With the Sun on February 3rd—The Month Will Open With a Cold Wave—Storms of Rain and Thunder Will Pass Over the Entire Continent—Equinoctial Storms.

The Moon is farthest south of January 30th, it is in perigee, or nearest the Earth on February 1st, and in conjunction with Sun and Earth, or at new Moon, on the 3rd. The Moon will be in eclipse with the Sun on the 3rd. This indicates violent electric activities. These things call for active to dangerous storms, during the last two days of January, and up to the 4th of February. By the 29th of January a low and rapidly falling barometer will be noted in western extremes, and storms of rain and thunder will organize in western and southern directions, and during the last two days of January, and up to February the 4th, storms of wide sweep and marked violence will pass from western parts of the country over almost the entire continent. These storms will be over the central Mississippi Valley by February 1st, with rising barometer, northwest gales and a cold wave starting from the northwest. By the 1st to the 3rd, the actual storms of rain and snow will reach the eastern states and the Atlantic seaboard, and the high barometer and blizzardons snow and winds will be close on their heels, rushing eastward and southward. Keep these general facts in mind, and as the period comes on consult your barometer, note the temperature, the direction of the winds, and the formation and movement of clouds, and you will not be overtaken or surprised by any kind of storms or weather changes. Tropical or West India hurricanes, with possible tornadoes in the extreme gulf states would not be unnatural, any time during the last two days of January, and the first three to four days in February. Two to four days of severe cold, generally over the country, will attend and follow after the storms of this period. If you will give the least intelligent attention to the matter, you may know in advance just when the storms and changes will reach your locality, and whether or not they promise to be violent and dangerous.

Rise of Temperature.

A Reactionary Storm period is central on Friday, Saturday and Sunday, the 4th, 5th and 6th. The Moon is on the celestial equator on the 6th. Mercury is at inferior conjunction with Earth and Sun on the 5th, and Uranus is also in conjunction with Sun and Earth on the 5th. From these and other astronomic causes that might be mentioned, it is safe to say that many disturbances in the way of storms and erratic changes are probable at this time. A sudden rise of temperature on and touching the 6th, with squalls and thunder gusts in many isolated localities, would be in conformity to the existing astronomic conditions at the time. See February earthquake forecasts. A reaction to cold, fair weather will follow from about the 8th to the 9th.

A Storm Period.

The Moon is in quadrature, or at first quarter, on the 10th, and at extreme north declination and in apogee on the 13th. The planet Mars is in opposition, or nearest the Earth for this year, on the 10th. The regular Vulcan period, is, of course, the foundation of this period, accentuated, perhaps by a solstice excitement of the planet Venus in very close conjunction with the great planet Jupiter. As we enter this period we are to expect a decided change to warmer beginning in the west and attended by falling barometer and growing cloudiness. During the 9th to about the 11th, these conditions will advance into the great central valleys, breaking into storms of wind and rain. Meantime, rising barometer and change to snow and colder will appear west and north.

From about the 11th to 13th, the storm center will pass from central regions to the Atlantic seaboard, with the high barometer, snow and change to much colder following the storms into the extreme east and south. Thus, during the same storm period, we have the three phases of storm and weather passing in rotational order from west to east across the continent: First, warmer, threatening weather, with falling barometer, cloudiness and rain; second, change of winds westward, snow, rising barometer; third, colder and clearing weather with winds from the west and north. Knowing that this is almost an infallible order of storm movements, and weather changes, any intelligent school boy or girl should be able, with the assistance of these forecasts, to figure out, with practical precision, what day, if not what hour, when the changing phases of storm and weather will strike his or her own locality. Not only so, but with a reliable Barometer at hand, also a companion Hygrometer, any one should be able to say whether or not approaching storms are going to prove violent, or be attended by heavy or little snow or rainfall.

The Mercury Equinox.

A Reactionary Storm period will run its course on Tuesday, Wednesday, Thursday and Friday, the 15th to the 18th. This period will be affected by the first stages of the March, or Vernal equinox of the Earth, by the opening of the Mercury equinox, and by the Moon's opposition to Earth and Sun, near the celestial equator. It will be remembered that the Vernal equinox is often felt in violent West India storms as early as the middle of February, and those who are exposed to the fury of such storms, along the south Atlantic and Gulf regions especially should not be unmindful of possible danger at this period. Storms of this period will reach their crisis within forty-eight hours of sunset on the 18th. Rain may be expected during the opening stage of this period, or along the eastern rim of the advancing low barometer; but rain will turn to snow, over central to northern sections, in the general swing eastward of the storm center, causing snow and sleet, as the rising barometer, westerly winds and change to colder follow up the warm and rainy areas. Should equatorial storms, with wide and intense low barometric depressions appear in the far south, at this reactionary period, blizzards, driven by high, boreal winds from the northwest, all followed by a great cold wave, may be expected on and not far from the 18th.

Disturbing Periods.

The disturbing periods of Vulcan and Mercury have their centers together on the 22nd. The Mercury period, as may be seen by the storm diagram, extends from the 17th to the end of the month. Meantime the Earth's vernal equinoctial perturbation is increasing in force. The Moon is on the celestial equator on the 20th, on its way to south declination. All these facts indicate very active, if not violent, disturbances during this period. Sudden change to much warmer will appear in the west, attended by falling barometer, with possibly rain and thunder storms, as early as the 20th. Your barometer, of you will heed it, will plainly warn you of the approach and intensity of these storms, and of the time they will arrive at your locality, in their eastward sweep across the country. Wind, rain and thunder will be succeeded by snow and sleet and changes to very cold; all these phases touching progressively, during successive days of the period, in all parts of the country. Danger of equinoctial storms in the south should be apprehended during and about this period.

A Cold Wave.

Some of our most violent storms, ending in furious blizzards, follow the full Moon when it falls on or near the celestial equator, and this fact promises to prolong and greatly intensify the storms and other disturbances occurring on or about the 18th, so that a prolonged spell of stormy and hard winter weather will most probably run into, and continue throughout the regular storm period, 20th to 25th. We repeat that there is danger of very severe equinoctial storms in the south, with destructive snow, sleet and cold over most interior parts of the country from about the 18th to the 26th of February. A cold wave, far-reaching and destructive, will be the sequel, or wind up of these great and general disturbances.

We have often called attention to the fact that the planet Mercury is the "sleet god," and that almost one hundred percent of our great sleet storms fall within the compass of the Mercury equinoctial braces. At such times the periods begin warm and rainy, but later turn to freezing, until everything becomes coated and burdened with ice. This will prove one of those periods, and we predict that those who have charge of telephone and telegraph and electric wires, had better "stand up and take notice."

A Reactionary Storm period is central on the last three days of February. The Moon is at last quarter on the 26th, at extreme declination south on the 27th, in perigee on the 29th. These days will bring return of low barometer, southerly winds, warmer weather, general rains. As we enter March, storms of rain, turning to sleet and snow will be disappearing eastward with cold, clearing weather following closely in their rear.

Praise For The Belgian Relief Commissioners

Special to The Examiner:

NEW YORK, Jan. 31.—"I am able to say, without reserve, that although I have had occasion in the past to inspect many methods of public relief in various countries, I have never before seen one that can compare in efficiency, thoroughness and wisdom with the system now being employed in Belgium through the combined efforts of the Belgian Relief Commission and the "Comite National," said Mr. William C. Edger, on his return from Belgium.

Mr. Edgar adds: "Furthermore, if I had a million or five million dollars placed at my disposal for the relief of the Belgians, I would not hesitate for a moment to put it at the command of this organization, confident that it would employ it to the best advantage of the people, and that not a dollar would be wasted, or misapplied."

It is frankly stated that Mr. Edgar went to Belgium skeptical of the efficiency with which relief was being dispensed, but his own statement above is sufficient to show that he was convinced of the value of the work being done by the relief committee.

Mr. Edgar's trip was in the interests of the "Northwestern Miller," of Minneapolis, a publication, which raised nearly $600,000, which was applied to the purchasing of flour and sending it to Belgium.

FORT WILLIAM SNOWBOUND.

Streets Are Like Canyons, With Snow Piled Head High.

FORT WILLIAM, Ont., Jan. 31.—Not for 17 years has Fort William been snowbound to the extent it is now. Over four feet of snow have fallen since Christmas, and the big storm of Friday has demoralized all street railway and steam road schedules. The streets of the city are like canyons, huge piles of snow as high as the head of a tall man being piled on each side.

EXAMINER DOLLAR DAY

IN ITS ORIGINAL FORM, WILL BE HELD ON

THURSDAY, FEB'Y 3rd, 1916

And judging by the enthusiasm of the Merchants, promises to far surpass all previous events of the kind in the City. The Stores have all had a good season's business, and propose to show their appreciation of the patronage they receive from the home district by giving the BIGGEST DOLLAR VALUES they have ever attempted, with the triple object of giving their customers in some of the bargains that will be offered something for practically nothing, clearing out odd lines and balances of winter goods and making Dollar Day a memorable one and the biggest event of the year in the district. In addition to the splendid Dollar Values, the merchants are giving away

$175.00 CASH PRIZES

This money will be given away in this way:—With every dollar purchase on that day, an estimating blank will be given to the purchaser. You will fill in your name and address, and a number representing your estimate on the following question.

Estimate the Number of these Blanks that will be Filled In and Dropped Into the Ballot Box at "The Examiner Office" by 10:15 p.m. on Dollar Day

The nearest correct estimate will be awarded the First Prize of $25; the Second $20; the Third $15, and so on

56 CASH PRIZES

Nearest correct estimate, - 1st Prize $25.00

Next 5 nearest CORRECT ESTIMATE 5 Prizes, each $3.00
Next 10 nearest CORRECT ESTIMATE 10 Prizes, each $2.00
Next 30 nearest CORRECT ESTIMATE 30 Prizes, each $1.00

For your guidance in estimating, we might say that The Examiner is Printing and Distributing to the Merchants, for use on Dollar Day, 36,000 Blanks, and it is only necessary to estimate what number each purchaser thinks will be used on the great day. Should any store run short of blanks, The Examiner will print more, so that the number printed might reach as high as 50,000. The number of estimates put in the first Dollar Day Campaign was in the neighbourhood of 16,000. With this information, an estimate can be made before coming to town. Of course as many estimates can be made as the purchaser has blanks, and they will get one with every Dollar purchase they make.

☛ Make up your mind what and where you want to buy and come to PETERBORO' on THURSDAY, FEBRUARY 3rd, expecting the greatest economy shopping event of your lives.

Campbellford Game Off Soldiers Go To Cobourg

There will be no game at Campbellford, where the Electrics were scheduled to play to-night, on account of soft ice, but Cobourg has sent word there is ice there and the 93rd Battalion team, accompanied by the band, and at least 200 rooters, will invade the Lakeshore town. The Soldiers will have an organized Rooters' Club in line to-night, and will make things lively in Cobourg. They go down on a special G.T.R. train, leaving Peterborough at 6.30 o'clock and returning immediately after the game. The soldiers will have the same line-up that played the Electrics Friday night.

Electrics Have Protested Game

The Electrics have protested Friday night's game, won by the 93rd Battalion, claiming that Lieut. Sexton, who played rover for the soldiers, was not eligible, and that he had not been attached to the Battalion at that time.

HOCKEY

The Electrics will practice to-night, between 7 and 8 o'clock. Every player is requested out, in view of the game with Cobourg on Wednesday night.

Voice of The People

To the Editor of The Examiner:

Dear Sir,—As an old-timer and one deeply interested in the grounds of the City on the most up-to-date lines, I have always considered the retention of the present fair grounds as detrimental to the City generally, and in a special manner to that section which has grown rapidly within the last few years. I fully endorse Mr. Dumble's views on this subject, and like him, having land for sale, I am writing against my own interest. The City wants and should have, up-to-date Exhibition Grounds, and no time should be lost in deciding what and where. My preference is along the river accessable by boats. This subject should be kept hot until decided.

T. HURLEY.

To the Editor of The Examiner.

Dear Sir,—Allow me space to state still further a little of the impressions I, as many others who were present at last night's meeting, which was very successful as far as recruits are concerned, received.

I, as a mother of seven sons, only one, however, who is of military age, could not but be moved to the necessity of young men enlisting and going with the others to serve their king and country; but is there no sympathy for a mother who has to give up her one only grown son, who has just taken his place in this cold world after many sacrifices, and what the mother has also endured, to raise a son to manhood, and has had to guide him, and lift him and all the others over all the hard places in life, and with what a struggle have we gone, and are still more so going through to educate those boys so that now some of them are able and are actually filling very important positions?

The king or any of his state representatives have never exhibited any interest in our sons, never asked us had we enough to eat for them, had we enough clothing to keep them warm, and if the world noticed them at all, it was only to say those are Mr and Mrs. Nobody's sons; they are of no consequence; we must keep them down; in fact, starve them out. Now, things are changed. My son, as many others, can't even walk down town to his office without being told what a fine, able-bodied man he is, and your king and country needs you—enlist.

And Captain Ackerman tells us there is no sentiment. I think he thought differently when he saw only three or four women in that vast audience who were willing to give up their husbands and sons at a moment's notice.

And Adjutant McElhiney thinks there will have to be a bomb dropped on us to make us realize there is a war on, when he, himself, brands our sons as shirkers or quitters or some such things because some of them at least, choose, in this free country, to stick still yet to their occupations and loved ones. And, by the way that must be the reason why the Germans have had to drop bombs occasionally on the English Coast.

Yours truly,
Another Patriotic Mother.

CURLING

Like small boys on the cheerless side of a circus tent, the curlers vainly gaze in the general direction of where their ice used to be, and impatiently wonder when the weather is going to change. Just about then someone breaks the gloom with a bearded joke, and for the time being the cloud is lifted. But think of it, a calendar of events as long as your arm, cup games, bonspiels, not to mention skirmishes, and no prospect of real winter. Angus McIntosh says he thinks he knows where the ice is but its so long since he looked it over that he's not sure. Some of the approaching attractions are:

Feb. 2—Peterborough-Lindsay cup games, both places.
Feb. 4—Neill-Sheppard cup games at Orillia.
Feb. 8 and 9—Oshawa bonspiel.
Feb. 14—Neill-Sheppard cup games here.
Fitzgerald-Bottum games here.
15 to 17 Feb.—Peterborough bonspiel, etc., etc.

ACCUSED OF RECEIVING STOLEN GOODS

Member of 93rd Battalion Faces a Serious Charge—Six Months For Bruce Roddy

Six months in the Ontario Reformatory was the sentence meted out this morning to Bruce Roddy, who appeared in the Police Court and pleaded guilty to a charge of vagrancy. According to the police, Roddy went on the war-path on Saturday evening and wound up by threatening to kill his mother. At the latter's request Roddy was apprehended and placed in the cells, where he languished until this morning.

Pleaded Not Guilty.

Dennis Keegan, who is a member of the 93rd Battalion, and is the husband of the woman who on Saturday pleaded guilty to stealing a quantity of merchandise from Moses Fine, was charged with having in his possession the goods alleged to have been stolen by his wife. The prisoner pleaded not guilty and elected to be tried by His Honour Judge Huycke. When he was informed that his wife had pleaded guilty and was to appear before Magistrate Dumble next Saturday for sentence, the prisoner agreed to follow suit. He will come up next Saturday for trial, and in the meantime will be confined to barracks. He was escorted out of the police court by a guard of the 93rd Battalion.

Tobacco Cards From The Front

A large number of cards from Peterborough boys in the trenches have been received recently. They are in acknowledgment of the tobacco sent them through the Peterborough branch of the Overseas Club Tobacco Fund. Among them were the following:

Mr. R. J. Soden,
Peterborough—

Many thanks on behalf of the men for your box of tobacco which arrived Jan. 12, 1916, and which has been distributed.

Yours truly,
A. R. Ackerman, Lieut.
No. 1 Co., 2nd Battalion.

Mr. R. J. Soden,
Peterborough—

I received your cigarettes with many thanks and they are very nice in the trenches. Will you please tell your son I just forgot his first name, but tell him Scottie Rogers sends his best regards and thanks for your cigarettes I remain,

Pte. J. H. Rogers,
2nd Battalion.

Mr. R. J. Soden, Peterborough.

I received your most welcome gift of tobacco and cigarettes. I guess you will be surprised to hear that Jack Smith of Peterborough was the receiver of your gift. Hope I am lucky enough to come back. If so I will be able to thank you personally for your gift. All the boys from Peterborough are feeling good. Hoping this finds you in good health.

Yours truly,
Gunner John Smith,
4th Battery, C.F.A.

The New York Stock Market

Summary of To-day's Activities on the New York Stock Exchange

Special to The Examiner:

NEW YORK, Jan. 31.—Pessimism rules Wall street to-day, bear traders evidently using President Wilson's utterances on the International relations as a basis for a raid which drove the leading stocks down one to four points. More than half a million shares had been dumped on to the market up to noon, and the total sales had reached three quarters of a million at two o'clock.

While U. S. Steel sold as low as 80 1-8, down 2 1-4 points from Saturday's close, Crucible Steel was put up to 75 1-4, up 3-4, the highest this year. Pethlehem Steel was off 15 points at 460. Railroads as well as industrials declined.

LIVE STOCK MARKET

Examiner Special:

TORONTO, Jan. 31.—Live stock receipts, fair; trade, slow; practically no change in prices.

MILITARY NEWS

The following poem was sent by a Peterborough member of the 21st Battalion, 4th Brigade, who was wounded some time ago and is now in hospital in France:

The Boys of the 21st Battalion, Fourth Brigade, (U.E.F.)

When the hour has come at length
That the last good-bye is said,
And they march us out in the early dawn
To the boat at the old pier-head.
When England lies behind us.
And we're tossed on the stormy wave,
You may think we don't care, but just say a prayer
For the boys of the Fourth Brigade

When we watch day and night in the trenches,
Awaiting the word to advance,
When the shells fire and scream all around us,
And we don't seem to have half a chance.
When the roar of the battle grows nearer
There's never a heart dismayed;
For we know "Over there" you are saying a prayer
For the boys of the Fourth Brigade.

When we're plunged in the thick of the battle,
And guns roar and bayonets clash,
Whilst before and behind and around us
Shells burst with a deafening crash.
When our comrades are falling beside us
And the help we require is delayed,
It is then; if you care, you might put up a prayer
For the boys of the Fourth Brigade.

At last, when the struggle is over,
And the hard-won victory sure,
On the battlefield, out in the moonlight,
Lie some who'll return no more.
But we know that the Captain they trusted
Led them "Home" to where joys never fade;
It is there, at His feet, that again you will meet
The boys of the Fourth Brigade.

FROM THE BOYS OF THE 93RD.

We are the boys of the 93rd,
All about us you have heard,
We are the boys who are going to fight
Because we know we're in the right.

We've got a good old colonel,
He is both good and true,
He's a father to us
And he'll be the same to you.

We have a dandy brass band
And a pretty good bugle band, too,
They give us some very nice music
And they'll give the same to you.

We are having a good time
And getting fat on it too,
They are showing us how to be men
And they'll show you how to be men, too.

We are going to fight for our country,
Our women and children, too,
And we're going to fight for our King
But we're not going to fight for you.

We've seen a lot of good fellows
Walking up and down the street,
When you ought to be in khaki
Helping to make the Germans retreat.

We've left our wives and sweethearts
To wait until we're through,
And if we can leave ours,
Surely you can leave yours too.

We are tired of waiting
To get to the front,
But if you'd come and join us
They'd soon tell us to shunt.

We don't want to call you cowards,
But what else can you be?
If you won't come and help to fight
To hold your liberty

We want another 400 men
To come and toe the line,
And we think if you don't come now
They'll make you come in time.

—Bandsman R. Wood.

The machine gun section of the 93rd Battalion will commence work under the direction of Lieut. Crisp to-morrow. All the men for this section have not yet been chosen. There was keen competition for places in the suicide squad.

"KICKERS CLUB" AFTER GARBAGE COLLECTORS

Careless Methods Muss The Lawns and Dinge The Cans That Cost Real Money and Should Last a Life Time

The Kickers' Club, at their session this afternoon, gave vent to the peevishness the weather has engendered by a raking assault of the garbage collection system as it is at present working. The main cause for grouching is a reported practice on the part of the collectors of throwing the emptied cans on to the lawns, thereby denting them and spilling the remnants of ashes, garbage, etc. over the lawn. A half dozen or more members of the Club declared that Mr. Spence had better go back to the former plan calling for the cans and boxes on the sidewalk. In that way he will be following the "Kickers" who state that come what may, their cans go out on to the sidewalk.

"I didn't invest in a good can to have those people put it on the brummer in a week," one man said; and the President called his attention to police and parliamentary language.

"Well, that's what they're doing, any way," this member persisted, "and my can goes out on to the sidewalk. They can leave it there after emptying it, and I'll carry it in, myself. These 'guys' they got on the job stand on the sidewalk and shoot the cans up the lawn. Now, that's got to be stopped and the only way I see is to go back to the old system."

"I've been doing it all the time," said another member. "Spence does not know where Sherbrooke Street is" said another.

"If he ever does," observed another, "he'll fine you for putting the can on the walk."

"We don't want the can on the walk," said the first man, "we want the can on this excuse for service we are now getting. They can't throw peelings over my lawn."

"How would it be if we got Spence to go after these people; then, if he can't do anything with them, we'll give them a go ourselves."

Further debate indicated a peaceful procedure first, and, if nothing comes of it the Club will have the city put the cans out on the sidewalk."

$175.00 will be given away in cash by the merchants on Dollar Day. Read about it in the big add.

CITY HALL PARAGRAPHS

Last Tribute to Valorous People and Their Ruler Who Were Slandered by Recent Reports—Not Yet Discouraged

Mean to Stand by Till the Last, and in Christian Faith Hope to Regain Their Land.

Captain A. Vladimir Spiroy Seferovitch, the Montenegrin Consul here gave out a statement here yesterday in regard to the reported conditions in his home country. In part he said

"I have received communications from my Government which put me in a position to protest against the false reports contained in telegrams which reached the newspapers in this country from sources which were aiming to spoil the reputation of my King, a well-known hero of an heroic people of many centuries. The news which was given about Montenegro, as well as the offences to the King and his heroic people was certainly manufactured by the enemy, and by people who have used their occult influence in order to serve them.

"We have received news from several sources speaking about treason on the part of King Nicholas, stating that he has sold his country to the enemies. As a Montenegrin I know better; that the King and the people of Montenegro are not of those who have falsely and intentionally tried to dishonour our sovereign ruler and the people of Montenegro. In order that the American people, as well as those of Canada, should know the whole truth, I will give them a few details of our condition.

"The Montenegrins have been at war for all of 500 years against the Turks. When war was declared against Turkey in 1912 Montenegro fought side by side with Serbia against Turkey, and then against Bulgaria. There were a few months of peace, and while we were healing our wounds broke out again against Austria. Since the beginning of this war we have again fought side by side with our brethren, the Serbians.

"At the beginning of the Balkan war our population amounted to about 300,000 inhabitants, with an army of 20,000 fighters, plus 10,000 more which arrived from America that is, a total of 30,000 men divided into five divisions of all ages between 18 and 60. Of that number we have lost one-third in the Balkan war.

"As soon as hostilities started against Austria we gathered all our strength together, and our army succeeded in reaching again the number of 30,000.

Our artillery was composed of a few batteries which were sent us by the French. These batteries were of the old model black powder, and when the bombarding of Lovcen began the enemy could easily discover us, and they proved unfit to oppose any invasion. The rest of the artillery included some bought from the Italians and three batteries of rapid-fire guns donated by the Serbians to us after the capture of Kumanovo from the Turks.

"The infantry had old Russian model repeating guns, some guns taken from the Turks, and some Austrian guns. Ammunition, on account of its age, proved in a majority of cases to be a failure. The uniforms were of all patterns and kinds, and many a man for lack of proper clothing had it patched and re-patched so that his appearance would have inspired a feeling of pity.

"A fortnight after the declaration of the war against Austria there was no flour to be bought in any of the markets of Montenegro. I know of instances where the army, fighting in the trenches has been four days without bread. Bread has been the cry of the Montenegrin people for centuries, and, in fact, our mother, Russia, has always sent us wheat in time of peace because the land was undergoing famine.

"If the Montenegrins insisted upon having Scutari and if they got it for the second time, it is because Scutari itself economically is more worthy than the rest of the country, and that we can come in contact by way of Medua, with allies, that we can get help from them in food and other war supplies.

"I am asking anybody that has a heart, no matter what his religion, to tell me if, under such conditions, which are true, a nation as small as Montenegro could have resisted the enemy. Surrounded on two sides by the allied Teutons, upon the other side cut off from communication by the Austrian fleet, which is looking for an opportunity to sink any boat that would approach our coast with provisions, having on the south the Austrian population of the Albanians, what can anybody expect but destruction? And still I feel proud to say that notwithstanding all, the little army which is left of the Montenegrins with their King at the head, is defending our last stand.

"At the back of Scutari is the Mountain of Tarabosh, and if help comes in time, perhaps the Montenegrins will be able to prove that they are still worthy of admiration.

"His Majesty King Nicholas, who is a soldier and a poet, has already reached the age of 75 years and has fought many a battle. He loves his people and his people love him.

"We are dividing with our brethren, the Serbians, our sufferings, and we will stand by them as they have stood by us, until the Lord will give us peace again and restore us to our old homes.

"There are many children, women and old men who have died in consequence of starvation and the accounts which are reaching New York from those who have returned from some parts of the theatre of war, are amazing. I know a man who has wandered through Albania ten days living exclusively on bad bread and onions, and he was glad to have even that so as not to die of hunger.

'There is nothing that you can buy with money. The agricultural conditions in the mountains of Montenegro and all over the Balkan States are like those around here, that is, the ground is covered with deep snow and this makes the escape of the people very difficult.

"The Montenegrins, being Christians, are not yet discouraged of the final victory. As a people they are sober, healthy and rather retiring. They are very intelligent and the first quality is that they all have been splendid soldiers, and faithful to the Holy cause The loss of Lovcen is to Montengero the value of a diamond as big as the mountain itself".

PRESENTATION TO SOLDIER

The Choristers of St. John's, through Miss Agnes Horsfield and Mr. H. W. Morphet, arranged a neat little surprise for Gunner Harold J. Devey on the station last Saturday by asking Major, the Rev. Canon Davidson, to present him with a beautiful wrist watch, suitably engraved, who in making the presentation referred to the recipient's many years of faithful service in the choir, and assured him of the earnest prayer daily offered on behalf of all the men engaged in the war with Germany. Mrs. A. T. Johnson presented the young soldier with small leather-bound prayer and hymn books. Gunner Arthur Horsfield also on last leave, received a present from the choir a few weeks ago, and on Saturday night Mr. and Mrs. W. R. Munro, whose only son is "Somewhere in Europe," presented Gunner Horsfield with a useful, compact heater, suitable for use in trench warfare. The choristers and members of the "San Toy" company kept things lively until the train pulled out with hearty cheers for the boys of the 33rd Battery, lustily answered by the soldiers from the rear platform of the train.

EACH COMPANY WILL GO ITS OWN WAY

Sun Life and Manufacturers' Merger is Off—Negotiations Ended

MONTREAL, Jan. 31.—T. B. Macaulay, President of the Sun Life Assurance Company of Canada, Friday gave out the following statement in regard to the negotiations between his company and the Manufacturers Life of Toronto:

"The Manufacturers' Life Insurance Company is one of the larger Canadian companies, strong, well-established and prosperous. As such the Superintendent of Insurance does not view with favor a proposition for its absorption. He further considers that its excellent financial condition justifies the belief that its future profits will be on a par with those of the best companies, and that the interests of the policyholders will not suffer if the reassurance be not completed.

"We are as firmly convinced as ever that the proposed amalgamation would have been for the benefit of all and would have resulted in increased profits to the policyholders of both companies, but in view of official opinion the two companies have decided to drop all negotiations and each will hereafter go its own way, with mutual esteem and good-will. To the policyholders of the Manufacturers' Life I would say that they have a company that is worthy of their fullest confidence and heartiest support. The company is, furthermore, under thoroughly capable management, and of its future success I have no doubt."

"I presume you are disappointed," it was suggested to Mr. Macaulay.

"Naturally I am. Our feelings towards the Manufacturers' Life may be compared to those of a young man who had become engaged to a most attractive lady, but to whom an unkind fate intervened to prevent the marriage. He will naturally follow the future of that lady with more than usual interest and goodwill. That is precisely our attitude to the Manufacturers' Life. We will never be able to forget how near the two companies have been to having their fates joined."

The Minnesota State forester wants the state wolf bounty raised from $7.50 to $25, and paid on nothing but bona fide timber wolves. He says the state is now wasting good money on the scalps of coyotes and shaggy yellow dogs, while the really to be feared marauder lives high and happily in the northern marshes.

Bombs Destroy 500 Bulgar Tents

LONDON, Feb. 1.— An Athens despatch to the Exchange Telegraph Company says it is reported from Saloniea that by the raid by French aeroplanes on the Bulgarian lines near Lake Doiran two hundred bombs were thrown on the Bulgarian camp. The whole camp was destroyed, five hundred tents being burned. Many Bulgarians were killed or wounded. The aviators brought back photographs of the camp in flames.

UGH! ACID STOMACH, SOURNESS, HEARTBURN, GAS OR INDIGESTION

The Moment "Pape's Diapepsin" Reaches the Stomach All Distress Goes

Do some foods you eat hit back—taste good, but work badly; ferment into stubborn lumps and cause a sick, sour, gassy stomach? Now Mr. or Mrs. Dyspeptic, jot this down; Pape's Diapepsin digests everything, leaving nothing to sour and upset you. There never was anything so safely quick, so certainly effective. No difference how badly your stomach is disordered you will get happy relief in five minutes, but what pleases you most is that it strengthens and regulates your stomach so you can eat your favourite foods without fear.

Most remedies give you relief sometime — they are slow, but not sure. "Pape's Diapepsin" is quick, positive and puts your stomach in a healthy condition so the misery won't come back.

You feel different as soon as "Pape's Diapepsin" comes in contact with the stomach—distress just vanishes—your stomach gets sweet, no gases, no belching, no eructations of undigested food, your head clears and you feel fine.

Go now, make the best investment you ever made, by getting a large fifty-cent case of Pape's Diapepsin from any drug store. You realize in five minutes how needless it is to suffer from indigestion, dyspepsia or any stomach disorder.

When coffee and scalded milk are served in equal proportions it is called cafe au lait. It is nutritious.

Zeppelins Raid North Eastern Counties of England

Turks Are Driven Back on Forty-Mile Front

Preparing For a Great Air Raid On England

A Squadron of Twenty Zeppelins, Some of Them Equipped With New Silent Motors, Preparing For An Attack---British Liner "Appam" Arrives at U. S. Port.

LONDON, Feb. 1.—A squadron of twenty Zeppelins, some of them equipped with the new silent motors, has been manoeuvring over Belgium for several days, preparing a great air raid on England, according to Amsterdam despatches to-day. The raid upon the eastern, north-eastern and midland counties of England made Monday night was only preliminary to a great attack from the sky, it is believed here.

The Press Bureau thus far has given out no detailed statement of the casualties, reporting merely that a number of bombs were dropped.

The Times to-day commenting on this phase of the recent developments, warned Londoners that a raid on London by a great number of German air dreadnoughts probably would bring serious results. The Times pointed out that London's air defences are in the process of development, but are by no means perfect.

A Rotterdam despatch to-day said that there was great rejoicing in Berlin over the Zeppelin attacks on Paris, but that Berliners were eager for another raid on London.

BRITISH AFRICAN LINER NOT SUNK.

NORFOLK, V.A., Feb. 1.—The British African liner Appam, thought to have been lost last week with all on board, came into Norfolk early to-day in charge of a German crew, said to be from a submarine which had captured her. The liner arrived at 5.45 a.m. She anchored in Hampton Roads, off Old Point Comfort. United States immigration officers are aboard, but they will allow no one else aboard as yet. She is understood to have a number of passengers aboard. The Appam has a dent on one of the plates on the starboard bow, just at the water line, as if she had struck a hard object or had been struck.

ROME, Feb. 1.—Duruzzo, Albania, was bombarded by Austrian aviators, who dropped manifests advising Serbians to return to Serbia.

ROME, Feb. 1.—Montenegrins and Serbians who opposed the Austrians in South Montenegro escaped from Scutari by cutting through during a raging storm. The main forces are intact it is thought. Heavy casualties are reported.

BERLIN, Feb. 1.—The War Office announced that the successful Paris raids were as reprisals for the French attack on Freiburg recently.

MILWAUKEE, Feb. 1.—"The danger of a hyphenated Americanism is a thing of the past, and when danger comes every man's heart will be first for America," said President Wilson, addressing nine thousand Americans here yesterday.

PARIS, Feb. 1.—A late official statement issued last night says that all the ground, except 500 yards, has been retaken from the Germans.

Warlike Savages, Sulky at Delay Start To Kill German Colonists

LONDON, Jan. 25.—Here is a true story from a very distant part of the globe which has its application

At the beginning of the war the news that the great White King was going to smash the "squareheads" penetrated in that mysterious way which has never been fully understood into a distant country held by a warlike tribe of savages not under British dominion, but with experience of Englishmen and Germans. After the declaration of war a trader, an Englishman, in this wild country was alarmed one day by the arrival of the tribe in full war paint. He made up his mind, having heard nothing of the declaration of war, that some traveller had insulted these easily provoked warriors and that there was to be a clean-up of all available white men. However, he went out to palaver with the chief.

"We hear," said the potentate, "that the great White King has declared war on the dogs of Germans, and we have come to help him." The trader felt that it would be fatal for him to admit that he knew nothing of the matter, and so with great difficulty he persuaded them to wait until he had time to find out what were the commands of the great White King himself.

The chief was at first decidedly sulky, but at last cheered up and said that he would wait. He moved off, and then came back.

"And while we are waiting," he said, "we know where there are two Germans, and we'll just go along and kill them."

AUSTRALIAN WHEAT CROP

Twill Be Record One — 100,000,000 Bushels for Export.

LONDON, Jan. 31.—Director Sturgis, of the Australian Bank, to-day stated that reports showed the Australian wheat crop would be a record one. He estimated that the yield would be 150,000,000 bushels of which 100,000,000 bushels would be available for export.

BY JOVE!

said a well educated man the other day when he was asked this question:—"Why, when you have a cold, a cough or bronchitis (trouble, you will note, of throat and chest) do you persist in pouring cough syrups, lung tonics and the like into your stomach, which is, perfectly sound?"

Ever think of it? The stomach and the lungs are not connected, otherwise food swallowed would choke you. Lung and throat troubles must always, yet cured by dosing the stomach. Pope's cough, cold and bronchial remedy is meant to breathe the fumes. Pope provides rational treatment for these ailments. Pope's are tablets made up of pine extracts and medicinal essences, which when put into the mouth turn into healing vapors. These are breathed down direct to the lungs, throat and bronchial tubes—not swallowed down to the stomach, which is not ailing. Try a 50c. box of Pope's for your cold, your cough, bronchitis or asthma. All druggists and stores or Pope Co., Toronto, will supply

ROUMANIA FRIENDLY TO THE ALLIES SAYS RUSSIAN MINISTER

Roumania's Attitude to Russia Remains Perfectly Satisfactory and Amicable—Roumania Will Not Fall Into a German Trap

LONDON, Feb. 1. — A despatch to Reuter's Telegram Company from Petrograd says:

"Sergius Sazonoff, the Russian Minister of Foreign Affairs, received a deputation of journalists to whom he gave a general review of the Balkan situation. His most interesting remarks concerned Roumania, whose relations with Russia, he said, remain perfectly satisfactory and amicable. He admitted that some time ago the attitude of Roumania was uncertain, owing to her fear of hostile acts on the part of the Central Powers, but that he was now convinced that Roumania would not fall into a German trap.

"I repeat that the Austro-Germans persist in their Roumanian campaign, but it is not producing the effect desired on practical Roumanians," said Mr. Sazonoff. He added that the whole Balkan situation would find its solution only after the war had ended."

Speaking of the improved relations between Russia and Sweden, Mr. Sazonoff said:

"It is evident that in Sweden, as elsewhere, there has been a Chauvinistic movement. It is possible that Sweden may feel the need of taking measures for the defence of her frontiers, but we can declare categorically that she will not have to defend them against Russia and that this side of her frontiers is perfectly secure."

While not denying that some excitement has been caused in Sweden by the British contraband measures, Mr. Sazonoff said:

"Great Britain is forced to defend legitimate interests which demand the eradication of German maritime contraband. Moreover, Great Britain is going to do her best not to compromise the interests of neutrals, including Sweden."

He declared that Germany, which enjoys the good will of Sweden, takes less care about naval measures than Great Britain and "sinks neutral ships mercilessly," including Swedish.

Regarding the Entente Allies the Foreign Minister declared that their interests were growing closer and closer from both a military and a political viewpoint. He considered the projected trip of the members of the Duma to England would lead to new understandings, and he paid a tribute to Great Britain's efforts in the war.

Asked for his opinion on the duration of the war, the Minister said he did not think it would last much longer and that Germany would be the first to give in for economic reasons.

Nevertheless," he added, "we must continue to make intense preparation for the summer campaign."

Mr. Sazonoff closed with the declaration that the Entente Allies were absolutely confident that they would triumph.

Damage Only Slight In Last Night's Zeppelin Raid

On The North Eastern Counties---Relations Between The United States and Germany Are Becoming Grave---No Settlement of Lusitania Affair by Arbitration Can Be Made.

LONDON, Feb. 1.—The north-eastern counties of England were raided by a fleet of Zeppelins last night. The damage was slight.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 1. — The relations between the United States and Germany are grave. No settlement of the Lusitania affair by arbitration can be made.

AMSTERDAM, Feb. —Food riots occurred in Berlin. Six persons were killed.

PETROGRAD, Feb. 1.—The Turks were driven back on a forty-mile front. The Russians are marching into a thickly populated district. A great number of prisoners and supplies were taken.

ATHENS, Feb. 1.—Great alarm is caused in Constantinople over the Russian successes in Mesopotamia and the Caucasus.

LONDON, Feb. 1.—Germany furnished the Turks with six submarines to operate in the Sea of Marmora.

GERMAN GUNS CONCEALED IN DUNES DEFEND COAST

BUDAPEST, via London, Jan. 31.—Mr. B. Landauer, the Hungarian war correspondent with the German armies on the western front, gives an interesting description of his experiences in Flanders, where he was allowed to inspect the foremost German trenches, and where he had a short talk with men in the utmost wing of the German lines, a few paces from the seashore. He also describes Bruges and Ostend, as well as other Belgian towns in German occupation.

Writing of Bruges, he says that the people have named their town "The City of the Dead," and as a matter of fact it does look like a dead town, for its silent streets, re-echo only the noise of German soldiers' boots; the people themselves walk almost noiselessly, as if they would be the spirits of the once gay little place.

Of Zeebrugge he says that "on the beautiful piers which the English built for $100,000,000 the Germans are hard at work with their hydroplanes and submarines, the whole seashore is dotted with hidden monster guns commanding the sea for miles and miles, and should an enemy war ship appear within sight hundreds of great calibre guns would be ready to receive it. There is not a spot on the whole seacoast as far as Nieuport which has not been used for defensive purposes. The sands are full of hidden positions, with light and heavy batteries. The end of the German trenches is not more than twelve paces distant from the French position at Nieuport. One does not hear any artillery firing, only rifle shots, and though the enemy is unseen the firing is almost continuous."

About the German Ostend Mr. Landauer writes that it looks very unhappy and forlorn, although in the chief street, the Kapellstraat, all the shops are open and the traffic is unusually great. From the inner part of Ostend it is difficult to get to the Digue on the seashore, for the side streets are all blocked by the wooden bathing machines. In the famous Helder bar rifles are stored up, and in the Maxim a patrol is stationed. One can get to the shore only by passing around the Kursaal, which is transformed into a hospital now.

In front of the small Wellington bar five lines of wire entanglements stop the way, and before the Continental Hotel an immense pile of sandbags is stacked. From the Royal Palace to the race course there are trenches and wire fences. The famous Royal Palace Hotel, with its immense garden looks pitiful and deserted. The non-commissioned officers' school is on the ground floor of the great building, and in the beautiful home of the Union Club there is a disinfecting institute.

OBITUARY

MRS. ROBT. PERDUE.

A well known and highly respected resident of Emily township passed away Jan. 11 at St. Joseph's Hospital, Peterborough, in the person of Rebecca Herlihey, wife of the late Robt. Perdue.

Deceased, who has resided in Emily all her life, was only ailing two weeks and her death came as a great shock to her many friends and relatives. The late Mrs. Perdue, who was in her 63rd year, was most widely known and esteemed by a wide circle of friends and acquaintances who will ever bear memory of her kind Christian character and friendliness. Her husband predeceased her about a year ago. There are left to mourn the loss of a loving mother, eight sons and five daughters. The sons are Wm. and Garnet of Peterborough, Thos. and Victor of Detroit, Mich., Fergus of Rochester, N. Y., John of Emily and Vincent and Peter at home. The daughers are, Mrs. H. Hennessey of Peterborough, Mrs. Thos. Sullivan of Emily, Ruby of Peterborough and Katie and Gertie at home. She is also survived by three brothers, Patrick, Wm. and Edmund Herlihey of Emily and one sister, Mrs. Thos. Murray of Peterborough.

The funeral was held on Friday to St. Luke's church, Downeyville and was largely attended. The services were conducted by Rev. Father Galvin. The pallbearers were the six sons of deceased, Wm., Thos., John, Peter, Vincent, and Victor.

THOS. CARROLL.

There passed away at his home in Emily one of the township's best known and most highly respected residents in the person of Thos. Carroll, aged 56 years. Deceased had been ailing for the past two years and his death was not unexpected, but came as a great shock to his friends. Talented with a keen sense of humor made of him a most desirable acquaintance. His absence will be greatly felt in the community as his late home. There are left to mourn the loss of a kind and loving husband and father his sorrowing widow, two sons, Albert at home and Joseph of Columbus, Ohio, also his aged mother, Mrs. Ellen Carroll of Lindsay, three brothers, James, Martin and Henry of Emily, and six sisters, Mrs Edmund Herlihey and Mrs. Francis Milloy of Emily, Mrs. Peter Murths of Lindsay and Mrs. T. Driscoll, Mrs. John Skuse and Miss Lizzie Carroll of Rochester, N.Y.

The largely attended funeral, which was held on Wednesday, was an evidence of the esteem in which the deceased was held. Rev. Father Galvin delivered an excellent address over the remains at the Roman Catholic church, Downeyville, after which interment took place in Downeyville cemetery.

FORBID TALK ON FOOD AND TAXES

The Berlin Vorwaerts Says Military Authorities Have Prohibited Discussion at Meetings.

LONDON, Jan. 31.— The socialist newspaper Vorwaerts, of Berlin, as quoted by the Amsterdam correspondent of the Exchange Telegraph Company, says that discussion of food prices and the coming war taxes in Germany has been forbidden.

The military authorities are said to have prohibited meetings arranged for this purpose, on the ground that they would depress the spirit of the people.

WHY HAIR FALLS OUT

Dandruff causes a feverish irritation of the scalp, the hair roots shrink, loosen and then the hair comes out fast. To stop falling hair at once and rid the scalp of every particle of dandruff, get a 25-cent bottle of Danderine at any drug store, pour a little in your hand and rub well into the scalp. After a few application all dandruff disappears and the hair stops coming out.

Ship Uses Guns, Caught and Sunk

Oil Vessel, Ordered to Stop, Resists Submarine And Is Sent to Bottom

BERLIN, (by wireless to Sayville, L.I.) Feb. 1. — The Overseas News Agency, quoting the Vossische Zeitung, says: "A German submarine ordered the oil tank steamship Lumina to stop; the steamship, however, continued on, and answered with fire from guns on board her, when she was shelled. The submarine then stopped the Lumina, took the guns from her and sank her. The captain of the Lumina affirmed that he had only acted according to the order of the British Admiralty."

Regarding the official admission by the British that ninety-five survivors of the British armed boarding steamship Tara, sunk by a German submarine in the Mediterranean last November, are in the hands of Senussi tribesmen, where they are being well treated, the Vossische Zeitung says that these men were made prisoners by the submarine that sank the Tara on November 19. It was the same submarine that sank the Lumina.

"TIZ" FOR TIRED AND SORE FEET

Use "Tiz" for puffed-up, burning, aching, calloused feet and corns

Why go limping around with aching, puffed-up feet — feet so tired, chafed, sore and swollen you can hardly get your shoes on or off? Why don't you get a 25-cent box of "Tiz" from the drug store now and gladden your tortured feet?

"Tiz" makes your feet glow with comfort; takes down swellings and draws the soreness and misery right out of feet that chafe, smart and burn. "Tiz" instantly stops pain in corns, callouses and bunions. "Tiz" is glorious for tired, aching, sore feet. No more shoe tightness — no more foot torture.

LOVE LINKED WITH DEATH.

Where Women Propose and if Rejected Must Kill Themselves.

In the Pacific ocean, between Fiji, New Guinea, New Caledonia and the continent of Australia, lies the Melanesian group of islands, where head hunters and cannibals abound. Strange and grewsome as are many of the customs of the tribes, there are some that are most romantic. For instance, on the island of Tucopia the women propose marriage instead of the men.

When a girl of Tucopia sees a man whom she thinks she would like to have for her husband she does not rush up to him and ask him to marry her. On the contrary, she gives the subject deep thought and often the man a most careful investigation before she "pops the question." The reason is that his answer spells life or death to her.

It is a tribal law that any woman who has been refused must forthwith kill herself. Therefore a woman asks a man's hand only when she feels sure that his answer will be the happy one.

Many are the strange and seemingly inexplicable questions with which the women of Tucopia ply the stranger who cannot realize the personal motive back of the solicitude of the dusky belles who inquire if he is married or not and the state of his wife's health. Romances are consequently very apt to turn out in happy marriage.

But there have been innumerable instances when a poor girl, smitten by the newcomer's charms, has been compelled to kill herself because the man with whom she has fallen in love has had to refuse to marry her.

Baldness with the women of Tucopia is a sign of beauty, and never until she is bald does a Tucopia woman become fully convinced that she is really lovely.

But, bald or not, she takes great care whom she asks to marry her, for the tribal law has never been known to fail. If a rejected woman does not kill herself she is executed under the most dishonorable conditions by the leaders of the tribe.

At once the ship's surgeon dressed the burn, but the injury would not heal owing to a lot of dirt from the pipe causing blood-poison. I was in fearful pain and didn't know how to get ease.
"For weeks I remained under treatment, but the ordinary ointments proved no good. Indeed, I got worse. I therefore obtained a supply of Zam-Buk and almost as soon as this was applied I got ease. From the very first application, healing commenced; and a few boxes of Zam-Buk healed my wound completely."

True Words.

"Ma, do you remember at the wedding how you said we shouldn't feel bad 'cause we weren't losing our daughter, but gaining a son?"

"Yes, pa."

"Well, them was true words, ma. He's just written me that they've decided to come home an' live with us."

After Thirty.

It has been calculated that of 1,000,000 men and women who have passed the age of thirty about one-half live to the age of sixty-three, one-fourth to the age of seventy-six, every tenth to the age of eighty-three and every hundredth to the age of ninety-seven years. Of 1,000,000 only 100 attain the age of 100.

Wonders of Nature.

"Nature provides," declared the editor of the Plunkville Palladium.

"What's on your mind?"

"The horses used to eat the grass that grew in our streets. When automobiles came we thought the grass would get the best of us, but the gasoline drippings kill it off."

The Open Question.

Many, many years ago the Stork and the Wolf met at the door of a human habitation.

"After you!" they exclaimed simultaneously.

And since then scientists have been unable to determine whether poverty or population came into being first.

Modifying It.

"She threatened to throw hot water in my face," said a school attendance officer, referring to a woman who had been summoned in respect of the truancy of her child.

"You must not throw hot water," the judge told the defendant. "You can heap coals of fire on his head, if you like."

An Indiscreet Memory.

The Hostess—Don't you think Colonel Broadside is quite a wonderful old man? Look at him. He is as straight and slender as an arrow, and he has the most wonderful memory. The Lady of Dubious Age—I think he's an atrocious old bore. He remembers when everybody was born.

Not a Grumbler.

In one of the southwestern states the courtroom of the courthouse was overlooking the cemetery. A negro had just been sentenced for two years. The judge, piqued at his apparent indifference, remarked, "You don't seem to mind your sentence."

"Bless yo', judge, dey's plenty ob 'em ovah yondah would like to hab it!"

"TOBY, M.P."

Stories of Sir Henry Lucy and His Famous Parliamentary Comment

For nearly thirty-five years Sir Henry Lucy has contributed the Essence of Parliament to Punch, in the character of "Toby, M.P.," which he created, and by no doing has established a journalistic record of which he has every reason to be proud. Sir Henry's Parliamentary experience goes back nearly half a century, and no man has a greater fund of political stories. He considers that Gladstone is the greatest man he has ever met, and tells an amusing story as an example of his persuasive oratory.

The G. O. M. once dined with the Lucys, and held forth in his finest vein. Among the guests was Du Maurier, a notoriously red-hot Tory, but when Gladstone had gone he turned to his host and declared, with an emphatic bang on the table, "Well, I'm going to be a Liberal for a fortnight."

There is no man in the House of Commons whom Sir Henry does not know, and an example of his wit is provided by the story of a new member who went up to Sir Henry one day and said, "I know your face quite well, but I cannot remember where we have met. Pray tell me what place you represent. I cannot bring it to mind." "I am a member for Barkshire," said "Toby, M.P.," alluding, of course, to his canine cognomen.

Apart from his Parliamentary work, Sir Henry has had many varied experiences as a journalist. As a boy he seemed to be marked down for a commercial career, for he was apprenticed to a Liverpool merchant. When he was nineteen, however, he joined the staff of The Shrewsbury Chronicle as chief reporter, afterwards migrating to London, where he quickly established himself as one of the most able journalists in the Metropolis. In his fascinating autobiography, "Sixty Years in the Wilderness," Sir Henry relates that, as a pressman, he went down a coal-mine in South Wales, a silver-mine in the United States, has voyaged in a submarine boat, and seen two men hanged. One of his reminiscences is in connection with the execution of Henry Wainwright, for what was known as the Whitechapel tragedy. Calcraft was the executioner, and many years afterwards he called upon Sir Henry Lucy in London, and in the latter's absence from home left his card. "In the circumstances," says Mr. Lucy, "I had observed with relief the notification that he had retired from business."

Queen Victoria's Favorite Premier.

It is generally believed that Queen Victoria regarded Disraeli as her greatest Premier. Judging, however, from a story which Mr. John Murray, the famous publisher, tells, this is scarcely correct.

"A man still living," says Mr. Murray, "who was in the intimate confidence of Queen Victoria, in conversation with Her Majesty on one occasion when Lord Beaconsfield's name came up, said, 'I suppose you regard Lord Beaconsfield as the greatest of your Prime Ministers?' The Queen replied quickly and emphatically, 'No, no! Lord Beaconsfield was an extremely able man and a great friend of mine, and one for whom I had a great personal regard, but he was not my greatest Prime Minister. Sir Robert Peel was a greater Prime Minister than Lord Beaconsfield, but we now have a greater than either of them.' The Queen referred to the late Lord Salisbury."

"Unearned Increment."

As an example of Manchester wit, this story told by Dean Weldon of Manchester, in his Reminiscences, would be hard to beat.

"It Happened," says the Dean, "that a certain candidate for Parliamentary honors, whom I will call Mr. C., had begun life in humble circumstances with a monosyllabic name; then upon his marriage with the daughter of a wealthy manufacturer he assumed a double-barrelled name and became Mr. C.-D. In one of his electioneering speeches, when he was attacking what was then the Chancellor of the Exchequer's favorite doctrine of the 'unearned increment,' he insisted upon the difficulty of defining and distinguishing the various increments of property.

"'What is unearned increment?' he cried. 'I defy anybody in the hall to tell me what unearned increment is.'

"From the back of the hall came at once the crushing rejoinder, 'It's the 'yphen between C and D.'"

A DARING AIR FEAT.

Lieut.-Col. Maitland Dropped 10,000 Feet by a Parachute.

Undoubtedly the most daring aeronautical feat on record was that performed by Lieut.-Col. E. M. Maitland, who commands the Airship Section of the Naval Air Service, and who recently jumped from a balloon flying over London at a height of 10,000 feet, descending by parachute. Hitherto, the record seems to have been held by that intrepid balloonist, Captain Baldwin, who in 1837 claimed to have descended from a height of one mile (5,280 ft.) in just over three minutes.

Colonel Maitland was fifteen minutes coming down, and he confesses that the most trying part of the experience for him was before the parachute opened. He fell several hundred feet dead weight, and the suspense "seemed like an eternity," but at last the parachute opened, and the descent continued steadily.

The feat was the result of a discussion which took place concerning a certain official project, a question arising as to whether a balloonist could make a safe descent from such a height. "Someone" said Lieut.-Colonel Maitland, "must make the experiment. I must know what will happen. I will take the jump myself, as there is only one person whom I have the right to ask."

An extremely large parachute was used for the experiment, the descent safely accomplished, and thus the official query was satisfactorily solved. The experiment also demonstrated the fact that a parachute descent in no way interferes with the stability of an airship, so that a man could be landed after a long journey with reports while the airship continued its flight.

This is by no means the first parachute descent which Colonel Maitland has made, for in October, 1913, he made a descent from the airship Delta at a height of 1,800 ft. The airship on this occasion was traveling at twenty miles an hour, and the lieutenant-colonel fell 300 ft. before the parachute opened, but he landed safely in the Colne Reservoir at Aldershot.

Fun in a Blue Book.

According to the London correspondent of The Glasgow Herald, an amusing incident in the later years of the diplomatic career of the late Sir Claude Macdonald has passed unrecorded by his biographers.

It happened at the time that he was at the head of the Legation at Pekin. He had sent to the home Government a despatch dealing with events which were at that moment engaging widespread attention, and a rough proof of the document was submitted in due course to Mr. G. N. Curzon, the late Lord Salisbury's assistant at the Foreign Office.

One afternoon the Under-Secretary perused the despatch and pencilled in the margin a number of piquant comments upon the grammar of the distinguished diplomat. Indeed, so forcible were the interlineations that no doubt whatever existed that between the two men there was the utmost divergence of view in regard to the question of grammatical propriety.

To the amazement, however, of the Foreign Office, the comments in all their bald frankness appeared in the Blue Book as subsequently published, and upon attention being directed to the matter the issue was promptly withdrawn and a fresh edition substituted.

How these marginal notes ever came to be published in the finished document will probably remain a secret for all time, unless the theory be accepted that the printers adhered too strictly to the wholesome rule as to following "copy," which is, or should be, one of the cardinal principles of the typographical art.

Their Day is Gone.

The unprecedented spectacle of some of the most famous clubs in London actually advertising in the newspapers for members is one of the results of less than a year and a half of war. Clubs on Pall Mall and Piccadilly that for years have had waiting lists so long that members rushed round to enter their sons' names immediately after the christening have abolished entrance fees and are clamoring for candidates.

Some of the well-informed in clubdom declare that the day of the London club has gone never to return. Golf and motoring have decimated club attendances and club finances. The war has completed the havoc by giving many a member the excuse to land in a resignation that was timidly pondered for years.

Household Economy
How to Have the Best Cough Remedy and Save $5 by Making It at Home

Cough medicines, as a rule, contain a large quantity of plain syrup. Two cups of granulated sugar with one cup of warm water, stirred for 2 minutes gives you as good syrup as money can buy.

Then get from your druggist 2½ ounces Pinex (50 cents worth), pour into a 16-ounce bottle and fill the bottle with sugar syrup. This gives you, at a cost of only 54 cents, 16 ounces of really better cough syrup than you could buy ready made for $2.50—a clear saving of nearly $2. Full directions with Pinex. It keeps perfectly and tastes good.

It takes hold of the usual cough or chest cold at once and expenses it in 24 hours. Splendid for whooping cough, bronchitis and winter coughs.

It's truly astonishing how quickly it loosens the dry, hoarse or tight cough and heals and soothes the inflamed membranes in the case of a painful cough. It also stops the formation of phlegm in the throat and bronchial tubes, thus ending the persistent loose cough.

Pinex is a highly concentrated compound of genuine Norway pine extract, combined with guaiacol, and has been used for generations to heal inflamed membranes of the throat and chest.

To avoid disappointment, ask your druggist for "2½ ounces of Pinex," and don't accept anything else. A guarantee of absolute satisfaction, or money promptly refunded, goes with this preparation. The Pinex Co., Toronto, Ont.

CAPTAIN BILLINGS JOINS THE CANADIAN VOLUNTEERS

Haskell C. Billings of the Forty-seventh Regiment, N.G., N. Y., has resigned his captaincy to accept a commission as major in the Canadian Volunteers. He left for Canada without waiting for officers of the Second Brigade to act on his resignation.

Captain Billings has been a member of the Forty-Seventh Regiment, Brooklyn, for eight years. Prior to that time he was a member of the famous Seventh.

SAYS BRITAIN MUST HAVE WOMEN FARMERS

LONDON, January 31.—Great Britain must have women farmers if the country is to survive the war. That is the opinion just issued by Lord Selborne, president of the Government Board of Agriculture.

A proposition is now under consideration to canvass the rural districts of England, Scotland and Wales, and register women farm laborers just as male workers were listed under the Legislation Act.

Collapsible towers, adopted by the German army for searchlights and wireless telegraphy, are so bright and compact that two men can carry a tower that extends to 150 feet.

STING OF THE AGY.

A Madagascar Plant That Can Drive Men Mad With Pain.

Among the many peculiar and disconcerting plants and creatures that abound in Madagascar, probably none is more surprising and disconcerting than the agy tree, so called, which is not a tree, but a climbing plant. The following incident, quoted by Mr. James Sibree, F. R. G. S., in "A Naturalist in Madagascar," illustrates the painful result of contact with the agy. The story is told by a Mr. Montgomery:

Walking under some trees and pushing aside the reeds and grass, I was startled by a sudden tingling and prickling sensation over the backs of my hands and fingers. I stopped in sudden surprise, for the pain was severe, and I had touched nothing except the grass. But in another minute the pain increased, the tingling, burning sensation seemed to be extending rapidly up my wrists, and I could see nothing to cause it. As I lowered my head to look scalding pain shot into my ears and neck and grew worse every instant. Dazed and bewildered, I stood a few seconds in helplessness, for I could neither see nor guess at the cause of the terrible distress. Then I got back to my company with agony written plain enough on every line of my face.

The men started up when they saw me, crying, "You have been stung by the agy!" Some of them led me to a seat, others rushed for water from the river, and two or three brought sand heaped up in their hands. Then they chafed me with the sand and water to take out the stinging balm, which they knew caused the mischief. As they rubbed me I felt the pain abate, and after they had chafed me for about a quarter of an hour I was comparatively free from pain. While the men were rubbing me I was able to discern to some extent the cause of my distress. Countless hairs, like tiny arrows, almost transparent, pointed at either end and from a third to a fourth of an inch long had dropped on me in an invisible shower from the agy tree as I stood under it. Before I came away that afternoon, very cautiously I ventured to examine the tree at a little distance and found that the tiny hairs grew outside a thickish pod of shell not quite so large as a small banana. The pods were fully ripe (unluckily for me) just at that time, and the light wind was scattering their coverings.

Nitrocellulose.

Cotton in the form of nitrocellulose is the most important component of all military propulsive explosives. Strictly speaking, the raw material used is cotton waste, or the stuff rejected in the manufacture of cotton goods. Jute, ramie, kapok fiber, sulphite pulp, spun cotton and other forms of cellulose, have all been tried, but the only trustworthy material is cotton waste.

Ferocity of Man.

I recoil with horror at the ferociousness of man. Are there no means of coercing justice more gratifying to our nature than a waste of the blood of thousands and of the labor of millions of our fellow creatures?—Thomas Jefferson.

IF BACKACHY OR KIDNEYS BOTHER

Eat Less Meat and Take Glass of Salts Before Eating Breakfast

Uric acid in meat excites the kidneys, they become overworked; get sluggish, ache, and feel like lumps of lead. The urine becomes cloudy; the bladder is irritated, and you may be obliged to seek relief two or three times during the night. When the kidneys clog you must help them flush off the body's urinous waste or you'll be a real sick person shortly. At first you feel a dull misery in the kidney region, you suffer from backache, sick headache, dizziness, stomach gets sour, tongue coated and you feel rheumatic twinges when the weather is bad.

Eat less meat, drink lots of water; also get from any pharmacist four ounces of Jad Salts; take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days, and your kidneys will then act fine. This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for generations to clean clogged kidneys and stimulate them to normal activity; also to neutralize the acids in urine, so it no longer is a source of irritation, thus ending bladder weakness.

Jad Salts is inexpensive, cannot injure; makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water drink which everyone should take now and then to keep the kidneys clean and active. Druggists here say they sell lots of Jad Salts to folks who believe in overcoming kidney trouble while it is only trouble.

DAZED THE GUESTS

The Grand Vizier's Speech at the Gridiron Club Dinner.

FAIRLY BLAZED WITH ABUSE.

It Looked Very Much Like the Makings of "a Bully Row," but the Surprising Climax Averted All Danger of Diplomatic Complications.

In January, 1904, Mirza Ali Asgar Khan, former grand vizier of Persia, was making a trip around the world and was booked to sail to Europe from New York. His attendance at the Gridiron club dinner in Washington was announced in the newspapers. What happened at that banquet is thus dramatically described by Arthur Wallace Dunn in his book, "Gridiron Nights:"

The grand vizier came in late, after the dinner had been in progress for a time, and was accompanied by Scott C. Bone of the Washington Post, his host of the evening. Before taking his seat, directly in front of the president of the United States, he bowed low to that official and then made a sweeping salaam to the assembled company.

Senator Beveridge was introduced and shook hands. William H. Taft, then governor general of the Philippines, who had crossed the ocean on the same ship with the grand vizier, walked across the dining room and shook hands, expressing his pleasure at seeing him again. Senators Aldrich, Gorman and Hanna and Speaker Cannon, sitting near by, were introduced.

After the dinner had progressed for a time President Louis A. Coolidge introduced the oriental guest as one who had journeyed far and who came that night with views he had gathered in his travels.

Mirza Ali Asgar Khan, with more profound bows, said that his message to the Gridiron club and its guests had been written, as he was somewhat imperfect in our language, and then he began to read from large sheets of paper.

"The people of the United States," he began, "are watching every day to see whether there is to be a war in the old world. In the east we also watch for that war. It is to observe preparations for that war that I travel.

"I was in Japan before I came to this country. In Persia we take great interest in Japan, because the next war will be the great struggle between the civilizations of the east and west. We believe that the eastern civilization will overcome the western civilization.

"This will mark the downfall of Russia, that treacherous power that has plotted against peace of mankind from the days of Peter the Great and has been the hypocrite, the false friend of every weaker power it has aimed to destroy."

He was interrupted by a member of the club, who suggested that as the Russian ambassador was our guest no such discussion should be permitted. Mirza Ali looked puzzled and continued:

"The barbarous rule of Germany will be brought to an end, and a higher morality will supplant the vicious rule of the vandals who have kept the intelligence of Europe under a reign of terror"—

Again he was interrupted and attention called to the presence of the German ambassador. The situation was explained to the grand vizier, and he turned over two or three pages of his manuscript and continued:

"And then Great Britain, the traditional enemy of the free American people—perfidious Albion, as she is called by one of your poets—she has been the trader of the world—buyer and seller of men—pretending to love liberty, but hypocritically sheltering slavery when it could be to her interest"—

President Coolidge stopped him by sharp raps of the gavel. The faces of the diplomats were drawn into frowns of disapproval. Guests and members were aghast, while President Roosevelt looked as if he thought it was the makings of a bully row.

"We are very much obliged," said Mr. Coolidge, "to his excellency the grand vizier, but as some members of the British embassy are with us"—

"You will not let me speak," said the visier angrily; "then I bid you good night! You invite me here—you ask me to speak—I prepare my speech—you are as bad as the rest. You have no free press—you have no free speech! I go."

And as he was making sweeping gestures he tore away his fez, wig and beard, and there stood Francis E. Leupp of the New York Evening Post. He had put over the greatest hoax ever perpetrated by the Gridiron club. The real Mirza Ali Asgar Khan had sailed for Europe that very day.

Optimist and Pessimist.

Mr. Will Crooks, M.P., has a well-deserved reputation as a raconteur. At a lecture the other evening he caused great diversion by defining the difference between an optimist and a pessimist. The author, he said, was a colonel who confided the definition to him on his recent visit to the Front.

"An optimist," he said, "is a man who has 'done' everybody, and takes jolly good care he is not 'done in' himself. A pessimist is the man who lived with him."

Sins of Cambodia.

"A governess once tried to give her pupils some idea of the relative size of distant countries by saying, 'Cambodia is about as large as Siam'; and when this information was reproduced in a written exercise, one of the girls put it in the words, 'The sins of Cambodia is about as large as she is.'"

EXAMINER DOLLAR DAY

IN ITS ORIGINAL FORM, WILL BE HELD ON

THURSDAY, FEB'Y 3rd, 1916

And judging by the enthusiasm of the Merchants, promises to far surpass all previous events of the kind in the City. The Stores have all had a good season's business, and propose to show their appreciation of the patronage they receive from the home district by giving the BIGGEST DOLLAR VALUES they have ever attempted, with the triple object of giving their customers in some of the bargains that will be offered something for practically nothing, clearing out odd lines and balances of winter goods and making Dollar Day a memorable one and the biggest event of the year in the district. In addition to the splendid Dollar Values, the merchants are giving away

$175.00 CASH PRIZES

This money will be given away in this way:—With every dollar purchase on that day, an estimating blank will be given to the purchaser. You will fill in your name and address, and a number representing your estimate on the following question.

Estimate the Number of these Blanks that will be Filled In and Dropped Into the Ballot Box at "The Examiner Office" by 10:15 p.m. on Dollar Day

The nearest correct estimate will be awarded the First Prize of $25; the Second $20; the Third $15, and so on

56 CASH PRIZES

Nearest correct estimate, - 1st Prize $25.00
Next nearest correct estimate, 2nd Prize $20.00
Next nearest correct estimate, 3rd Prize $15.00
Next nearest correct estimate, 4th Prize $10.00
Next nearest correct estimate, 5th Prize $10.00
Next nearest correct estimate, 6th Prize $5.00
Next nearest correct estimate, 7th Prize $5.00
Next nearest correct estimate, 8th Prize $5.00
Next nearest correct estimate, 9th Prize $5.00
Next nearest correct estimate, 10th Prize $5.00
Next nearest correct estimate, 11th Prize $5.00
Next 5 nearest CORRECT ESTIMATE 5 Prizes, each $3.00
Next 10 nearest CORRECT ESTIMATE 10 Prizes, each $2.00
Next 30 nearest CORRECT ESTIMATE 30 Prizes, each $1.00

For your guidance in estimating, we might say that The Examiner is Printing and Distributing to the Merchants, for use on Dollar Day, 36,000 Blanks, and it is only necessary to estimate what number each purchaser thinks will be used on the great day. Should any store run short of blanks, The Examiner will print more, so that the number printed might reach as high as 50,000. The number of estimates put in the first Dollar Day Campaign was in the neighbourhood of 16,000. With this information, an estimate can be made before coming to town. Of course as many estimates can be made as the purchaser has blanks, and they will get one with every Dollar purchase they make.

Make up your mind what and where you want to buy and come to PETERBORO' on THURSDAY, FEBRUARY 3rd, expecting the greatest economy shopping event of your lives.

WARS OF PRESENT AND OF THE PAST

High Teutonic Officer Writes of the Campaigns of Frederick the Great and Napoleon.

[Special Dispatch.]

BERLIN, Jan. 31.

The Frankfurter Zeitung prints prominently the following comparisons, made by a high German officer, between the present European war and the campaigns of Frederick the Great, Napoleon and previous big conflicts in history.

"Never in the history of the world have there been armies of such numbers as in this war," writes this military expert. "All figures of the past fall into insignificance. Frederick the Great fought his battles with an army very small in numbers. At Rossbach he had only 22,000 men and at Leuthen 34,000. Napoleon's grand army, which in his age was considered gigantic, consisted of 600,000 men. The biggest battle of the last century in point of numbers was that of Königgrätz. There 206,000 Austrians fought against a like number of Prussians. At the end of the Franco-Prussian War there was an army of 500,000 men on French soil.

"Let us compare these figures with the size of the armies in the present war.

"The strength of the Bulgarian army, which joined the forces of General von Mackensen, alone consisted of 200,000 men. Asquith recently stated that the forces on French soil under General French consisted of a million Englishmen, while the Russian prisoners in Germany and Austria are now more than two million men.

"Military experts have in past years protested against the systematic increase of our armies. They have deplored the 'rage de nombre.' They have urged smaller armies, better trained and equipped. Large armies are difficult to handle, difficult to feed and equip properly. They point to Frederick the Great as a military genius, who sought quality and not quantity.

"While there can be no doubt of Frederick's great achievements, there is no indication that he purposely limited the size of his army. In fact, there is every indication that he organized his forces in accordance with the strength at which he estimated his opponents. The present conflict has clearly shown that we adopted the right system in increasing our armies in the same proportion as the increase in population. Otherwise we would have by this time been overwhelmed and annihilated by the big armies of our enemies.

It must not be overlooked that in our march through Belgium and Northern France we constantly fought against superior numbers. And again on the east front our troops had to contend against the superior numbers of the Russians. Furthermore, it must not be forgotten that we were only enabled to send reinforcements to the eastern front because our troops, under superior generalship, were able to hold back the larger forces of French and English on the western front. Also on the Italian front has this been the case. It has, therefore, been now clearly demonstrated that our army is better officered, better equipped, better drilled than any other in the world and is first of all an 'army of quality.' Because of this we were able to drive back the cossacks, whom our enemies predicted would soon overwhelm us because of their superiority in numbers.

"One feature of the present war which was not anticipated in our preparations during peace is that of the trench warfare. For over a year on the west front there have been parallel trenches extending from the North Sea to the frontier of Switzerland. And on the eastern front since the great German offensive the trenches now extend from the vicinity of Riga through the Pripet swamps as far south as the Roumanian border. Such a condition of warfare was never before known. Here the infantry and the artillery have been in combat day and night. This kind of warfare is more strenuous and harder on the nerves of the men engaged than any ever before known.

"In the Franco-Prussian War except when strong fortresses were besieged there was no trench warfare. Big battles were fought in the open and were won or lost in a day's time. In those days the troops had plenty of opportunity to rest and recuperate. Now this is all changed, and even where the enemy when in retreat is pursued, as was the case in Russia, the troops constantly meet with trenches which have to be stormed and captured, thus rendering any rest impossible.

"What is the cause of this trench warfare? Primarily it is a reaction against the powerful modern guns. At the very beginning of the war guns were brought into use whose fire no army could withstand. In calibre, in quickness of action and in surety of aim they were irresistible, and the only course left was for the troops to dig themselves into the earth.

"In the Russo-Japanese War trenches to a certain extent were used for the first time, but on only a small scale, and these were more in the nature of old time earthworks. These were built by General Kuropatkin to protect his men against the Japanese while he waited for reinforcements to arrive from Russia. These were located around Liaoyan and Mukden, in Manchuria, but the decisive battles were really fought in the open.

"A remarkable fact about the present war is the failure of encircling movements with the single exception of the battle of Tannenberg. This strategic movement against the enemy was in most cases rendered impotent because of lack of room. That may at first seem paradoxical because of the large masses of troops engaged, but it is nevertheless true. Since last October a year ago on the western theatre of war only a general frontal attack has been possible. The same is true on the eastern front after the completion of our offensive.

"This inability to encircle the enemy because of lack of space is a revelation in this war, which is unknown in the whole history of warfare, and this is due entirely to the trench warfare now existing.

"The German army in Poland and Russia in order to meet this condition had to resort to entirely new tactics. In May, 1915, the Russian front at Dunajec was violently attacked and pierced. This threatened the Russian flank in the Carpathians, and here began an entirely new strategical movement in the history of warfare. The armies of Mackensen and Linsingen swept to the north, while Hindenburg swept to the south. At the same time Prince Leopold's troops began a frontal attack to the east. These movements were protected by two wide spreading wings, one in Kurland and the other in Eastern Galicia. The idea was to attack the enemy on three sides, force them to retire into a comparatively small space and then press in on them and hold them as in a vise. The success of this movement resulted in the conquering of the whole of Poland with all its fortifications and the capture of thousands of prisoners.

AMERICAN SURGEONS FROM THE RUSSIAN ARMY, ARE NOW IN UNITED STATES SEEKING AID FOR HOSPITALS

WARD ROOM AMERICAN HOSPITAL RUSSIA.

OPERATION IN AMERICAN HOSPITAL, RUSSIA

AMERICAN ARMY SURGEONS IN AMERICAN HOSPITAL AT KIEFF

CONVALESCENT SOLDIERS (ON RIGHT) AND WOMEN CARRYING PATIENTS AT AMERICAN HOSPITAL, KIEFF, RUSSIA.

Dr. Philip Newton, a surgeon of the Russian army, with the rank of brigadier general, and Dr. Edward H. Egbert, a surgeon of the Russian Red Cross, both of whom are citizens of the United States, have returned from the eastern front of the European war to obtain financial aid for the re-establishment of an American hospital in Russia. They expect to ask for contributions from some of the large American corporations which are profiting from Russian war orders.

When the war began the American Red Cross, co-operating with the Russian Red Cross, established at Kief an American hospital capable of accommodating 200 patients. After nearly a year, in which the hospital made a remarkable record, the German advance drove the hospital out of Kieff last October, and it never has been re-established.

SOLDIERS AT FRONT BUY TALISMANS

Horseshoes Taken from Animals Killed in Battle and Pieces of Exploded Shells Find Ready Market.

[Special Dispatch.]

PARIS, Jan.

According to the Berliner Lokalanzeiger, superstition is playing as great a part in the present war as in any previous war. The store windows of Berlin, Vienna and other cities are filled with talismans and amulets, which find a ready sale among soldiers going to the front.

There are real horse shoes taken from dead horses that were killed at the front. Some are small and neat, taken from the small steeds of the Cossacks, while others are heavy and cumbersome, removed from the feet of artillery horses. These horse shoes are made attractive by various colored silk ribbons wound around them. The odor of the battlefield still lingers about them. These horse shoes are eagerly bought and are believed to guard from all harm the soldier who carries one in his pocket.

In addition there are numerous amulets manufactured from pieces of exploded shells, spent bullets and pieces of shrapnel. Some are suspended from chains or ribbons to be worn around the neck, and most of them are formed in the shape of a cross.

An amulet or talisman worn on the person of a wounded soldier who has recovered brings a high price, as it is believed to have powerful qualities in protecting the life of the wearer. Four leaved clovers are also very much in demand. These are sent in large quantities to soldiers at the front by their wives or sweethearts.

The most superstitious of all soldiers are those from the southern part of Austria. They perform all sorts of incantations before leaving for the front, and the soothsayers and fortune tellers do a profitable business. This superstition thrives, notwithstanding the fact that many an unfortunate fellow falls on the battlefield despite all the talismans and amulets that he may have on his person.

SAYS RELIGION IS STIRRING FRANCE

Rev. Samuel N. Watson Gives Reason for Splendid Confidence of the People.

[Special Dispatch.]

PARIS, Jan.

Preaching at the morning service at the American Church of the Holy Trinity, No. 23 avenue de l'Alma, Paris, the rector, the Rev. Samuel N. Watson, described, the fundamental cause of the absolute assurance of the French people that the war will end in a victory for French arms.

The rector said he had been asked to give to a stranger in Paris some idea of what was the underlying motive of that splendid confidence which even the casual visitor can sense about him in the people.

He explained it thus:—"It is the pure and primitive Christian teaching and aspiration of its childhood which is moving France to-day. It is everywhere in France. I have talked with peasants by the roadside, with old women keeping the little shop while their men were at the front and their daughters working in the fields, with soldiers from the trenches, with priests from country villages, with people in the towns and cities, and their answers force the conclusion:—France is sustained in this struggle by a superb faith.

"France has laid hold of the spiritual. It is beating in the air to-day. It is vibrating in men's souls, and it gives them faith to lay hold on to the 'Rock that is higher than they.' You cannot mistake the meaning of a nation in communion with God.

"I saw him the other day, a peasant from his farm, with a basket of lettuce and chicory on his back, come into a great church in a little village, a great church full of shifting shadows, with dim lights in the distance. I watched him kneeling by himself at the feet of an image of Joan of Arc. For a while he buried his face in his hands, and when he went out there was a sort of radiance in his look that is the heart of this people's religion.

"Alone or in a crowd, it matters not; it is God and the human soul in touch. Ages on ages they have been trained to it; and there is still the same childlike simplicity of primitive faith in it. As Joan of Arc talked to the angels in the trees in her garden at Domremy, so they talk to God as one talks to his friend.

"This people has had about its religious life all the outward symbolism which has surrounded the religious life of other Latin people, but a spirit within them, their angel, has told them the meaning of it. There is in it nothing for them to be explained."

TEUTONS HAVE EYE ON CHINA

Germany Making Overtures and Promises in Event of Victory Says the Paris Figaro.

[Special Dispatch.]

PARIS, Jan.

That the Germans, in pressing their suit with neutrals, have not overlooked China, is the assertion of the Paris Figaro. It says that the Germans are making offers to China of much the same sort as they made to Turkey. In the guise of news despatches to the Chinese press, promises are made that in case of a German victory China would profit much and that it would be advantageous for that country to espouse Germany's cause.

"The Wolff Agency," says the Figaro, "is sending through China placards in Chinese which forestall, in the form of despatches, as ultimate German victory and name the conditions which Germany will impose on the Allies. One of the newspapers at Fou-Chow sent the promises to us and they are translated as follows:—

"'For twenty years Russia will give over to Germany the Trans-Siberian railroad and will have to pay the military indemnity of Belgium.'

"'Germany will use the port of Vladivostock and will have liberty of travel and residence both at the ports and in the interior of Russia.'

"'France and her possessions will be dependencies of Germany.'

"'England will have to promise to raise no troops and build no ships for twenty years.'

"'Germany will free at once her vessels now held up by the English and establish a base in England. The English must pay the indemnity for American vessels which have been sunk.'

"'The organization of the Italian Union will be under the supervision of Germany.'

"'Finally the Japanese government will pass into German hands. Germany will at once take over the army and navy and collect from the Japanese a yearly indemnity.'"

To this remarkable list of peace conditions, the Figaro adds a single line of comment, "There you have the honorable peace mentioned by the Kaiser."

WOMEN CONDUCTORS IN BERLIN DON TROUSERS

[Special Despatch.]

BERLIN, Jan.

The women who have taken the places of the men on the Berlin elevated railroad will, beginning this month, discard their usual dress and wear trousers.

This step is taken for safety's sake. The officials of the road have observed that skirts greatly hamper the movements of the women and in opening and closing the gates of the cars the edges of skirts are often caught, which is dangerous. When the train is crowded the movements of the women conductors are also greatly hindered.

To obviate all this all women working on the trains will hereafter wear tight-fitting coats and trousers. It is believed that this innovation will be very popular, especially among Berlin's male population.

Petrograd Enters on a Gay Winter with War Charity First in Interest

[Special Dispatch.]

ROME, Jan.

The Stampa, of Turin, publishes an interesting letter from its correspondent in St. Petersburg in which the writer gives an enlightening picture of life in that city from which so little news has reached the world.

"Since October the thermometer has hovered around the freezing point," says the correspondent, "and now it is getting gradually colder. The city is full of life. The wealthy residents who pass the summer and autumn at their country estates have returned to the city, and dinners and entertainments are given every evening. The streets are crowded and nearly every one wears heavy furs, fur caps and boots lined with fur. After dark nearly every one entertains, eats and drinks, and laughs behind the silver samovar in which tea is prepared. The butler passes softly from chair to chair and distributes sweets and grapes among the guests. After dinner bridge or poker is played. In French the hostess announces:—

"'We have champagne to-day.'

"'How is that possible?' asks a guest.

"'In Russia everything is possible,' she replies, genially.

"Since the first days of the war the law has been very strict regarding the selling of alcohol in any form, be it vodka, wine or beer. The stores display bottles of grape juice, melon wine and cider. But in the chambres séparées cognac can be had or any other alcoholic drink provided you have the money, as the price is high.

"The rest-to-do classes are still living as they did before the war. Champagne and wines of rare vintage are always served. The time is at hand when St. Petersburg has only four hours of real sunshine daily, and yet this is the gayest time of the whole year. The night is long and Russians have their dinner early and feast and entertain until three o'clock in the morning.

"The theatres are all open and do a good business. More soldiers are seen in the streets and in the theatres than ever before.

"The only real sign of the war is the inscription 'For the Soldiers' in show windows and in placards along the street. Beautiful women in expensive furs are on on street corners, and any man who looks as if he had some means is approached by them and asked to contribute for the care of the wounded. The women do this in such a fascinating manner that they cannot be refused.

"They are as like the French, these women! The other day thousands of recruits from the interior marched through the city to the garrison. They stared in wonder at the handsome buildings and the well dressed throngs in the streets. They were dirty and ill-kempt, but now they have been fitted with uniforms and fully equipped, and each looks a soldier every inch of him. They drill daily in the large open places, and are watched with interest. They go through the exercises in silence. It is a remarkable characteristic of the Russian soldier, no matter of what rank, that in the performance of his duty he seldom utters a word. Only when wounded to the death will he utter a sound, or call for help. The spectators who watch them drilling also look on in silence, but there is a feeling in every one's heart that Russia will win, and so the populace is more than ever gay."

A German Division Headquarters Somewhere in Northern France

[Special Dispatch.]

[illegible], Jan.

In the drawing room of a beautiful old French chateau, behind the German trenches in Northern France the sunshine is streaming through the latticed windows. A long table in the middle of the room is littered with maps and all kinds of papers, and at the head sits the gruff old colonel of the Twenty-ninth German infantry division looking down at some maps with his officers. On both sides of the room and into the rooms toward the rear are young telephone operators busily taking messages. The wires extend to the headquarters and trenches along the entire western front, and one wire, in charge of a dapper young lieutenant, is connected with the General Staff headquarters in Berlin. Operators write the incoming messages, which are taken by an orderly to the colonel in command.

The commander looks worried all the time and then answers his officers gruffly. An orderly places a message in front of him which has just come over the wire:—

"From Captain W——," he says.

The colonel's face lights up with a smile, and he turns and taps the orderly playfully on the shoulder.

"Good, my boy, bring me more of this kind of information." He motions to the officers, who come nearer, and imparts to them the information that in an attack on the French lines at H—— "our men captured a French trench and made [illegible] officers."

Some of the officers are about to cheer, but they check themselves.

"Connected with the General Staff Headquarters should be a colonel to the dapper young man at the [illegible] wire. In a moment the connection is made and all [illegible] the colonel makes his morning report. He returns to the table, lights his pipe and appears at peace with the world.

An orderly announces a German aviator, and he is at once ushered in. He has just returned after several hours' observation [illegible] the enemy's lines.

"Well, my boy, what have you to report?"

"I observed as early as seven o'clock this morning large bodies of troops moving in a westerly direction; also artillery and cavalry. I could not say whether they were French or English."

The colonel becomes very busy and begins dictating messages to various points along the line.

"Looks as if we can expect an attack right away," he said, pointing to a spot on the map. "Just trench it quickly and tell the captain I want to speak to him, then get General M. They will not find us unprepared."

And thus from morning until late at night, day after day, this scene is repeated, them the information that in an attack as except occasionally in the evening during the French lines at H—— "our men [illegible]

SERBIA LOST MORE THAN HALF OF ARMIES

[Special Dispatch.]

AMSTERDAM, Jan.

In writing about the losses suffered by the Serbians the correspondent of Heer and Politik gives some interesting figures.

"When the Teutonic offensive began the Serbians had four armies of 75,000 men each," he writes. "The First Serbian Army, under General Misitsch, lost 35,000 men, who were taken prisoners, and 200 cannon. In killed and wounded General Misitsch lost 5,000 men. This was only in the first two weeks, and since then his losses have been 60,000 men killed and wounded. Many of his men are known to have discarded their uniforms at an opportune moment and returned to their homes.

"The Second Serbian Army, commanded by General Bojeurtsch, suffered even heavier losses, as this force was attacked simultaneously on three sides. In November the general lost 55,000 men killed, wounded and prisoners.

"The Third Serbian Army, under General Stepanowitsch, lost most of its guns, but the losses in men were only 15,000.

"The Fourth Serbian Army, which was hastily mobilized after the beginning of the offensive and was commanded by General Krstitsch, did not lose so many men, as it was not in many engagements.

"The whole Serbian army now lists from 120,000 to 150,000 men, scarcely half of the original army, and a large number of these are unfit for any further campaigning owing to lack of guns and ammunition."

MILITARY MAXIMS OF AN ANCIENT CHINESE WRITER

[Special Dispatch.]

PEKING, Jan.

Sueh-Tse, a Chinese military writer of the sixth century before the Christian era, left a collection of maxims on the conduct of war, some of which are surprisingly appropriate even to-day.

"War is one of the principal affairs of the State. Life or death, prosperity or ruin depend on it. Study of warfare is therefore indispensable.

"Five principles determine the character of a war:—Its management, Heaven, earth, the leader and the material means. It is for the management to bring the opinions and sentiments of the people into accord with its own. The masses then will be ready to live or die with its leaders, and all fear will be banished. Heaven, by regulating the weather and the seasons, creates the circumstances under which war is waged. Our earth is responsible for distances and conditions of ground, which may mean victory or defeat to an army. In the leader must be found knowledge, devotion to duty, humaneness, courage and authority. Material means are the soldiers and officers, the communications and supplies of the army.

"War is the opposite of morals. If you possess strength you must pretend that you have none. If you have means you must disguise that fact. If you are close to the enemy you must try to give an impression of being far away, and vice versa, if you remain at a distance you should make him believe that you are near by. It is necessary to deceive the enemy by simulating interest in his affairs, while secretly stirring up disorder in his ranks and thereby weakening him. If he gets an advantage, snatch it away from him. If he is stronger than you, get out of his way. Should he be irritable, pacify him. If he is downhearted, rouse him up. If he is cool and calm, make him nervous. If he is united, sow discord among his hosts. Attack him when he is not prepared and take him by surprise when he least expects it.

"In order to conduct a war sensibly one must realize that the same men cannot be enlisted twice, nor the same requisitions exacted three times. All appurtenances of warfare ought to be furnished by the State and the provisions by the enemy. This is the only proper way for an army to sustain itself. War impoverishes the State, because all its products are sent abroad and nothing remains for the private citizens. Also, the nearness of the armies makes the prices of commodities rise, so as to put them beyond the reach of ordinary people, whose losses, on this account may run as high as seventy per cent. of their average property."

CIGARETTE'S SWAN SONG IN AUSTRIA

THE swan song of the last cigarette has been sung in Austria. In the cigar shops of Vienna, Prague, Budapest and other cities the cases that formerly held cigarettes now are pathetically empty. This is due to the fact that imports of cigarettes and cigarette tobacco long have been stopped and the quantity that remained on hand was bought up to be sent to the soldiers at the front. As a consequence the slaves of the weed are suffering considerably.

In Prague the last cigarette obtainable was smoked by a [illegible] of the well known coffee houses while his companions surrounded him and [illegible] "The swan song from Lohengrin." Dealers in Austria are making arrangements to import cigarettes from Turkey, but the railroads at present are so congested carrying supplies and ammunition that the chances of getting any cigarettes through are very slim for some time to come.

OUR DAILY SHORT STORY

A Diplomatic Encounter.

(Original.)

I will not dwell on how I, a woman, got into the foreign secret service. Father died insolvent. Mother and I were reduced from affluence to positive want. I applied to a friend in the foreign office for a clerkship. It happened that at the time the Americans were aiming at a treaty with Japan that would be prejudicial to our interests. An emissary of the state department at Washington was on his way via the Mediterranean with the treaty. The vessel he traveled in was to stop at Marseilles.

I confess I was shocked at the proposition that was made me—I, who had never done a mean thing in my life—to wheedle a knowledge of the drift of the treaty out of the American. But the reward was great, enough to keep mother and me in comparative comfort.

In social life I had been considered what the Americans call "a flirt," but I was never dishonorable. I would never attack a man unless he was inclined that way himself. Now I was expected to win one simply for pay.

The temptation was too great for me. I yielded. I boarded the ship at Marseilles. Roger Sutherland, whom I was to snare, was a modest looking, quiet man. I soon made his acquaintance, and he seemed to take to me at once. He said that if it were not for my accent he would not believe me to be English; that I had all the sprightliness of an American girl. The game I was playing was natural to me. I didn't have to try to win him. If I had possibly I might have failed.

But, as to stealing the information, I didn't know where to begin. We had passed through the canal before I ventured to make a move in that direction. I began by asking his occupation. He prevaricated. I teased him. He told me that he had a government position, and that was all that I could get out of him for a long while. Then suddenly he told me everything. I wondered why he who had so long been reticent should have changed so quickly. He answered my every question, and truthfully. The treaty was in his trunk in his stateroom. Did he not fear it would be stolen? No. There was a lock on the trunk that had been made for it. The key was of a peculiar kind. The next time we were on deck together, feigning to be moved by a natural feminine curiosity, I teased him to let me see the key. He took it out of his pocket and handed it to me. Feigning an intention to frighten him I ran to the side of the ship and held it in my fist over the water. He didn't even follow me. So I took it back and gave it to him. I had provided myself with a bit of wax and had squeezed an impression of the key.

Pretending that I had lost the key of my own trunk, I called for one of the ship's mechanics to make me another from the wax impression. My victim invariably spent an hour or more after dinner in the smoking room. I took a great risk. I entered his stateroom and with the key made from the impression opened the trunk, found the treaty, took it to my stateroom, copied it—it was in cipher—and got it back to the trunk in plenty of time to avoid getting caught.

With success came the pricking of conscience. I told my victim of my circumstances, the loss of my father, my effort to obtain employment and ended by falsely telling him that I was going out to India to be a governess. From that moment his manner changed toward me. I had considered before that my success was due to having won his heart. Now I was sure of it. Then he asked me to be his wife.

Now, for the first time, I realized that if I had won him I had been won in winning him. Whatever was good in my nature revolted at my trickery. I longed to confess it and throw myself upon his mercy. But I dared not. From loving me he would despise me. I told him that I could never be his wife; that there was a barrier between us; that I was unworthy of him. He soothingly reassured me, said my conscience was abnormally sensitive; that he was sure one so lovely could not do anything very wrong.

The night before we reached Bombay we were on deck together under the starry heavens.

"Sweetheart," he said, "we part tomorrow. It rests with you whether our parting shall be forever or I shall call on you on my return. You are not cut out for a diplomat, but you will make a good wife for one."

"A diplomat! I a diplomat!"

He took my hand. "I suspected you the moment you began to play your game, and I played mine to trap you. I gave you my key on purpose and knew how you used it by traces of wax adhering to it. Certain pages of the manuscript you stole were loosely tacked together, and I found them detached. I was disappointed to learn all this, but when afterward you told me how you had been tempted I pitied you. You are a lady and out of your element. I would be sorry for you losing your pay if I wished you to earn pay in that way."

"And my copy of the cipher dispatch!" I faltered. "I will give it to you at once."

"Don't hurry. It is no cipher, but a jumble intended to deceive you."

"And do you mean that you can love one who has made this abject attempt?"

"If we only loved those who were perfect there would be no marriage. You have simply been parted for a brief time by circumstances from your natural self."

The Earliest Guide Book.

The earliest guide book written in the English language is "Instructions for Forraine Travell," a duodecimo published in 1642 by James Howell.

"As was natural in those days," says the London Chronicle, "Howell assumes that any one traveling on the continent for pleasure was able to 'entertaine a Cooke, a Laquay and some young youth for his Page to parley and chide withall, whereof he shall have occasion enough, and to get some faire lodgings to keep house of himself; but sometimes he may frequent Ordinaries, for it will much breake and embolden him.'"

The instructions to provide for a tour through France, Italy, Spain, Germany, Belgium and Holland, "all which may be done completely in three years and four months, which four months will allow for itinerary removals and journeys, and the years for residence in places." In those days "forraine travell" meant something more than a month's skip through Europe.

The Year Without a Summer.

The year 1816 was known throughout the United States as the year without a summer. January of that year was so mild that most people would have let their furnaces go out had they had any, and February was only occasionally colder. March and April coaxed the buds and flowers out, and May was a winter month, with ice and snow. By the end of May everything perishable had been killed by the cold, and the young leaves had been stripped from the trees. June was as cold as May. Both snow and ice were common throughout the month all over the corn belt, and after having planted corn two or three times the farmers threw up their hands. Snow fell ten inches deep in Vermont. The following winter was the hardest the people of the United States have ever known.

The Word "Slave."

An interesting instance in history of the twisted application of the names of a people is afforded by the case of the word "slave." Now, the Slavi, tribes dwelling on the banks of the Dnieper, derived their appellation from "Slav," meaning noble or illustrious. In the days of the later Roman empire vast numbers of these Slavs were taken over by the Romans in the condition of captive servants, and in this way the name of the tribes came in time to carry with it the idea of a low state of servitude, the exact antithesis of its original meaning and one that has survived to this time.

CRAZIEST MAN IN THE WORLD.

British Traveler Reports the Most Remarkable Fanatic in the East.

It appears there are places where lunatics are not shut up and kept away from the rest of the world, but are revered as saints and far superior to the ordinary run of mortals.

This is the queer state of affairs that exists in some of the interior cities of Persia. A British traveler named Fetter, just returned from the Orient, brings back some interesting tales of mentally-deranged men who are looked upon in the light of wonderful beings.

One particularly crazy man, according to Mr. Fetter the craziest man he ever saw or heard of, does nothing all day long but race up and down the streets of the city crying out at the top of his voice:

"All! All! All!"

This is not a temporary form of madness, either, for he has kept it up for twenty years or so. He started it when he was still a young man, and his idea, of course, is to venerate the name of the God he knows by ceaselessly shrieking his name.

Everyone venerates him. The richest men in the city have presented him with rare gifts. One of them gave him a horse and saddle, and with that he gallops through the streets when he is not walking. He is privileged to break up any kind of a meeting or assembly, and all stop and listen to his cries as long as he is of the notion to stay in their midst.

At his death a huge monument has already been promised, on which will be carved the word "All"; so it will tell to generations to come the story of the man who spent the best years of his life and all of his waking hours extolling the name of the deity he worshipped.

Photographing the Voice!

If Dr. Conta, of Paris, has his way, every prospective bride will have to furnish a photograph of her voice before marriage. This French psychologist has tested the voices of a large number of people who have appeared in the French courts as defendants in diverse actions, and he declares that most of them have voices which "set one's teeth on edge." He has worked out a combined recording phonograph and camera, called a photomegraph, which shows exactly what a voice looks like.

The invention is said to prove of great value in the musical world. A singer cannot hear himself sing, but has to take the advice of a teacher—and teachers are human and might err. Suppose Caruso were told that one of his notes was harsh. He might believe it, but, on the other hand, he might only be annoyed. If, however, after he had sung the note the photograph showed him that while all his other notes were smooth and round, that one was jagged, what a boon to him it would be! Dr. Conta believes that his invention can be made to record a difference in vibration between the utterance of a falsehood and of the truth.

Two-and-Ninepence for a Letter.

It certainly is no great grievance in war-time for the British public to have to pay a penny an ounce for sending letters. There must be people living to-day who remember perfectly well what a revolution it seemed when, in 1840, penny postage came into force in the United Kingdom. Until then the rates had been ruinously high.

For example, 4d. was the usual charge on a letter from London to Barnet—which is eleven miles from London—the recipient paying the 4d. For longer distances the rate varied—1s. for 100 miles, and 1d. extra for any additional part of 100 miles, besides special extra fees in the case of letters to and from Scotland and Ireland.

If you used more than one sheet of paper you had to pay extra for it. Two sheets meant double postage, and three sheets treble.

Imagine the indignation of a papa when a three-sheet letter arrived for his daughter from Liverpool. "Two and ninepence to pay, please!"

Queen Elizabeth's Coal Monopoly.

Queen Elizabeth was the first English monarch to realize the value of the coal mines as a state-owned monopoly. She obtained a lease of all the Durham fields for £20 a year and then proceeded to manipulate a corner in coals with much success.

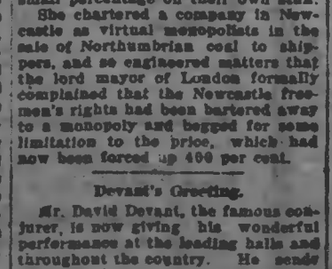
She annexed the private pits of the Percys when they were profitably developing themselves, and only consented after a time to allow them a small percentage on their own stuff.

She chartered a company in Newcastle as virtual monopolists in the sale of Northumbrian coal to shippers, and so engineered matters that the lord mayor of London formally complained that the Newcastle freemen's rights had been bartered away to a monopoly and begged for some limitation to the price, which had now been forced up 400 per cent.

Devant's Greeting.

Mr. David Devant, the famous conjurer, is now giving his wonderful performance at the leading halls and throughout the country. He sends this special message for Lord Derby's recruits:

"Dear Boys,—Lord Derby will surprise the enemy more than any conjurer when he shows them what he has up his sleeve. You are going forward like real Britons in the cause of Right, and your spirit will act like magic. Good luck and God speed you each and every one!"



The Supreme Punishment.

The antipathy which Dei Johnson, England's great lexicographer, bore to Scotland was not singular or unprecedented. Lord Stanley came plainly dressed to request a private audience of King James I. A gayly-dressed Scotchman refused him admittance into the King's closet. The King, hearing an altercation between the two, came out and inquired the cause. "My liege," said Lord Stanley, "this gay countryman of yours has refused me admittance to your presence." "Cousin," said the King, "how shall I punish him? Shall I send him to the tower?" "Oh, no, my liege," replied Lord Stanley, "inflict a severer punishment; send him back to Scotland."

Henhouse Floors.

Where the poultry house have dirt floors it would be well to dig up the old dirt and cart it away to the manure pile and haul fresh earth and cover the floor to a depth of six inches. There is no deodorizer like fresh earth, and it would sweeten the house and make it more sanitary than it was.

The Badge of the King's Messenger.

Captain Stanley Wilson, M.P., at the time of his capture on board ship by the enemy was carrying despatches as a King's messenger. In the bad old days when it was all in the game to steal despatches the messengers ran the risk of murder, but now, apart from war conditions, they make their journeys like ordinary travelers, except that their baggage is exempt from search at frontiers. At one time King's messengers wore uniforms, but now their only badge of office is a silver greyhound carried round the neck, but not always displayed. They receive a salary of £600 a year, with an allowance of 5/ a day when on duty.

Old friends and new friends unite in saying

Red Rose Tea "is good tea"

DRIED FRUITS FOR BREAKFAST

Although many housewives know in a general way that dried fruits are good, they do not serve them often enough as substitutes for fresh fruits in the winter season, and when they do the general tendency is to let them continually appear in the same old way, stewed. It is a great pity to have these valuable foods become unpopular when there are many tempting and easy ways to serve them. The dried fruits which are most used in cookery—prunes, raisins, peaches, pears, apricots, apples, figs—are much better if covered with warm water and soaked twenty-four hours in a covered dish; they will then have swollen to their original shape, and, although uncooked, will be tender. One pound of prunes or raisins will furnish the body as much nutriment as the same weight of lean meat or white bread.

How to tempt the variable breakfast appetites is a problem every housewife must face. Try combining prunes or raisins, cooked, drained, and mashed and slightly sweetened, with an omelet, spreading a cup of them on before folding over. Dried apples which have been soaked and well drained may be fried like fresh apples and served with the bacon. A pound of dates cooked with a pint of cornmeal, a teaspoon of salt, a tablespoon of flour and a pint of cold milk will vary the morning mush. A cup of stoned, chopped dates is an agreeable addition to apple sauce, added when the apples are almost cooked. Baked apples are delicious if the centres are filled with stewed prunes. If cooked prunes or dates are chopped fine they may be added to the breakfast muffins, thus giving variety to an everyday dish. Many a child who will not eat a cereal in the morning can be tempted to do so if chopped dates or figs are allowed to simmer a few minutes and then mixed with the cereal, or placed around it.

Great Minds Opposed To PROHIBITION

This is what the foremost men of Great Britain, Canada and the United States, in the Church, on the Bench, in literature and public life, have to say about Prohibition:

Read Their Very Words:

"When a law is flagrantly and habitually violated it brings legislation into contempt. It creates a spirit of deception and hypocrisy, and compels men to do insidiously and by stealth what they would otherwise do openly and above board. You cannot legislate men by civil action into the performance of good and righteous deeds."—

Cardinal Gibbons.

"Prohibition drives underground the mischief which it seeks to cure, making it more difficult to deal with the evil and impossible to regulate the trade, as, for instance, in the quality of liquor sold."—Bishop Hall, Vermont.

"When you enact a law intended to do more than it ought to do, it generally ends in doing less than it should do. For that reason I am opposed to prohibition by statute. I would rather see America free first and then have its citizens use its freedom for moral ends."—Rev. S. Parkes Cadman, Central Congregational Church, Brooklyn, N.Y.

"He (Christ) condemned drunkenness, but never in a single instance lifted up His voice in condemnation of drinking. On the contrary, He commenced His public ministry by making wine in considerable quantity, and of fine quality, and this apparently only to add to the joyous festivities of a wedding."—Rev. Lyman Abbott.

"It is not in the power of Parliament, by an Act of Parliament, to change the habits of the people and in all probability a law such as you propose (Temperance Bill), if it were to be passed, would fail absolutely and become a dead letter."—

The Rt. Hon. John Bright, M.P.

"I have been a great traveler and I have seen prohibition abound in the United States, and it only leads to drinking in more forms than under the old system."—Joseph Chamberlain, M.P.

"Prohibition has been disastrous to the cause of temperance."—

Bishop Clark, Rhode Island.

"While I recognize the evils of the liquor traffic, I am nevertheless driven to the conviction that prohibition will be a failure in the attempt to cope with such evils. In many states it is already a failure, the net results of such legislation being to multiply illicit bars, and at the same time to deprive the commonwealth of the revenue accruing from license."—

Right Rev. P. J. Donohue, Roman Catholic Bishop, Wheeling, W.Va.

"We hear a good deal about compelling men to be good—forcible, collective action to improve the individual—and many of these forces are wise and good. But freedom is the greatest privilege of man—the right to work out his own destiny. It is also best for the general public."—

Ex-Pres. Chas. W. Eliot, of Harvard.

"It is impracticable, and its violation is productive of hidden and shameful evils."—Bishop Gailor, Tennessee.

"The best safeguard against drunkenness is that drinking should be enjoyed openly."—Rabbi Hirsch, Chicago.

"Prohibition can remove open temptation from the young and from persons disposed to alcoholic excess. It is practically helpless against 'dives,' 'pocket-peddlers' and all the well-known varieties of secret temptation which have such a fascination for the young. 'Stolen waters are sweet.' Still less can it subdue that desire for some stimulant which is all but universal in human nature, and which, when ordinary means of gratification are denied, finds relief in opium, morphine, chloral and drugs. We are told that laws educate in the right direction. Not unless they are based on reason and on equity. Now the reason of mankind has spoken emphatically against prohibition. It is essentially class legislation, and that always provokes hatred."—

Ex-Chancellor Grant, Queen's Univ.

"Nothing can be better proved than that to carry into effect laws of this kind in a free country you must have the conscience of the people thoroughly and actively with you. Will they do their best to throw into gaol and ruin a neighbor, otherwise harmless, perhaps a friend or acquaintance, for selling or drinking a glass of whiskey or ale? Besides, there are other intoxicants, such as opium and chloral, the use of which would be likely to increase when liquor was withdrawn."—

Goldwin Smith, Former President of the Liberal Temperance Union.

THE PERSONAL LIBERTY LEAGUE OF ONTARIO.

MOTHER! DON'T TAKE CHANCES IF CHILD'S TONGUE IS COATED

If Cross, Feverish, Sick, Bilious, Clean Little Liver and Bowels

A laxative today saves a sick child tomorrow. Children simply will not take the time from play to empty their bowels, which become clogged up with waste, liver gets sluggish, stomach sour.

Look at the tongue. Mother! If coated or your child is listless, cross, feverish, breath bad, restless, doesn't eat heartily, full of cold or has sore throat or any other children's ailment, give a teaspoonful of "California Syrup of Figs," then don't worry because it is perfectly harmless, and in a few hours all this constipation poison, sour bile and fermenting waste will gently move out of the bowels, and you have a well, playful child again. A thorough "inside cleansing" is oftimes all that is necessary. It should be the first treatment given in any sickness.

Beware of counterfeit fig syrups. Ask your druggist for a 50-cent bottle of "California Syrup of Figs" which has full directions for babies, children of all ages and for grown-ups plainly printed on the bottle. Look carefully and see that it is made by the "California Fig Syrup Company."

FARMERS AND SOLDIER TOO.

General Logie's Scheme—Soldiers to Get Leave to Sow Crops and Reap Them Later—Winter Clothing Supplied.

TORONTO, Jan. 31.—Whatever objections the farmers may have had in the past to giving up their eligible men for military service, they are likely to be dispersed by General Logie very shortly. By means of the general's scheme, if it is adopted at Ottawa, farmers may carry on both soldiering and farming. If not simultaneously, at any rate alternately. He is about to suggest to Ottawa that the sons of farmers and, in fact, all young men engaged on farm work who have enlisted, be allowed to suspend their military duties and put in the spring crops. Then men thus temporarily [illegible] come back and continue their military course, and then, if still in the country, they could again be released to reap the crops they would have sown when the fall comes. By such a scheme the general hopes to give a business-like impetus to recruiting in the rural districts.

INSULTED GERMAN ARMY.

AMSTERDAM, Jan. 31.— The Cologne Vols Zeitung says Emil Pruem, who is a subject of Luxemberg and honorary mayor of the town of Clervaux, has been sentenced by court martial to three years imprisonment for insulting the German army in the distribution of a pamphlet written by him entitled "Martyred Belguim."

A new building known as the vivarium will soon be completed at the University of Illinois, says 'Science'. It has been constructed especially for the work of Dr. Charles Zeleny and Dr. V. E. Shelford, of the Department of Zoology. The building with furnishings, will cost about $70,000. Seawater aquariums, a refrigerator system and rooms in which light rays may be used to the exclusion of all others, are some of the things which make up the equipment of the vivarium.

THIS SCHOOL GIRL HAD BAD FAINTING SPELLS

Was Weak and Run Down. But Dr. Chase's Nerve Food Made Complete Cure

The most critical time in a girl's life comes during the school age, when she is impelled by rivalry to put forth her best efforts in studying for examinations. At the time she should have healthful outdoor exercise and abundance of fresh air, to keep the blood pure and rich, she is confined to her studies. Is it any wonder that she becomes run down in health and suffers from headaches, indigestion, loss of appetite and spells of weakness or fainting?

The case described in this letter is a good illustration and you can read here the splendid results of using Dr. Chase's Nerve Food to help through this critical period.

"While attending school my daughter became weak and very much run down. She was frequently troubled with bad fainting spells, and nothing we tried seemed to do her any good. We were advised to try Dr. Chase's Nerve Food, and did so with most satisfactory results. I am pleased to tell you that after using five boxes of the Nerve Food she was completely cured, and has no return of the fainting spells."

This statement is certified to by Mr. Hamilton Houston, Justice of the Peace.

The reason Dr. Chase's Nerve Food is so effective in cases of this kind is because of its extraordinary blood-forming influence. By creating an abundance of rich, red blood it strengthens the action of the heart, revitalizes the exhausted nerves and builds up the system in every way.

The appetite is restored, digestion improves, you rest and sleep well, and the new vigour and energy is felt in every organ of the human body. Dr. Chase's Nerve Food is doing wonders for men, women and children whose systems have become weak and run down. 50 cents a box, 6 for $2.50, all dealers or Edmanson, Bates & Co., Limited, Toronto.

EXAMINER PATTERN SERVICE

CHILD'S DRESS.

By Anabel Worthington.

Of the many plain dresses which are liked for little girls the one shown in the illustration is one of the most attractive. It has a sacque cut. There is a straight vest in the centre of the front and the side fronts come far down on the arm, giving the drop shoulder effect. The back is plain, and also comes well down on the arm.

Nothing could be more simple than this frock and the little girl might well have more than one in her outfit, if made of different materials. For the very small girl wash fabrics are nice, and the larger one may have serge, poplin and other woollens with plaid or striped silk for a trimming.

The dress pattern, No. 7,371, is cut in sizes 4, 6, 8, 10 and 12 years. Medium size requires 1⅞ yards of 44 inch material, with 1⅝ yards of 27 inch contrasting goods to trim.

This pattern can be obtained by sending cents to the office of this paper.

When ordering remember to give your name and address as well as the number and size of pattern required, and age of a child.

Price 15 cents, or 3 for 25c.

Address—The Examiner Pattern Service, The Examiner, Peterborough.

MANY CASES OF RHEUMATISM NOW

Says We Must Keep Feet Dry, Avoid Exposure and Eat Less Meat

Stay off the damp ground, avoid exposure, keep feet dry, eat less meat, drink lots of water, and above all take a spoonful of salts occasionally to keep down uric acid.

Rheumatism is caused by poisonous toxis, called uric acid, which is generated in the bowls and absorbed into the blood. It is the function of the kidneys to filter this acid from the blood and cast it out in the urine. The pores of the skin are also a means of freeing the blood of this impurity. In damp and chilly, cold weather the skin pores are closed, thus forcing the kidneys to do double work, they become weak and sluggish and fail to eliminate this uric acid which keeps accumulating and circulating through the system, eventually settling in the joints and muscles, causing stiffness, soreness and pain called rheumatism.

At the first twinge of rheumatism get from any pharmacy about four ounces of Jad Salts; put a tablespoonful in a glass of water and drink before breakfast each morning for a week. This is said to eliminate uric acid by stimulating the kidneys to normal action, thus ridding the blood of these impurities.

Jad Salts is inexpensive, harmless and is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia and is used with excellent results by thousands of folks who are subject to rheumatism. Here you have a pleasant, effervescent lithia-water drink which overcomes uric acid and is beneficial to your kidneys as well.

A FAMOUS MISER.

Cooke Died Wealthy After a Life of Petty Saving and Trickery.

Thomas Cooke, known as the "Isling ton miser," left at his death more than $300,000. His whole life was one of penury, petty saving and petty trickery. He made it a habit in order to get meals for nothing to fall in a pretended fit in front of a house at dinner time and on recovering he would naturally be invited to share the meal, which he always did after the proper amount of protestation. Often he would pretend to these kind people that they had saved his life, would make a great fuss over them and tell them he intended to remember them or their children in his will.

One man, a poor relation, occasionally sent him small presents of butter. This angered Cooke, who said to him "Why send me such driblets, you who are to get thousands and thousands at my death? Send me a firkin." The firkin and several more were sent, but neither this legacy nor any of the others came to reality.

Like many men shrewd in petty ways, he was easily deceived in matters out of his own line. Thus once when his horse was sick he was too mean to pay a horse doctor and asked advice of a quack, who told him he must take thirty onions, drill a hole through each, put them on a string, put the necklace around the horse's neck and let it stay there. The expense of thirty onions was too much; he bought fifteen, and when, after many days, they had served their purpose, he took them to the servant and ordered her to make an onion porridge for the day's dinner.—Exchange.

Homemade Toothpowder.

An effective tooth powder which can be always recommended is made as follows: One ounce of precipitated chalk, half an ounce of carbonate of soda, half an ounce of powdered orris root. Mix well together and pass three times through a sieve. Place in a bottle or in tins until required for use. The carbonate of soda removes the grease from the teeth and prevents decay, and the powdered orris root keeps the gums healthy.

Bread in Hand.

"Those fish will cost you just $10 apiece," said the fish warden as he caught a disciple of Izaak Walton pursuing his sport out of season.

"Great!" exclaimed the fisherman, handing over the money. "Give me a receipt, please. Now the boys will have to believe me when I tell them what I caught."

Widow With Live Husband.

When an otherwise industrious, God fearing and considerate head of a family makes up his mind to go in for politics his wife would just as well make up her mind that she is going to have a touch of the experience of being a widow with a live husband.

Willing to Be Studied.

"What is that class of girls doing?"

"Studying fossils."

"Well, I used to object to being called one, but I guess I'll own up to it now."

And Tie a Ribbon on the Shovel.

Mrs. Youngbride (to hired girl)—Next, Mary, you'd better scrub out the bottom of the coal bin. The coal is coming tomorrow.—Boston Transcript.

An Old Phrase.

The expression "robbing Peter to pay Paul" is said to have sprung from a proceeding in 1559 during the reign of Edward VI., when the lands of St. Peter's church at Westminster were appropriated to raise money for the repair of St. Paul's in London.

Weighty Missiles.

SOLDIER DID NOT WANT TO LOSE LEG

In the Umschau, Captain Wichgraf, who was in charge of the field hospital train, gives an account of scenes and incidents among the wounded:—

"When our train arrives from the front with the wounded," he writes, "the surgeons quickly look over the patients and separate those seriously wounded for immediate attention. Recently they found a soldier so badly wounded that an immediate amputation of his leg was decided upon. The professor and his assistants get ready for the operation and approached the patient.

"'I am very sorry to tell you, my friend,' said the professor, 'that in order to save your life we must amputate your leg.'

"The patient looked at the professor sternly and firmly answered in a strong voice:—

"'No, I will not permit you to amputate my leg.'

"The professor and his assistants were taken by surprise.

"'Now listen, my friend,' said the professor, 'I suppose some one who doesn't know told you that your leg need not be amputated, and that we surgeons are only too quick to operate. Now I want to tell you that we are all skilled surgeons of long experience, and that you will have no bad effects because of the amputation, and that unless you submit to it it will be all over with you shortly.'

"Again the patient said firmly that he would not permit the operation. There was more argument by the professor and his assistants, all to no avail; the patient was determined to keep his leg. So the professor turned away sadly and ordered his assistants to bandage the man's wounds and give to him all possible attention.

"The next morning while the surgeons were at breakfast a nurse came saying that the patient had changed his mind and would permit the amputation of the leg. It was just in time, and the man's life was saved.

"In our hospital train there are many sad incidents, but the wounded are unusually brave and never utter a complaint. The surgeons are doing wonderful work, and it is surprising that of every hundred wounded that I have carried on my train ninety recover and the majority return to the front. In fact, I have carried back soldiers who have been wounded several times and each time went back to their regiment."

A novel dial has been patented which may be attached to any clock, transferring it, when the minute hand has been removed, into a one hand timepiece, which, the inventor claims, is more easily read.

BRITISH LINER APPAM CAPTURED BY GERMAN COMMERCE RAIDER

Missing Vessel Thought To Have Been Lost in Storm Off The African Coast Sails Into Hampton Roads Flying The German Flag and in the Hands of the German Prize Crew---An Amazing Story of Her Capture By The Huns.

A SUMMARY OF TO-DAY'S WAR CABLES

NORFOLK, Va., Feb. 1.—The British liner Appam, engaged in service between English and West African ports, which was brought into Norfolk by a German prize crew, sailed from Dakar, French Senegal, on Jan. 15 for Plymouth, England, carrying 166 passengers and a crew of 134. She was last heard from Jan. 15. The following day the British steamer Tregantle picked up one of the Appam's lifeboats, badly battered, off the Moroccan coast. The Appam's owners, the Elder and Dempster Line, gave her up as lost, and it was assumed she sunk in the terrific gale that lashed the African coast.

The Appam was flying the German flag when she came into Hampton Roads to-day. The amazing character of the capture, however made, was shown by the fact that there were only 22 Germans reported on board. Four hundred passengers and a British crew are reported on board.

Early on the morning of Jan. 15, an unknown vessel appeared close at hand and fired several shots across the bow of the British liner the passengers said. Two guns on the Appam were brought into play, but ineffectually. Life boats were lowered simultaneously from both vessels, some of the Appam crew seeking to escape, and the stranger sending armed men to board the liner. One of the Appam's life boats was crushed between the two vessels. The boarders scrambled upon the Appam's deck and a bloody fight ensued. Several were injured and two died latter.

Others are expected to die.

Lieut. Burg then came aboard and took command with a prize crew. The merchant raider put away and disappeared after placing 300 British prisoners aboard.

When the Germans captured the Appam, they liberated a large number of German prisoners, captured in West Africa, and being transported to London. London despatches to-day reported the presence of these prisoners aboard the vessel. It is possible that the released Germans aided the captors in maintaining peace aboard the ship en route to America. At 11 a.m. the question of the disposition of the British passengers and crew was unsettled. Instructions from Washington were asked to-day by the commandant of the Norfolk Navy Yard, the Customs Collector and immigration officials.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 1.—That the captured British steamer Appam was armed as a commerce raider by the Germans and captured at least two vessels on her voyage to America, was the information contained in the report of Collector of Customs Hamilton at Norfolk to the Treasury Department. What disposal was made of the captured ships was not stated.

If this information is correct it was stated here the Appam has taken on the status of a man of war, and must be interned. If interned the German crew will also be held prisoners for the term of war. They will probably be left aboard the Appam.

NORFOLK, Va., Feb. 1.—Lieut. Oscar Burg's account of the capture of the Appam and his voyage in command of her from the Canary Islands, to this port, told while he smiled and smoked a cigar, follows:

"We knew we accomplished a great feat in bringing this vessel safely through the lines of the enemy. The ship is not hurt and she is a good prize. We waited for her several days and had given up hope of getting her. We thought she had heard of us and gone to another port. We treated the passengers as best we could. We gave them every comfort, and had the doctors care for the injured men taken from another ship. We intended going to New York, but were advised that the English ships were cruising near that point, and we changed our course."

"Did a submarine accompany the ship that captured the Appam?" he was asked.

"That is war business," he replied. "We don't tell how we do things."

LONDON, Feb. 1.—Three trawlers were sunk to-day according to despatches received here. Two unidentified vessels were sunk in the North Sea.

NEW YORK, Feb. 1.—On the basis of a peculiarly worded despatch from its London correspondent, the New York Tribune to-day stated that in all probability the Zeppelin fleet that raided England Monday night bombarded London, killing five persons in the streets of the Metropolis, and eleven deaths altogether in the whole of England.

BERLIN, via Wireless, Feb. 1.—Bloody struggle along the British front in Flanders were reported in this afternoon's official War Office statement. A small English detachment succeeded in penetrating the German trenches west of Mossines, but were subsequently repulsed, the War Office stated. "Near Freicourt, east of Albert, our fire hindered the enemy from occupying a crater which he had blasted. North of this point German patrols advanced into British positions returning with several prisoners, and without loss to themselves. Near the Somme the French lost some more of the Lorraine in hand grenade combats."

LONDON, Feb. 1.—Fifty-four persons were killed and sixty-seven injured in Monday night's Zeppelin raid over Derbyshire, Staffordshire, Lincolnshire and Leicestershire, it was officially announced this afternoon.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 1.—Whether the British Government will demand that the United States release the British steamer Appam will depend upon whether the Germans after capturing her converted the vessel into a German auxiliary cruiser and used her as a raider on British commerce. If the Appam was not converted into an auxiliary and did not operate against British commerce, it was authoritatively stated Great Britain will insist that the United States turn the vessel over to her British owners and intern the German prize crew.

LONDON, Feb. 1.—British troops operating in West Africa have captured Mafub, and are advancing on Nkan, it was officially announced to-day. French troops captured Ebolowa.

NORFOLK, Va., Feb. 1.—Appam passengers state that the name of the German raiding ship which captured the liner, was the German auxiliary cruiser Mowe.

DISPOSAL PLANT FOR PETERBORO'

Special to The Examiner:

TORONTO, Feb. 1 — The Peterborough deputation which waited on Dr. McCullough, Secretary of the Department of Health in Ontario in Toronto to this morning regarding a sewage plant in Peterborough, was advised to straighten out all details regarding the site for the sewage plant. The deputation stated there was some difficulty regarding the purchase price of the proposed site, and Dr. McCullough advised them to arbitrate if arrangements were not satisfactory to the owner of the property. Nothing further will be done in the matter until this matter is straightened out.

Positions For Two Soldiers

The Secretary of the Soldiers' Aid Branch in Peterborough has openings for two returned soldiers, seeking employment. Any wishing engagement will please call at once at the Patriotic Office, City Building. Please be prompt.

THANKS GOD THAT HE SAW PATH OF DUTY

Injured Captain of 26th Canadian Battalion Not Discouraged But Hopes To Raise a New Battalion for the Front

HAD NARROW ESCAPE

Mrs. May of the Grand Central Apartments, has received the following most interesting letter from her nephew, Capt. F. F. May of the 26th Canadian Battalion:

"My back is very weak yet, being what the doctors call "a railroad back." This was caused by the German 45 lb. H. E. shell bursting behind me (one yard distant—the sand bags saved me from the direct force of the explosion) and burying me in a sitting position, closed up like a jackknife. If my back had not been so very long and supple, it would have been broken. You remember, don't you, how I used to put my knees on the floor over my shoulders whilst lying on our hearthrug? The nose of the shell passed one foot behind me, cutting a supporting post of the dug-out roof in two, letting the roof down on top of me, and burying itself in the opposite wall. While I was in the hospital, six miles behind the firing line, one of my men dug out the shell nose and sent it to me. I hope by the end of January, 1916, to show it to you.

I was in France four weeks after my accident, as I thought I would soon be able to re-join my regiment; was sent from hospital to hospital till the doctors very meanly took advantage of my weakness to order me home to England. I am to go before a Medical Board on or about January 15, 1916, when the House Doctor here says I will get and should get, three months' sick leave, at least. I have lost my position with the 26th as I, being wounded, was automatically transferred to the Reserve. I have not finished my "bit" yet, and hope to get back to the front as soon as I am completely well. Whilst in France I was X-rayed twice at the Duchess of Westminster Hospital, and no hurt of any kind, except bruises, which have now disappeared, were found. So all there is for me to do is to help my poor old back to get strong again and put on some beef. My legs were like matches when I got back to London. I went to the firing line on my feet, and returned on my back, on a stretcher.

But I thank God I went. I gave up everything, even my life, and will do so again a thousand times, if my King and Country ask me. I hope to help raise another new Regiment for the front. If I helped to organise the 26th, I can do the same sort of work again for another Battalion, and can begin to take up my military work again, even though I am not yet strong enough for the firing line.

THE ENTIRE TURNBULL STAFF MUCH ENTHUSED OVER "DOLLLAR DAY"

Aside from the $50.00 Limoges china dinner set which is to be given away by the Turnbull Store on "Dollar Day" the heads of their many departments are arranging for one of the busiest days in the history of the store. They state that never has such a lengthy list been offered for a single days selling. This looks as if "Dollar Day" buyers will centre around the "Big Store".

LULL ON THE WEST FRONT

After Several Days of Violent Activity At Different Sections Infantry Fighting Comes to a Standstill

ARTILLERY ACTIVE

Special to The Examiner:

Paris, Feb. 1—After several days of violent activity, a lull in infantry fighting on the western front was reported by the War Office this afternoon. The French artillery, the official statement said, has bombarded the enemy camps effectively at St. Leocade and in Lorraine. Enemy convoys in the Meuse region were shelled.

DEATH OF AN OLD PIONEER

Mr. Edward Green Passed Away Early This Morning—Celebrated His 91st Birthday on Sunday Last

One of the first citizens of Peterborough passed away early this morning in the person of Edward Green. Death occurred at the deceased's late residence, 339 Water St. For the past few weeks, deceased had complained of feeling unwell. His ninety-first birthday, which was accounted for on Sunday, was spent in bed.

The passing of the late Edward Green severs a link with the past. He was born in Ireland in the county of Meath, January 30th, 1825. He emigrated to this country with his parents when but a child, and at the age of twenty-two years, started to work for himself, his first employment being with his brother, Benjamin, who kept a grocery store on George Street, almost opposite Peter Connal's. For many years he conducted a window-blind business after which he became market clerk, a position which he held for upwards of twelve years. During many years of strenuous life Mr. Green found time to engage in many diversions, the chief one being a sideline in music. For many years he was a member of the first town band, which met for practice in a little roughcast building near the corner of Water and Hunter Streets.

A Veteran of '66.

In the exciting days of '66, Mr. Green was one of the first to volunteer for service against the invasion of the Fenians, and he recalls with amusement the service provided by the railway companies for transferring the troops from Toronto to Kingston. The trains were made up of old box cars, the floors of which were covered with straw.

Mr. Green was twice married. His first wife, Miss Cullen, died a few years after their marriage, leaving a daughter, now Mrs. ames Logan of this city. His second wife was Miss Mitchell, who was spared to her husband until about three years ago, when she passed away, leaving one son, William F. Green.

Mr. Erasmus Green and Mr. A. J. Johnston, both of this city, are nephews.

The funeral will take place at 2.30 o'clock on Wednesday to Little Lake Cemetery.

School Trustee Should Not Make Profit Out of Position

In His Report on Recent Investigation of The G.N. Gordon Charges, Judge Huycke Recommends That Trustees Be Made Choose Between Their Responsibilities and Profits.

MR. GORDON NOT DISQUALIFIED

JUDGE SAYS INSURANCE SHOULD BE CANCELLED

The principle—or lack of it—of a trustee making profit out of his trusteeship or those for whom he acts in trust is indefensible; such transactions and profits are wholly illegal, vicious in principle and dangerous in practice.

The only special recommendation I make, and I make it strongly is this; That all existing insurance on school property held or effected by agents who are also trustees should be cancelled and discontinued forthwith.

To His Worship, the Mayor, and the Council of the City of Peterborough.

Gentlemen,—Pursuant to your resolutions of February 1st, 1915, and March 1st, 1915, copies of which were sent me under your direction, and pursuant also to section 248 of the Municipal Act of Ontario, R.S.O. 1914, cap. 192, I beg to submit for your consideration, the following report:

In the first place, I desire to say copies of these resolutions were received by me soon after their respective dates. Shortly thereafter I made it known, both privately and publicly, through the press, I was prepared at any time to receive information, and proceed with the investigation.

Notwithstanding these notices no person approached me on behalf of anyone interested, till the middle of December, 1915, which will account for the apparent delay on my part—my delay, but not my fault.

After hearing a mass of evidence and most able and careful arguments, which closed at 10.30 p.m. on Christmas Eve, I caused it to be made known in open Court, also publicly, through the press—that I would delay matters for a time in the hope of receiving further information or explanations from any person whatsoever, but no such information or explanation was forthcoming from any source, and I have awaited such for a considerable time.

Expedited the Report.

According to the Statute I should send you herewith a copy of the evidence taken with the exhibits filed, but Mr. G. N. Gordon and Mr. W. H. Hill, perhaps the most interested parties in this matter, have filed with me a written request to make a report and transmit it to you without a copy of the evidence on which it is based. All others before me also verbally consented thereto. This I therefore do. I have ample notes for my own guidance and satisfaction, but if you or the public require the evidence extended and filed with you, it can be done at a later date, accompanied by the very numerous exhibits.

The duty devolving upon me herein is, I recognise, an important one, but most unwelcome and unpleasant to me for many personal reasons, but being my duty, though so unpleasant I perform it to the best of my ability and to my own satisfaction, even though perhaps to that of no one else.

I have been greatly assisted in the conduct of the investigation by the counsel engaged, i.e., Mr. D. O'Connell for Mr. Gordon; Mr R. R. Hall for Mr. Hill, and Mr. E. A. Peck, for the Board of Education. Mr. W. H. Moore, K.C., appeared for Mr. Ackerman, Chairman of the Board, in the early stages, but did not appear on the first argument possibly or probably because Mr. Ackerman was not specially reflected upon by the evidence given up to that time.

I desire further to state that this is an investigation, not a judicial proceeding necessarily binding and legally enforceable on the parties, but those before me consented to abide by my finding as if it were a judgment of a Court and therefore obligatory.

Over thirty witnesses were sworn and examined, and more than seventy documents were produced and filed as exhibits in the investigation.

The various witnesses were sworn and examined and more than seventy documents were produced and filed as exhibits in the investigation.

The various matters were taken up referred to in your resolutions and the documents from the Board of Ed.

MORE SLEEPING ACCOMMODATION FOR 93rd BATTALION

Bunks At The Armouries Are All Occupied And The Old Church Building Across The Street Will Be Utilized---700 Mark Will Be Reached in a Day or Two---Machine Gun Section Organized---To-day's Military News.

With the strength of the 93rd Battalion rapidly approaching the 700 mark, which will be passed in a day or two, the sleeping accommodation at the armouries is so taxed that additional sleeping quarters are being provided in the old Murray street Baptist church just across the street. Major Burritt, the chief engineer for No. 3 Division, was in the city to-day and inspected the building with a view to seeing what accommodation can be provded there. He estimates that sleeping quarters can be arranged for 400 men, which is about what will be required. At present all the bunks in the armouries are occupied and a number of the men are sleeping at home. The battalion strength is now at the 690 mark. Twenty-two men have been added yesterday and to-day.

Sergt Frank Traynor, who has been drilling the Havelock detachment, is in town. He brought half a dozen sturdy recruits with him yesterday. There are thirty-five men in training at Havelock and about the same number at Norwood, and more are joining every day.

A class of instruction for the non-coms of the 93rd Battalion is being formed.

Mr. E. J. Waterman of Peterborough, accompanied the excursionists to Cobourg last night and incidentally enlisted with the 130th Battalion. Mr Wm. Stanley, assistant caretaker of the local armouries, reported for duty to the 130t Battalion last night.

The members of the 33rd Battery who were home on final leave from Kingston left on Saturday night. Something went wrong with the send-off arrangements, but a platoon of the 93rd accompanied them to the station and assisted the boys' friends in the farewell proceedings.

Mr. T. J. Lowry of Highland Grove, President of the Conservative Association of North Victoria, has joined the 109th Battalion and will go into training as an officer at once. Mr. Lowry is a brother of Mrs. A. F. Calder, Concession street, city.

Here is one Sunday school class that is doing its share for the Empire. The Knights of Honour class of the Park street Baptist church is living up to its name. The teacher of the class is Lance-Corp. J. H. Haw of the 93rd Battalion and eleven of the members of the class have enlisted. They are: Ptes. W. Tranter, Max Sloan, Harry Lloyd, Henry Knowles and Thos. Goodwin of the 93rd Battalion; Lance-Corp. Maurice Dunkley and Pte. Percy Bullied of the 50th Battalion; Pte. Victor Bullied of the 8th C.M.R.; Pte. Albert Nicholls of the 21st Battalion, and Pte. Daniels, 39th Battalion.

Rev. R. G. Peever, pastor of George street Methodist church, has received letters from Pte. J. H. Tully of the 5th Battalion, 1st Canadian contingent, and Pte. Norman Darling, 1st C.M.R. Brigade, both in France, acknowledging the Christmas parcels sent by the ladies of George street church.

Pte. Tully in his letter says:

Received your parcels last night (Jan. 12th) just after a five mile march from the trenches, and wish to thank you for your kindness and Christmas cheer, also your good wishes. What man will not do his duty when he has such friends behind him? I have been in France almost a year, serving continuously, and have never felt for a moment that our people were not the best. They could not be otherwise the way they are used by friends at home.

Thanking you kindly for your present, I am,

Yours sincerely,
J. H. Tully.

Pte. Darling's Letter.

Pte. Darling, writing to Mr. Peever, says:

"Kindly convey to the members of your congregation my heartiest thanks for the box of Christmas cheer which reached me last night in good condition and which is being fully appreciated on this the first day of the New Year by myself and two other Peterborough boys of the 1st C.M.R. brigade, we three being the only ones in this outfit who can claim the old town as home. The other two are George Butcher, a member of St. Luke's church, and Dave Darrah, of St. Peter's Cathedral, who after partaking of the good things sent me had to admit that my church was just a little better than the others in knowing just what to send to remin us we weren't forgotten.. It comes as no surprise to hear that I have had and am having the remembrance and prayers of you and your members, for in times of extreme danger I have felt a strengthening power within me which could only come through one source, so rest assured your prayers haven't been in vain.

The time is coming and soon I hope, when this great struggle for right will come to a successful close, and I am looking forward to the day when we can rejoice together in heaven if not on earth, that we have a just God who watches over everyone of us.

Again many thanks for the pleasure I've derived from the assurance that the members of George street church don't forget their absentees.

Yours sincerely.
Norman Darling.

How To Earn Dollar Day Prizes

An Explanation of How You May Secure The Prizes Offered

The Merchants' Treasury Box, which has been subscribed to by those merchants whose names appear in the large advertisement on Page Three of this issue, will give with every dollar's purchase in their stores an estimating blank which will entitle the purchaser to estimate on the number of these blanks that will be returned or deposited in the box that will be at the Examiner Office on Dollar Day for their reception. 36,000 blanks will be printed and about 25,000 have been already handed out for use, and you will require to estimate about the volume of business the stores on the list will do and the percentage of estimates that will be returned, in order to get close to the correct number.

In addition, other stores are having individual contests.

For instance, the Examiner Office has a $35.00 contest which is explained on Page 6 of this issue. Any one who pays $1.00 into the Examiner Office for account or subscription will receive two estimating blanks, one for the Merchants' Treasury box, as above explained, and the other for The Examiner's own contest of estimating the number of coppers in the glass jar which is on exhibition in the window of the Peterborough Bookstore.

And so it is with other merchants. Watch the papers closely. Everything that is offered by individual merchants as an inducement for Dollar Day is over and above the Treasury Box prizes of $175.00.

Dollar Day, on Thursday, Feb. 3rd promises to be the greatest shopping day in the history of this city. Get down town early and take advantage of the great values that will be given.

RED CROSS WORK EXHIBIT.

One cannot too much insist upon the importance or extent of the work achieved by the local branch of the Red Cross Society. A visible demonstration of the object of its work, the relief of the suffering of the soldiers, who are suffering in the fight for ourselves constitutes a most direct appeal to our highest sense of gratitude, sense of fellow-citizenship, or acquaintanceship, and sense of humanity. On these grounds we give pecuniary support to the work; and our interest in, and sympathy with the work will be increased, with increased knowledge of what this work consists in both as to character and extent. As to this the announcement made in another column of a display of the various articles prepared by the ladies of the society and forwarded each week to be used to promote the comfort and help the healing of our sick and wounded soldiers is important. A view of such an exhibit as will be found in the display windows of Turnbull & Co., will be educative in that it will enlarge the public knowledge of the work of the society and suggest the duty of helping duplicate as will, unhappily have to be done for some time yet, the various articles, which as they will be used perhaps on the wounded bodies of soldiers we know and love, will constitute a personal appeal hard to regard with indifference, or even to resist. While we applaud the patriotism, and courage, and loyalty to duty, of the soldiers who have gone from us, to the battle lines, we must not withhold a warm tribute of praise to the loyalty and self-sacrifice of the ladies who have made the articles—every article with their own hands; and recognize that the battles of freedom are not being altogether fought in the trenches, but that auxiliary forces are working silently, and self-sacrificingly, and efficiently all around us, to promote the victory which calls for, and has evoked so much self-sacrifice and service.

ST. GEORGE AND SHAKSPERE.

Winter has, with the opening of February turned the corner, and from this time onward his grip wil be a relaxing one. The lengthening days, and the strengthening stroke of the sun's rays turn our thoughts springward, and it will be a short flight of time that takes us to memorable days both in the history of the world and of nations. The day of Ireland's patron saint will soon be here, midway between the present and St. George's Day, the patron saint of England, April 23rd.

St. George is by many regarded as a myth; but in his relation to England and the world the myth becomes a great and glorious reality. This mighty war, and the cause it is fought for—strikes its roots deep into English life and history. In England and among Englishmen, the sons of St. George, was born and fostered the principle of liberty and freedom, the greater half of the world is fighting for to-day. England is to-day the centre of the world, the centre of naval power, and commercial pre-eminence; the centre of the great moral forces, now operating for the world's good. While other parts of the Empire, domestic and overseas, are bravely doing their bit, the brunt of the battle for right falls upon Englishmen. They are from the least to the greatest in the battle line, fighting bravely as they have done, for centuries, to the battle cry of "St. George and Merrie England." All Englishmen are in the fight. The "aristocrats" and the humblest of the democrats are standing shoulder to shoulder in the battle line mingling their blood on the same soil, fighting for the same cause, the cause that is the glory of England and of civilization. England and Englishmen bulk largely in this great war, and it does not seem unfitting that as proposed, St. George's day this year be especially celebrated. Not only on account of past achievements for the good of humanity, culminating in the achieving of to-day, but because, the day this year synchronizes with the birthday of Shakspere, the greatest gift next to human enfranchisement and free institutions, England has given the world.

It may be more than mere coincidence—something of divine designing—that the birthday of St. George, the tyne and protector of human uplift, of constitutional liberty, of personal enfranchisement, falls upon the birthday of Shakspere—April 23rd, which by another striking coincidence was also the day of his death. And never was there half a century of human life that meant so much to the world, as the fifty-two fruitful years of William Shakspere, poet of the English race, who not only interpreted England to itself, but to the world once and for all time, but he interpreted the world of humanity to itself as has never been done, nor ever will be done. Shakspere has become the world's universal heritage as the race he sprang from has given the world the highest laws of human right. No race in the world's history has brought forth and nurtured, and spread abroad, more of human boon and benefit than England; and no three races as England and her sister races, "set in the silver sea," Scotland and Ireland, have joined in influence and action, to make so deep an impress upon the civilization and progress of the world — never more united, never more potent for good, than they are to-day.

In this connection the reader is referred to the article on this page dealing with the special observance of St. George's Day this year.

AGAINST GERMANY.

Although always a pacifist, President Wilson is about to start on a tour of the United States to urge his countrymen to support his scheme of preparedness for war.

As a contemporary points out, Mr. Wilson apparently has only recently seen the need of a large military machine for the United States. He has been in office for three years and not until now has he found any deficiency in the American army and navy. Admittedly he has been converted to the doctrine of preparedness by the great world struggle, but there is only one feature of that struggle that has seriously affected the United States or caused that country to take note of its fighting.

From Britain or her allies the United States has had nothing to fear, but Germany has deliberately encroached on American rights and slaughtered American citizens. There has not been, during the war, any suggestion from a single American citizen that the United States had ground for strife with Britain or France or Russia, although both Britain and France have come to points of diplomatic friction with Washington on various occasions, but half the people of republic have demanded war with Germany.

President Wilson, then, in advocating preparedness for his country is asking that the United States prepare against a definite menace, the menace of Germany. It is only Germany that he fears. Although he is a desciple of the doctrine of peace, he has become convinced that with Berlin only one argument will avail, the argument of force.—Ottawa Free Press.

ST. GEORGE'S DAY AND THE TERCENTENARY OF THE GREAT SHAKSPERE

Mr. Howard Ruff, honorary organizer and secretary of the Royal Society of St. George, has forwarded the following, in reference to the special commemoration of St. George's Day which, this year, marks the tercentenary of Shakspere:

The Royal Society of St. George is organising throughout the Empire a great demonstration in honour of England, and in memory of her sons who have laid down their lives in her defence and in defence of our Empire, and now invites the patriotic co-operation not only of Englishmen and Englishwomen throughout the World, but of all those who live beneath the protecting folds of our glorious Flag.

April 23rd—St. George's Day—is England's Day, the name day of our beloved King — the ter-centenary of the death of Shakspere and Boy Scouts Day, surely a concatenation of inspiring events worthy of celebration.

The commemoration will not be restricted to the Dominions of the King-Emperor, and arrangements are already in progress to secure the participation of our French, Russian, and Italian Allies, and of our Kinsmen in the United States of America.

It cannot be doubted that their reply to the German curse "Gott straffe England," will be the well-nigh universal wearing of the English Flag—The Cross of St. George—the Soldier Saint, which not only symbolizes their faith, but associated with their own national ensigns lends added significance to the motto "In hoc signo vinces" and presages the defeat of our enemies.

The net proceds of all collections, at home and abroad, will go in support of Local War Funds.

The tentative appeal to the Lord Mayors and Mayors of England towards the end of March last, came too late to enable the necessary arrangements to be made, nevertheless in those Boroughs which ventured on an improvised organization, the result in every instance greatly exceeded anticipation.

Flag Days have been held in England on behalf of every Country but England. It is now the turn of the silent, patient Motherland, the Mother of Nations and the heart of the Empire.

Above every sacred edifice and from every public building throughout the Empire, but more especially in England itself, the blood red cross of St. George, "The Meteor Flag of England," the sure sign of victory, should be flying on Easter Sunday next—a Day of Remembrance.

Patriotism should be linked with Religion, more especially so at this decisive peirod in our country's history, and it is hoped that the great subject associated with Easter Sunday will not preclude, but inspire, suitable reference to St. George's—England's Day; to those who have died and to those who are fighting in so righteous a cause, and that Altars and Pulpits will be adorned with the red and white roses of England, and draped with the Red Cross Banner of the Solier Saint.

The War is not over! more than ever will money be needed next year, when donations of large amount can hardly be expected; but pennies are plentiful, and the working classes are "making" good money, and will not be niggard in relieving the distress or adding to the comforts of those of their countrymen at the Front.

St. George's—England's Day—falling on a Sunday, "Flag Day" will be held the day before—Saturday—or the day after, Monday, but the most suitable day of the whole week is Saturday.

The Society is ordering millions of Flags of various patterns and prices all "Made in England," and samples will be sent on application to the Assistant Organizer, Mr. Henry Thompson, at the Flag Day Offices, 7 Victoria Street, Westminster, S.W.

Howard Ruff, Hon. Organizer.

School Trustee Should Not Make Profit Out of Position

ication upon which your resolutions were based, and which accompanied them to me, also some other matters which arose incidentally and within the purview of the Statute, and which were advanced by the various Counsel for the various parties before me.

No Charge Against Mr. Gordon.

Firstly, then, as to the charges against Mr. Gordon: I am requested "to investigate all things relating to "the appointment of G. N. Gordon "Esquire, as City Solictor."

As to this I made diligent enquiries but could learn of nothing irregular or improper touching such appointment. There was no evidence given touching or relating to the appointment, and it was freely admitted by Counsel there was no such evidence known to them, and that there were no charges against him regarding it, and I find accordingly.

Is He "Officer" of Council?

Mr. Gordon is a member of the Board of Education of the City, duly elected; he is also the City Solicitor duly appointed by By-law, and was so at the time of his election to the Board of Education. I am asked to report as to his right to sit on the Board under these circumstances. The question is purely a legal one there being no dispute about the facts. It was most strenuously contended that his Solicitorship disqualifies him from his seat on the Board It is admitted he possesses all the other necessary qualifications for his seat. Mr. Gordon, by his Counsel, contends that there is no prohibition whatever, and that the whole matter is governed by the Public Schools Act. If that were so he would be correct in his contention, but I cannot agree with all his premises. The Board of Education Act, R.S.O. cap 269, section 20, refers to the High Schools Act, as well as the Public Schools Act, and incorporates in itself the provisions of both those Acts, so far as disqualification of trustees is concerned. Mr. Gordon is clearly qualified so far as the Public Schools Act is concerned. The only provision in the High Schools Act, which I think also applies, that can affect his status is R. S. O. cap. 280, sec. 12, which provides that any ratepayer, a British subject, 21 years of age, who resides in the High School "district, "and who is not a member or officer "of a municipal council shall be "qualified." The whole question, therefore, boils down as to whether or not he, as City Solicitor, is an "officer" of a municipal Council. If so, he is disqualified; if not such "officer" his qualifications are unimpeachable.

Solicitor Not "Officer" within the Act.

My opinion is that the City Solicitor is not an "officer" of the Council within the meaning of the Act. The Solicitor of a corporation has been held not an "officer" frequently in the English Courts; but I do not forget that facts differ in different cases. An officer is one who performs certain specific duties or functions defined by law, e.g., clerk, treasurer assessor, etc. The Solicitor is different; his duties are manifold; they are not and cannot be any definite or specific tasks; he is an adviser, a counsellor, a servant, and it cannot be forseen, specified or defined, what his duties or tasks may be—they are so wide, varying and far-reaching. It has been also held that the word "officer" implies a delegation of a portion of the parent or sovereign power to the person filling the office There is no such legal delegation to the City Solicitor by the City. I do not overlook the fact that Mr. Gordon is appointed by By-law, and that certain of his duties are prescribed therein, nor the fact that he is paid by salary fixed by the by-law. Mr. Hall urges that the salary payment constitutes him an officer, as distinguished from one retained generally and paid by fees for specific work done. In my opinion the method of payment is not the criterion. His duties are prescribed by contract, express and implied, written and unwritten, the by-law and general retainer, as distinguished from those of an officer in the proper sense of the word, which are defined by law. It is not method of payment, but the source of definite duties and delegation of definite powers which determine the question and makes the distinction.

I hold, therefore, that Mr. Gordon, as City Solicitor, is not an "officer" of the Civic Municipal Council, and therefore, not disqualified from his seat on the Board of Education.

I am further asked to report on conflict, present or possible, between his duties as City Solicitor and School Trustee.

No Conflict of Duties.

No such instances of existing conflict were pointed out to me, nor were any suggested as possible, though I asked Counsel to suggest any such that might occur to them.

I, myself, know of none under the law as now existing and interpreted. The City Council and Board of Education are clearly distinct and different bodies, exercising different functions and with wholly distinct jurisdictions.

I am not sure but that Mr. Gordon has invited this query by the terms of a letter he is said to have written to the press, and quoted in part in the resolution referred to me. It is but fair to say though that such letter as before me refers to his being or becoming Solicitor of the Board of Education, rather than a member of it.

Conflict of Duties Possible.

Before leaving this subject, though unable to see whence this conflict may arise, my opinion is, that if it should come Mr. Gordon's duty would be clear. No man can serve two masters, and if ever his duty as City Solicitor should conflict, or appear to conflict with those of a member of the Board of Education, he should resign one position or the other forthwith. A divided service is about as dangerous as a disloyal one.

Mr. Hill's Duties and Position.

Attention was also called and enquiry made as to the business relations existing between Mr. W. H. Hill, trustee, and teachers and other employees of the Board. Mr. Hill is largely interested in insurance, fire and life, and is also chairman of the committee of the Board having the direction of appointments, promotions, etc. It was said, or rather alleged, that Mr. Hill used his position on the Board, as allowed it to be used, to secure insurance from the teachers, and that they were led to believe the royal road to promotion and increase of salary led through Mr. Hill's insurance office; also that they were importuned or dragooned into placing their insurance business with him. This would be intolerable, if true, but I am pleased to say it is not true. He

An Extravagant Doctor Or a Wise One?

Ambitious Dr. Lydgate of "Middlemarch" may have been extravagant with his 2 horses, and servants and plate, and Policy of Life Insurance Most people now-a-days, however, would at least have called the Life Insurance Policy a necessity. The horses were sold, the servants dismissed, and the plate taken by the bailiff. The Life Insurance Policy alone stood at the last between Rosamond and penury. There have since been many Rosamonds of whom the same story might be told. Has the Rosamond of your home been adequately provided for? If not, her lot may be adequately secured by a Policy in

Gin Pills FOR THE KIDNEYS

How They Help

ST. RAPHAEL, ONT.

Four years ago I had such pains in my back that I could not work. The pains extended to my arms, sides and shoulders. I used many kinds of medicine for over a year, some of which did me very much good. I read about Gin Pills and sent for a sample and used them, and found the pains were leaving me and that I was feeling better. So I bought one box and before I used them all, the pains were almost gone and I could keep at work. After I had taken six other boxes of Gin Pills, I felt as well and strong as I did at the age of 25. I am a farmer, now 67 years old." 25

Miss Mowry Received Gift From Nurses

Miss Lillian Simons, secretary of the Peterborough Chapter of Graduate Nurses, has received from Miss Bertha Mowry the following grateful letter, acknowledging a remembrance from the local nurses upon her departure for military nursing:

Dear Miss Simons,—Some days ago I received a parcel and address from the Peterborough Chapter of Graduate Nurses. I intended writing sooner, but we are kept very busy.

Will you kindly convey to all the nurses my sincere thanks for their good wishes and splendid gift. My heart is too full to say much, but it is going to comfort me in my new work to know you are thinking of me, wishing me well. Your gifts show that you spent time and thought, and I am so glad that it is something I can use every day.

Our work here is very interesting. We are having a regular course of instruction in military drill. Report every morning at 8.50, roll call, then drill, then parade of from two to three miles, sometimes with the men and officers, sometimes with just one officer. This keeps us busy till noon. Report again at 1.40 p.m. More drill, lectures, etc. Dismissed about 5 p.m. Until now I have had to spend every minute getting my equipment ready. We were supposed to leave here Jan. 21st, but were not ready. I heard to-day we might leave on Thursday.

Will write the Peterborough Chapter a description of our trip. Once more thanking you all for your good wishes and gift. I remain, yours sincerely,

Bertha M. Mowry.

TO TRIFLE WITH CATARRH IS TO RISK CONSUMPTION

Usually it comes with a cold. Being slight it is neglected—but the seed is sown for a dangerous harvest, perhaps consumption. To cure at once, inhale Catarrhozone. It destroys the germs of catarrh, clears away mucous, cleanses the passage of the nose and throat. The hacking cough and sneezing cold soon disappear, and health is yours again. Nothing known for colds, catarrh and throat trouble, that is so curative as Catarrhozone. It cures by a new method that never yet failed. The one dollar outfit includes the inhaler and is guaranteed to cure. Smaller sizes 25c and 50c, sold everywhere.

The New York Stock Market

Special to The Examiner:

NEW YORK, Feb. 1.—The Stock Market recovered, at the opening to-day, from its weakues of yesterday, Lackawanna Steel was the leader among the industrials, gaining 2¼ points and going to 84. Crucible opened unchanged at 74, and soon jumped to 77½. Among the railroads Erie was a leader in activity and strength. United States Steel opened at 80¾ to 74, against a close of 80 yesterday, the advancing tendency continued during early trading.

A UNION STATION IN PETERBOROUGH

Last week our city was visited by a few railway officials who waited on the City Council to see if something could not be done to lessen the amount of walking on the companies' tracks. A slight hint was thrown out about a union station, but we were informed that nothing could be done at present.

It is high time that Peterborough had a decent station, and there is no reason why it should not be a union depot. Little places like St. Thomas and Brantford have stations which are monuments of architectural beauty compared with the antiquated relics which greet the eyes of travellers coming to Peterborough.

A rearrangement of the tracks now running like a spider's web over the town, incidental to the requirements of a union station, would greatly lessen the dangers to which our citizens are now exposed by the deadly level crossings, and would so reduce the number of trunk lines that the companies would be easily able to protect their crossings, which they should do without asking the city council to help.

It is not likely that anything will be done while the war is on but when peace is declared the railroads are going to experience a period of unprecedented expansion, and Peterborough might as well secure its share.

The main artery of travel for railroads entering Peterborough will always be from east to west, and on account of the course of the river and position of the hills, the present C.P.R. line is the proper location. Therefore a station between George and Aylmer streets would seem to be the best.

The Grand Trunk should bring their lines in along the same route, forming a trunk system of three or four tracks, if necessary, for the accommodation of both roads.

If this were done fifteen level crossings on the Lakefield branch would be eliminated—and Bethune street should never have been handed over to the Grand Trunk as a shunting yard. Besides it would save the railway one bridge at Auburn and a heavy grade at the Barnardo Home.

Ten crossings could be cut out if the Belleville branch were brought up along the old Cobourg track to the new trunk line, besides saving the Grand Trunk the bridge at the locks.

Eleven crossings could be done away with if the Port Hope branch were joined to the new trunk line where it begins to parallel the C.P.R. tracks, to say nothing of the saving in maintenance of these tracks.

Fourteen crossings—the most dangerous in the city—could be wiped out if the Lindsay branch were diverted in a direct line through a small hill to meet the new trunk line where the Port Hope branch would join besides transforming Jackson Park from a death trap into a haven of safety where children could be sent without fear of their being mangled by the trains. This cut would save from twenty to thirty minutes in time and would save a vast quantity of steam which the engines now waste in keeping up a continuous scream from the time they enter the park to their arrival at the station.

Fully fifty deadly crossings would thus be eliminated and this would be worth the cost of the whole undertaking. The city would be a safer place to live in, could be made more beautiful, and our travelling facilities systematized for future growth.

Build for the future should be our motto.

Board of Works Committee Held A Busy Session

Number of Matters Were Referred to City Engineer Parsons For a Report—Will Prepare an Inventory of Material Owned by The Board

If last night's meeting of the Board of Works is a criterion of the manner in which subsequent meetings are to be conducted, it bespeaks for the Board a year of progress and freedom from superfluity of speech. Ald. A. A. McIntyre, chairman of the Board, opened the meeting with a little heart to heart talk, in which he reminded his colleagues of the advisability of confining their efforts to the business on hand. Ald. McIntyre intimated that it was not his intention to hold meetings any oftener than was necessary consistent with good business. He also reminded the members that two hours was ample time in which to transact the average run of business that comes before the Board. One thing that should favour such a policy as outlined by Ald. McIntyre, is the fact that this year's Board is composed of only six members, whereas its predecessors struggled along with the whole Council in tow. This year's Board presents a more businesslike aspect and judging by last night's efforts, its intentions are equally business-like.

Account Contested.

Mr. W. H. Bradburn of Bradburns Limited, spent twenty-six dollars in removing an obstruction from a sewer leading into his property on McDonnel street. This obstruction, Mr. Bradburn claimed, was due to a fault at the point of connection with the main sewer and for this reason he demanded a refund of the money expended on the work. The Board as a whole was not inclined to agree to this until Mr. Bradburn stepped into the committee room and proposed that the city dig the sewer up, and if the trouble was located on the property, Mr. Bradburn would pay for it. To dig the sewer up will necessitate cutting a hole into the asphalt on McDonnel street which the Board is somewhat reluctant to do. However, rather than establish a precedent in this particular case the Board will recommend that the sewer be dug up and in this way responsibility for the payment of the account will be determined. The work will be undertaken in the spring.

General Business.

The matter of opening up a channel into the lake so as to provide an outlet for the ice and snow that has accumulated in the creek that bisects the city, was left in the hands of City Engineer Parsons.

City Engineer Parsons was instructed to report on the following matters: Pavements suitable for the residential section of the city, also the need, if any, of additional permanent pavements for the main streets of the city and the possibility of draining a cellar at the south-east corner of London and Stewart streets. This matter has been before the Board for upwards of nine years. Should the City Engineer be unable to waste enough time over what appears to be self-evident, he may take a small committee with him. This suggestion came from Mayor Duffus.

The Engineer was asked to report on the advisability of providing sewerage facilities for Auburn and fire protection, also the matter of surface drainage throughout the city.

An Inventory.

To Ald McIntyre was assigned the task of preparing an inventory of all stock and material in the hands of the Board.

The City Engineer will ask for tenders on sewer pipe and cement for the current year; also eighteen hundred feet of twenty-four inch pipe for use in connection with the outfall sewer.

The Board will recommend that the city get legal advice concerning the matter of street encroachments. The matter of obtaining prices on the different grades of road oil was left in the hands of the City Engineer.

City Engineer Parsons will report on the width of the bank at the Goose pond on Water Street, and will also see that no more ashes are placed there.

The advisability of procuring a frame truck car for removing the steel sheeting used in connection with the outfall sewer, also of securing an estimate of the cost of track cars for back filling, was left in the hands of City Engineer Parsons.

Mr. Gordon Expects Resignations

Says Mr. Hill and Mr. Crane Agreed To Be Bound By The Findings Of Judge Hoyeke

Mr. Gordon, when interviewed today about the Judge's report upon the Board of Education investigation, said he had no comments to make, as all the parties, including Mr. Hill and Mr. Crane, agreed to be bound by the Judge's findings. He said if the Judge had found against him he would have followed the usual course and resigned. He supposed Mr. Hill and Mr. Crane would resign, as they had been found guilty of improper and illegal dealings, by a tribunal whose finding they agreed to be bound by.

SHE GAINED 36 POUNDS.

Mrs. George Bradshaw, Harlowe, Ont, writes: "I was troubled for many years with weak, watery blood and dropsy. I had nervous headaches, dizziness, and sinking spells, and was in fact, a semi-invalid. Doctors told me my heart and kidneys were diseased and gave me up but by using 10 boxes of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food I have been cured of many of my old complaints and gained 36 pounds in weight.

MRS. PATRICK CAMPBELL IN "PYGMALION"

Mrs. Campbell's engagement at 'The Grand,' next Monday, February 7th, in Bernard Shaw's "Pygmalion," introduces what may fairly be regarded as the height of the theatrical season, so far as dramatic attractions are concerned, for Mrs. Patrick Campbell ranks among the most brilliant actresses on the English stage, and "Pygmalion" is without doubt the most entertaining play, all round, that Shaw has evolved from his flashing brain in the last ten years. The circumstances surrounding the production of the play in London, together with the romantic veneer covering the transformation of a cockney flower girl into a young lady fit to grace a fashionable party, all denoted a disposition on the part of Shaw to make friends with the great majority of the playgoers.

In "Pygmalion" he has written a comedy that adds to the gaiety of the world at large, and without making any Briton wish to reach for his stick or write to the papers to have the espatriated Irishman hanged and quartered. The comedy in which Shaw is amusing and brilliant without being cynical or dangerously perverted, furnished as much delight with its incidental characters as it does with its central theme, the transformation of a cockney flower girl into a counterfeit duchess by teaching her proper pronunciation and manners. Indeed the manners are held as secretely essential by the professor of phonetics who undertakes the experiment, he holding that it makes little difference how a person behaves toward another if he behaves in the same manner towards all persons.

Mrs. Campbell appears as Eliza Doolittle, the cockney flower girl, ragged, soiled and vulgar, with an accent almost beyond understanding. A professor of phonetics with a hobby for dialects, discovers her, and makes her the subject of an experiment by which in six months he completely changed her into a being that, as far as manners, pronounciation and grammar are concerned, will pass muster with the first ladies of the land, but in so doing has awakened within her a soul, and finds that when the period of experiment is over he has a problem on his hands and—Eliza does not go back to the slums.

Mrs. Campbell's supporting company includes: J. W. Austin, H. Conway Wingfield, George Frederick, C. Gatenby Bell, R. P. Donaldson, Stewart Halliday, Thomas Robinson, George Watton, F. Herbert, Madeleine Meredith, Gwladys Hopeton, Beatrice Irwin May, Esther Evans and Elise Saunders.

Comments on The Judge's Report

Mr. Gordon, as City Solicitor, is not an "officer" of the Municipal Council, and, therefore, not disqualified from his seat on the Board of Education.

If ever his (Mr. Gordon's) duty as City Solicitor should conflict, or appear to conflict, with those of a member of the Board of Education, he should resign one position or the other forthwith.

"Mr. Ackerman was the only member of the Board who voluntarily came forward and gave a proferred evidence."

"I find no evidence to indicate that Mr. Ackerman or any other member made a profit out of the building of the new schools."

"He (Mr. Crane) made no departure from his regular method to give the appearance of subterfuge, but I must find and report (most regretfully, as also in Mr. Hill's case) that he, a trustee, also illegally received and retained commissions referred to."

"It makes no difference that no financial loss was incurred by reason of insurance with Mr. Hill's companies."

"It was further urged that the amounts were small; . . . . the paucity of the profits taken, but adds to the pity of it, that it should have occurred at all."

"Every time Mr. Hill advanced such money for the Board he made himself a creditor of the Board, an implied conflict arose forthwith between them. . . . . for the balance of such term of office he was wrongfully there, and his acts and votes were illegal."

"So far as Mr. Hill is personally concerned, there is no evidence to show he ever canvassed any teacher . . . and he is absolutely vindicated from such a reflection."

Hydro Power For Peterboro

Civic Deputation Wait Upon Sir Adam Beck—Address By Mr. J. M. Burnham

TORONTO, Feb. 1.—An appeal for Hydro power for Eastern Ontario was made to Sir Adam Beck, this afternoon by a delegation of prominent citizens of Peterborough and surrounding country. Acting as spokesman, Mr. J. H. Burnham, M.P., of Peterborough, gave a short history of Sir Adam Beck's great work in western Ontario, showing how it has benefited the farm, the manufacturer and the private citizen in furnishing power and light; how it is shortly to add to his triumphs by furnishing cheap and ready transportation. If Eastern Ontario is to maintain her position it must be by developing her resources, also, he said, and yet Eastern Ontario has not experienced any of the benefits arising from the Beck policy.

The following represented Peterborough in the deputation waiting on Sir Adam Beck this afternoon: Mayor J. J. Duffus, Ald. A. H. Stratton and J. H. Burnham, M.P., W. H. Leach and Ald. J. Edgar. All the speakers pointed out that Eastern Ontario was not getting the industrial development enjoyed in Western Ontario because of the price of electric power. In Western Ontario the Hydro-Electric power is proving a great drawing card to industry.

"Eastern Ontario wants the power now running to waste, or in private hands, to be applied where possible for the public benefit," said Mr. Burnham. He instanced Burleigh Falls for example. "We understand that famous creator and apostle of Hydro and the Dominion Government are both willing to proceed with the development of a power policy for Eastern Ontario as in Western Ontario, but they are not yet ready. We have come to ask the question of this government as we intend to ask it of the Federal government, "why are you not ready, and if so, when?"

Sir Adam Beck promised consideration.

Mr. J. Richardson, representing Carleton stated there were many places on the Ottawa river that could be harnessed for power development and mentioned particularly Shaw Falls.

Voice of The People

To the Editor of The Examiner,—

Dear Sir,—Do you not think that it would be to the benefit of all concerned if the government brought conscription in force in Canada at once and thus put a stop to the bitterness that is being engendered between those who should be of one heart and purpose in face of a common danger? There is not the shadow of a doubt that if men are needed to defend the state our country has a claim on every man who comprises that state, to assist in its defence. We who were born in the Mother-Land have always felt instinctively this claim. We have had the history and traditons of a thousand battles on land and sea to stir our blood, and when our Empire is assailed we instinctively spring to arms. With the Canadian-born, however, it is somewhat different. The country has been settled in peace, and as "Another Patriotic Mother" says, the hard places have been made easy for them not only by their parents but by the protecting influence of Britain and the British navy, and most of them have grown up with making money and playing hookey and baseball as their highest ideal. To young men who all their lives have been thinking along these lines the call to mask the supreme sacrifice at the call of duty and for love of country and liberty, is something too sudden to be understood. That is why, in my opinion, such foolish questions are asked, as "Why should we fight for England?" etc. It appears to me quite evident that to raise another army as large as has been raised will require something more than persuasion or tongue lashing, and I believe that it would be in the best interest of the country in every way for the government to say who they want, and take them, and take impartially the sons of rich and poor. We are all vitally interested in the issue of this war and all ought to be willing to do what they can.

Yours, etc.,
GEO. LEADER.

To the Editor of The Examiner,—

Dear Sir—Will you kindly insert this in your paper: If a man enlist and is examined by the appointed doctor of the Militia, and drilled for seven or eight days, and then turned down, has he not a right to get his discharge and pay at once.

One That Would Like to Know

To the Editor of The Examiner,—

Dear Sir,—Kindly allow me space to answer "Another Patriotic Woman" (Patriotic) she signs herself, and then goes on to say she has seven sons, one being of military age.

Surely, Sir, one out of seven could be spared to go and help to protect her. She admits he is admired for his robustness but because he is told he is not fashionably dressed (in khaki) she does not like it. She further says that Adjt. McElheney "brands our sons as shirkers and quitters." I say that he is quite right, and I would also add that in this case it is the mother that is failing to do her duty and it is making her feel "very uncomfortable." I would like to introduce this mother to some "REAL" Patriotic Mothers who he given three and four sons, and their husbands also, and only feel that they have done their duty.

It is such mothers as the former that is costing the government so much in having to call so many recruiting meetings and who will eventually bring the utter disgrace of conscription. She also misunderstood Capt. Ackerman; he said, "there is no time for sentiment"—it is perfectly true. Our sons must fill up the ranks and help keep our liberty that the mother admits she is enjoying.

There is also another mother who has at least five eligible sons, but never visits the armouries on patriotic meeting nights. I would say that if there are many more such mothers then it's Good-bye to freedom, Liberty, and Dear Old Canada.

"Canada expects every loyal mother to do her duty. Thanking you, dear sir.

A "REAL" PATRIOTIC MOTHER

Auto Licences At J. E. A. Fitzgerald's

The Secretary of the Auto Association will again issue the licenses for motor vehicles and has arranged that the issuing will be done at the office of J. E. A. Fitzgerald, coal and wood merchant, Hunter Street. Fill in your application carefully and make your declaration before the Chief of Police or any Notary Public.

As the secretary of the Association is doing this as a convenience to the motorists of the city and vicinity, it is but natural to expect that you will become a member of the Association. The fee for membership is three dollars, and Mr. E. H. Turner, chairman of the Membership Committee, will be pleased to receive it.

BRONCHITIS
COMES FROM A NEGLECTED COLD.

Bronchitis starts with a short, painful, dry cough, accompanied with rapid wheezing, and a feeling of oppression or tightness through the chest. At first the expectoration is a light color but as the trouble progresses the phlegm arising from the bronchial tubes becomes of a yellowish or greenish color, and is very often of a stringy nature.

Bronchitis is usually at its worst in the morning on account of the phlegm becoming lodged in the bronchial tubes during the night, and it very often takes some time coughing and gagging before you can get the throat clear of the phlegm.

When this happens you may be sure that if the bronchitis is not attended to immediately it will sooner or later develop into pneumonia, or some other more serious lung trouble.

The best remedy for to cure the cold is DR. WOOD'S NORWAY PINE SYRUP.

Mrs. Roy Conner, Greenwood, Ont., writes: "I must tell you what Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup did for me. Whenever I got a cold I would be troubled with bronchitis, and sometimes I would almost choke to death. After taking two bottles of Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup I was cured."

Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup is 25c and 50c. per bottle. See that you get the genuine.

School Trustee School Not Make Profit Out of Positions

far as Mr. Hill personally is concerned, there is no evidence to show he ever canvassed any teacher, properly or improperly, and he is absolutely vindicated from such a reflection. Some of his agents, working for or under him, have canvassed teachers for insurance, with varying success, but no case has been brought to my attention where improper statements or undue influence were brought to bear even by them. These agents have not, I think, gone out of their usual, proper business methods in dealing with teachers, nor has any difference been shown between their dealing with teachers and other classes of the community.

The Work is Delicate.

Still, while imputing no blame in this case, and finding no improper conduct proved as existing, I think a word of warning not out of place. Canvas of teachers by or for those in authority has been very severely criticised and I think rightly so. The situation is a very delicate one, and the danger self evident. However as stated I have found with gladness nothing improper existing in this particular, now or in the past, and leave the question right there.

I was also asked to report as to Mr. Hill's business relations with the Board, whether or not he had contracts of insurance with it, and whether or not he had thereby forfeited his seat and become disqualified.

Mr. Hill's Business With the Board.

I find Mr. Hill is an insurance agent in the city, carrying on the insurance business in a large way for many years past, recently under the name of Hill, Weddell & Co., but previously and for many years under his own individual name and solely for his own use and benefit.

I find Mr. Hill became a member of the Peterborough Board of Education in 1888 and has so remained continuously ever since, a long, unbroken period of 28 years.

I further find that from and ever since 1892, and probably before that date as well, that Mr. Hill through the companies he represents, has carried large amounts of insurance on the various school properties in this city, and now carries risks thereon for over $60,000.00.

The premiums paid, therefor, the past three years were $574.55, but these premiums were less prior to 1913 and gradually less and less the ref the various three year periods before that date. His commission on this is said to be 20 p.c. on most of it, and 15 p.c. on the balance, in all amounting to $103.91 for the past three years or $34.61 profit annually to him out of the transaction.

It is suggested or alleged that this is not only contrary to his oath of office, but that it brings him within R. S. C. Cap. 266 Sec. 119, which reads as follows:

"A trustee shall not enter into any "contract, agreement, engagement, or "promise, either in his own name or "in the name of another, and either "alone or jointly with another, in "which he has any pecuniary interest, "profit, or promised or expected ben"efit, with the Board of which he is "a member, or have any pecuniary "claim upon, or receive compensa"tion from the Board for any work, "engagement, employment, or duty on "behalf of the Board, and every such "contract, agreement, engagement or "promise shall be null and void, and "a trustee violating the provisions of "this section shall, ipso facto, vacate "his seat."

How Bills Were Made Out.

The method of procedure followed was that Mr. Hill or his clerk made out a bill against the Board in the name of the Insurance Company taking the risk ;this account came before the Finance committee and was passed; a check was made out to the Company for the amount of the premium; this check was sent or given to Mr. Hill or his office; it was then illegally endorsed in the name of the Company (usually by a clerk or office boy in Mr. Hill's office) and deposited in the Bank to the credit of Mr. Hill's fire insurance account, and later, with the other funds there, divided, the proper portion sent to the Company and Mr. Hill retaining the balance as his commission. I learned that insurance people generally, such as Mr. T. E. Bradburn, Davis-Thompson Co., and others, sent their insurance bills to the Board in their own names, were paid in their own names the full amounts, retained their commission, and remitted the balance to their companies. It is also proved that this is Mr. Hill's usual custom as well so far as the general public is concerned, the only exceptions being the School Board and one or two other instances, the City Trust and Nicholls Hospital, on both of which Boards Mr. Hill is also a trustee as well. It is urged that the bill made out to the Company, not to Mr. Hill, is the proper legal method. That may or may not be so, but if that is so, then Mr. Hill's method with all his other clients is wrong, as is also the usual method followed by the other insurance people in the city. On the other hand it is forcibly urged that the procedure adopted is but a subterfuge and an evasion of the law.

He Was Wrongfully a Member.

It is also proved that it was Mr. Hill's custom frequently to send out his bills to the Board and other customers as well and if these were not paid before the proper time for remittance he would advance the money and remit to his Company and himself collect the premium later from the Board and such other customers as he had made advances for. This was so stated by Mr. Weddell, Mr. Hill's partner, and not denied nor explained by Mr. Hill, who was not called to the witness box. This being so, I find that every time Mr. Hill so advanced such money for the Board he made himself a creditor of the Board, an implied contract arose forthwith between them, and on each such occasion Mr. Hill ipso facto vacated his seat, and for the balance of such term of office he was wrongfully there and his acts and votes were illegal. But such condition of affairs was not shown to exist in December, 1915 and January 1916, the dates of the investigation and the period on which my findings must be based. At those times the existing contracts, such as they were, were between the Board of Education and the Insurance Companies. Nothing at these dates was coming or accruing to Mr. Hill though he undoubtedly had received a profit from existing contracts. Such a Statute, with such serious results, should be construed very strictly, and so construing it I find that Mr. Hill is not disqualified thereunder. I am awafe of authority to that effect, which authority I am also aware has been criticised., and which I find rather hard to harmonize with other legal dicta, but giving it every consideration, I have satisfied myself upon the facts before me that Mr. Hill is now duly qualified to sit and act as a member of the Board, and is not disqualified as urged before me.

Trustee Has No Right to Profit.

But another and more serious question arises on these facts regarding the insurance, which you have remitted to me for decision. It is proved, indeed not denied, that Mr. Hill received these commissions to his own use and benefit and has been so receiving them since 1892 and perhaps, indeed probably, for some time prior to that date. It is strongly urged that he being a trustee had no right thereto and wrongfully and illegally received and retained those commissions. This point is without doubt well taken. Mr. Hill is and has been for all those years a trustee. A trustee has no right to make a profit out of his trusteeship or from or out of those for whom he stands in trust. This law is undoubted and well settled and I should suppose universally known. But, known or unknown, it is the law as laid down in our and all British courts for centuries. It is forbidden and illegal that a trustee be allowed to make profits out of, or by or through his office. This general rule was established to keep trustees to the straight line of duty, that they may not derive any personal advantage from their trusteeship. Their whole duty is to their trust and to those for whom they act. This principle is strictly adhered to and applies to all persons clothed with a fiduciary relationship. It makes no difference that no financial loss was incurred by reason of insurance with Mr. Hill's Companies, as I find to be the fact. Such has been held in the highest courts over and over again. The principle is at stake, the conflict between self interest and duty, and they must not be allowed to clash or appear to.

Contrary to Equitable Principles.

Some evidence was given to show actual loss sustained, but I do not think this was shown to exist. I find the contrary. But it matters not as to the legality whether the public lost thereby or not. Let me quote from the highest court in the realm:

"It is an equitable rule which has "always been guarded and enforced "with the utmost jealousy, that no "fiduciary agent shall intentionally "place himself in a position in "which his interest may conflict "with his duty. The rule is not a "mere arbitrary or technical rule "of equity, but it is based upon "high grounds of morality, and "Courts of Equity have always held "any departure from it to be a very "serious wrong-doing. The equitable rule referred to does not in "any way depend upon fraud or any "presumption of advantage actually "taken; indeed it applies equally, "even though it be shown that no "advantage has been taken. The "rule is made general in order to "prevent the danger arising from "the difficulty of proving in particular cases that duty had given "way to interest. Honesty or purpose on the part of fiduciary "agents together with a meaning to "act for the benefit of the principle "(in this case the public) would not "and cannot avail as a defence."

No Exceptions.

Absence of loss was urged as a defence but as shown above it cannot prevail.

A clause in the Insurance Act of 1910 was also pressed as a justification, but I do not think it touches the point in issue at all. Even if it did, it could only apply to payments since 1910, and could have no reference to the long line of payments prior to that date.

HAD WEAK HEART
HAD TO STAY IN BED

Many women are kept in a state of fear of death, become weak, worn and miserable, and are unable to attend to their household, social or business duties, on account of the unnatural action of the heart.

To all such sufferers Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills will give prompt and permanent relief. They do this by their calming, strengthening and invigorating action on the heart causing it to beat regularly and naturally, and in addition to this they tone up the whole nerve system.

Mrs. J. Day, 234 John St. South, Hamilton, Ont., writes: "I was so run down with a weak heart that I could not even sweep the floor, nor could I sleep at night. I was so awfully sick sometimes I had to stay in bed all day as I was so weak. I used three and a half boxes of Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills, and I am a cured woman to-day, and as strong as anyone could be, and am doing my own housework, even my own washing.

"I doctored for over two years, but got no help until I used your pills."

Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills are 50c per box, 3 boxes for $1.25. They can be had at all druggists or dealers, or will be mailed direct on receipt of price by The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

Cobourg Game Was Fiasco Will Have To Be Replayed

Trouble Due to The Fact That O. H. A. Referee Did Not Arrive In Time to Handle The Game—Cobourg Were Leading But Soldiers Looked Like Winners.

SIX MINUTES TO PLAY

With six minutes to play, and with Cobourg leading by 5 goals to 4, but with the 93rd going at a clip that made their ultimate victory look certain, last night's Intermediate O.H.A. game at Cobourg wound up in a dispute, and as a result Secretary Hewitt of the O.H.A. has ordered the game to be re-played at Cobourg on Friday night. The trouble was due to the fact that Referee Rowden, of Port Hope, whose services had been secured by the O.H.A. at the last moment, did not arrive on time, and as a result the game was started under a double referee system, Ken. Payne, the old Cobourg player, acting as referee, and Lieut. Quackenbush of the 93rd, officiating as judge of play. The game worried along until the middle of the second period, when the two officials changed places, Lieut. Quackenbush taking up the referee's duties, while the Cobourg man checked over the rough work. There were frequent disputes with the Cobourg team, and the climax came in the last period when, with the soldiers pressing hard, Referee Quackenbush inflicted a penalty on Guy, the Cobourg captain, for persistently getting offside in a face-up. Guy refused to accept the decision, and there was a long dispute, during which Cobourg insisted on Rowden, the officially appointed referee, handling the bell for the balance of the game. In the midst of the argument Referee Quackenbush called the teams to the ice, and when Cobourg did not appear, faced the puck twice to allow the 93rd to score two goals, and then declared the game forfeited to the soldiers. Finally Secretary Hewitt, of the O.H.A., was communicated with over the 'phone, with the result that the game was called off, and ordered to be played in Cobourg on Friday night.

Leaving out the fiasco at the finish, it was a freak game of hockey all the way. The ice was in poor condition, honey-combed and wattery, and anything but conducive to good hockey. The first period was practically even up hockey, with the soldiers having edge enough to lead by 1 to 0 at the end of the session. Then Cobourg came back in the second period and badly outplayed the visitors. They blanked the soldiers while they hung up five goals themselves, and looked like winners all over when the teams left the ice at the end of the period. The last session, however, saw a complete reversal of form. Right from the face off the soldiers stormed around the Cobourg nets, and from then on the Lake Shore bunch were back on their last line of defence. The 93rd had scored three goals, and looked good for more when the dispute that wound up the game occurred.

The rink bothered the soldiers, especially the poor lighting, Widdifield in the nets having difficulty in locating the rubber at times. For the 93rd Blewett and Ketchum did very effective work on the wings, the latter being especially good in the last period. Windsor was always dangerous around the nets.

For Cobourg Butler, in the nets, was very clever. Drumm showed speed and stick-handling abiljty, and Lavis did good work on the forward line. Reddy's shooting was responsible for three of Cobourg's goals.

The teams lined up as follows:

Cobourg.		93rd.
	Goal
Butler		Widdifield
	Defence
Guy		Montgomery
Drumm		Dupuy
	Rover
Lavis		Sexton
	Centre
For		Windsor
	Right Wing
Reddy		Blewett
	Left Wing
McMahon		Ketchum

The 93rd team was accompanied by their brass band and by over 200 officers and men of the battalion, and the outing was enjoyed. On reaching Cobourg the boys in khaki fell in at the station and, headed by the band, marched to the rink, where they soon made their presence known. The band played at every opportunity throughout the game, and made a fine impression upon the people of Cobourg.

The game was late in starting, and there were frequent delays all through. The 93rd got the only goal in the first period, when Windsor racked the puck from behind the nets and shoved it past Butler. The soldiers had the edge in this period.

Cobourg came back strong in the second period. They soon tied up the score on a fluke play, when McMahon shot from the corner. The puck hit Widdifield on the head and then rolled down his back into the net. Soon after Reddy put Cobourg ahead by a neat shot from the side. The right wing player made it 3 to 1 shortly afterwards after a three-man rush. McMahon added another from a scrimmage, and Reddy came back with No. 5 on a pretty side shot. It looked like Cobourg at this stage, but after the rest period the 93rd came back strong and had it all over the Lake Shore bunch. Within the first minute Ketchum scored when he followed in his own shot and hammered in the rebound. He added another thirty seconds afterwards. Windsor made it 5 to 4 when he batted in a rebound off a shot by Sexton. Then came the dispute. Well, they'll settle it Friday night.

SCHOOL TRUSTEE SHOULD NOT MAKE PROFIT OUT OF POSITION

Smallness of Profits No Excuse.

It was further urged that the amounts were small and should not be considered. The principle of right and wrong, of legality or illegality, is in issue, and the paucity of the profits taken, in my mind but adds to the pity of it, that it should have occurred at all. I should prefer to assume that the gentlemen referred to were ignorant of the priniple of law or equity involved, or else thoughtless beyond degree, otherwise it is impossible for me to understand how their action can be reconciled with good faith. But this doctrine has been so long and so firmly established in our courts, that but for the facts as I find them, I would have supposed it universally known and adhered to by gentlemen of the standing of these trustees, wholly apart from the oath of office taken.

The Public Most Concerned.

It is further urged in extenuation that it was all agreed and consented to by those interested. That cannot be so ;the public, not the co-trustees, are the ones interested and it must be assumed the public knew nothing of it. The public had no means of knowledge. The payments were made and published in the name of the Company, not the agents. If the co-trustees knew things as they were, they must share the blame; if they did not know, they could and should have known, but if they did not know, then the commission is what is known as a secret commission which makes the matter worse.

But Mr. Ackerman and Mr. Thompson, Secretary of the Board, say they knew of the transactions and think all other members of the Board were equally conversant.

Although no charges were made against Mr. John Crane, another trustee, it came out in evidence that he as agent of the Phoenix Insurance Company, had $10,000.00 insurance on school property and had received to his own use 15 p.c. of the commission paid, a net gain to him of $10.00 or $11.00 in the past three years.

His bills were made out to the Company, not to himself, but he is not a regular insurance agent and the bill was made out in his usual way. He made no departure from his regular method to give even the appearance of subterfuge, but I must find and report (most regretfully as also in Mr. Hill's case) that he, a trustee, also illegally received and retained the commissions referred to.

The Typewriter Case.

Another matter remains for me to report on—what was known as the typewriter transaction. A supply of new typewriting machines was needed for the Collegiate Institute. The agent (one Carolan) for the Unedrwood machine canvassed the situation, trustees and teachers, and made what was apparently a most advantageous offer to supply the whole lot and take in part payment the old machines. His object in so doing was of course that the pupils would learn to use his machine and no other, and when graduated and expressing their preference based on this limited knowledge and experience, would form good advertising agents for the Underwood and extend its sales.

At first Mr. Hill, perhaps wisely, objected on the ground that it was better the pupils should learn to use various machines. The matter was referred to a committee to report. Before the report, the same agent canvassed Mr. Hill and succeeded in selling him three machines for his own office at a reduced price. When the matter came up in the Board again Mr. Hill did not oppose the exclusive purchase of ten Underwoods for the Collegiate. It is urged that this reduction in price was a direct gain to Mr. Hill in the nature of a profit to him, offered and taken as a bribe to withdraw his opposition to the school purchase. The agent also applied for some life insurance with Mr. Hill at or about the same time. The agent may have intended, and I think did intend, all this to influence Mr. Hill, but I refuse to find that Mr. Hill was influenced in any way. I would have preferred hearing his own explanation, but even in its absence, there were other and valid reasons given which may well have led to his change of mind in the matter. A very cogent reason was a strong recommendation of Mr. Jamieson, the Commercial Master, urging the purchase of all Underwoods, pointing out its relative excellence, the low price at which they were offered, and the advantage to pupil and teacher of using only one kind of machine. I prefer to think this was the reason of Mr. Hill's withdrawal of opposition, though he does not say so, and I regret and reprobate the theory of his being bribed by reduction of price to him. Such was never mentioned by the agent to him and I refuse to believe it ever seriously ocurred in this light to Mr. Hill.

Mr. Ackerman's Case.

After evidence and argument were complete and after waiting some time for further information as requested by me, Mr. Moore for Mr. B. E. Ackerman, Chairman of the Board, asked to have the matter re-opened. This was granted and on 14th January instant, the matter was taken up again. Nothing derogatory to Mr. Ackerman had been stated before the, but he wished to have considered certain letters written by Mr. Gordon in the election campaign of a year ago—some parts of which Mr. Ackerman construed as a reflection upon himself as well as others. I admitted and heard all the evidence proferred. Various matters were touched upon. I do not find the existence of any "ring" on the School Board, though just what that means I am not sure and was not enlightened. Mr. Ackerman was the only member of the Board who voluntarily came forward and gave or proffered evidence. He frankly stated that some years since he had sold at a profit, certain oil to the Board. The quantity was not specified though said to be not large. The reason given was that he procured it more cheaply—he thought the Board was paying an exorbitant price for it elsewhere. This continued for some little time, when it occurred to Mr. Ackerman that such dealings were in contravention of his oath of office. To his credit he at once stopped it. Such sales were illegal and should not have been made, even with the best possible intent — but they have long since ceased and such contracts do not now exist.

I find no evidence to indicate that Mr. Ackerman or any other member of the Board made a profit out of the building of the new schools.

Window Blind Purchase.

The purchase of blinds for the new East and West Ward schools came in for some criticism. I find no tenders therefor were asked or received. Mr. Robert Fair offered to the Board to procure them through his place of business and sell them to the Board at 5 p.c. advance on cost for his profit adding also the actual cost of fitting and putting them up. He produced his invoice, but it now comes out for the first time that in addition to his 5 p.c. profit he received also an additional 5 p.c. cash discount from the wholesale house from which he bought, making his total profit 10 p.c. instead of 5 p.c. Mr. Fair at this time was not a member of the Board, but had been a member the previous year. Mr. Fair in the transaction acted as agent for his business house, a limited company, not his alone nor even a partnership. The total amount paid to Mr. Fair was $509.73.

Question of Deputations.

The question of expenditure for deputations, etc., came up for consideration, objected to in Mr. Gordon's letters. In the four years, 1911-1914 the sum of $222.02 was spent for this purpose. In the year 1915 after Mr Gordon's election, only $8.00 was so spent. These expenditures were said to have been chiefly for attending conventions recommended by the Education Department. Whether such expenditures were wise or not I do not feel called upon to express an opinion. They were, I think, purely a question of domestic or interior economy to be determined by the good sense and judgment of the trustees themselves and the imporance of the requirements.

Purchase of School Desks.

The purchase of desks for the new schools was also criticised. Tenders were asked for and that of Mr. Comstock, the lowest tenderer, was accepted. It subsequently transpired that the special desk asked for by the Inspector was made by a company whose exclusive agent here was Mr. Belleghem, and Mr. Comstock could not supply it. Consequently Mr. Belleghem's tender was later on accepted, though considerably higher, thus resulting in a financial loss to the Board, as Mr Comstock has not been asked or sued for the difference. The choice of desks and wisdom of suit against Mr. Comstock is also a matter question of policy of the Board, not a legal question for me to determine.

Grading of Grounds.

The grounds on the new schools were graded, seeded and sodded by day labour—no tenders being asked for: this is also questioned. An architect gave an estimate of the cost at $3,000.00. It was done by day labour for a trifle under $1800.00 The estimate was either wild or the work cheaply done—probably both. But I am not shown that this would have been done better or more cheaply if tenders had been asked for. Generally speaking, in affairs public or semi-public, tender is held to be the proper method, but not [illegible] I should not criticise this transaction and see no ground for criticism. It is again a case of internal economy and combined judgment and wisdom, or the contrary, of the Board.

Some other matters were mentioned incidentally in evidence and argument but I do not think them sufficiently important for special reference here.

I am unable to find any serious financial loss accruing to the public through or on account of any of the matters brought to my attention.

Should Cancel Insurance.

The only special recommendation I make, and I make it strongly, is this: That all existing insurance on school property held or effected by agents who are also trustees should be cancelled and discontinued forthwith. These gentlemen should choose or be made to choose, between being school trustees and insurance agents insuring school property. The principle—or lack of it— of a trustee making a profit out of his trusteeship or those for whom he acts in trust is indefensible; such transactions and profits are wholly illegal, vicious in principle and dangerous in practice.

All of which is respectfully submitted.

It has always been said horses "sleep with one eye open" and are constantly on guard. An Indian shod in cotton felt moccasins, practicing all the sly arts of his people, could not, with the wind in his favor, approach a sleeping horse without being detected. No odds how weary a horse may be, his ears are constantly turning and twisting, so that their funnels may catch the slightest unusual noises.—Inland Farmer.

Kent, England.
Jan. 13th, 1916.

Dear Mrs. Sherwood, — I am now having the pleasure of writing to you to thank the kind members of St. John's Church for the parcels which the boys and myself have just received. We are all very pleased with them, and it is quite a treat to get such nice things from our kind friends in Peterborough. I told the boys they were coming before Christmas, and they were all so disappointed that they had not come. But we got them this morning. Now I must thank you all very, very much for them, and wish you all a happy and prosperous New Year.

Again thanking you. I am, yours sincerely,

E. Hosking.

Young 18-Year Old Girl Auctioned For Fifty-Five Dollars

NEW YORK, Feb. 1.—How she was kidnapped, stripped of her clothes and auctioned on block in an Italian New York white slave market for $55, was told by pretty 18-year-old Maria Klein, daughter of Rev. Charles Klein of Bethany Reformed Church, here, to-day, following her rescue and the capture of "Jimmy Naples," her alleged kidnapper. She had been missing since Dec 16. Naples once befriended Miss Klein when hoodlums attacked her on her way home from organ practice at the church, and had won the confidence of her parents.

A CHAT ABOUT ROSES

Written For The Examiner by W. H. Young, 592 Chamberlain St.

"They who grow roses must have roses in their heart." I may say I adore them and to me there is no other flower to compare with them. Believing there is an interest growing among the people of Peterborough in roses, I will endeavour to give them a few hints on the best kinds and how to grow them. Many people have tried to grow them and failed. Very likely it wasn't their own fault. It was simply because they began wrong. They bought their plants from a store where there is no one to back them up or with a reputation to uphold as regards their reliability. Those who get the plants to grow usually grew them year after year without ever seeing a bloom, or perhaps they bought an American Beauty and when it bloomed it was a Baltimore Bell or something like it. To show how one usually starts wrong, a friend of mine bought two rose plants last year from a store such as I have mentioned. Great things were expected of them. When I heard the names of them I offered to give a dollar for every bloom produced, but I wasn't called on, although my friend felt like tieing a bloom or two on. The plants were cheap and that was the only favourable thing about them.

There are three great classes of roses, Hybrid Perpetual, Hybrid Tea and Tea. The first named class produces some grand roses and they are all very hardy. Unfortunately they should never have been named Perpetual, as the majority of them bloom in June and are then done for a season, although some do bloom again in the fall. There are three notable exceptions in Mrs. J. Laing, colour pink; Hugh Dickson, colour crimson, and Frau Karl Druschki, colour pure white, which bloom profusely for this class. In the Hybrid Teas we have the most popular class of the present day. They start to bloom in June and keep it up until the frost cuts them off. Many of the varieties lack the substance of the Perpetuals, that is they are semi double and there are also some grand single varieties which have been awarded the gold medal of the National Rose Society, the hall mark for any rose. This class has developed what is called the Decorative rose, plants that bloom lavishly but are not generally of much use as exhibition blooms. Here is a good dozen Hybrid Teas fit for exhibition purposes, Avoca, crimson scarlet, Bessie Brown, creamy white, British Queen, white, Dean Hole, carmine salmon, Edward Mawley, velvety crimson, Ethel Malcolm, ivory white, George Dickson, deep crimson, J. J. L. Mock, pink Leslie Holland, scarlet, Lyon Rose shrimp pink, Mildred Grant, creamy white, Madame M. Soupert, yellow and carmine.

Tea roses are the daintiest of all roses. They are supposed to be not quite so hardy as the others, but I winter them outdoors along with the rest and they come through all right. They bloom freely and their lovely blooms put you in mind of a lady dressed up for some high occasion, where the two are usually in evidence. We get all our best yellow roses in this class. There is the great Marechal Neil, lemon yellow, with a delicious perfume, also the Gloire de Dijon, buff yellow, a very hardy rose. Visitors to Britain may have seen some of the cottages smothered up with its hundreds of bloom, Lady Hillingdon is another beautiful yellow, already known to some Peterborough people. The Bride, white, and Bridesmaid, pink, are also pretty well known, as you can generally see them in the florists.

There is another class of rose developing which is called Pernetians, after [illegible] Pernet-Ducher. Two roses of this class that have a great future are Rayon d'Or and Madame Edouard Herriot. These roses are beautiful even though not in bloom, as the foliage is like the leaves of the Barberry. Rayon d'Or is a yellow rose streaked and splashed scarlet. Madame Herriot is prawn red. It is just like a flame when full bloom. A bed of these two roses would make a great show, bordered with pansies of one colour. As I have mentioned before, if one starts right in growing roses, there won't be much fear of the results. A big deep hole should be dug when planting, some old manure placed in the bottom, then some soil over it. Roots must not touch the manure. Plant firmly by treading with the foot; that is if the soil is not wet. After growth starts keep the plants clean by syringing at least once a week. Don't wait until the plants are covered with insects. Most of them hate water. About once a month use a few crystals of permanganate of potash in the water when syringing. If mildew appears use flower of sulphur. Get an old pepper box and shake it on the affected parts. To get bloom one should also feed the plant with liquid manure. Cow manure is best. The best way to apply it is by scooping a little cavity round the plant and after it is soaked in trim up again. Never use it if the ground is dried out, but soak first with clean water. Once a week is often enough to do this. One other thing I would like to draw attention to. Most of our roses are grafted on the briar. The reason this is done is because it has been found that most roses bloom with greater freedom than on their own roots. Therefore one has to keep a lookout that the briar shoots are not allowed to grow. It is quite easy to distinguish between the real rose and the briar. Most roses have five leaves on the bract and briars always have seven. So when they appear they should at once be cut out. If allowed to grow they will smother out the real rose. As I have said at the beginning of this article start right by buying reliable plants and one will be sure of the results if they are cared for. I hope this little chat will be of some interest to those who love roses.

"CASCARETS" BEST IF HEADACHY, BILIOUS SICK, CONSTIPATED,

Best for Liver and Bowels, Bad Breath, Bad Colds, Sour Stomach

Get a 10-cent box.

Sick headaches, biliousness, coated tongue, head and nose clogged up with a cold—always trace this to torpid liver; delayed, fermenting food in the bowels or sour, gassy stomach.

Poisonous matter clogged in the intestines, instead of being cast out of the system is re-absorbed into the blood. When this poison reaches the delicate brain tissue it causes congestion and that dull, throbbing, sickening headache.

Cascarets immediately cleanse the stomach, remove the sour, undigested food and foul gases, take the excess bile from the liver and carry out all the constipated waste matter and poisons in the bowels.

A Cascaret to-night will surely straighten you out by morning. They work while you sleep—a 10-cent box from your druggist means your head clear, stomach sweet, breath right, complexion rosy and your liver and bowels regular for months.

SUNDAY SCHOOL CONVENTION

ANNUAL CONFERENCE WAS HELD IN THE Methodist Church Lakefield

LAKEFIELD, Feb. 1.—The annual Sunday School convention of Smith Township and Lakefield Village was held in the Methodist Church, Lakefield, on Thursday, January 27th.

The afternoon session was opened by the singing of Hymn 587, followed by the 19th Psalm, read by the President, Mr. A. Mann.

The speakers for the afternoon were Miss Laine, and the Reverend Mr. Galt.

Miss Lane gave an interesting and practical address on the subject "Lesson Preparation." The Rev. Mr. Galt dealt, in his address, on the subjects of Efficiency, and Prayer.

Reports were received from the various Sunday Schools. These reports were very encouraging. The President also gave a report of his year's work.

A Round Table Conference, led by Miss Laine, closed the afternoon session.

Executive Meeting.

Following the afternoon meeting an Executive meeting was held in order to nominate new officers. Supper was served in the basement to the out-of-town visitors.

The evening session was opened by devotional exercises, led by the Rev. Mr. Barrett.

The nominating committee brought in a report of the officers for the ensuing year. The officers are as follows:

President—Mr. A. Mann.
1st Vice Pres.—Mr. Geo. Spence.
2nd Vice Pres.—Mr. Geo. Payne.
Secretary—Mr. Fred Bell.
Elementary Dept.—Mrs. Jos. Mann
Secondary Dept.—Mr. John Harrison.
Missionary Dept.—Mrs. T. Waldon.
Adult Bible Class—Mr. J. A. Porter
Teachers Training Class.—Rev. Mr Galt.
Temperance—Mr. Riddell.
Home Department—Miss E. Jory.
Next year's meeting place—Selwyn Baptist Church.

Messrs. Ellmon and Riddell sang a duett which was followed by an address by the Rev. Mr. Robison. Mr. Robison dealt with the subject of 'Example, Its Effect on the Child Life."

Miss Lane gave an address on "The Teacher's Vision."

An important item of the evening's programme was a quartette composed of Mrs. F. Richardson, Miss E. Payne Messrs. Kennedy and Higgins.

The conference was closed by a vote of thanks tendered to the ladies of the church for their hospitality, and to the speakers and all those who assisted.

The Original Method.

Katherine and Margaret found themselves seated next each other at a dinner party and immediately became confidential.

"Molly told me that you told her that secret I told yo unot to tell her," whispered Margaret.

"Oh, isn't she a mean thing!" gasped Katherine. "Why, I told her not to tell you!"

"Well," returned Margaret, "I told her I wouldn't tell you she told me—so don't tell her I did"—Everybody's.

"One of my daughters has sensibilities," exclaimed Mr Growler "and the other has sprained her wrist. "That's hard luck." "Yes; nothing seems to work out in the way it ought to. The one who sprained her wrist sings, and the one with a sore throat plays the piano."

MYSTERY OF FALL OF MAUBEUGE IS NOW CLEARED UP

PARIS, Jan. 11—(By Mail)—The mystery of the fall of Maubeuge has at last been cleared up, after seventeen months of rumors and doubts. Instead of the surrender of the French fortress having been due to treason, as intimated by German sources, the defense of the citadel is said to have been one of the brilliant actions of the war.

In an exclusive interview with a French officer, a member of the staff of General Fournier, military governor of Maubeuge, who has reached this country after escaping from a German prison, where he was sent with the other officers of the garrison, the whole story in detail was made known.

A New Belfort.

"Maubeuge was not another Metz," he said, "but a new Belfort. General Fournier began fortifying the approaches to the palace on Aug. 2, working 6,000 laborers with 25,000 territorials. They dug 12 miles of trenches around the city, showing great forethought, as at that time trench fighting had not begun. They strung one million square yards of barbed wire on a million and a half stakes and stationed fifty mobile batteries of artillery at strategic points, as well as many dummy batteries to fool the enemy.

"The city was invested towards the end of August by 85,000 Germans against our 80,000 territorials. The Germans were commanded by General Von Zwehl in the presence of the kaiser's nephew, Prince Leopold of Prussia. For nine days a furious battle raged, all the German heavy artillery being brought up from Liege and Namur including the 305 milimeter and 420 milimeter howitzers. Ceaselessly shells rained on the forts day and night, causing a reign of terror, for in addition to the city's residents there were 40,000 refugees, mostly women, children and old people from the north, quartered in the town.

Spies on Job For Years.

"The German shell fire was directed by aeroplanes and spies who had been on the job for years, living in Maubeuge and ostensibly engaged in business there. One by one the fifty batteries were picked off. The arsenal was fired by a German shell and 2,000 French shells exploded inside at one time. People all over the city were knocked down by the force of the explosion. The water, gas, electricity, telephones and telegraph were instantly cut off and the city, including the hospitals, was burning.

"Outside the city, in the trenches, the troops fought without relief as we were prevented from reaching them by a curtain of artillery fire. We made four sorties, once charging to within 200 yards of the German mortars.

"The city wrecked and on fire, our ammunition exploded and means of resistance dwindled. General Fournier surrendered on Sept. 8, when the Germans began hurling shells into the quarters packed with refugees. The fight on would have meant but one thing; the slaughter of women and babies.

"When the Germans entered they were astonished to find it defended only by territorials. They believed they were attacking a big garrison of actives. In recognition of the brave defense of the citadel, von Zwehl told Fournier to keep his sword. Fournier refused because the other officers were not granted the same courtesy. He said:

"Whatever their lot is, I will share it. What is good enough for them is good enough for me."

Fournier Heartbroken.

"General Fournier was sent to the military prison at Torgu, in Silesia. He is a heartbroken man, but proud. He held out against tremendous odds, sustaining what was certainly the mightiest bombardment the world has ever seen.

"Before the Germans entered all arms and other war materials were destroyed and regimental flags burned to keep them from falling into the enemy's hands.

"Fournier's defense of Maubeuge was not merely heroic; it was of great military value. During the battle of the Marne which ended in a crushing defeat of the Germans after several critical days he held up 65,000 of the flower of the kaiser's army. After the fall of Maubeuge it was too late for these men to do anv good; the tide at the Marne had turned on Sept. 8 and two days later it was complete. Had Fournier not held out as he did, and had he let the Germans pass without opposition, things might very conceivably have turned out another way.

"The rumors of treason scattered by Germans in order to demoralize French troops had absolutely no foundation in fact."

DO THIS FIRST—YOU!

You know, and every physician knows, that when any sickness has passed, whether it be throat trouble, organic disturbances, contagious diseases, or even a severe cold, a relapse is feared, because sickness robs the system of Nature's resistance and leaves it subject to lingering germs.

Drugs never build up a worn-out body—only food can do that, and the first thing to take after any sickness is the concentrated, blood-making oil-food in Scott's Emulsion, which feeds the tissues, benefits the blood and strengthens both lungs and throat.

Physicians prescribe Scott's Emulsion after sickness. Nurses everywhere advocate it. Scott's is pure medicinal food, without injurious drugs.

H. C. TENNYSON KILLED.

Grandson of the Poet Was Not Yet 20 Years of Age.

LONDON, Jan. 31.—The Tennyson family received news to-day of the death of Naval Lieut. Harold C. Tennyson, greatgrandson of the poet. No details were given.

The above probably refers to the Hon. Harold C. Tennyson, who is a grandson of the poet. He would have been twenty years old this year and when last listed was a midshipman.

CLEANSES YOUR HAIR MAKES IT BEAUTIFUL, THICK, GLOSSY, WAVY

Try This! All Dandruff Disappears and Hair Stops Coming Out

Surely try a "Danderine Hair Cleanse" if you wish to immediately double the beauty of your hair. Just moisten a cloth with Danderine and draw it carefully through your hair, taking one small strand at a time; this will cleanse the hair of dust, dirt or any excessive oil—in a few minutes you will be amazed. Your hair will be wavy, fluffy and abundant and possess an incomparable softness, lustre and luxuriance.

Besides beautifying the hair, one application of Danderine dissolves every particle of dandruff! invigorates the scalp, stopping itching and falling hair.

Danderine is to the hair what fresh showers of rain and sunshine are to vegetation. It goes right to the roots, invigorates and strengthens them. Its exhilarating, stimulating and life-producing properties cause the hair to grow long, strong and beautiful.

You can surely have pretty, soft, lustrous hair, and lots of it, if you will just get a 25-cent bottle of Knowlton's Danderine from any drug store or toilet counter and try it as directed.

To save breakage it is well to provide the small child just able to feed himself or herself, with white enamel ware cups, saucers and plates. This ware looks quite dainty and is practically proof against breakage.

HAMS OF WESTPHALIA.

Processes by Which They Are Cured and Flavored.

The famous Westphalian hams, which are eaten without cooking, are cured by an elaborate process that has been worked out patiently and skillfully by generations of expert workmen.

After being rubbed thoroughly with a solution in which there are 100 pounds of salt to one pound of saltpeter, the hams are placed on cement floors, or in vats, and thickly strewn with salt. They lie under salt for two weeks and then pass to a vat that contains a 22 per cent solution of brine. They remain in that solution for eighteen days. Every day they are shifted in the vat; the hams on the bottom are brought to the top, and vice versa.

At the end of the eighteen days the hams are packed, one upon another, in a cool, dry cellar, where they remain for four weeks, in order to ripen—that is, to take on color and become tender. Then the salt is washed off with a stiff brush dipped in lukewarm water, and the hams are put to soak for twelve hours in fresh water. After that they are ready for the smokehouse.

The smokehouses are two or three stories high, with holes bored in the flooring. The fires are kindled on the ground floor, and the meat is hung on the second and third floors. The fires are made entirely of beech wood, but the workmen constantly throw juniper berries and juniper twigs on the embers. The fire burns brightly. It is checked with beech wood sawdust whenever it burns too briskly.

The smoking continues for about eight days. Under the ancient curing methods, however, the hams were often kept in the smoke rooms for six weeks, and it is by this latter method that the best hams are still made by the country folk of Westphalia.

Difficult State of Mind.

"We're all fretted up," remarked Three Fingered Sam, "since Bronco Bob got engaged to the schoolma'am."

"I should think a tender sentiment would improve his disposition."

"His disposition is improved, but it's uncertain. If you don't brag about what a purty gal the schoolma'am is he feels disappointed, and if you brag too much he gets jealous."—Spokane Spokesman-Review.

Giving Him Room.

"The orchestra is too crowded."

"They will have to sit tight."

"But the trombone player hasn't room to work his slide."

"I can't give him any more room laterally. I'll cut a hole in the floor if he likes."—Kansas City Journal.

Felt Like It.

"Did you come back on an all steel train?"

"When the waiters and porters finished plucking me I felt sure that it was."—Birmingham Age-Herald.

Blissful Ignorance.

He—They say he has more money than he knows what to do with. She—Ah, such ignorance must be bliss!—Boston Transcript.

AN IMPORTANT LETTER FROM NIAGARA FALLS.

Niagara Falls, Ont.—"I was miserable, tired out and dragging around. My legs could scarcely support me. My husband had read about 'Favorite Prescription' and he got me to use it. I used four bottles and the results were surprising. I got stronger, was less nervous, my appetite improved and I felt like a new person. It is the best medicine for women I have ever heard of."—Mrs. A. C. Brown, 39 Clifton Ave., Niagara Falls, Ont.

There is nothing that will bring comfort and renew hope to the invalid so surely as good news. When the vital forces are at a low ebb and everything seems useless, a ray of joy and assurance will stimulate the weary body to new effort and energy. A letter from a loved one has turned the tide in many a siege of sickness.

Doctor Pierce, of the Invalids' Hotel, Buffalo, N. Y., has good news for every suffering woman. Write him to-day and tell him your troubles, and he will send you just the right advice to restore you to health and bring back the roses to your cheeks, and without charge. His "Favorite Prescription" has been the means of thousands of suffering women. Many grateful patients have taken Dr. Pierce's advice.

Mothers, if your daughters are weak, lack ambition, are troubled with headaches, languish and are pale and sickly, Doctor Pierce's Favorite Prescription is just what they need to surely bring the bloom of health to their cheeks and make them strong and healthy.

It is not a secret remedy because its ingredients are printed on wrapper. Sold in either tablet or liquid form.

WHAT A MAN READS.

It Is a Big Factor in Determining His Course of Life.

A certain low form of aquatic animal life anchors itself to a rock and feeds on whatever the current brings. The average man feeds his mind in much the same way. He falls into line for current amusements. He reads only current literature. He listens to what happens to go by. He makes but little systematic attempt to shut out the unfit or to put himself in line for the fit.

The result is a defective grade of human life that rarely elevates society and often degrades it. If a man would make the most of himself, and that is manifestly the supreme purpose for which he was put into the world, it is worth his while to do his daily work where unclean things, mental and physical, are not made common.

It makes a good deal of difference in the worth of the man today as to whether his reading last night was "Hamlet" and "Lanish" or "The Other Man's Wife," whether he went to the art institute or the burlesque show. An ancient teacher of well balanced mind gave this direction to his disciples as to the topics to be selected for deliberate thought:

"Finally, my brethren, whatsoever things are true, whatsoever things are honorable, whatsoever things are just, whatsoever things are pure, whatsoever things are lovely, whatsoever things are of good report, if there be any virtue and if there be any praise, think on these things."

To think on these things one must see and hear these things. To see and hear these things one must make an effort to do so.

Sunlight and Vegetation.

The early rays of the sun exercise a more powerful effect in promoting rapid vegetation than the sun's light during the later hours of the day. The active little chlorophyll grains work faster and better in elaborating food for the plant under the action of the blue and yellow rays of the early morning than under the later violet and blue rays. Practical gardeners should make use of this fact by growing early produce as far as possible in a position where the plants will get the full benefit of the morning sun.—London Mail.

Siberia.

Siberia comprises 5,400,000 square miles, divided into the following regions: Western Siberia, comprising the governments of Tobolsk and Tomsk and the territories of Semipalatinsk, Akmolinsk and Semiryechashensk; eastern Siberia, the governments of Irkutsk and Yeniseisk and the territories of Transbaikal, Amur, Yakutsk, the littoral and one-half of the island of Sakhalin.

Not Mercenary.

Mr. Gottrox—My daughters, young man, are both worth their weight in gold.

Suitor—The fact that I am asking you for the smaller one proves, at any rate, that I am not mercenary.—Chicago News.

For Left Handed Persons.

Enterprising manufacturers make various articles for the special benefit of left handed people. Besides scissors adjusted for their use, you can buy left handed screws, gimlets and other tools, and, most thoughtful of all contrivances, to minister to their physical peculiarity corkscrews twisted the wrong way, as a right handed person would think, for left handed butlers and waiters.—Exchange.

Simplified.

"Young Brooks is relieved of one trouble, anyhow."

"What's that?"

"He won't have to lie about his salary to the girl he's going to marry. He works for her father."—Chicago Record-Herald.

Castles of the Rhine.

It is stated that there are to be found from the source to the mouth of the Rhine 725 castles, formerly the homes of warlike chiefs.

The Jellyfish.

The bay of Naples abounds in the cassee, or jellyfish, often growing as large as two feet in diameter and weighing fifty and sixty pounds. Some of them shine at night with a green ish light and are known as nocttuca (night lanterns) by the natives. The jellyfish sometimes make migrations in great groups, sometimes so large and so thick as to impede the navigation of vessels, like the floating plants in the Sargasso sea of the tropics. These shoals of medusae, as they are called, may be so dense that a piece of timber plunged in among them will be held upright as if stuck in the mud, and ordinary rowboats cannot force their way through them. Their migrations have never been explained. They are irregular and occur at no particular season of the year and under no particular influences.

Old English Bribery.

Bribery, according to an expert on the subject, first became a recognized mode of securing votes in the reign of Charles I. It was afterward improved upon by George III., who lost no opportunity of enforcing its claims as a good vote getter. "If," he wrote to his chief adviser on one occasion, "the Duke of Northumberland requires some gold pills for the election it would be wrong not to satisfy him." The king was not altogether selfish in this matter of spending money, for the gold pills came out of his own medicine chest, the civil list, whereas his successors drew upon the secret service cash for the corruption of the voters.—London Chronicle.

Throw Away Your Eye-Glasses!

A Free Prescription

You Can Have Filled and Use at Home.

Do you wear glasses? Are you a victim of eye-strain or other eye-weaknesses? If so, you will be glad to know that there is real hope for you. Many whose eyes were failing, say they have had their eyes restored through the principle of this wonderful free prescription. One man says after trying it: "I was almost blind; could not see to read at all. Now I can read anything without glasses, and my eyes do not water any more. At night they would pain dreadfully; now they feel fine all the time. It was like a miracle to me." A lady who used it says: "The atmosphere seemed hazy with or without glasses but after using this prescription for fifteen days everything seems clear. I can even read fine print without glasses." It is believed that thousands who wear glasses can now discard them in a reasonable time and multitudes more will be able to strengthen their eyes so as to be spared the trouble and expense of ever getting glasses. Eye troubles of many descriptions may be wonderfully benefited by following the simple rules. Here is the prescription: Go to the Warner Drug Company, or to any active drug store and get a bottle of Bon-Opto. Fill a two ounce bottle with warm water, drop in one Bon-Opto tablet and allow to dissolve. With this liquid bathe the eyes two to four times daily. You should notice your eyes clear up perceptibly right from the start and inflammation will quickly disappear. If your eyes are ailing you, even a little, take steps to preserve them now before it is too late. Many hopelessly blind might have been saved if they had cared for their eyes in time. The Valmas Drug Co., of Toronto, will fill the above prescription by mail if your druggist cannot.

A Painter's Troubles.

The desire of the Bank of England officials to discover forgers has sometimes led to curious mistakes. On one occasion the painter, George Morland, in his eagerness to avoid his duns, retired to an obscure hiding place in Hackney, where his anxious looks and secluded manner of life induced some of his neighbors to believe him a forger of notes then in existence. The directors, on being informed, dispatched some dexterous detectives to the residence, but Morland's suspicions were aroused by their movements in front of the house and, thinking them bailiffs, escaped from the back to London. Mrs. Morland informed the visitors of her husband's name and showed them some unfinished pictures. The facts were reported to the directors, who presented Morland with two twenty-pound notes by way of compensation for the alarm.

Astounding Memories.

Horace Vernet is the best example of visual memory. He could paint a striking portrait of a man, life size, after having once looked at his model. Mozart had a great musical memory. Having heard thrice the "Miserere" in the Sistine chapel, he wrote down the full score of it. There are soloists who daring twenty-four hours can play the composition of other masters without ever skipping a note.

Pike's Error.

Lieutenant Pike, whose name adorns a lofty peak, was once sent to build a fort near our Mexican (Texas) border. He slipped up on his geography so badly as to place the structure well within foreign territory. It has been believed by many that his orders made ample allowance for such an error.

Entertaining.

Wilks—Did they have a good time at your reception last night? Gilks—Yes, the guests enjoyed it hugely. All my wife's arrangements went wrong.

HARD ON THE NERVES.

War Has Had a Marked Effect on Repose of Soldiers.

It is being noted by genial hosts in Great Britain, anxious to show hospitalities to returned soldiers, that though keenly undaunted as ever, the war-worn heroes have suffered badly from the strain upon their nerves.

By way of illustration the following incident is recorded:

"I was out shooting the other day with a young lieutenant who was wounded at Ypres," said a well-known sportsman yesterday. "He was a crack shot in a pheasant drive—before the war—and I never knew anybody with such a neat hand among the snipe, which means quick snapshot shooting, a cool head, and balanced judgment. But Lieut. ——, though he had completely recovered from his wounds, and is now, in fact, on his way back to business, made a very poor show in his day's shooting with me. We were walking through one of the avenues of a wood, and I noticed all the time that my companion was looking nervously to left and right of him and treading softly as a cat. Then suddenly, he burst out laughing. 'I confess,' he said, 'that I have a mortal dread of trees since that affair at Givenchy, when the Germans let fly with their machine-guns out of the wood.

"Then they came out into the open again and at the corner of the wood, barely two hundred yards distant, half a dozen guns blazed away.

"Lieut. —— immediately dived for cover.

"The impulse was too strong, and though the lieutenant apologised for it afterwards, he qualified his apology by remarking that since the war began he confessed to the strongest respect for the ostrich, which, he declared, was surely the wisest of all birds."

How to "Go Sick" Successfully.

At the military hospital attached to the barracks at D——, says a writer in an English publication, all soldiers who wish to see the doctor assemble each morning at the door of the doctor's surgery. There used to be a great deal of malingering, or "swinging the lead," as the soldiers call it, among the sufferers. This has been effectively stopped by the following notice, which has been affixed to the surgery door:

Hints to those who, for one reason or another, wish to "go sick."

1. Don't swing smartly to attention and walk briskly up to the medical officer when you have chosen an injured kneecap.
2. Don't forget that sprained wrists and ankles are always swollen.
3. Don't, on emerging from "the presence," let your friends about "Any luck?"

Those wishing for further advice should apply for any various illustrated pamphlets. The most popular are:

1. How to raise and lower your temperature.
2. How to strengthen and weaken your pulse.
3. How to get a bad tongue.
4. How to get a very bad tongue (price 1s).
5. How to make your joint swell.
6. Pellagra.
7. Useful illnesses, their duration, symptoms, and remedies.

Escorted Her Anyway.

While Robert Browning and his son Barrett were living alone in Florence the son gave one afternoon an exhibition of his new paintings in the family drawing room. To Mr. Browning was assigned the task of meeting the guests. Late in the afternoon, when the room was well filled, there appeared at the drawing room door a woman whose face was familiar. Yet Mr. Browning could not recall her name, and he judged from her appearance that she was not an invited guest.

There was embarrassment on both sides for a moment, and then the woman said eagerly: "Oh, please, Mr. Browning, I'm the cook. Mr. Barrett said as I was to come and see his pretty pictures."

Whereupon Mr. Browning, offering his arm, showed her about the room with all the attention that he could have bestowed upon a reigning queen.

Doubtful Praise.

Mr. Lowbrow—Don't you think Miss Sweetthing is a very attractive young woman?

Miss Highbrow—Oh, very. She is indeed, exactly like the center of gravity—weighing nothing in herself and attracting everything to her.—Richmond Times-Dispatch.

Afflicted with Lame Back

THREE YEARS AGO
COULD NOT SWEEP THE FLOOR.

Women are coming to understand that weak, lame and aching backs from which they suffer so much excruciating pain and agony are due to wrong action of the kidneys.

The kidneys are overtaxed—given more work than they can do, and when the back aches and pains it is hard for a woman to look after her household duties, for no woman can be strong and well when the kidneys are out of order.

On the first sign of any weakness in the back Doan's Kidney Pills should be taken. They go right to the seat of the trouble, cure the weak, aching back, and prevent any serious kidney trouble liable to follow.

Mrs. L. Gonshaw, 663 Manning Ave., Toronto, Ont., writes: "I take great pleasure in writing you, stating the benefit I have received by using Doan's Kidney Pills. About three years ago I was terribly afflicted with lame back, and was so bad I could not even sweep the floor. I was advised to use Doan's Kidney Pills, and before I had used one box there was a great improvement, and my back was completely cured. I highly recommend 'Doan's' for lame back."

Doan's Kidney Pills are 50c per box, 3 boxes for $1.25; at all dealers, or mailed direct on receipt of price by The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

...An... Experiment

By DONALD CHAMBERLIN

I'd been plantin' corn all day, and when I started for hum I met Martha Hodges.

"Evenin', Mr. Rogers," she said. "On your way home, I reckon. It must be mighty pleasant to have such a nice home as yours to go to after a hard day's work."

"It used to be 'long as mother and Anna lived, but now it's kind a lonesome. Besides, when a feller's tired out he don't want to cook his supper and wash dishes."

"Why don't you git married? Then you'd have some one to do your cookin' for you and wash the dishes and take keer o' the house."

"Waal," I said, kind o' thinkin' out loud, "I don't know but that's a good idee. But it ain't so simple as would appear. Furst off, a feller's got to find the gal he wants, and to make it a go she's got to want him. Then, s'posin' it is a go, it's easy and cheap enough to git married; you kin git a parson to do the job for whatever you like to pay. Now, I can't hitch two critters together and expect 'em to travel easy. Furst off, one on 'em 'll plunge for'ard, and t'other 'll hang back. Then one on 'em 'll balk when the other is set down to a stiddy gait. That's the way it is when two persons begin to travel the matrimonial road together. And, s'posin' that instead of gettin' used to the same kind o' goin' they git wuss and wuss, what you goin' to do then?"

"Oh, Mr. Rogers," says Martha, "you're a pessimist, and the worst kind of a one."

"I don't know what that is, but I do know that gittin' married is like buyin' a pig in a poke. You kin see the gal plain enough on the outside, but you don't know what she is on the inside. She may be white as snow on the surface, and not two inches down she may be a smouldering fire, ready to burst out at any moment."

"I'll tell you what I'll do with you. Reckon you don't want me, and I'm not hankerin' to git married. You kin experiment on me if you like, and if you don't find out at the end o' six months that I'm what you took me for in the beginnin' I'll agree with you that wimmen is mighty deceptive."

"Well, now, that's accommodatin', I declare," I says to her. "When shall I begin?"

"Whenever you like."

"I'll commence tonight, when I've had supper and got the dishes washed."

"You needn't mind about the dishes. Jest you let 'em alone tonight. Tomorrer when you're outt to work I'll go in and tidy up for you and do your dishes. Where'll I find the door key?"

She'd started on, and I didn't say no more. I went on hum, got my supper and ask Martha at her word, leavin' the dishes in the pan. About 8 o'clock I went over to her house and found that she'd done her evenin' chores and was a-sittin' before a blazin' fire, darnin' stockin's. I thanked her for the offer she'd made me and told her when she'd convinced me that wimmen was jest as amiable as they looked I'd like for her to put me onter a nice gal that I could experiment on, with a view to marriage. She said she would if she could hit on the right gal.

I spent a couple of hours with Martha, toppin' off with some cakes and cider she brought out. The next day, when I went home at noon, I found the dishes washed, the pots and kettles shinin' like lookin' glasses and everything spick and span. By crackey, I hardly knowed the place. That was Saturday, and I thort I oughter go over the same evenin' and thank Martha. I did so, and she said that for a few weeks she'd clean up for me every Saturday.

After that every Saturday mornin' Martha put everything to rights, and I dropped in to thank her Saturday evenin'. She said she'd do it for a few weeks, but the few weeks growed into a few months.

Meanwhile I was a-watchin' her to see if she was going all the way through or only varnished. At last I told her that I was well satisfied with the experiment and I didn't think wimmen was so cussatin' after all. I'd been so encouraged by her goodness that I concluded to git married. She looked very much pleased after this and asked me who I was goin' to marry. I hadn't any one in view; but, thinkin' I oughter name somebody, inasmuch as I said I was goin' to git married, I said the gal was Matilda Blake.

"You jist oughter seen the change in Martha. Her face got red, and her eyes fairly spit fire.

"Matilda Blake!" she said, mighty scornful. "She doesn't know how to fry bacon. She couldn't sew a button on your coat. She couldn't even darn stockin's."

I said somethin in defense of Matilda, but it only made Martha madder than before. She began to abuse me more'n Matilda, and when I got a'trifle huffy she up and throwed a book at my head. I got out as quick as I could, but not before an inkstand struck me on the shoulder. It didn't hurt me, but spoiled a suit of store clothes.

The experiment was a failure. I've been cookin' and washin' dishes myself since then, and I expect to keep it up all my life.

Unsightly Pimples Covered His Face.

All diseases and blemishes of the skin are caused by the blood being in an impure condition.

You cannot make a good complexion from the outside; you must get to the seat of the trouble. You must make the blood pure and rich by taking a medicine that will drive out all the impurities and poisons from the blood; one that drives out everything from the system that is the cause of these unsightly skin eruptions.

The best blood cleansing medicine on the market to-day is Burdock Blood Bitters; a medicine that has been used with the greatest success for the past forty years; a medicine you don't experiment with when you buy it.

Mr. Leonox D. Cooke, Indian Path, N.S., writes: "I am writing you a few lines to tell you what Burdock Blood Bitters has done for me. Last winter my face was covered with pimples. I tried different kinds of medicine, and all seemed to fail. I was one day to a friend's house, and there they advised me to use B.B.B., so I purchased two bottles, and before I had them taken I found I was getting better. I got two more, and when they were finished I was completely cured. I find it is a great blood purifier, and I recommend it to all."

B.B.B. is manufactured only by The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

GOOD WORK FOR SICK WOMEN

The Woman's Medicine Has Proved Its Worth.

When Lydia E. Pinkham's remedies were first introduced, their curative powers were doubted and had to be proved. But the proof came, and gradually the use of them spread over the whole country. Now that hundreds of thousands of women have experienced the most beneficial effects from the use of these medicines, their value has become generally recognized, and Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is the standard medicine for women.

The following letter is only one of the thousands on file in the Pinkham office, at Lynn, Mass., proving that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is an article of great merit as shown by the results it produces.

Anamoss, Iowa.—"When I began taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound I suffered with a displacement, and my system was in a general run-down condition. I would have the headache for a week and my back would ache so bad when I would bend down I could hardly straighten up. My sister was sick in bed for two months and doctored, but did not get any relief. She saw an advertisement of your medicine and tried it and got better. She told me what it had done for her, and when I had taken only two bottles of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound my head began to feel better. I continued its use and now I don't have any of those troubles."—Mrs. L. J. HANNAN, R.F.D. 1, Anamoss, Iowa.

A Great Tragedy.

Ella Ashmead-Bartlett, the famous war correspondent, who was the sole representative of the British press at the Dardanelles, declares that the withdrawal from Gallipoli is the consummation of a great tragedy which has been working out since last March.

The casualties of killed, wounded, and sick have been more than 200,000, he said.

"The fault lay primarily in the military system in England, where there is no directing staff, but where the campaigns are run by certain members of the Cabinet."

He blamed Winston Churchill for conceiving and carrying through the expedition. Churchill's first error was to think that the Dardanelles could be forced by the fleet alone. He said that the choice of Sir Ian Hamilton as commander of the expedition was an unfortunate one, and cost England dearly. With only limited forces the British undertook to attack the whole Turkish Empire at an inaccessible place.

Saved the Pudding.

Mr. A. W. Yeo, the British M.P., was telling a very good story in the House the other week, which has the merit of being true. A soldier at the Front wrote home to his mother a dramatic story of the fighting at Loos at the end of September, and gave a very fair idea of its exceedingly fierce nature. At the end of the letter he finished up by saying:

"Fortunately I came through without a scratch, but the bullets were everywhere, and went through everything with the exception of the bread pudding which you sent me."

All Making Munitions.

Leeds (Eng.) manufacturers stopped their work to take on munition making. The peaceful arts of motor-building, textile machine making, printing machinery, gas-burner making, railway carriage, and locomotive building, and many others all ceased, and in their place has sprung up the greatest of all Leeds industries—shells.

WINDING THE CLOCK.

Follow This System and You May Get More Accurate Time.

You cannot secure the best services from a good watch or clock unless you know how to wind them so as to cause the least wear and irregularity in their delicate machinery.

A watch should be wound at the same time every day. If allowed to run down or even almost do so and then wound up until it will not wind any further it cannot do as perfect work as a watch that is not allowed to run to its full capacity or wound up until it is as tight as it can be made.

If a watch is wound both morning and evening at about the same hour and the key is given only enough turns to wind it a little less than half what it could be wound the watch will run more evenly, wear much longer and keep more accurate time than if it is wound up tight once a day.

A watch spring will last longer if it is wound when there is the least extreme of temperature, and morning and evening are, of course, the best in that respect.

It is more or less dangerous to wind a watch during a heavy electric storm, and it is best to avoid winding while on an electric car.

An eight day clock should be wound twice a week at as regular periods as possible to secure the best results. Never allow the clock to run down, and if possible do not wind it until it is tight.

Learn by experience just how many turns of the key it takes to wind the clock to run eight days and then when half of the week is gone wind the clock by giving the key just half as many turns as it would require to wind it all the way. More accurate time will be had and it will avoid placing any of the parts in a strain, which is frequently the cause of good clocks giving out in some particular before they have served half as long as they should.

A little attention to this advice will lengthen the life of any watch or clock and make it a better timepiece.

A Colossal Map.

A map of the visible universe upon which the astronomers of the world have been working for twenty-five years, is almost complete. It will contain every star which can be found by the most powerful telescope. The number will be less than 100,000,000. Some of the stars which will be represented have never been seen by the eye of man and probably never will be seen. They are caught and recorded by the photographic plate, which is more sensitive to light than the retina of the human eye.

Diamond Back Terrapin.

To select a real diamond back terrapin amateurs should be guided by these distinguishing and characteristic markings: It is of a greenish, dark olive color, sometimes running to spotted gray, yellow on the plate which surrounds the shell and has concentric dark stripes along the plate on both shells. The sides of the head are a dirty white, sprinkled with small black spots. The bottom shell is of whitish yellow. The males are much larger than the females and have the concentric streaks much better defined. The female has the more delicate flesh. The male can be distinguished by his tail, which are much longer than those of the female.

HIGH POWER GUNS

Long Range Weapons That Are Used In Land Warfare.

TYPES OF HEAVY ORDNANCE.

Field and Siege Guns, Howitzers and Mortars Are Very Much Akin, and It Is Difficult to Say Just Where One Ends and the Other Begins.

There is no sharp and distinct understanding on the part of the average person as to the difference or distinction between the field gun, the siege gun, the howitzer and the mortar. The precise line of distinction or mark of distinction between these classes of weapons might be difficult even for an ordnance technician to define. It is certainly difficult for a layman to tell just where the gun ends and the howitzer begins, or where the howitzer ends and the mortar begins.

Considered in a broad and general way, the special purpose of the gun was and is to destroy other guns in march or in position, to destroy troops in the open and to batter down objects behind which troops find shelter. The projectile of the gun by high powder pressure was given a high velocity and a relatively flat trajectory, which means that the shot passing from the gun to the target did not rise high above the earth or above a line joining gun and target. To withstand the powder pressure required for this work the gun was heavy in relation to the weight of the projectile. From the fact that the shot traveled in a path relatively of slight curve, its slope of fall or its angle of fall was not steep. It would go through a stone wall, or perhaps smash it, or would go deep into a dirt embankment, but it was not easy to put a shot inside a narrow deep trench, or to plant a shot so close behind an embankment as to kill men sheltered there.

The shot from the gun was good at penetration, but ineffective in searching the rear of cover. To accomplish that purpose another style of gun was devised. The pressure per square inch of powder chamber was decreased, the angle of elevation of the gun was increased, the angle of departure of the shot was greatly increased and the shot after reaching the summit of its path fell so steeply that if the range were known and the practice good the shot would land in a trench or fall so close behind an embankment or parapet that men would find no shelter there.

This being possible by a reduction of powder pressure per square inch of chamber surface and consequent reduction in the speed of the projectile, it was found that the weight of the gun in relation to the weight of the projectile could be diminished, thus increasing its mobility or the facility with which it could be moved from place to place.

It was found that the barrel of this gun could be very much shortened, thus effecting a saving in weight. But in making the changes in this gun instead of absolutely decreasing its weight the gunmakers enlarged its bore and increased the size of its projectile, thus increasing its efficiency. This type of gun, though not in the narrow and technical sense a "gun," is ordnance and an element of artillery and was given the specific name "howitzer."

The mortar was a gun that could give a higher angle of fire and a more plunging fire than a howitzer. It was a very short piece of ordnance, fired from a platform and held down by ropes. Forts and mortar boats used it for getting a high angle of fire and a more plunging fire with larger shell than could be had using a howitzer. The range used to be obtained by varying the power charge. At this day mortars weighing at least four tons, fitted with an elevating device and range scale and with recoil and counter recoil or recuperator devices, are hauled around on wheels, set down on a platform also carried on wheels, and producing vertical fire with a high explosive shell weighing 230 pounds with or without a delay action fuse.

The field gun for the purpose of firing over ridges, getting at troops on the reverse slope of ridges or across hills, giving to shrapnel the proper slope of fall for effective distribution and keeping the load light on the horses has veered away from the gun as developed in ship and fortress artillery and in the direction of the howitzer-like properties. Field guns have had their trails split that the breech may be further depressed, thus giving them a higher angle of fire designed for use against air craft, and in effecting a useful compromise between power and mobility the trajectory of shots from this gun is high and the slope of fall quite steep.

Guns of high power—high powder pressure, high velocity and long range—have been built to give vertical fire or nearly vertical elevation against aeroplanes or dirigibles.

So, as announced, it is not an easy question to decide just where gun, howitzer and mortar divide.

The Secret of Baldness.

The actual condition of the scalp and of the hair has very much less to do with the health of the latter than is popularly supposed. The bulbs of the roots of the hair go down completely through the skin and into the fatty layer which lies between it and the skull, and the thing that to the expert eye is really significant of the prospect as to progress or cure in a particular case of baldness is not the condition or color or cleanliness of the scalp, but the thickness or thinness of this fatty layer which underlies it. So long as this is present and the scalp is freely movable over the skull there is hope of restoring a reasonable growth of hair, but when this fat has been absorbed and the shiny scalp sticks as closely to the skull as the cover on a baseball the outlook is practically hopeless. This, of course, shows at once the futility of most of the local applications to and manipulations of the scalp, from which it suffers untold torments in those who are or imagine themselves to be becoming bald.

A Preparatory Course.

There is a judge in Salem, Mass., who, behind a benignant exterior, hides an occasional surprise for persistent evildoers. Not long ago there came up before him for sentence two youths who had been guilty of a long sequence of misdeeds. Both were under age, each having just passed his nineteenth birthday. Having been caught with the goods on them, they had pleaded guilty in the hope of getting off with a light punishment.

The judge adjusted his glasses and through them beamed softly at the young lawbreakers.

"Now, then, boys," he said softly, "I'm going to send you two to the state reformatory for two years apiece"—his voice suddenly changed—"and while you're there you can both be studying for the state penitentiary."—Saturday Evening Post.

Improve Yourself.

If a man cannot improve himself, how can he improve others? When we see noble men we should think of equaling them. When we see evil characters we should turn our look inward and examine ourselves. Only he who has the most complete sincerity under heaven can transform and inspire others.

Britain and Egypt.

English control of Egypt may be said to have begun when, in 1876, Stephen Cave and Colonel Stokes were sent to that country to inquire into its poor financial condition. In November, 1876, Goschen and Joubert's mission on behalf of the British and French bondholders resulted in the dual control, one British official to superintend the revenue and a French the expenditure. Another result was the internationalization of the railroads and of the port of Alexandria. In 1882 a rebellion under Arabi Pasha broke out, which resulted in the bombardment of Alexandria on July 11, 1882.

England thereafter sent an army into the country and suppressed the revolt at Tel-el-Kebir, Sept. 13, 1882. Dual control was abolished Jan. 18, 1883, and replaced by an English financial adviser. In 1904 the fact of England's position in Egypt was recognized, and that position was legalized by treaties, first with France, then with Germany, Austria, and Italy. Since then, to all intents and purposes, Egypt has been an English possession.

DANGER IN GASOLINE.

This Substance Is Seven Times More Powerful Than Dynamite.

Do you know that gasoline gas is seven times more powerful than dynamite? asks the National Cash Register News in an article on the use of gasoline with safety in the home. Gasoline is a thin, water white liquid which evaporates rapidly and throws off vast quantities of vapor very inflammable and explosive when mixed with air.

Substances like cotton, linen, silk, especially when unwashed and undyed, become more or less electrified when rubbed or moved quickly in a bath of gasoline, the gasoline becoming negatively charged. Gasoline being a bad conductor, the generated electricity accumulates and reaches such tension that sparks are possible, igniting the gasoline and causing fire and explosion. Weather conditions affect the results decidedly, the dry air of winter being more dangerous than moist summer air. Gasoline explosions in garages are often brought about by static electricity, a fact definitely proved.

In case of fire tight cans are liable to explode, throwing the burning gasoline all over the premises, thereby augmenting the fire. For this reason gasoline should be stored outside the house, preferably in safety type cans (cans with fine wire gauze in neck and spout).

Gasoline used for cleaning should be used outdoors, at least fifty feet from any fire, light or burning substance, never in an inclosed room. The heavy vapors travel long distances and are highly explosive. Never clean gloves on the hands. The rubbing or agitating of clothing in gasoline should be accomplished by means of a dry stick.

Gasoline stoves should never be filled with a light or fire within fifty feet of the stove.

A DINNER IN JAPAN

Troubles of a Hungry Man Not to the Manner Born.

SQUATTING AT THE TABLE.

It Tried the Patience and the Muscles of the Stranger In a Strange Land, but From an Epicurean Standpoint the Worst Was Yet to Come.

Describing an amusing experience in Japan, Homer Croy in Leslie's Weekly tells how, after arriving by train in an interior town, in his efforts to find a hotel, he tried to break into a bank. Realizing his mistake, he finally, by use of the sign language, was directed to a real hotel, where, after removing his shoes, he entered. Then:

What interested me most was something to eat, and opening my mouth to its fullest I pointed in. They motioned me to follow upstairs, but I held back, showing that I wanted the dining room, not the bedroom. Sliding a door, which I thought must be the dining room, I pushed it open, but it was the kitchen; so, thinking that they knew more about things than I did, I let them lead me upstairs. When the girl pushed back the sliding doors my heart crawled down another step, for there was only one piece of furniture in the room, a seat that looked like a two legged milk stool covered with carpet. There wasn't a single chair in the room and no place to hang my hat or coat, nothing except a bare room with a heavy matting on the floor and one of my toes brazenly peeping through my stocking.

I started to sit down on the milk stool, but it squirted out from under me, while the servant girl made no effort to hide her laughter. Dropping down on the floor, she showed me how to use the milk stool by sitting on the floor and leaning one arm on it, like a picture before Pompeii.

She took my hat and coat, and I wondered where she was going to hang them, for there wasn't a single nail or hook in the room. Carrying them over to the wall, she pushed back a small sliding door and placed them on a shelf and brought me back a kimono. She motioned for me to get into it and started down the hall. I got out of my clothes and was just slipping into the kimono when I heard her coming. I called to her to stop, but she did not understand, so I wrapped the kimono around me the best way I could and tried to keep it together, for there were no buttons on it.

On the floor she placed a table and on it a pot of tea. The table was just barely a foot high, and there was no milk or sugar for the tea, for these things spoil tea to a Japanese. Then she came with a plate of fish, a bowl of rice and a little square box with a bamboo tube in it and a bowl. In the bowl was a glow of charcoal. Soon I puzzled out that this was for lighting cigarettes and the bamboo for dropping the butts into. The first thing a Japanese thinks of is tea, and the next is cigarettes.

I started to draw up to the table, but I could not find a place for my knees. They wouldn't let me get near enough the table to carry out my designs on the fish. Seeing my trouble, the girl dropped down to show me how. She turned her feet back, with her toes pointing straight behind her, and sat down, her face in one direction and her toes in another. It looked easy, but it brought me up with a short breath. No European can sit in such an attitude.

Putting one leg under the table, with one bare knee glistening on the side, I bent over the table to proceed with the eating, but here I ran up against a snag. All I had to eat with was chopsticks. Weaving them through my fingers, I tried to break off a piece from the slab of fish, but it wouldn't break. I turned it over, hoping to spring it, but with my wabbling sticks I could only grease the plate. Openly the girl laughed. It was better than a picture show to her. She showed me how it should be done—by lifting the whole fish with the sticks and taking bites as if it were a piece of bread.

The next dish was something that puzzled me. In a round wooden dish about the size of the bowl that used to come in a package of oatmeal were white squares of meat in hot water. I worked out a piece and ate it and asked her through signs what it was. She threw out enough for a paragraph, but that did not bring me light. I asked her again, and away she went and came back with a book and, coming up close, pointed to the picture of—a horse! I had been eating horse meat. Something in me began to sink, leaving me weak and limp. Although, she brought me two or three more things to eat, I waved them aside. My appetite for the time had been appeased.

The Best Treatment For Constipation

The Experience of One Who Knows and Places Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills First

It is not difficult to secure a medicine that will effect movement of the bowels To cure Constipation and the complications which arise from it is another matter.

Constipation of the bowels is usually preceded by torpid action of the liver. Hence it follows that if Constipation is to be cured the liver must be set right. And here lies the secret of the success of Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills. They awaken the action of the liver and insure a good flow of bile, which is nature's cathartic. The liver, kidneys and bowels are invigorated and regulated, and the troubles with the digestive system disappear.

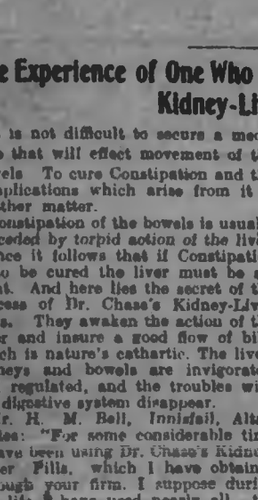
Mr. H. M. Bell, Innisfail, Alta., writes: "For some considerable time I have been using Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills, which I have obtained through your firm. I suppose during my life I have used nearly all the best-known pills, as I have been subject to Constipation and digestive troubles. A friend recommended Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills, and I can honestly say that of all the pills I have tried nothing has suited me better — no griping—action always insured, and fine for the kidneys. This is how I have found them after a thorough test, and you may use this statement if you like."

This letter should convince you of the merits of Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills, but there is nothing like personal experience. If you do not feel like risking 25 cents for a box, write to us for a free sample box, mentioning where you saw this advertisement. Put this medicine to the test when you have indigestion, constipation, biliousness, backache or kidney derangements. The results will soon prove to you the superiority of Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills. One pill a dose, 25 cents a box; all dealers, or Edmanson, Bates & Co., Limited, Toronto.

EXAMINER PATTERN SERVICE

GIRL'S COAT.

By Anabel Worthington.



The coat shown in the illustration may be made to button closely to the neck or the closing at the side of the front may end on the bosom, leaving the neck a trifle open, with side collar.

The collar desired must be decided upon before the coat is made, for this is not one of the adjustable kind, but the high or the low style is to be selected and the material cut accordingly.

The back of the coat is entirely plain and the sleeves are also of the plain coat cut, with or without a cuff at the wrist. The belt is a matter of choice and may be made of the collar material or of some sort of leather as preferred.

Among the many coat materials used for these garments there are some handsome frish frieze examples, the Scotch tweed is also good, and this season is seeing a revival of krimmer, which is a gray astrachan and which is ideal for children, as it is impervious to water and keeps its curl.

The coat pattern, No. 7,372, is cut in sizes 6, 8, 10, 12 and 14 years. Medium size requires 2½ yards of 54 inch material, with ⅛ yard of 27 inch velvet to trim as shown.

Little girls, big girls and women all are wearing the simple, loose coat this season. The materials used are nearly all rough on the surface and loose weave.

This pattern can be obtained by sending 10 cents to the office of this paper.

When ordering remember to give your name and address as well as the number and size of pattern required, and age of a child.

Price 10 cents, or 2 for 25c.

TURN HAIR DARK WITH SAGE TEA

If Mixed with Sulphur it Darkens so Naturally Nobody Can Tell.

The old-time Mixture of Sage Tea and Sulphur for darkening gray, streaked and faded hair is grandmother's treatment, and folks are again using it to keep their hair a good, even color, which is quite sensible, as we are living in an age when a youthful appearance is of the greatest advantage.

Nowadays, though, we don't have the troublesome task of gathering the sage and the mussy mixing at home. All drug stores sell the ready-to-use product called "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound" for about 50 cents a bottle. It is very popular because nobody can discover it has been applied. Simply moisten your comb or a soft brush with it and draw this through your hair, taking one small strand at a time; by morning the gray hair disappears, but what delights the ladies with Wyeths Sage and Sulphur is that, besides beautifully darkening the hair after a few applications, it also produces that soft lustre and appearance of abundance which is so attractive; besides, it prevents dandruff, itching scalp, and falling hair.

TRACED IN FIRE.

Glow Pictures Are Spectacular and Easy to Make.

To make glow pictures forty parts of saltpeter are added to twenty parts of gum arabic, and the whole is dissolved in forty parts of water. An ounce or two of this mixture will be sufficient to prepare a good many pictures. A few sheets of white paper should next be secured, and this should be rather thin, similar to that which is used for typewriting.

Now take a clean pen and draw the picture on the paper, using the solution, which should be slightly warmed by standing the bottle in hot water. Anything may be delineated, the only essential point being that all the lines must connect. The final line should be drawn down to the corner of the sheet, and this spot may be indicated with a pencil cross. Hang the sheets up to dry, and when the process is complete the lines are practically invisible.

To bring up the picture first of all turn down the borders of the sheet of paper in such a way that it is raised above the surface which will not be injured by the slight smoldering of the paper. Get a match and light it, placing the glowing end of the point where the pencil cross was made on the sheet.

A trail of red fire will at once start to burn out the picture, following the lines which have been drawn. No other part of the design catches on fire save that which has been treated with the solution. Finally the picture stands up in strong black lines, and the effect is very curious. There is absolutely no danger from fire in this little experiment.—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

A Boyne's Medal.

A Russian artillery horse won a bronze medal at Plevna. Orders were given for some ammunition wagons to be hurried to a spot that meant crossing the enemy's zone of fire. All the time shells were crashing among the horses, bringing them down in heaps and frightening such as escaped. Times without number did the Russian drivers, sparing neither whip nor spur, attempt to urge the horses forward, but they stood cowed and shivering with fright. Some were blindfolded; but the effect was the same, and only one horse showed any willingness to go. Thereupon the driver jumped down, and, cutting the traces of the other horses, drove the willing one at full gallop through the fire. The wagon passed through without exploding, and after the war the horse was decorated in the manner described and the driver promoted.

Man Eating Crocodiles.

The largest reptile is the man eating salt water crocodile of southern Asia and Australia. It measures thirty feet in length from end of nose to tip of tail.

Tobacco Plant Seeds.

The seeds of the tobacco plant are so minute that, according to an estimate, a thimbleful will furnish enough plants for an acre of ground.

INTENSIVE WHEAT GROWING.

Startling Results Claimed For a Russian's Methods.

Some years ago, says an English publication, a Russian farmer discovered a method of increasing the yield of wheat in so startling a manner that no one believed he was telling the truth. The Russian declared that it was possible to get seventy pounds of grain from one seed and to make an acre carry forty-five tons.

That does sound like a miracle, and we do not vouch for it, but here is the method, and if any farmer has the patience to try it he will certainly be surprised at the result.

Each grain is planted separately in a sunken bed about fifteen inches deep and three and a half feet in width.

As soon as the grain sprouts the little blade is covered with a thin layer of earth about an inch and a half in depth. The result is that you get three stalks instead of one. At the end of three weeks the hoe comes into use again, and the three stalks being covered with earth, turn into nine stalks. This process on being repeated a third time results in twenty-seven stalks, and the Russian in question repeated it ten times in all, so that at last each grain produced 59,049 stalks. If the seed is first sown in the ordinary fashion and then transplanted to the pit before mentioned you get an even stronger growth, so that after only eight coverings more than 165,000 stalks have been produced from a single grain.—Youth's Companion.

Mythical Horses.

Pegasus ("born near the source of the ocean") was the winged horse of Apollo and the Muses. Bellerophon rode this animal when he charged the Chimera.

Sleipnir ("the black horse of Odin") had eight legs and could carry his master on sea as well as land. This animal is believed to typify the wind, which blows from eight different points.

Al Borak ("the lightning") was the horse commissioned by Gabriel to carry Mohammed to the seventh heaven. He had a human face and the wings of an eagle. Every step he took was equal to the farthest range of human vision.

According to Thessalian legend, the first horse was miraculously brought forth by Neptune striking a rock with his trident.

A Voracious Monster.

The most voracious of all marine beasts of prey is the orca, or killer whale. It reaches a length of twenty-five feet, and its jaws bristle with teeth from four to six inches long and as sharp as a dirk knife. Its digestive power is proportioned to the tremendous efficacy of its jaws. It seems also to be an atrocious glutton, as one specimen examined contained in its stomach thirteen porpoises and fourteen seals.

A Boomerang.

"Call that art!" exclaimed a would be critic, pointing to a painting in a studio. "If that daub is a work of art, then I'm an idiot!"

"The latter part of your statement," rejoined the artist calmly, "would seem to furnish conclusive proof that it is a work of art."

A Lovers' Quarrel.

She (turning at the door)—I think you are just hateful, and I'm never going to speak to you again, so there's no use coming into the music room after me, because I'll be on the rustic bench at the far end of the conservatory.

Drowned His Voice.

Teacher—Tommy, I asked you to spell candy. Why don't you do it? His class-Please, sir, his mouth's watering so he can't talk.

It is better to begin a good work in the evening than not at all.—Old Saying.

VIOLENT ATTACKS OF DYSPEPSIA

Suffered Tortures Until She Tried "Fruit-a-tives"

St. Jean de Matha, Jan. 27th, 1914.

"After suffering for a long time with Dyspepsia, I have been made well by "Fruit-a-tives." I suffered so much that at last I would not dare to eat for I was afraid of dying. Five years ago, I received samples of "Fruit-a-tives" and after taking them I felt relief. Then I sent for three boxes and I kept improving until I was well. I quickly regained my lost weight—and now I eat, sleep and digest well—in a word, I am fully recovered, thanks to 'Fruit-a-tives.'

Exact Thomas.

Thomas Hoar, the devoted servant upon whom Gilbert White, the English naturalist, depended to carry out his garden plans and to look after his comfort in many ways, was noted for his exactness. Mr. H. C. Shelley, in "Gilbert White and Selborne," gives an amusing illustration.

There was one occasion when Thomas came to report, "Please, sir, I've been and broke a glass."

"Broke a glass, Thomas! How did you do that?"

"I'll show you, sir," he rejoined as he disappeared for a moment. Returning with a glass in his hand he let it fall on the floor, remarking:

"That's how I broke it, sir."

"There, go along, Thomas; you are a great fool," said his master, adding to himself, "and I was as great a one for asking such a foolish question."

OPEN NOSTRILS! END A COLD OR CATARRH

How To Get Relief When Head and Nose are Stuffed Up.

Count fifty! Your cold in head or catarrh disappears. Your clogged nostrils will open, the air passages of your head will clear and you can breathe freely. No more snuffling, hawking, mucous discharge, dryness or headache; no struggling for breath at night.

Get a small bottle of Ely's Cream Balm from your druggist and apply a little of this fragrant antiseptic cream in your nostrils. It penetrates through every air passage of the head, soothing and healing the swollen or inflamed mucous membrane, giving you instant relief. Head colds and catarrh yield like magic. Don't stay stuffed-up and miserable. Relief is sure.

The Curse.

An Irish authority thus defines as an expert the effects of a well delivered curse: "The belief among the ancient Irish was that a curse once pronounced must fall in some direction. If it has been deserved by him on whom it is pronounced it will fall on him sooner or later, but if it has not then it will return upon the person who pronounced it. They compare it to a wedge with which a woodman cleaves timber. If it has room to go it will go and cleave the wood, but if it has not it will fly out and strike the woodman himself who is driving it between the grain."—London Globe.

Enough Knowledge.

"Did you ever stop to think," said the shopkeeper recently as he measured out half a peck of potatoes, "that these potatoes contain sugar, water and starch?"

"No, I didn't," replied the boy, "but I heard father say that you put peas and beans in your coffee, and about a pint of water in every quart of milk you sell."

The subject of natural philosophy was dropped.

Not an Expert in Ice.

"I'm so sorry the cream is sour," said young Mrs. Torkins.

"Everything in the refrigerator appears to be spoiled," commented her husband.

"It's the ice man's fault. He will bring around artificial ice, and I can't tell it from the genuine."

John Muir's Great Wealth.

John Muir, who has left a rich legacy to his countrymen, like so many thousands of writers and American idealists, was poor. He was a close friend of Mr. E. H. Harriman, the multimillionaire railroad king. One day Mr. Muir surprised his wealthy friend by saying, "Harriman, you know I am a richer man than you are!"

"Yes!" said Harriman, with a question in his tone.

"Because," continued Muir, "I have all the money I want, and you haven't."—From "American Ideals," by Clayton Sedgwick Cooper.

HOW TO DISPOSE OF THE "APPAM" PUZZLING THE UNITED STATES OFFICIALS

BE IN TOWN EARLY TO-MORROW---DOLLAR DAY---THE GREATEST SHOPPING EVENT OF THE YEAR

Disposition of the British Liner Appam and Her British Officers Puzzling to the United States

Whether the Appam is a German War Vessel to Be Interned With Her Crew or a German Prize Which Cannot Be Held in an American Port is Vital Subject Being Debated.

ROUMANIA AND GREECE MAY JOIN ALLIES

WASHINGTON, Feb. 2.—The United States officials were to-day completely at sea regarding what disposition shall be made of the British liner Appam, held at Norfolk by a German prize crew. Whether the Appam is a German war vessel, to be interned with her crew, or a German prize, which cannot be held in an American port, was the vital subject being debated. Regarding the German prize crew of 22 men, there was little doubt. Their internment was regarded certain.

Another knotty problem was the status of several British army and Navy officers on the Appam.

LURISTAN TROOPS JOIN TURKS.

BERLIN (by Wireless to Sayville, L.I.), Feb. 2.—"The Russian newspaper Birzheviya Vedemosdy publishes reports from Teheran, stating that the situation of the Russians in Persia is becoming worse," says the Overseas News Agency. "These reports confirm the statement that the Governor-General of Luristan, Samsou-es-Sultaneh, has joined hands with Russia's enemies and has formed a strong army which will be placed at the disposal of the Turks. Three thousand men from Luristan arrived in the Kermanshah district several days ago and joined the Turkish troops."

"I am in a position to state that henceforth in all matters, including the blockade, the seizure of contraband mails, the submarine policy, and other moot questions, replies to notes from the United States and other neutrals will be in the name of all the Allies, including even Belgium, Serbia and Montenegro; that France, Russia, Italy and Great Britain accept full and joint responsibility for all war measures, and that the motto of the Allies from now until the end of the war will be that of the Three Guardsmen, 'One for all, all for one.'"

PARIS, Feb. 2.—A despatch from Athens to the Havas Agency says French troops continue to land on the island of Mytilene, according to advices just received. From there an aeroplane flotilla makes daily reconnaissances toward the coast of Asia Minor.

BERLIN (by Wireless to Sayville, L.I.), Feb. 2.—Italy has decided to continue the campaign in Albania, according to Vienna advices given out Monday by the Overseas News Agency, and is said to have landed an additional infantry division and several batteries of heavy artillery at Avlona.

"Italy will not give up Albania," the News Agency says. "She considers an effective defence of the southern part of the country as a military and political necessity. Other reports state that Italy, lacking sufficient troops of her own, has asked for help from England and France."

THE LUSITANIA DEADLOCK.

BERLIN, via Amsterdam, Feb. 2.—President Wilson must make the next move in the present Lusitania deadlock. The solution of the new German-American controversy depends upon the decision the President will make, following the receipt of a full report from Col. E. M. Heuse, his confidential agent, on the result of his conference with German officials.

A GERMAN PRIVATEER.

NORFOLK, Va., Feb. 2.—Apparently conclusive evidence that the German sea raider Mowe, which captured the British liner Appam and sank seven other British merchantmen, is not a ship of the regular German navy, but a member of the naval auxiliary forces, it was submitted to-day. In other words, she is a German privateer. Lieut. Berge, commander of the prize crew in charge of the Appam, to-day produced a commission in the naval auxiliary reserve.

THIS MORNING'S BULLETINS.

PETROGRAD, Feb. 2.—Premier Goremykin has resigned owing to ill health.

ATHENS, Feb. 2.—Roumania and Greece are negotiating with a view to joining the Allies against Bulgaria.

LONDON, Feb. 2.—Zeppelins dropped bombs on Salonika, but little damage was done.

PETROGRAD, Feb. 2.—Large Turkish stores were captured by Russian troops in the Erzerum district.

PARIS, Feb. 2.—Twelve persons were killed and twenty-five injured in the wreck of the Calais express at Saint Denis, a Paris suburb, early to-day.

SUBMARINE GOT A TRAWLER.

LONDON, Feb. 2.—The Dutch steamer Princess Julian beached and destroyed, and the British trawler Williams sunk by submarines to-day. The crew was rescued.

From Chorus To Aristocracy, Is Now War Widow

Camille Clifford Who Starred in "The Prince of Pilsen" Married a Baron's Son in England

HE FELL AT YPRES

NEW YORK, Feb. 1.—The Honourable Mrs. Henry Lyndhurst Bruce, formerly Miss Camille Clifford, widow of the son of the Baron of Aberdare, of Wales, yesterday told for the first time the experiences of her early childhood and her courtship.

"I see that the reports have promoted me from scrubwoman to servant," said the former stage beauty at the Hotel Vanderbilt. "Of course, I do not mind what people say, but it is very nice to hear the truth. I have been away so long that they are probably inclined to believe anything they hear.

"As a matter of fact, I was never a servant or scrubwoman. The only experience at work outside of the stage was as companion to children I travelled with the children of a distinguished Boston family. It was probably this position that led to the belief that I used to scrub floors.

Stage Her Goal.

"At the time of my arrival in America I was glad to act as companion But I always had my mind on the stage. So one day I walked into the office of Mr. Henry Savage in Boston and he gave me my first position on the stage.

"I played in 'The Prince of Pilsen' for two years, and it was with this production that I first went abroad ten years ago. The people of London were very kind to me and liked me so much that I never had an opportunity to return to America.

"After my long run in 'The Prince of Pilsen' I appeared in 'The Catch of the Season,' and this was followed by 'The Belle of Mayfair.' It was while I was appearing in the latter piece that I first met Mr. Bruce.

"I had been invited to tea after one of our matinee performances and in the little party was the Baron's son. I must confess that he made quite an impression upon me at first. A few days later I discovered that he had confided to our mutual friends that he was going to marry me. I thought this was just lovely. It must have been that I admired his assurance, but somehow or other I didn't object.

Her Engagement Followed.

Mr. Bruce had just purchased a

GERMAN SUBMARINES MAY BE IN AMERICAN WATERS

Special Cable to The Examiner:

GERMAN "SUBS" IN AMERICAN WATERS?

NEW YORK, Feb. 2.—The British Consul-General here to-day issued a warning to all British vessels to watch for German submarines in American waters.

ZEPPS DROPPED 220 BOMBS.

LONDON, Feb. 1.—It is officially announced that 220 bombs were dropped by Zepps on England last night.

AND STILL THEY COME—ANOTHER NOTE.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 1.—Secretary Lansing has addressed another note to Turkey, demanding to know if her submarines sank the Persia.

RAIDER GOT SEVEN OTHERS.

NORFOLK, Feb. 1.—The German raider which captured the Appam also sank seven other British steamers laden with coal, copper and foodstuffs.

CREW WHO PUT UP FIGHT WERE KILLED.

NORFOLK, Feb. 1.—All the crew of the British steamer Clan McTavish who showed fight against the German raiders were killed or wounded.

WILL DECIDE APPAM'S NEXT MOVE.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 1.—The authorities have not yet decided what to do with the British steamer Appam.

SUCH VALUES AS WILL MAKE DOLLAR DAY LONG REMEMBERED

Public Invited to View the Shop Windows and See For Themselves What Wonderful Offers Are Being Made

THE BIG EVENT TO-MORROW

Dollar Day will be with us to-morrow, and all of the seventy-five stores in the city behind the event are bending their efforts to give Dollar Day shoppers such values as will make 1916 Dollar Day a shopping day to remember with considerable satisfaction by all concerned. When one realizes that war conditions have placed a premium on many lines of goods, the fact that the merchants of Peterborough are making great reductions al lthrough their shops, will perhaps be more appreciated than heretofore.

It is one occasion when it will pay a customer to buy something he does not immediately need, as conditions so far as replacing lines sold out are becoming harder month by month, not only in regard to increased cost but in being able to purchase some lines, at any price.

In viewing the windows of the merchants on the different streets, you can see some perfectly good Overcoats and Suits for one dollar and upwards. Ladies' Coats and Dresses for the same price. Ladies' and gentlemen's boots and shoes, in some cases, away below what they must have cost the merchant. Men's regular $2.50 and $3.00 hats selling for a dollar. Grocers' windows that show the Grocers have made a reduction of from 25 to 33 1-3 per cent. in many lines of goods; druggists, jewellers and furniture men, who will give better value to-morrow than at any other time of the year. In fact anything you might want such as flour and feed, hardware supplies, sporting goods, books stationery or wall paper, electrical supplies, photographs, and even a piano can be better bought to-morrow than the day after.

A second-hand goods store will also make reductions. The butcher will also show you that it will pay to purchase Sunday's meats on Thursday of this week. You will require to refer to the list of merchants who have contributed to the Treasury Box if you wish an estimate blank.

Be down town early to-morrow, so that you will be able to make the most of the opportunities given you.

The stores will be open in the evening until 9.30 o'clock and the 93rd Battalion, with both bands, will parade both morning and afternoon.

BROCK STREET RINK SKATING TO-NIGHT

Large Attendance at Brock Street Rink Last Evening—93rd Band To-night

The best mid-week crowd of the season was at the Brock St. Rink last evening. The ice was good until well on in the evening, and considering the previous days' warm weather lasted well. There has been frost in the rink all night and to-day, and there will be a good sheet of ice for to-night. The 93rd Battalion Band will be on hand to-night and give a fine programme.

Invisible Power of The British Fleet

Is Crushing the Enemy Says French Publicist and Student of British Affairs—Declares Teutons Realize Allies' Mastery of the Sear is Bringing Nearer the Decisive Hour of the War.

CAPT. W. T. ROGERS, V.S.,
Of Peterborough, who is on duty in England.

NEUTRALS DEBT TO FLEET

LONDON, Feb. 2.—Mr. Henry D. Davray, well known French publicist, is in England as a special representative of a Paris daily to study questions in connection with the war. Mr. Davray has given special study to England and all things concerning that country for twenty years and has written the following for the Daily Chronicle:

"Looking only at the fighting record one might imagine that the war ships of the Allies had so far played but a secondary part in this war. A closer examination shows the utter superficiality and falsity of such a view.

"True, our knowledge of the exploits at sea is scanty and imperfect.

"They have been scattered over a period of seventeen months and over all the world's seas. Only in official communications has publicity been given to them, and with laconic brevity. Often there has been silence. And besides, they have been eclipsed all the time by the struggle that is going on along the thousands of miles of trenches on land.

"The putting into activity from the very outset of hostilities of the naval forces of England and France has had an amazing effect in every domain—military, political, economic and financial. It has been said that 'Nelson's storm tossed ships, on which the Grand Army never looked, stood between it and the Empire of the World.' This saying might be applied with equal justice to-day to the British Grand Fleet. It is ever invisible, yet such is the fear that it inspires in the Germans that they dare not come forth from their burrows, or rather if ever they do take the risk, they slink out darkly, taking every care to avoid the vigilant guardians of the English shores or to take precipitately to flight at the sight of them.

Neutrals' Debt to the Fleet.

"Did England not exercise this unquestionable mastery in the North Sea and Channel the German fleet would have had at its mercy the French coasts and ports from Dunkirk to Brest; for the French squadrons, concentrated in the Mediterranean, could not have returned in time to make an effort to bar the enemy's road. Neither the science of our general staffs nor the heroism of our soldiers could in that event have prevailed against the worked out plans of the Germans.

"It is somewhat difficult to give a clear account of the consequences that have flowed from England's naval supremacy. These consequences are very many. They concern neutrals as well as belligerents. England's naval action is none the less efficacious from being exercised in silence, and neutrals easily lose sight of its importance. They imagine that the British fleet has been reduced to a passive role, and here they make a grievous mistake. It is the British fleet that has imposed inaction upon the enemy's naval forces. Neutrals may congratulate themselves on this result, for a good part of the limited activity that has been shown by the German navy has been exercised at the expense of neutrals.

"Naval war as the Germans, who are still novices in this sort of fighting, conceived it, is characterized by dastardliness spiced with lying—the strewing of the open seas with floating mines, that have been fatal to many neutral ships; the torpedoing and sinking of passenger boats and fishing craft; the shelling of a defenceless crew, wrecked in neutral waters, and the like feats of arms like these, which no other sailors in the world cold bring themselves to perpetrate, and the exploits upon which the Germans gloat with pride and satisfaction, and which they are eager to advertise urbi et orbi.

"This hateful Teutonic savagery, responsible for all the crimes committed in the countries occupied by the German armies, has been also asserting itself tentatively on the majestic face of the waters. But the German navy's career will, let us hope, be all too short for it to find the time to base its traditions on the

BELGIAN RELIEF ASSOCIATION HAS BEEN FORMED

New Organization Will Undertake the Collection and Forwarding of Funds to the Starving Belgians

OFFICERS APPOINTED

A meeting to form a local branch of the Belgian Relief Association, was held in the City Council Chamber on Monday evening. His Worship Mayor Duffus occupied the chair. Miss H. Peck explained the purpose of the meeting, which was to organize a local branch of the Belgian Relief Association.

Mayor Duffus thought it would be a good thing to discuss the matter, whereupon Mr. D. O'Connell arose, and suggested that the formation of an organization be proceeded with. There was hardly any justification for discussing the need, actual or prospective, for such an organization, when there is upwards of six million people in the bread line.

Mrs. W. R. Morris was then appointed Secretary pro tem. Mrs. Morris alluded to what had been done to aid the Belgians. The Peterborough Progressive Club was a contributor to this cause

Officers Elected.

The Nominating Committee brought in the following list of officers, which was unanimously adopted by the meeting.

GOOD TEACHERS MEAN GOOD SCHOOLS.

The report presented to the County Council by Mr. Brroderick, Inspector of Schools for West Peterborough, is both encouraging and possessed of elements of regret. It is encouraging in the fact that it shows that a higher standard of qualification, and, therefore, of efficiency in the teachers employed, has been provided. This also shows that trustees and the people who have to pay for the increased cost of qualified teachers, have come to an appreciation of the importance of securing to the children of the county and country the best of educational advantages. Higher salaried teachers, in the main, mean better teachers, with the consequence of better teaching and better educational results; for, as a rule, the value of an article corresponds to what is paid for it. By employing good teachers the employers stand to get better value for what money is already spent—invested—for educational purposes. A man with an expensive machine of any kind gets better value for the money he pays for it, if he puts it in charge of a capable mechanic—a man with the qualifications to run the machine properly, and bring out its best work. By employing a poor mechanic he would not get the full value of the machinery. It costs as much to build, equip, heat and maintain in order, a school house presided over by a poor teacher as it does one with a properly qualified teacher. But in the one case the money spent on school buildings returns good value; and in the other, both the money spent for buildings and maintenance, and to pay for inefficient service, is comparatively wasted. The fact that the standard of qualification, and promise of good service, of teachers, in dicates that trustees and people wish to get value for the money expended is in itself, gratifying. But this laudable ambition is, unfortunately to some extent, defeated, as the report also shows that there is considerable irregularity of attendance, something not in keeping with the interests of education. Money spent on good buildings and good teachers is wasted to the extent the children, for whose benefit such expenditure is intended, are not brought under the conditions that involve application of the benefits paid for. The law provides a remedy, and this operating with the wise policy of trustees and pupils, in furnishing the best educational facilities, should provide that the value of money wisely spent on good schools and good teachers should not be lost by absenteeism on the part of the children for whom all this expenditure is incurred.

DOING THINGS.

The Norris government of Manitoba will certainly go down into history as a government which did things. One of its first acts after coming into power was to provide that tenders for public works should be opened in public, thus making it impossible to juggle with the figures. Since then it has enacted compulsory education, woman suffrage, and the initiative and referendum, while it has given the people an opportunity to vote Manitoba "dry," which they will inevitably do. It is doubtful if any other provincial government in a single year has been able to place such a record of good work to its credit.—Brantford Expositor.

THE NEW EMPIRE.

There is no question here of a Zollverein of any impossibly hard and fast fiscal uniformity. The British Empire is quite unsuited to this type of Prussianism, for it consists of states which possess and mean to retain their own autonomous rights and economic systems. But it does mean the organization of the Empire upon a broad basis of good fellowship and mutual help for peace as well as for war. It means in a word the translation into every act of policy and administration of the new Empire motto upon which we have so often of late insisted.

First—The Homeland, Canada for the Canadians, Australia for the Australians, Britain for the British, and so on.

Next—The Empire family.

Disloyalty and Open Sedition Among Large Section of Berlin, Ontario, Charged by Col. Lockhead

Only 150 Recruits From City as Populous as Peterboro—Meyer Charge of Sedition Was Hushed Up by Authorities at Oshawa—Berlin Factories Busy on War Material.

LONDON ADVERTISER'S STORY

The London (Ont.) "Advertiser," recently sent a reporter to Berlin (Ont.) and published the following account of his interviews:

BERLIN, Jan. 20.—This city is sitting up and rubbing its eyes, wondering what is going to happen next. Not in many a year has it received such a rude awakening as it did on Thursday evening, when Lieut.-Col. W. M. O. Lockhead of the 118th Battalion poured the vials of his wrath on the pro-German element of this city.

That such an element existed has long been known. That it was becoming bolder and making its influence felt was apparent. That anybody would stand up and publicly denounce this element, publishing Berlin's shame, and the Government's incapacity to deal with a serious problem, was unthought of.

However, they did not reckon with Col. Lockhead, and there is a great scurrying in this city to prevent the outside world knowing the full force of the charges against the loyalty of a certain section, quite a large section, of the population of Berlin. And the worst feature of the whole situation, so far as Berlin is concerned is that Col. Lockhead is not going to quit.

"I am going to see this thing through," was his positive utterance to The Advertiser this afternoon.

Any person knowing Col. Lockhead knows that he will not be bluffed, nor will he in any sense dodge the issue.

Meyer Case Opens Issue.

The particular case which promises to bring the situation to a head concerns Walter Meyer, a German employed in the rubber company here. For months and months, Col. Lockhead explained, there has been most prononnced pro-German sentiments expressed. There were rumors of them everywhere. He was besieged with demands to do something. Pro-kaiserism seemed rampant, and he was urged to do something. He tried. He wanted evidence to prove the charges. There he failed.

"Every time I asked for positive proof, for affidavits, the informants closed up tighter than a clam, and I could get no proof," he explained.

Alleged Seditious Language.

"Not long ago a young man named Stewart, also an employee in the rubber company enlisted, and notified the firm. He remained at his employment for a few days, and was approached by Meyer, who asked him if he was going to war. Stewart answered that he was, that he was a Canadian, and would fight for king and country. Then Meyer, according to the sworn evidence taken in court, most outrageously abused the young man, using the most seditious and disloyal language. This was reported to Col. Lockhead and the man was summoned.

Ottawa Stops Trial.

"He appeared before Magistrate Weir, and was remanded for trial. Then something happened. The trial of the serpent of politics can be seen, for orders came from Ottawa to the attorney-general's department that the trial must not go on, and Meyer was liberated.

"This was bad enough. Then followed Col. Lockhead's attempt to get recruits for the 118th Battalion by the personal canvass method. His men were insulted, the rows resulted. He was made the victim of a vicious attack through the local Conservative newspaper. The trades and labor council also joined in.

Interfered with Recruiting.

"Recruiting was hard enough before but with the opposition emboldened by the success of their bull in the Meyer case continued to throw barriers in Col Lockhead's way. It was then that he determined to fight.

"I am going to see this thing through," he declared again. "I am going to see that Meyer is brought to justice, or I am going to know who is responsible for his not going to be tried. I am going to Ottawa, not on my own initative, but at the invitation of Sir Sam Hughes, to discuss this matter, and either Meyer is going to face the music or I am going to quit.

Pro-German Element Becomes Bold.

"I have no desire to persecute Meyer. That is not the reason. But there is a dirty element in this city that must be curbed. They have become emboldened by the success of their efforts in keeping Germans from being interned. Pro-German utterances were common, but it was impossible to get the proof. Now I have this man Meyer, and I am going to have the Government put a stop to this sedition, or know the reason why. I mean business, and I am going to see this thing through as I said before.

Berlin at Heart is Right

"Berlin at heart is right. The best people, German and British alike, are loyal. One might say that there are three strata of people here—the loyal German, the luke-warm German, and the out-and-out pro-German. This is the bad class, and I want to have them taught their places. It will be impossible to recruit men until they are curbed. Scores of them should be interned. They would be in any other city, but the weakness, or worse, of those in authority, has resulted in placing the city of Berlin in a false light in the opinion of the rest of the province.

Situation is Serious.

"The authorities have shown a lack of firmness in dealing with the situation, with the result that it will soon get beyond all our control. I am in this fight to a finish. I gave up a good thing financially and socially to take up the duties of commanding officer of this battalion. I recommended two other men who I thought would be better fitted, but Sir Sam Hughes requested that I take over the work, and I have done so. I have a loyal lot of men under me, the best in the land. I have splendid officers, good fellows, who know their work. We all work in harmony, and it does take the spirit out of a man to have every possible obstacle thrown in our way, to have the ridicule of the community heaped on you, to have a newspaper print the most outrageous things without first trying to verify their truth or falsity. I am going to rid Berlin of this dirty element, to purify her, and put her right before the people of Ontario. The best people, German and British, are right."

How Berlin Appears.

An impartial investigation leads one to several conclusions. After conversing with all sorts and conditions of men, one must state that many things stand out prominently.

First, that Berlin has done little in the way of recruiting. The most optimistic statement received was that 150 men from Berlin had enlisted for war in a period of a year and a half.

Second, that there is an exodus of young men to the United States, of German-born young men. The estimates as to the number vary. On one day eleven went to Detroit. A Berlin man of repute stated that he saw fourteen Berlin men in one row in the Cadillac Theatre, Detroit, on one evening, who had gone to escape military service.

Third, that there is a strong pro-German sentiment here. It is not to be found among the business men, among the astute class, but among the laborers, the mechanics. It is very pronounced, as any person can say.

Politics Hampering Enlistment.

Fourth, that politics is working to prevent the formation of the battalion. This is rather a serious thing to state, but all the facts seem emphatic in proving this assertion. The News-Record, the Conservative organ, has been most violent in its attacks, or permitted the most violent attacks, personal in character, to be made against the commanding officer, Lieut.-Col. Lochead, attacks that would not be tolerated in any other city in Canada to-day.

Fifth, one must come to the conclusion that Berlin has been the stamping ground of the pro-German propagandists of the United states. It is known that many of them have come to Berlin, have settled there. They have sown seeds of sedition, and have found them growing on fertile ground. German papers of the most violent character came into Berlin in sheafs, until Col. Lochead stopped the practice. His popularity did not increase from that minute.

Berlin Turning Out Shells.

Berlin is busy. There are several manufacturers working on war orders, of which this city has got its share, to put it mildly. There is one shell establishment turning out 1,800 shells a day, and many pro-Germans are working on them, it was stated to the Advertiser on the best of authority.

Col. Lochead has some other things he intends finding out. As mentioned before, he was subjected to an attack by the trades and labour council. It is alleged that the organizer of the council, who is a German by extraction at least, is not and never has been a naturalized citizen.

Looking Up His Record.

"I am looking this man's record up," said Col. Lochead. "I cannot find him on any registry in Waterloo County, and I am going farther to find out. If he is not a Canadian, what right has he to criticize me, or the men who are wearing the khaki? I am going to find that out.

"Mind you, I have some good German boys, Canadians they call themselves, who are the best in the world. They are with me. They feel worse about this dirty element than I do, and their language is much stronger. We want all the help we can get to aid recruiting. We want no pro-Germanism here."

Crown Called Off.

The Meyer case will come up before Sir Sam Hughes when Lieut.-Col. Lochead goes to Ottawa on Monday.

Instructions were received by Crown Attorney W. H. Bowlby that the Government was not proceeding in this case.

The Advertiser asked Mr. Bowlby if this were the case.

"I received a letter from the attorney general at Toronto saying that he had been instructed that the Government had dropped the charge," said Mr. Bowlby. "I proceeded on those instructions and the man did not appear after being remanded. I know little of the case as I was not in police court when he was remanded."

A WEAK CHESTED BOY.

"My boy, Frank, avoided work always and took a very severe cold," writes Mrs. D Stevens, Nipgn, Man. "The many medicines used did not seem to benefit him, until we tried Dr. Chase's Syrup of Linseed and Turpentine, and found it to be exactly what was wanted to cure him." No treatment is so thorough and effective as a cure for croup and bronchitis.

TO-DAY IS CANDLEMAS

Or the Purification of the Blessed Virgin Mary—A Church Festival of Long Standing—Some Candlemas Customs and Old Weather Lore

Written for The Examiner by Frank Russell

To-day is known as Candlemas. It is the feast of the Purification of the Blessed Virgin Mary, and the simultaneous presentation of Christ in the Temple.

Forty days after the birth of Christ, Mary complied with the precept of the Jewish law. She redeemed her first-born from the temple and was purified by the prayer of the venerable Simeon the just, and Anna the prophetess. Forty days were required to elapse between the time of the birth of a male child and the purification of the mother, while for a female child the mother was excluded from the sanctuary for double that period.

ANTIQUITY OF THE FEAST.

This is a feast which has come down from the early part of the fourth century. It is a festival of considerable degree in the Anglican, Roman and Greek Churches. In the Anglican Church a special Collect, Epistle and Gospel are appointed, as well as special lessons.

It was on this feast that the aged Simeon sang the never-to-be-forgotten hymn or canticle, known as the "Nunc Dimittis," "Lord, now lettest Thou Thy servant depart in peace, etc."

PROCESSIONS WITH CANDLES.

On this day there is a great deal of marching in procession with candles. The institution of this feast is attributed by some to Pope Gelasius. In many of its details it shows itself to be a Christianization of the pagan orgies. Februalia, or purifying, which was celebrated at this time in ancient Rome. In fact, in the course of a sermon, Pope Innocent XII. expressly acknowledges this. "Why," he said, "do we in this feast carry candles? Because the Gentiles dedicated the month of February, in the infernal rods, and as at the beginning of it Pluto stole Proserpine and her mother, Ceres, sought her in the night with lighted candles, so they at the beginning of this month march about the city with lighted candles."

The holy fathers could not exterminate this practice, so they ordered that the Christians should march about with lighted candles also, in honour of the Blessed Virgin; and thus what was beforetime done in honour of Ceres is now done in honour of the Virgin Mother.

CHURCHING OF WOMEN.

The office of Churching of Women—an office in the Anglican and Roman Churches—is not an obligation but is recommended as a pious practice and as a thanksgiving to the Almighty for deliverance from grave danger.

AT THE REFORMATION

the ceremonials of Candlemas Day were not by any means abolished. In 1539 Henry VIII. proclaimed: "On Candlemas Day it shall be declared that the bearings of candles is done in memory of Christ, the spiritual light, whom Simeon did prophesy, as it is read in the Church that day."

In the time of Charles II. it is curious to find the custom that when lights were brought in at night-fall people would say, "God send us the light of Heaven."

THE PURIFICATION FLOWER

There were certain flowers and plants consecrated by our ancestors with certain ecclesiastical days. For instance, on the day in question, is the snowdrop, which from it being white and blossoming in early February is known as the Purification flower; to St. Valentine is dedicated the crocus; the Crown Imperial to St. Edmund the Cardamine or Ladies' Smock to the Virgin Mary as it blooms about the time of the Annunciation; then there is the large daisy, dedicated to St. Margaret (hence called by the French la belle Marguerite); the St. John's wort is connected as implied by its name with St. John. The roses of summer were said to fade after St. Mary Magdalene's Day. Then there are the Lent Lily, the Passion (Easter) flower, Anemone, the Herb Trinity, Herb Cristopher, St. Barnaby's Thistle, Canterbury Bell in honour of St. Augustine, the Mary Wort, etc., etc.

WEATHER LORE

Candlemas is everywhere a great day for weather prognostications. Fine weather on this day foretells a succession of unseasonably cold days and necessarily a failure in crops; while stormy weather on this day is supposed to be a sure forerunner of a bright spring and summer.

There are many

POPULAR RHYMES

in England and Scotland connected with Candlemas weather superstitions. For instance:

"If Candlemas Day be dry and fair
The half o' winter to come and mair;
If Candlemas Day be wet or foul,
The half o' winter gane at Yule."

"If Candlemas Day be fair and bright,
Winter will have another flight;
But if it be dark with clouds and rain
Winter is gone, and will not come again."

"The hind had as lief see
His wife on the bier
As that Candlemas Day
Should be pleasant and clear."

"As far as the sun shines out on Candlemas Day,
So far will the snow blow in before May;
So far as the snow blows in on Candlemas Day,
So far will the sun shine out before May."

A SUNLESS DAY.

In Germany the farmers say, "The shepherd would rather see the wolf enter his stable on Candlemas Day than the sun."

"The badger peeps out of his hole on Candlemas Day, and when he finds snow walks abroad; but if he sees the sun shining he draws back into his hole." In Canada the bear plays the same role as the [illegible] and in England this day is known as "Wive's Day." In parts of the United States as "Ground Hog Day."

OLD SCOTCH CUSTOM.

An old custom in Scotland on Candlemas Day and which is still in vogue, is to hold a football match in the streets. On one occasion when the sport took place at Jedburgh, the opposing parties after a struggle of two hours or more on the street transferred the scene of contention to the bed of the River Jed, and there fought it out amid a fearful splash of water and mud, to the infinite amusement of nearly all members of the population, who were looking on from the bridge spanning the river, or from the river banks.

HINTS FOR THE HOME.

Insects dislike both salt and alum.

Always boil new ironware before using it.

During the winter it is best to air blankets and bedding well.

Run a thread around the hole in the stocking before you darn it.

Don't put simple milk puddings in a very hot oven or the milk will curdle.

Turquoise ornaments should never be wet but cleaned with a dry chamois.

Unless a turkey is very young it should be steamed for an hour before roasting.

Mix mustard with vinegar instead of water and it will remain fresh twice as long.

When chestnuts are in season they are a delicious addition (boiled) to a simple salad.

Pour olive oil into the bottle if you open a large bottle of olives. It will preserve the flavor.

When boiling vegetables never let them stop boiling until they are done or they will be soggy and heavy.

For nice dish rags sew two little salt bags together. They will last longer than the ordinary rag of cheesecloth, etc. Flour bags also make excellent dusters.

Never boil soiled dish towels with washing powders or soda in aluminum utensils. It will leave a blackened mark. Clean aluminium with paste prepared for it or rub blackened or scorched surfaces with mineral wool.

Unless eaten to excess butter is one of the most wholesome foods. Children that are kept well supplied with butter do not require to be doctored with cod-liver oil, which is well, as the butter is the cheaper. Consumptive people and diabetics should be supplied with as much butter as they can digest without giving rise to biliousness.

Many people do not know the value of banana skins in cleaning tan leather suit cases and similar articles. Rub the leather well with the inside of the skin, then wipe off any excess of moisture with a dry cloth, finishing with a good polishing with the Teacher—"And did you make out a list of the nine greatest men in the history of the world, as I told you?" Willie—"Almost. I can't pick out the best bowler, though, to save my life!"

Feed your cows liberally when dry. It will repay you during the milking period.

The Connecting Link.

The connecting link between the merchant and his customer is the newspaper advertisement. In it the merchant may make plain to the housewife or the husband, the advantages of his store and the commodities he has to offer, in a way that would be impossible otherwise, because of the limited time, and the interruptions when the customer visits the store.

When people go out to shop, they want to get what they need, and go home again. They want the business news, but they want it when they have time at their disposal. You can give it to them through the advertising columns.

British Need Every Man To Save Empire, Declares Mr. Hanotaux

War Has Entered a Stage He Says, Where Practically Every Colony Is in Danger and Sudden Teutonic Thrust in One Direction May Mean Defeat for Allies and End Universal Liberties

Mr. Gabriel Hanotaux, in a review in the Figaro of the work done by Great Britain for the cause of the Allies, after giving due praise to England for her share, calls the attention of the British people to the fact that time is pressing and that every man is needed to effect a victory.

"Will the voluntary system give to England the men she needs?" questions Mr. Hanotaux. "Only the British Government and people can answer that. But those who hesitate must realise this: Every man lacking means the loss of an inch of British territory and the loss of a part of world liberty. This is no time for discussion: time and circumstances are pressing. At the instant that fortune appears to hesitate the final weight will turn the balance.

"Backward, the Powers engaged in this super duel have long passed that line. Our married men, our fathers of families, are at the front. The French nation has made no distinction. All are equal before the duty, all equal before the blood tax. We must win.

"Each nation decides its internal affairs as it wishes, and the question of conscription touches too intimate organs of national life for foreigners to meddle therein. * * *

"The part Britain has taken in the war is such that in truth no one can claim of her new sacrifices unless they are entirely spontaneous. From the very beginning she has gone to her duty as one goes to war, and there is all the more merit in it because strong pacific traditions could have deceived her as to Germany's aggression. 'Little England' might have dreamed of remaining in peace upon her island. But 'Great England' was found upon her feet as soon as the peril appeared, and the soil of Belgium was not yet violated before all who were ardent and farseeing of the vast British Empire knew the free peoples had before them a task.

Praise for British Fleet.

"What England has done is considerable and—we can easily see it—decisive. In France we all adhere to the bold and modest words of Mr. Balfour, and we repeat with him the litanies of the British sea power:

"'Our great fleet is the base upon which all rests; without it we could not chase the enemy's commerce from the seas nor straighten his economic situation to the point of strangulation.

"'Although silent, it plays, nevertheless, for the Allies and for the entire world, the most important role in the drama unfolding at the present time for the maintenance of the liberties of the world. * * *

"That is the truth. Let us go further and say, because it is the truth, that victory will come through the sea. The land armies will only defeat the enemy because the mastery of the seas will exhaust him. Britain, then, if she contented herself with this effort would have to her credit a large part in the common victory; but this victory would have been further off, more doubtful and more dear paid—it would not, perhaps, have obtained the definite advantage over the enemy necessary or a final assurance of peace.

"This Germany knows. She knew it before the war. For fifteen years she silently constructed the fleet destined to conquer from Britain the mastery of the seas; for fifteen years Emperor William has repeated his imprudent proverb, 'Our future lies upon the waters.' For fifteen years Germany has devoted her efforts alternately to bullying and to seduction to bring about the desired result and detach her from the body of nations warned and farseeing.

Germany's Rage at Britain.

"She has not accomplished it; wherefore against Britain in particular the most atrocious, the most enraged, the most scandalous hatred that one nation ever held against another; wherefore that campaign of Zeppelins and submarines directed against the riches and security of Great Britain; wherefore the propaganda for the pretended 'liberty of the seas,' destined to deceive and arouse the neutral nations; wherefore that march upon Antwerp and upon Calais, which became in an instant the principal objective of the war; wherefore, finally, the menace from afar, like a blow in the face, against Egypt and against India.

"It is, in one word, rage, phobia, hatred—exercised not alone against the nation but against individuals, which has made British officers and soldiers undergo the most abominable treatment; which has burst out finally in the odious words upon the 'miserable little army' and the 'Chant of Hate' — the real expression of all German views. For the ages to come an Englishman will be for a German a being detested, an hereditary enemy, and we Frenchmen have known for a hundred years what that means.

"The British Government knows what it is facing; it knows that defeat would mean the fall of the British empire and the loss of British liberties; it knows that it is engaged in a struggle to the death and that to finish such an adversary it is not sufficient to half conquer him—it is necessary to crush him utterly.

"To obtain this absolute victory, what is necessary? The mastery of the sea, munitions, numbers; we will say nothing of the military and civic virtues; endurance, courage and energetic and strong will.

Empire Being Attacked.

"The Teutonic preparation has shown us our duty — organization against organization. To win on land and on sea men are necessary and arms for these men. The character of the present war necessitates a front at the same time extended and powerful. In the beginning the war was upon the Franco-Belgian front and the Russian front only; now it has spread about the earth—Belgium, France, Italy, the Adriatic, Greece, Serbia, Bulgaria, the Dardanelles, Bessarabia, Galicia, Poland, Russia, the Baltic, Asia Minor, Caucasus, Persia, the Suez Canal, Cyrenica, Egypt, without speaking of the African and overseas colonies and Japan, now quiet. Such an enumeration touches the frontier of the British Empire on all sides; it is she who is hemmed in; it is she who is attacked; it is herself whom England is defending all over the globe.

"Under the present conditions no one can say upon what sector in particular the enemy will fall with an attack that may suddenly become decisive. All points must be guarded, and guarded in strength, for the universal menace may become a danger local, sudden and capital. With the rapidity of his interior communications the enemy may carry himself with a rush upon one of the points of the great line of circumvallation, pierce it by a brutal effort and lay hand upon provinces which will become for him not alone gages but elements of victory.

"What has passed in Serbia is an example. We were tardy in responding to the appeals of this valiant people; now we must redouble our efforts to repair the damage done, not alone to this victim of destiny but also to the Allies themselves.

"Men, many men, are needed to defend the British Empire; many men are needed to serve the common cause; many men are needed to hasten victory and to save at the same time national and universal liberties."

ECZEMA AND SORE EYES

"My daughter suffered from inflamed eyelids and eczema on her head," writes Mrs. E. W. Long, Port Stanford, Mich. "The limit was in a bad state and smelled greatly. The doctor failed to help her and on recommendation of a friend used Dr. Chase's Ointment, which made complete cure. With a grateful heart write you this letter."

How To Earn Dollar Day Prizes

An Explanation of How You May Secure The Prizes Offered

The Merchants' Treasury Box, which has been printed and about 25,000 have been placed in the business houses of the city, will be at the Examiner Office on Dollar Day for their reception. 25,000 blanks will be deposited in the box that will be purchased to estimate on the number of those blanks that will be returned at the Examiner Office on Dollar Day for this issue, will give with every dollar's purchase in their stores an estimating blank which will entitle the purchaser to estimate on the number of coppers in the glass jar which is on exhibition in the window of the Peterborough Bookstore.

And so it is with other merchants. Watch the papers closely. Everything that is offered by individual merchants as an inducement for Dollar Day is over and above the Treasury Box prizes of $175.00.

Dollar Day, on Thursday, Feb. 3rd promises to be the greatest shopping day in the history of this city. Get down town early and take advantage of the great values that will be given.

GAS MOST FEARED, WATER HARD TO GET, SAYS MR. CRU

NEW YORK, January 8.—The horrors and tribulations of life in trenches are vividly depicted in a letter written from Champagne on December 22 to Professor Wooton of Williams College, by Mr. J. Norton Cru, once professor of French in the same institution, who is serving as a sergeant in the French army. Unmolested and undisturbed, Professor Cru scribbled the epistle in an underground passage, while the enemy's big shells exploded above.

The letter is as follows:

"I am writing you by the flickering light of a candle end, perched in a red velvet armchair dragged out of some ruined house. It is broad daylight above, but I am in a kind of tunnel in the bowels of the earth, access to which is gained by a series of stairs leading down from the trenches. This tunnel is wide enough to accommodate on each side of a central passage a series of bunks one above the other, ship fashion, and some of us are lucky enough to have straw mattresses. And so away down underground, I am writing tranquilly while big shells are bursting up above.

"In this vast plain we have little fear of attacks for it would take time to cross the intervening space between the lines, and our artillery would have plenty of time to act effectively against the assailants. On the other hand the plain is very favorable for the use of gas, and this is the only thing we fear; consequently, we are busy protecting ourselves against gas attacks, and we have now found many ways of combatting this treacherous method of fighting.

"We live as though hygiene had never been invented. I must say that a man thinks little of germs when he is bombarded with big shells, and he eats with appetite although much dirt has fallen into the soup from the narrow sides of the trench like lanes that lead from the kitchens, a mile or two in the rear, up to the firing line. Sometimes water has to be fetched from a pump after a long journey through winding trenches; sometimes when the ground has been won from the enemy he knows where the pump is, and keeps firing salvos of shrapnel all around it.

"Now Champagne is very dry (no pun intended), and we experienced lately the scarcity of water and the decided objection the Germans have to our approaching the pumps. We went unwashed for two weeks, the little water we got at the peril of life being need to make coffee, just one cup a day for each man. Sometimes when I come to think of it I can't believe that I have been here for more than a year playing my part in the most merciless war in history.

"For the first time no truce is allowed, no white flag is used, no possibility of burying the dead or of picking up the wounded except at the peril of life, and that is why so many corpses are rotting as they fell in 'no man's land,' that weird stretch of ground between the lines; that is why so many wounded cry vainly for help and are left to die a horrible death after two, four or even six days' of agony. I have seen such things and still cannot believe it.

"At the beginning of October we had to co-operate one day with the Moroccans. These are star troops for attack, but they adapt themselves with difficulty to the tranquil life of the trenches. That day they took a large number of prisoners, whom we saw pass by, piteous, lamentable, exhausted by our infernal bombardment. I can still see these Africans bearing their wounded to the rear across the field where big shells were raining down and throwing eruptions of earth into the air. They walked with their rapid, lithe step, impassive in that hell.

"I saw the post for their wounded, where a crowd of Africans, dressed as we see them in Tunis, were lying on stretchers on the ground, raising themselves on their elbows to drink the coffee which the nurses poured out for them and smoking cigarettes with a tranquil air, their clothes covered with blood which filtered through. Others lay stretched out, dying amid the whirring of the motors to the Red Cross ambulances ready to carry them to the railway station.

"All that filled and blocked the main street of a little ruined village. The German lines were formerly at the very edge of this village, now they are far back, and out of curiosity I visited what was once their first line. In the wire entanglements I saw what remained of three Germans killed months before. Only skeletons and fragments of uniforms and boots remained."

"Prosperity has ruined many a man," declared the moralizer. "Well," returned the demoralizer, "if I were going to be ruined at all I'd prefer prosperity to do it."

"There goes a man I might have married," said Gertie. "He? Why he married his typist," replied Gertie. "I applied for the same job just ten minutes after she got it."

"The Bible tells us that we should love our neighbors," said the good deacon. "Yes, but the Bible was written before our neighbors lived so close," replied the mere man.

Notorious Characters Rounded Up By The Officers of The 80th

Through the alertness of Lt-Col. Ketcheson and staff of the 80th, Belleville, five of the most dangerous criminals the United States has ever produced were captured in that town, and have been deported to the States to be dealt with by the American government. Secret service officers of the States arrived in Belleville on Saturday, and took charge of the five dangerous intruders, three men and two women, and in a few days it will be possible to know more of the facts that led these people to Belleville, where there is so much military activity at present.

Rumours for Days.

For many days there have been wild rumours in Belleville that it was the intention of German sympathizers to visit that town and commit any kind of depredation that circumstances would possibly permit. This caused Lt.-Col. Ketcheson to tune up the vigilance of the guard on the munition works, and all places by the 80th battalion. In close proximity to the barracks occupied by the 80th battalion is the Belleville gas works, and it was said that this works would be the first place visited by the dangerous characters. An explosion at the gas works would mean the destruction of the barracks, with a great loss in life and property.

The Visitors Appear.

About a week ago the long expected visitors put in an appearance, in the form of three men and two women confederates. They visited Belleville as any well dressed, prosperous looking visitors would visit any Canadian town, and among the people in general caused neither commotion nor suspicion. They mingled with the crowd, lived well, spent money quite freely, cultivated a few acquaintances and made themselves jolly and genial in general.

Talked Too Much.

But the best laid plans of men and mice are often disturbed, and at the bottom of every good thing, upsetting the calculations of evil minds, there is usually a woman. There was one in this case. The conspirators were discussing their plans in a room, and the acute ear of a woman caught the remark, "It's a pretty big and dangerous job, but we can pull it off all right." Remembering the rumours that had been prevalent in Belleville for some time, the woman in the case made up her mind to visit Lt.-Col. Ketcheson and tell him what she had heard. The Colonel is a bundle of impulse. He thinks quickly and acts quickly, and in this case there was no delay in his action. Without consulting anybody but his own Adjutant, Captain Watson, he immediately rounded up the five crooks, and with his own military police put them under arrest.

Belleville Indignant.

At once there was a big uproar in Belleville over the action of Lt.-Col. Ketcheson for which the people in general thought ther was no possible justification. Some wanted the innocent looking five released at once. The fact that there were two women in the number increased sympathy for the arrested, and greater indignation for the officer who caused their arrest. But Colonel Ketcheson was neither to be badgered, bullied, intimidated or frightened out of his position. He had placed the characters under arest. They had been seen loitering in the neighbourhood of his barracks and the gas works, and the O.C. of the 80th would take no chances.

Colonel Sherwood Notified.

Lt.-Colonel Ketcheson at once got Colonel Percy Sherwood, Chief of Dominion Police on the telephone, and the shrewd chief of Canadian police needed no second tip. He at once went to Belleville, with members of the secret service of Canada, and, after getting in touch with the three men and two women under arrest, decided that he had a real catch. The secret service of the U. S.A. was communicated with at once, and the identity of the characters landed through the alertness of Col. Keacheson and Captain Watson established beyond question.

The Captured Party.

The party was composed of Abe Silver, alias Frank; Bennie Silver, alias Frank; William Cohen, alias Fort, and two women confederates, who may be relatives of the men. The oldest member of the party is Abe Silver, who very recently terminated a ten-years' sentence in the Joliet Penitentiary, and the others have records so long that space forbids their publication. The gang is wanted in Chicago for robbery and other crimes. When they came to Canada, it is believed they entered by way of Sarnia. Their baggage was sent direct to Belleville, but they themselves first went to London, then to Montreal, later to Ottawa, and from the capital to Belleville. The Dominion police had been notified to look out for them, and they might have eluded the police, but for the watchfulness of the officers of the 80th Battalion.

Plenty of Money.

The party was not short of money. One member had $1,800 in cash, another had $1,900 in cash, and between them all, they had about $10,000 in Bank of Commerce bills. Arrangements had been made by confederates in the States to deposit in a Belleville bank to their credit the sum of $15,000, so that there would be no shortage of cash to carry out any infamous scheme they might contemplate or concot. However, their scheme, whatever it might have been, was nipped in the bud by a keen Canadian military officer, and on Saturday they were heavily shackled and taken back across the border to the City of Chicago, where they are badly wanted and where their intentions on their trip to Belleville, and other parts of Canada will be thoroughly investigated.

The Need of Watchfulness.

The arrest of the five has created a sensation in Belleville, and Colonel Ketcheson is now being complimented for his work instead of being blamed, as the public thought at first he deserved. The military authorities at Belleville and in fact the police too, are satisfied that the intention in Belleville was not robbery, for had they contemplated loot, they would select a bigger and a richer spot than Belleville for their prey. The case emphasizes the necessity of the greatest possible care in all military centres, and the careful watching of strangers from another country in particular, especially when they exhibit an abundance of cold cash. It has been proven conclusively that the German element in the States will stop at nothing to try and save the fatherland, and this may have been one of their schemes.

From The Chorus To Etc

motor car that same day we met and we were invited to go for a drive with him. So we got to know each other prety well. Of course our engagement followed.

"After I had been introduced and his people had an opportunity to see that stage people were not quite so bad as they imagined, they were very kind to me. They took me into their arms. My husband and I were always welcome to week-end parties and we spent a great deal of time with his mother and father during our married life.

"Since the loss of my husband's life at the battle of Ypres I have been unable to occupy my mind, and have travelled to America for a change of scenery."

The Invisible Power of British Fleet

monstrous exploits that have at the very outset dishonoured it.

"It has become a mere dull truism to say that the German flag no longer floats on any of the world's seas, and that in the Baltic itself, the last refuge where Germany flatters herself on her security, British submarines are enjoying good hunting. In short, the silent watch of the British squadrons forbids all the sea routes to Germany and cuts her off from nine-tenths of the globe. This shutting down of nearly the whole of Germany's foreign trade represents a gigantic loss to her. Every day that passes it becomes more impossible for her to create the wealth and the new credits which would enable her to carry on the war with the hope of winning.

German Submarine Failure.

"So keenly has Germany felt that the action of the British fleet is hitting her in her vitals that she has tried to retaliate in the same fashion. She imagined that with her submarines she might manage to blockade the whole coastline of the United Kingdom; she aimed at isolating England from the rest of the world and paralyzing her commerce and industry, which are the most powerful factors in the financial credits of the Allies. In anticipation the German press proclaimed that England would soon be starving and would be reduced to begging for a humiliating peace.

"But this Red Indian scalp dance was premature. All these brave German fanfaronades ended in the most humiliating fiasco; the only result has been to add some ineffaceable pages to the German record of crime.

Eulogy For Mayor Duffus

Congratulations to J. J. Duffus, Mayor-elect of the City of Peterborough, Ont., for 1916. Mr. Duffus is the Ford Dealer and if he represents the city as capably as he does the Ford Company we will naturally expect Peterborough will be one of the best managed cities in Canada.—Ford Sales Bulletin.

No Trouble to Keep Skin Free From Hairs

(The Modern Beauty)

There is no need for any woman to countenance superfluous hairs, because with a paste made by mixing some powdered delatone with water it is easy to get rid of them. The paste is applied for 2 to 3 minutes, then rubbed off and the washed. This treatment will rid the skin of hair without leaving a blemish, but care should be taken to see that you get real delatone.

ICE COVERS C.N.R. RAILS.

FOR 12 MILES PICKS MAY HAVE TO BE USED.

WINNIPEG, February 2.—On the Canadian Northern Railway from the Vancouver terminal to Boston Bar, a distance of 126 miles, the track is covered with four inches of solid ice and heavy snow on top. Practically the entire distance will have to be "head-picked" before the line will be cleared.

The snow is 15 feet deep on the level in the mountains and where it has drifted is from 20 to 40 feet in depth. The Fraser River is frozen over for the first time in 40 years.

Old Three Pigeons Inn, Dear to Shakespeare, Passes Away

LONDON, Jan. 25.—One of the last, if not actually the last, of the old Elizabethan inns associated with the name of Shakespeare and his little contemporaries, passes away with the closing of the famous Three Pigeons at Brentford.

Much of the old timbered building, including its low carved and panelled chambers, disappeared years ago, and now comes the order of the Middlesex licensing justices that the ancient hostelry must be closed.

The inn, which was owned by Messrs. Cherrington & Co., well known brewers, has been in occupation up to the last, and although not in a bad state of repair still lavish nothing against its record, it was decided that it now had become unnecessary and it was referred for compensation.

When the place actually was built no one can tell. "It was as old as the hills," said one of the district officials, "but we can give no more definite date than that."

It is curious how popular the house seems to have been with poets and dramatists of the Elizabethan era, seeing that the old town appears to have been always a byword for its "dirt and ill odours." The town is constantly referred to by Thomson, Gay, Goldsmith and others on account of its dirt, and it is the subject of one of Dr. Johnson's most famous jokes.

And yet whenever Shakespeare and his friends had nothing better to do they seem to have turned their footsteps westward to Brentford and there held high revel at the Three Pigeons. The house was the scene of some of George Peeles "Merry Jests," and Ben Jonson wrote "We'll Tickle It at the Pigeons."

In Shakespeare's time it was occupied by one John Lowin, one of the tragedians who played at the old Globe Theatre.

Shakespeare not only refers to the town of Brentford in his plays, but specifically mentions in a sarcastic fashion the proprietress of a neighbouring rival house, the Red Lion.

The house also is referred to in Butler's "Hudibras" as the headquarters of highwaymen, and later traditions connect Dick Turpin with it. Up to quite recent times there were mysterious accounts of locked doors found unlocked during the night and spectres at the foot of the beds of casual sojourners and shadows at the windows of nights.

In more modern times Brentford and the Three Pigeons are familiar to readers of Dickens. It was through Brentford that little Oliver Twist was made a tramp by Bill Sikes on his way to the burglary at Shepperton, and the inn itself is mentioned in "Our Mutual Friend."

Work Demonstration of The Peterboro Branch Of The Red Cross Society

On Friday and Saturday the above Society intends through the courtesy and kindness of Mr. Might, to have an exhibit in the spacious windows of the Turnbull store, of all the various supplies which are forwarded week by week to headquarters, for the use and comfort of our sick, wounded, and convalescent soldiers.

This exhibit has been planned for several reasons. It is felt that there are still some people who do not understand or appreciate the scope and magnitude of Red Cross work, to some it only suggests surgical dressings and bandages, while it actually embraces such articles as dressing gowns, pyjamas, night shirts, day shirts, dressing jackets, kit-bags (completely fitted out), slippers, socks, property bags and many other articles, including all kinds of surgical dressings. The exhibit will also give Red Cross subscribers some conception of how the larger proportion of the Society's income is expended, in addition to these supplies. A money gift is forwarded each month for the sending of parcels to the Canadian prisoners of war in Germany, and also for the purchase of medical supplies for the hospitals, such as drugs, anaesthetics, etc. It is also hoped that the exhibit will tend to create an interest and a desire in the hearts of some Peterborough women who have, as yet, not taken their places as workers in the Red Cross Society, to do so. If it does this, those who planned and carried out the exhibit will be amply repaid for all their labour.

There is room for more workers in the Red Cross workrooms, it is not necessary to be a member of the Society in order "to do your bit," everybody is welcome.

Every article in the exhibit is the handi-work of earnest and voluntary workers, women who realize what the present awful conflict means, and who want the brave men who are fighting for them to feel that behind them strengthening their hands, are the women of Peterborough, full of gratitude to them for the manly part they are playing, and eager to alleviate the discomfort and pain they may endure, to the utmost of their power. Try to picture a wounded soldier in hospital, and endeavour to realize his feelings when he discovers the little tab on the dressing gown he is wearing, which tells him it was made by a Red Cross worker in his own home City of Peterborough.

If you have imagination, you will want to come and help, and not be content any longer to let the "other woman" do your part in addition to her own.

Inspect the "Red Cross window" in Turnbull's store next Friday and Saturday, and decide in which department of work you could be of most use, and then begin right away on it.

HANGING OF THIRTY MEN IS DUE TO SWISS SPIES

LAUSANNE, Switzerland, via Paris, Feb. 2.—The Corrier De Vevey says that the two Swiss colonels, who are under arrest, charged with having communicated military information to the Teutonic powers, had a document in Russian cipher deciphered by an expert of the Swiss War Department. This document contained information regarding a patriotic plot on the part of inhabitants of Russian Poland against the Germans who had occupied their territory, according to the newspaper, and, as a result of the communication of the document by the two Swiss colonels to the Germans thirty Poles were hanged. The Corrier adds that the Swiss expert has been heartbroken since he learned the use made of his deciphering talent.

USE OF DRUGS DIMINISHING

It has been stated that the expense for drugs at the Massachusetts General Hospital has been reduced 50 per cent in ten years,—but the demand for such non-secret, reliable remedies as Vinol is largely on the increase. Our local druggists, McDermid & Jury and E. L. Payne, Peterborough, go so far as to guarantee Vinol for weak, run-down conditions, chronic coughs, colds and bronchitis, because one gets in Vinol a combination of the three most famous tonics, iron for the blood, the healing medicinal extractives of fresh cod livers, and the nourishing properties of beef peptone, all in a delicious native wine.

He is happy whose circumstances suit his temper, but he is more excellent who can suit his temper to any circumstances.

Turks Wiped Out Servants of King in Anafarta Fight

LONDON, Jan. 28.—Of all the tales of gallantry told, and yet to be told, of the desperate fighting in Gallipoli, none perhaps will surpass the heroism of the Norfolk territorials, with whom the King's Sandringham servants went to fight. Of them Sir Ian Hamilton wrote in his now historic despatch:—"Among these ardent souls was part of a fine company enlisted from the King's Sandringham estates. Nothing more was ever seen or heard of any of them. They charged into the forest and were lost to sight or sound."

Writing of that magnificent charge into the "misty unknown," a correspondent writing from King's Lynn says:—"It is a story of the men who never came back," of Colonel Beauchamp and sixteen officers who led 250 men across ploughed open fields, thinking of nothing but the order, 'Anafarta must be taken by dusk.' To-day only a dozen, it would seem, are alive as wounded prisoners in Turkish hands, some day to tell a tale, perhaps, that shall add a silver lining to one of the most glorious but saddest records of the British army.

"It is a breathless story. Think of every eligible man from the King's Sandringham estates enlisting in a body and forming a nucleus of C company; men whose wildest 'thrills' had been talk of a recalcitrant bull on the royal estate. Others from office stool and counter. Twelve months of skilled training, in which Colonel Beauchamp was a past master. A pleasant cruise across open blue seas on board the Aquitania, and a midnight landing on an enemy's unknown and unmapped coast.

"'Anafarta must be taken by dusk.' That was the responsibility entrusted to them. For more than two and a half miles, across open country which would not shelter a field mouse, these Norfolk neophytes to gunfire charged. Maybe it was the very gallantry of these super-heroes that was their undoing. The Turks could not face that thin line of glittering Norfolk steel. They broke and fled.

"Bold and confident, Colonel Beauchamp, waving just a simple Nilkheri cane, outpaced his men. 'On, the Norfolks, on!' 'Come on, the Holy Boys;' and 'Forward, the Hungry Ninth!' came the resounding echo from those ardent souls close upon their leader's heels.

"The fighting grew hotter; the Norfolks came into a terrible enfilading fire on both sides. Shrapnel and machine guns swept the earth bare of those men whom the Turkish infantry could not face. Exhausted by thirst and decimated by the fire, into the woods they continued. And then —who knows? Only twelve survive and they are wounded prisoners.

"So to-day the little villages of West Newton and Derhingham and the cottages on the King's estates are all in mourning. Gardeners, keepers and woodmen have paid the great sacrifice. Aching hearts are scarcely less heavy because the King himself has tried again and again to secure a release from suspense. These women, materially, want for nothing. Every family receives from the King the same pay as if its man was at home.

"Corporal Blott, who was attached to the C company, the King's Company, is a prisoner, but is unable to throw any light upon the fate of his comrades. Once a week he is allowed to send a post card to his mother, but 'it was just a jumbled up affair,' says Blott. After capture he was marched ninety miles in four days to his internment camp, and now his four line post cards just contain requests for money, food and clothing.

"Colonel Beauchamp was last seen alive in the village of Anafarta. He was walking arm in arm with his adjutant. He carried his service coat on his arm and was still encouraging his brave followers. 'Dig 'em out, boys; stick it through them.' It was his last heard order to his men to clear the village of Turkish snipers. The village subsequently appears to have come under heavy artillery shell fire. Maybe it was followed by an overwhelming sweep of Turkish reinforcements which literally swamped the surviving Norfolks."

SIMPLE WAY TO END DANDRUFF

There is one sure way that has never failed to remove dandruff at once, and that is to dissolve it, then you destroy it entirely. To do this, just get about four ounces of plain, common liquid arvon from any drug store (this is all you will need), apply it at night when retiring; use enough to moisten the scalp and rub it in gently with the finger tips.

By morning, most if not all, of your dandruff will be gone, and three or four more applications will completely dissolve and entirely destroy every single sign and trace of it, no matter how much dandruff you may have.

You will find all itching and digging of the scalp will stop instantly, and your hair will be fluffy, lustrous, glossy, silky and soft, and look and feel a hundred times better.

GEN. HUGHES RAPS DILATORY MEMBERS

Late in Arriving For First Instruction of New Military Course

LESSON IN DISCIPLINE

OTTAWA, Feb. 2.—The officers' training course for members of Parliament was organized yesterday. General Sir Sam Hughes addressing the twenty odd members present. A number of members of the Parliamentary Press Gallery are also availing themselves of the course, Col. Papineau, of Halifax, will have charge.

A number of the members, and, in addition, Col. Papineau, arrived a few minutes past 10 o'clock, the hour set for the meeting, and General Hughes gave them their first lesson in discipline. He insisted that promptness who one of the first essentials of an officer. He informed Col. Papineau they did not keep Halifax hours in Ottawa. The Minister pointed out that strong business men were needed as officers. It was decided to have drill four days a week from 8.30 a.m. to 10 o'clock and the hours for lectures will be arranged later.

Among those present were Colonel George H. Bradley, Selkirk; H. S. Clements, Comox-Atlin; Major Gerald White, North Renfrew; R. F. Green Kootenay; Frank Sheppard, Nanaimo; George Elliott, North Middlesex; Captain Tom Wallace, A. Wright, Muskoka; Frank Glass, East Middlesex; E. N. Rhodes, Cumberland; Col Cockshutt, Brantford; G. H. Barnard Victoria, and Fred Kay, Missisquoi.

Arts and Crafts Column

In this column, conducted by Mr. Hughson Johnstone, painter and decorator, 310 College Street, will be answered on Wednesdays — questions of the kind given below, for the benefit of those who, in this period of stringency and enforced and suggested economy, might like doing their own work. Questions relating to painting, signwriting, paperhanging, furniture polishing, and decorating may be sent to the Examiner, and will receive attention in due course

Evelyn, Peterborough, Ont.—Can you give me an approximate idea of the comparative cost of hardwood flooring, carpet and imitation hard wood? The floor of the living room and dining room are pine and in fair condition. Would you recommend laying hardwood flooring over the present floor? Or is carpet as economical and as sanitary? I have just had the rooms decorated, and feel the floor must be attended to in justice to the balance of the rooms. The woodwork has been grained, the walls papered in a grey, or mostly grey colour. What colour should my curtains be as the two rooms are only divided by the curtains?

Ans.—We cannot, in this column give prices, not even approximate or comparative figures. But we will venture the opinion that of the three suggestions, carpet should be the last choice, and is positively not as sanitary. If your floor is pine and in good condition, why not treat it as you did your other woodwork, and have it grained? But, not knowing what your trimmings are grained to imitate, I cannot say, make the floor the same! The floor should be an imitation of some wood generally used in flooring for instance oak, beech, maple, birch etc. It would be bad judgment to imitate walnut or rosewood for flooring. Of course you will have rugs of some kind on your floors; so, in the selection of rugs and portiers be guided largely by your furniture, coverings, piano drape, etc., as well as by your wall paper and wood work.

Constant Reader; Douro—Please tell me how to change the colour of green burlap; I want it brown.

Ans.—You do not say whether your burlap is painted or dyed. If painted, simply paint it again the colour desired, it may require more than one coat. If it is dyed burlap, the proposition is more difficult, and really should be left to an experienced man if first-class results are desired. However, if you feel capable and care to tackle the task, make a stain (or buy one ready-made) and, with a good-sized brush, go as quickly as possible over the burlap, stopping only at the corners, otherwise it will show laps.

White Wash, Cavan, Ont.—I made some whitewash, and put some blue in it; and it didn't blue it, so I put in some more, and then quite a lot, and still it did not blue it. Can't it be done?

Ans.—You did not use the proper kind of blue. Lime will bleach out ordinary colouring. Better secure the special lime blue from your dealer. That will "blue it."

Query, Peterborough, Ont.—In your opinion, candidly, is there much difference between ready-mixed paint and the lead and oil paint as made by painters?

Ans.—Ready-mixed or machinery-made paint should be superior to hand-made paint, because machinery can more thoroughly mix and incorporate the ingredients than can be done by hand. Therefore, all things being equal, machinery-made paint would be the best. BUT! Are all things equal? I fear not. I doubt if there is an absolutely pure white lead linseed oil and turpentine prepared paint on the market anywhere; one, I mean, containing nothing more than those three ingredients. Many makers guarantee their prepared paint to contain pure white lead, linseed oil and turpentine, 'tis true. But do they guarantee it to contain only these? They are careful not to mention what else is put in. The fact that the largest and most reliable painters and decorators in all large centres of population to-day, make their own paint by hand, knowing what goes into its make-up, back of which stands their reputation, is the best proof of which is the purest paint. But let me add, that because a painter mixes the paint is not proof of pure ingredients. Even some painters are a little dishonest.

IF YOU HAD BEEN BORN A MARTIAN

"The bigger the planet on which you live the harder it is for you to move about. If you were suddenly transported to Jupiter, the largest of the planets, and if you were able to live on its semi-molten surface," says a writer in the Popular Science Monthly, "you would find it hard to lift your arm. A steam crane would be a welcome assistance in moving your body about. This is due entirely to the enormous gravitational attraction which Jupiter would exert upon you. The bigger the planet the harder are you pulled down to its surface, the harder it is to put your foot forward.

"Mars is only one-ninth as massive as the earth. Hence you would weigh much less on Mars than you do on the earth. A Martian porter could easily carry as much as a terrestrial elephant. A Martian baseball player could bat a ball a mile. A very ordinary Martian athlete could leap with ease over a moderately sized house. Because his planet is not able to pull him down with the attractive force that the earth exerts upon us, the typical Martian has conceivably attained a stature that we would regard as gigantic. Three times as large as a human being, this creature has muscles twenty-seven times as effective. His trunk must be fashioned to enclose lungs capable of breathing the excessively attenuated Martian air in sufficiently large quantities to sustain life. As a canal digger—assuming that he had no machinery—he would be a great success, because he would excavate a canal with the speed and efficiency of a small Panama steam shovel.

"Beyond that we cannot go. Intelligence is not necessarily a human attribute. It has so happened on this earth that man has become the dominant race, not because of his physical prowess, but because of his brain. It may well be that the biological conditions of Mars are such that a creature very unhuman in appearance may have gained the ascendency in the struggle for existence on a planet that is fast drying up.

Mr. W. E. Harper, B. A., of Ottawa To Visit Peterboro

Mr. W. A. Harper, B.A., of the Dominion Observatory, Ottawa, is to lecture on the subject, "Nebulae" on Thursday evening, Feb. 10, in St. Paul's Sunday school room.

Many of the large observatories are at present devoting considerable time to the study of the filmy shreds and balls of cloudy material among the stars known as nebulae; seeking to give them the proper place in the universe.

Mr. Harper will tell in simple language what is known of the wonderful objects, with particular reference to discoveries of the past few years. A number of lantern slides of nebulae will be shown, made recently from the best photographs obtained with the 60 inch reflector at Mount Wilson.

The lecture will be given in the St. Paul's Sunday school room on Thursday, Feb. 10th. Admission free. No collection.

Keep Dollar Day in mind it will be the best yet.

Mist Hampers The Aeroplanes' Defence of The French Capital

German Raiders Fly Two Miles High—Most of Bombs Drop In A Populous Tenement District.

PARIS, Jan. 31.—At 7 last night I saw David Lloyd George and Bonar Law with a party of British officials enter the Hotel Crillon. My companion remarked: "The Zeppelins would have a good bag if they could drop a bomb on the hotel". He spoke laughingly, but I remembered the raid on Epernay a few days ago. The night was fine and the German espionage service vigilant.

Three hours later I was sitting in the Boulevard Cafe when suddenly, without the flourish of trumpets or rushing of automobiles of a year ago almost to a day, the police and firemen began extinguishing lamps and the whisper was passed, "Zeppelins are signalled approaching the city." For an hour we waited, but nothing happened, then came the rumor of bombs dropped on the suburbs. I telephoned a great Paris daily. It was true.

Fifteen Bombs Dropped.

Some fifteen bombs had fallen near the fortifications in a populous tenement district. The damage was considerable. There were killed and wounded. I dashed for a taxi, and a few minutes later was speeding along the avenue. Arriving on the smitten street I was again stopped, but the Prefect's signature was sesame omnipotent. Here fifteen firemen and police were busy amid the ruins. Already bodies awaiting removal to the mortuary were lying on heaps or rubbish in rar row court yards. The houses struck looked exactly like photographs of gun-ravished towns. Here half the front of the house was torn, leaving a child's cot hanging over the edge, its occupant somewhere under the ruins, and the neighbors trying to comfort a frantic mother in the next-door kitchen. Further on a bomb had fallen on a little pavilion. It was literally a shapeless heap of bricks and woodwork with no outline of a building left. Yet two hours ago it was a quiet home where a soldier's wife and child, now hidden under the debris, slept confident of safety.

Family Wiped Out.

The worst case of all was a five-story tenement at the end of a cul-de-sac. From the front it seemed untouched, but behind the facade the whole building was split in half, and no one knew how many dead lay there.

Here the family of a Zouave, Auguste Petitjean, were celebrating the father's leave from the front. His wife and fifteen-year-old daughter Lucie; his old father-in-law, Joseph Frichti, and a sister, Madame Leriche, with her two little boys, Raymond and Andre, had gathered round the table to hear stories of the war. Suddenly the war struck them. All seven were killed instantly. When I left four bodies were already recovered. Elsewhere similar scenes were repeated.

Civilian Victims.

In no instance were the victims other than humble workers. No house damaged had an official character or was inhabited by persons of note. One bomb made a twenty-foot wide hole in the road right above the subway, actually piercing the subway vault. A train had just passed, and the line is now blocked. No one was injured, but a few moments earlier the slaughter would have been terrible. There were in all seventeen bombs, of which one was incendiary, which caused fires that were quickly extinguished. Al fell within a comparatively small area. The latest accounts give twenty-four deaths and thirty wounded, almost all women, children and aged.

Fifteen houses were damaged. The first bomb fell above the subway at ten o'clock, the last on the pavilion at five minutes past ten.

They were but paltry heroes, those German raiders hurrying through the mist at sixty miles an hour two miles above the earth and dropping three and one-half tons of bombs.

Mist Hides Murderers.

No one seems to have seen the Zeppelins, for the Paris mist prevented that, but the size and nature of the bombs establish the raiders' character definitely. One group of aeroplanes claims to have exchanged shots from beneatth, but all admit the mist and the aeronauts' great height made successful pursuit impossible. Yet full payment will be exacted.

As I made my way from the scene of devastation I heard cheering and clapping as the word went round that the President, with that ready sympathy that as endeared him to the nation, had arrived and was visiting the sufferers. Other prominent men followed his example. I saw Police Chief Laurent, Minister of the Interior Malvy and the Chief of the Fire Department. Everywhere the crowd cheered.

The greatest throng was in the street where men from the municipal chemical laboratory were carefully examining a bomb weighing nearly 600 pounds that had fallen in the courtyard of a factory and failed to explode. The crowd at one time broke through the police line and elbowed up to the foot-board of the official motor car to get a near view of the monster.

Altogether a dozen bombs, weighing about six hundred pounds each, were dropped. None of the fatalities occurred in the open streets, the majority of the victims being killed in their beds.

Poincare Visits Scene.

President Poincare, who in company with the Military Governor of Paris and the Prefect of Police visited the scene of wreckage caused by some of the bombs shortly after mid night, seemed greatly moved by what he saw. One of the houses that he viewed was that of Police Sergeant Bidault, who had just reached his home and who was killed by a bomb which at the same time seriously injured his sister-in-law. No one blames the authorities for this only second attempt of the Zeppelins since the war. But everywhere there went up the cry "Reprisals." As I drove home at 1.30 through the streets, crowded as on the night of the fourteenth of July, firemen were relighting the lamps and sounding the retire to rest. There was no dismay scarcely any uproar.

SAYS CANADA HAS ACCOMPLISHED AN ECONOMIC MIRACLE

"Commerce and Finance," Jan. 30th, says: Across our northern border there is taking place one of the economic miracles of the age. Within eighteen months an English dependency never able to stand alone before, has aroused itself from profound depression, endowed its people with prosperity, established an unquestioned credit of it own, and actually tendered financial assistance to the British Empire. All this has been accomplished with Canadian resources. There has been no assistance from the outside world, save that which Canadian credit could command. The people of the United States have much to learn from this achievement; for it must be remembered that Canada is not, like us, a great, wealthy neutral. Instead, she is shouldering a heavy share of the war's burden.

At the end of 1913, Canada was obliged to settle her foreign debit balance with $400,000,000 of securities. The aftermath of that year of extravagance brought about a sharp decrease in imports during 1914. Still $130,000,000 in securities had to be sent to Europe to square the Dominion's accounts. Between July and December, 1915, however, the value of exports exceeded that of imports by $45,041,404. For the first time in her history Canada is standing alone. If the export excess continues through out the year it will go a long way toward settling the $140,000,000 or $150,000,000 of interest payments which fall due annually on Canadian securities held abroad.

This outward sign of nascent commercial independence was brought about by strict economy and diligence. A sharp trade contraction—much more severe than that which occurred in the United States—followed immediately upon the declaration of war. The banks began to husband their resources, and even after the "war orders" commenced flowing in speculation of all sorts was discountenanced. However, the banks have given aid liberally to enterprises of a solid, constructive character. The loans of the Canadian Bank of Commerce, for instance, increased $2,087,284 in 1915, despite the fact that total bank clearings were nearly a billion dollars under those of the year before.

The execution of "war orders" has brought to Canada some $200,000,000 of European money and stimulated the manufacturing industry immensely. To this must be added the value of bumper crops, and all the benefit to railroads and miscellaneous industries which a good harvest always brings.

The effect of these activities upon general trade was not apparent until October. In that month bank clearings had just recovered to the average of their 1913 level. During November and December, however, they were $109,000,000, or 12 1-2 per cent. greater than the 1913 monthly maximum.

But it is in the matter of independent and internal financing that the Caandians take greatest pride. Early in the year $43,000,000 was borrowed in London. This was chiefly for refunding purposes and with that transaction Canadian dependence upon the United Kingdom ceased. Since then $144,000,000 has been borrowed in the United States upon Canadian credit alone, and $100,000,000 has been raised in Canada to aid the mother country in prosecuting the war. This loan, and additional taxation amounting to $22,000,000, have been managed without difficulty—a feat no one in Canada would have believed possible a year ago.

With all the credit operations that have taken place in connection with the crop movement and the financing of new industries, the note circulation of the banks is still below the figure at which it stood in 1913, and bank liabilities are covered to the extent of 47.68 per cent.

The most impressive economic feature the war has developed has been the undreamed-of speed with which the financial resources of a nation can be mobilized and liquified. The warring nations themselves have obscured the limits of soundness by mortgaging the future without regard for economic considerations. Canada, while participating in the war more or less directly, has not indulged in any of the headlong finance practiced in Europe. But she has mobilized her resources. The result astounds her own people. Incidentally it suggests that the prosperity which would result from a similarly thorough-going mobilization in the immensely wealthy and neutral United States would surpass any such phenomenon, of which the world ever has dreamed.

GERMAN WRITER JAILED.

AMSTERDAM, Feb. 2—The Cologne Volks Zeitung says Emil Pruem, who is a subject of Luxemburg, and honorary Mayor of the Town of Clervaux, has been sentenced by court-martial to three years' imprisonment for insulting the German army in the distribution of a pamphlet written by him entitled "Martyred Belgium."

FIFTEEN MILLIONS SIGHTED.

For Patriotic Fund—Half From Three Cities.

OTTAWA, Jan. 31.—Fifteen million dollars are in sight for the Canadian Patriotic Fund. About $7,200,000 has so far been paid in, while subscriptions mainly secured in campaigns last week total about eight millions. In addition to upwards of five millions contributed by Montreal, Toronto and Ottawa, Guelph gave $50,000, Hull $30,000, Barrie $27,000 and Hespeler $20,000. There were also systematic appeals to various county councils and from these sources about $800,000 was pledged.

CITY HOCKEY LEAGUE OPENS TO-MORROW

Two Fast Games at Brock Street Rink Thursday Night

The City Hockey League after a postponement of a week, will commence the schedule of games to-morrow night at the Brock street rink. Two games will be played and they will commence at 8 o'clock. The first game will be the Americans vs. Bachelors; East City vs. Pennants the second game.

Mr. W. Breen will handle the bell. The teams have signed up all the players of promise in the city and two good games will be played. The admission has been placed at 10c. for adults and 5c. for children, and there will no doubt be a good attendance of those who are following up the younger players in order to size them up as prospects for the O.H.A. teams.

Played on Peterboro Lacrosse Team in 80's

Mr. A. G. Simpson, of the Simpson House, has received word that his uncle, Mr. John Booth Simpson, had passed away in Vancouver, B.C.

The news of Mr. Simpson's death will be received with regret by his many friends. "Jack" as he was affectionately known, was a well known resident of the town some years ago. For a number of years he conducted the old Queen's Hotel at Peterborough, and later the Clarendon House at Hastings. He was an old time printer, and while a resident of Peterborough, was a member of the lacrosse team which brought honour to that town in the early eighties.

During his residence in Vancouver he conducted one of the city's leading hostelries in that city, and was one of the best known citizens on the coast. He retired from the hotel business a few years ago owing to ill health. He is survived by his wife, (who was Hattie Gordon of Fenelon Falls) and one daughter, Mrs. A. F. Clarke.—Lindsay Post.

The Boys Are Relying On You For Smokes

When soldiers have nothing to smoke they are being deprived of a comfort that is absolutely vital, and it is no exaggeration to say that any shortage of cigarettes and tobacco inflicts positive pain on them. When a man has to sit all day in a trench with nothing to relieve the monotony but an occasional 'Jack Johnson' or the ping-ping of the sniper's bullet, it is some relief to light up a pipe, or smoke a cigarette. Monotony wears out one's nerves, and against trench monotony the only sedative is tobacco—not inaptly named the soldier's best friend.

Knowing the truth of this, we appeal to our readers to help the Over-Seas Club in its praiseworthy effort to raise enough money to give every Canadian soldier at the front enough to smoke. They have neither the means nor the facilities for buying tobacco, themselves. They leave that to the generosity of the great-hearted Canadian public. They know that our country that knows how to admire courage and splendid endurance, will not desert them in their hour of need.

25c Sends $1.00 Worth.

For every quarter you contribute to Canada's Tobacco Fund (Organized by the Over-Seas Club,) some soldier on active service will receive a large package of Canadian Manufactured Tobacco, 50 best quality Canadian made Cigarettes and a box of Matches.

If bought in the ordinary way and posted direct, this same package would cost you one dollar. Our readers are earnestly asked to contribute to this good cause.

The Editor of The Examiner, any local Post Office or Bank will receive your contribution and send it on without delay to Canada's Tobacco Fund, which has been organized by the Over-Seas Club.

Inaugural Meeting Of The Havelock School Board

Pte. Clarence Holdcroft With Second Canadian Contingent, Admitted To Base Hospital Through Illness—Havelock News

HAVELOCK, Feb. 1.—Rev. C. W. Holdsworth conducted services in Peterborough on Sunday, his pulpit here being occupied by a city clergyman.

About forty members of the Epworth League visited the Campbellford League on Monday night and enjoyed themselves immensely.

A meeting will be held in the Schoolhouse on Feb. 3rd at 7.30 p.m. for the purpose of distributing Red Cross work. A good attendance is requested.

The L.O.L. dance in their Lodge Hall on Wednesday night of last week was a big success, and will be followed by another in the course of a week or two. Mr. Thos. McQuigge and family furnished good music.

Mr. Hutchins, of the Bank of Toronto staff, has been transferred to the Montreal office, and left on Friday night for that city. He is succeeded by Mr. E. G. Britton, of the Montreal office.

An art exhibit consisting of two hundred subjects, representing all the principal schools of art, and including many reproductions of sculpture, architecture and views from nature, was held in the Town Hall on Thursday and Friday evenings of last week from 8 to 10 o'clock. The exhibit was under the auspices of the Public School, and the proceeds in aid of the school.

Dr. Holdcroft, of town, received a post card from his son, Pte. Clarence Holdcroft, on Monday, informing him that he has been admitted to the hospital through illness, and is going to the base hospital for treatment. No particulars as to the extent of his illness are given on the postal, which was written on Jan. 7th.

Inaugural Meeting.

The inaugural meeting of the School Board was held on Wednesday night of last week, when all the members were present except Trustees Primrose and W. J. Brown. Mr. J. Barlow was re-elected chairman and Mr. Bob Goon secretary. The date of the regular meeting was changed from the third Wednesday in every month to the third Tuesday at the same hour, 7.30 p.m.

Miss Lela Donnelly, of Watertown, N.Y., is home on a visit.

Dr. Kindred, of Tweed, made a flying trip to town on Friday last.

Mrs. Geo. Woodman, of Toronto, is the guest of her aunt, Mrs. John Burnett.

Miss Lillian McNicol visited friends in Peterborough for a few days last week.

Mr. Wilfrid Ackerman, of Rossmore, is visiting relatives in town and vicinity.

Miss Mildred Orser, of Kingston, is visiting her cousin, Miss Allice Bennington.

Mr. Tuneen's many friends will regret to hear that he is confined to his bed through illness.

Mrs. W. H. Hart, of Havelock, visited friends in Campbellford last week.

Mr. Jack McGill, inspector in a munition factory at Toronto, who has been home on sick leave, due to the grippe, has returned to the city.

Mr. Ross Wilde, of the Bank of Toronto staff at Barrie, has been transferred to the branch at Shelburne. His Havelock friends will all be glad to hear of his advancement.

Miss Edith Worth, of Peterborough, spent a few days in town, the guest of her brother, Lieut. Worth.

Mr. and Mrs. F. Haig and daughter, Miss Mary, have returned from visiting friends in Albany, Buffalo, and Toronto.

Mr. Geo. Cochrane, of Young, Sask., is renewing old acquaintances in town and vicinity, and receiving a hearty welcome.

Mr. Lawrence Pacey has been transferred to Guelph, where he will be situated as fireman on the yard engine at that place.

Miss Laura Kelly, trained nurse of New York, formerly teacher of the Victoria School, was a guest of Mrs. Chas. Armstrong for a few days last week.

Reeves Fennell, of town, and Ketchen, of Belmont, were in Peterborough last week, attending the inaugural session of the County Council, which opened on Tuesday.

Mr. Wm. R. Howson, B.S., LL.B., of Edmonton, Alta., formerly of town, has been admitted to the Alberta Bar, and has accepted a partnership in the firm of Boothe and Morrow.

Presbyterian Social.

The social in the Presbyterian Church on Monday night was a big success. The local squad were the guests of the evening, and are delighted with the good time given them by the ladies. A feature of the evening was an earnest recruiting speech by Sergeant Traynor.

W. Vellend, of Rush Point, has signed with the Havelock detachment, and Ptes. Anderson and Sweeney have been transferred from Peterborough to Havelock.

Pte. S. Wright entertained the local squad most acceptably on Friday night, when he invited them all to tea and presented them with cigars and cigarettes afterwards.

Ptes. B. Withams, A. Giles, and Geo. Pollock, of the 93rd Battalion, Peterborough, have been promoted provisionally to Lance-Corporals. Their Havelock friends are glad to hear of their promotion.

Ptes. J. Dewey, Harry Washburn and Wm. Carroll are in quarantine as the result of an attack of measles, doubtless contracted at Peterborough, where a large number of cases have occurred at the Armouries.

Lieut. Walter C. Thomson, who is in charge of the recruiting campaign at Norwood and Havelock, has recently been promoted to a Captaincy, and, we understand, goes to Kingston next week to qualify.

A very pleasing gift was received by the squad on Monday, when a quantity of pure French tobacco was presented them by Mr. Thos. Wright.

Eighteen members of the local squad in command of Sergt. Traynor marched to Norwood on Tuesday, going up in the forenoon and returning after dinner. All stood the tramp in good shape, and enjoyed the outing.

Women's Institute.

The regular monthly meeting of the Belmont Woman's Institute, which is becoming so popular in the township, was held at the home of Mrs. Jos. Seabrook, the energetic secretary, on Wednesday afternoon of last week, when twenty ladies were present. Mrs. H. Tinney, vice-president, occupied the chair most acceptably. After the business part of the meeting was over, a short programme was given, consisting of a drill on the rules and regulations of Women's Institutes, conducted by Mrs. Jas. Freeman, a reading by Mrs. G. B. Sanders, a duet by the Misses Ketchen, and a recitation by Miss E. Clarke. During roll call a number of members answered with a quotation.

The meeting closed with the singing of the National Anthem, after which an enjoyable social hour was spent. The next meeting will be held at the home of Mrs. M. Rylott on the third Wednesday in February.

TO MAKE A STOVE SHINE.

First, spread old newspapers around the stove on the floor that no dirt reaches the boards, and when through, gather them up, carefully, and put in the rubbish barrel.

Have the stove cold, and if there are grease spots on it, put a little turpentine on a rag and rub them off. Go over your stove part at a time, with a good blacking and when partly dry, rub with a cloth, then a brush and lastly polish with a woolen cloth kept for the purpose. By using a little elbow grease, your range will shine like new.

Don't throw away old stockings—fold them a great many times and use for holders. Or put them in a mop handle for a "mop dry."

The Rev. Mr. Robin, of Young's Point, was in the village on Thursday last.

Owing to the present dangerous state of the roads the Dramatic Club of the A.Y.P.A. have postponed their entertainment which was to have taken place in Warsaw on Monday evening until a fortnight later.

Mr. Geo. Foster and Master Leonard, of Peterborough, were guests of Mr. and Mrs. John Sanderson for a few days last week.

Capt. C. S. Carter, of the 130th Battalion, Port Hope, spent a few days last week at his home here.

Mr. J. H. Sherin spent a few days last week in Toronto on business.

Mrs. Irwin, of Hamilton, arrived in the village on Monday on a visit to her brother, Mr. John Lemay.

Gunner M. Kidd, of the 33rd Battery, Kingston, spent a few days last week at his home in the village.

Miss Madge Curtis, of Havelock, is in the village the guest of Miss M. Alford, on Regent street.

Mr. C. S. Tanner spent a few days last week in Toronto.

Gunner A. Isbister, of the 33rd Battery, Kingston, who for the past three weeks has been in the Nicholls Hospital, Peterborough, where he was obliged to undergo a serious operation, arrived last week to recuperate at his home in the village. It will probably be some time before Gunner Isbister is able to rejoin his battery.

Mrs. Pedlar and Master George, who have been spending the past six weeks in Oshawa, returned to the village on Monday.

It is rather an unusual thing to be able to gather flowers at this season of the year, but on Monday Mr. Trude Waldron picked fiftegn pansies blooming in his garden.

The A.Y.P.A. have received letters of thanks for the Christmas parcels sent to the following boys in the 21st Battalion: Lieut. Cooper, Sergt. McFadgen, Privates W. L. Webster, J. R. Robinson, H. A. Hayes, H. T. Pemberthy, Wm. Robinson, Norman Hurl and D. Chads.

Mrs. J. G. Somerville and daughter, Miss Peggy, of Winnipeg, Man., arrived last week to visit Mrs. Somerville's parents, Mr. and Mrs. F. J. Moore.

MARRIAGE LICENSES ISSUED

VITAL STATISTICS FOR THE MONTH

Substantial Increase in the Marriage Rate—Death Rate is Also High

There were nearly three times as many marriages in January of this year as in January, 1915. The death rate is correspondingly high, while the birth rate is lower. The vital statistics for the past month as shown by the records in the City Hall are as follows:

	1915	1916
Births	44	39
Marriages	9	26
Deaths	12	35

No building permits were issued during the month, while for a similar period last year, two permits were issued, representing a total valuation of $1,900.

Public School Attendance.

Inspector Mowat presented the following report of attendance at the Public schools during January:

	On Roll.	Aver.
Central	436	345
Queen Alexandra	279	228
King Edward	455	381
Queen Mary	388	332
King George	243	188
South Central	399	336
	2208	1810
Kindergartens	125	90
Total	2333	1900

Percentage attendance—82.

Fire drill was practiced in the schools during the month—time from 40 to 70 seconds.

The low average in attendance is due to the epidemic of la grippe, which is general throughout the schools.

A. Mowat, I.P.S.

Paymaster Burnham Will Be Busy

By the New Division of a Soldier's Pay and Allowances

DETAILS GIVEN AT OTTAWA

Money Goes Direct to Wife or to His Landlady

A general order has been issued by the Militia Department at Ottawa to regulate the payment of pay and allowance for all soldiers who are in billets.

According to the instructions which have been sent to all battalion paymasters, a married man living at home draws $1.95 per day, 85c. of which will be paid, in future, direct to his wife.

A married man not living at home draws $2.35 per day for himself and wife, this total being made up as follows: Subsistence allowance to wife, 85c., assigned pay to wife, 50c.; balance of pay to husband, 50c.; field allowance to man 10c., and billeting account, payable to boarding-house keeper, 60c.

According to this arrangement, the wife of a soldier receives almost half of her soldier-husband's income, or specifically $1.15 per day, when he is not living at home, but is in a billet. The soldier himself gets 60c. per day and the keeper of the boarding house where he is living receives the same sum, 60c., direct from the battalion paymaster.

Paid to Landlady.

In the case of single men or wives of men without children, who are in billets, the paymaster pays $1 per day to the soldier and also 10c. for field allowance. Sixty cents to cover his billeting account is to be paid direct to his landlady or the boarding-house keeper where he is living.

As soon as a soldier is sent to camp or barracks, the money to cover a billeting account or, in the case of a married man living at home, the 85c. subsistence allowance to wife, is cut off, but the assignment of half of a married man's pay, or 50c. per day to his wife is continued.

With the new regulations, the boarding-house keeper who is providing meals and room for a soldier will receive 60c. per days from the Government for this account, or at the rate of $18 per week for the accommodation. The soldier may add to this allowance if he so desires.

Gives More Work.

The new regulations will double the work of a battalion paymaster because of the several new divisions of a soldier's pay and allowances. Moreover, a double or triple set of cheques will have to be issued for each man who is in a billet twice each month.

One seed of cotton planted and its produce replanted will produce 40,000,000 seeds in six years.

$250,000 WORTH OF BULLION PART OF THE RICH HAUL MADE BY SEA RAIDER

British Waaships Are Confidently Expected to Run Down the German Mystery Ship---Britain Will Demand the Release of the Appam---Aeroplane Raid Reported on German Depot at Ghent.

Special Cable to The Examiner:

LONDON, Feb. 2.—A quarter million dollars worth of bullion, in addition to other valuable cargo, was captured by the German commerce raiders, who seized the British liner Appam, the Evening News reported this afternoon. The bullion was being brought to England from Africa. The exact value of the rest of the Appam's cargo is not known.

There is every confidence that British warships will soon hunt down and destroy the German raider. News of the Appam's arrival at Norfolk brought joy to the relatives of passengers and crew, who had given her up as lost. Many wives of men aboard the liner to-day doffed the mourning they put on last week.

WILL NOT RELEASE THE APPAM.

WASHINGTON. Feb. 2.—The British liner Appam will not be allowed to leave Norfolk. While no formal decision had been yet reached to this effect, from the highest State Department authorities came the information to-day that such action had been practically determined. The detention of the Appam by the American Government is possible on the grounds, it is said, first, that she is a German prize and shall be held for prize court adjudication and, second, that she is a German auxiliary. From the British Embassy to-day came the official declaration that England will make formal representations for the Appam's release. Such a note is being prepared. Britain is to insist that the Appam is a prize and, as such, in a nentral port, entitled to release and return to her owners.

TURKS HEIR APPARENT A SUICIDE?

AMSTERDAM, Feb. 2.—An unconfirmed report received here from Constantinople this afternoon that Prince Yussuf Izzedin, heir-apparent to the Turkish Throne, has committed suicide by cutting his arteries while despondent through illness. It was stated by well-informed persons here that he was in disfavour with the Sultan because of his opposition to the Turkish alliance with Germany.

CONFIDENCE VOTED IN FRENCH CHAMBER

PARIS, Feb. 2.—The Chamber of Deputies voted confidence in the Government after a debate on an order issued by General Gallieni, the War Minister, prohibiting soldiers from entering liquor establishments at Marseilles between the hours of 8 a.m. and 5 p.m. General Gallieni explained the necessity of the measure. At the same time he demanded a reduction in the number of places for the sale of liquor near the front in the interest of discipline.

ZEPPELINS DID NOT REACH BIG CITIES.

LONDON, Feb. 2.—German Zeppelins, in their great raid on England Monday night, gropped their way blindly with no exact knowledge of their whereabouts, and threw bombs aimlessly, the London newspapers stated to-day. The Daily Chronicle declared there was no truth in the Berlin report that the big English industrial centres of Liverpool, Manchester, Sheffield, Birkenhead, Nottingham and Great Yarmouth were attacked from the sky.

COLLISION OFF CAPE RACE.

HALIFAX, Feb. 7.—Both the Japanese steamer Takata Maru and the American steamer Silver Shell, in collision off Cape Race last night, were still afloat early to-day, according to a message to the Marine Department. It is now expected they will reach here safely.

MEYER, OF BERLIN, ONT., HAD BEEN IN JAIL.

TORONTO, Feb. 2.—In reference to the case of the German Canadian in Berlin, Meyer, charged with using insulting language to Canadian soldiers, Hon. I. B. Lucas, Attorney-General, issued the following statement to-day: "Representations from the Militia Department at Ottawa were received here to the effect that as Meyer had already been in jail for some time, I think about a month, his punishment had been sufficient, and that no good purpose could be gained by pressing the prosecution further." The Crown Attorney was instructed accordingly.

LULLING NOTE FROM GERMANY.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 2.—Imminent danger of a break with Germany in the Lusitania case appears avoided by the new German note transmitted to-day to Ambassador Bernstorff. This was the view both in administration and diplomatic circles. Ambassador Bernstorff said he did not expect the new note before to-morrow or Friday. He expressed optimism over the final result.

ENEMY MUNITIONS DEPOT BLOWN UP.

PARIS, Feb. 2.—French artiliery blew up a German munitions depot near Orbey, in the Sondernach region in Alsace, the War Office reported this afternoon. "South of Munster the Germans captured a French observation post, but were afterwards driven out by a counter-attack.

ATTACK SALONICA ABOUT FEB. 15.

ATHENS, Feb. 2.—Information received in military quarters here indicates that German and Burgarian troops, supported by 15,000 Turks, are likely to begin an attack on the Franco-British forces at Salonica about Feb. 15.

ZEPPELINS KILLED GREEKS AT SALONICA.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 2.—Property damage of $600,000, sixteen deaths, mostly Greeks, and fifteen persons injured, was the toll of the Zeppelin raid on Salonica yesterday morning, the American Consul reported to-day.

MEETINGS OF BOARD OF EDUCATION MAY GO TO CITY HALL

Mr. G. N. Gordon Proposed That Information Be Obtained From Council as to Possible Arrangements

MAY BE CONFLICT OF MEETINGS

The Trades and Labour Council's request that the Board of Education meetings be held in the Council Chamber was supported by Mr. G. N. Gordon at last night's meeting of the Board. He pointed out that the present Board room had objectionable features. It was located on private premises and in a building belonging to a private concern, the Toronto Savings and Loan Co. On the other hand the city buildings are owned by the ratepayers, who pay for their upkeep. They should be given every opportunity of being present if they wished.

Mr. Gordon moved that the Property Committee communicate with the Property Committee of the Council asking on what terms the Council Chamber could be used by the Board of Education.

Mr. Crane seconded the motion. This information could be obtained, but he felt that if any change were to be made the meetings should be held in the Collegiate Institute where a Board room could be provided and vault accommodation furnished. Mr. Eastwood, Mr. Hill and Col. Miller agreed with this latter opinion. Col. Miller remarked that the Board's meetings might conflict with those of the Council. Mr. Hill pointed out that the Board enjoyed stenographic service at present which a removal would discontinue, and provision would have to be made for it.

Mr. Ackerman said it would put the city to considerable expense to make a move and he felt that the Board should remain where they are for the present year, at least.

The motion carried. It included, on Mr. Gordon's suggestion, authority to the secretary to write the Labour Council that the Board did not see its way clear to accept the suggestion that some person holding no other position be engaged as secretary. Mr. Gordon thought that the Labour men would agree that the position is a very important one and that Mr. Thompson is particularly qualified for it, that he has had the special training it requires, and that the Board feels no improvement can be made. The resolution carried.

APSLEY, NORWOOD AND HAVELOCK WILL SOON HAVE PLATOONS

Recruits Coming in Well at All Three Centres---Lt.-Col. Johnston on an Official Visit to Apsley To-day---Class For Non-Coms. Starts at Armouries---To-day's Military News.

Lt.-Col. Johnston of the 93rd Battalion is in Apsley to-day swearing in a number of recruits for the Apsley detachment of the 93rd. Eight new men have been secured for the detachment recently and the northern outpost expects no difficulty in securing a platoon, and Norwood and Havelock will soon have a platoon each, judging by the manner in which the recruits are coming in at both places.

Signaller Earl Francis of the 93rd Battalion is going to beat his comrades overseas. He has been attending the School of Signallers at Kingston and has been drafted by the 33rd Battery as a saddler.

J. H. EASTWOOD,
Lieutenant.
Adjutant for 93rd Overseas Battalion, C. E. F.

The Soldiers' Club of the 93rd Battalion will meet to-morrow evening. Last week the subject discussed was "What Can Religion Do for a Soldier." This will be followed up this week by a discussion on "What Kind of a Religion Can Best Help the Soldier."

Major Davidson, Chaplain of the 93rd Battalion, has received the following letter from Pte. Hunter Godfrey, with the 9th C.M.R. at Bramshott Camp, Liphook, Eng.:

"I wish to thank you very much for the box sent me by the kind people of St. John's. It makes me feel good to know that we are not forgotten by the people at home.

"I expect to leave shortly for France to do my 'little bit' in helping to down the Hun. Up to the present we have had a good time, and the soldiers' life is not as hard as some people think. We work hard but we have time to enjoy this beautiful country. I have seen quite a lot of it, including London, and also Aberdeen, Scotland, and for beautiful scenery it cannot be surpassed.

"If there are any young men in St. John's thinking of enlisting tell them to come along. We need them and they will never regret it. It would be an education in itself to see this country, besides knowing that we did a little in this great struggle for freedom. Thanking you and the good people of St. John's again, I beg to remain,

Sincerely yours,
HUNTER GODFREY."

Armourer Sergt. Hart, of the 59th Battalion, is home on leave.

The Kingston Standard says: Lieut.-Col. Low went before the County Council on Friday to ask for aid for his battalion, and the Council made a grant of $500. The council of Haliburton, on the same day, gave the 109th Battalion, commanded by Lieu.. Fee, $1,500. The only thing that the Militia Department furnishes a battalion outside of clothing and rifles is a bugle band. If it organizes a brass band, it must pay the shot, if it gets field machens, it must pay for them, or go without. If it wears cap and collar badges, (and what battalion is there that would even look decent without), it must pay for the dies, and for the badges, as there is no allowance from headquarters. If it needs job printing, it must pay for it; there is no allowance. If the battalion needs a car, and this is indispensable in these days of fast moving, there is no money allowance for even this; it must be bought by the battalion. The battalion has no means of making money, so they have to beg, or drain the last cent from the pockets of officers whose pay is none too big to support themselves and dependents. It takes, so Lieut.-Col. Low told Councillor Calvin, in response to a question, fully $10,000 to finance a battalion. There is no question but what Frontenac county and the City of Kingston will see Lieut.-Col. Low through with all the needs of his battalion.

Kingston Standard: Already headquarters are arranging for the summer camps, and in three months more the heights of Barriefield will again be dotted with the white tents of the overseas battalions in training for overseas service. There will be many improvements in the camp this year, and the training will be more exacting than ever. That the camp will be a big one there is no doubt. It will be made up of infantry and artillery, and it is hardly expected that Barriefield will have any cavalry next summer.

The Belleville Intelligencer says: Enlistment around the city is rather slow. For a place of 12,000 the record of 61 Belleville recruits among 510 in the 155th is small. There are more

The following lines received by Mr. W. J. Brooks, 107 Aylmer Street, were written by Lce.Corp. Clayton Martin, of the 15th Battalion Signallers, who left Peterborough with the 39th Battalion, but was transferred to the 15th last September:

THE TOAST

Here's to the day when the war will end.
When peace is restored to the world again;
When the thunder of guns is no longer heard,
And each warring nation has sheathed the sword.
And vowed that never again 'twill be Unsheathed, for all eternity.

Here's to the brave boys who fought and died,
Who stemmed the onrush of the human tide
Of venemous foes; a mad king's hate
And dreams of power and conquests great
Caused wasted land, and life-blood spilled.

Zeppelins Visit The Port of Salonika

French Headquarters and Munitions Shops Had Narrow Escapes—Force of Ottomans Driven Inland By British Warships.

ROUMANIAN ARMY READY

LONDON, Feb. 2.—The Athens correspondent of the Daily Mail telegraphs: "A British destroyer bombarded the coast near Smyrna to-day, and drove a force of Turks inland.

"The French have arrested at Mitylene the director of properties belonging to a Turkish religious foundation."

The Salonika corespondent of the Daily News, telegraphing yesterday, said:

"A Zeppelin flew over Salonika at 2 o'clock this morning at a height of a thousand feet with the object of bombarding the French general headquarters. About fifteen very large bombs were dropped on the town. These set alight some depots and the Salonika Bank, which is just opposite general headquarters. Another bomb exploded between an English cargo boat unloading munitions and the Greek Customs house. The hull of the boat was perforated, and the front of the Customs house was damaged. Only a few windows were broken in general headquarters. A Greek warehouse was also destroyed.

"The casualties were 11 killed and about 50 injured. The damage and casualties affect the Greek population."

The Berlin official statement to-day reported that "a German airship attacked ships and depots of the allies at Salonika with great success."

Roumania Is Ready.

A Petrograd despatch says:

"In connection with the negotiations which are alleged to be proceeding between Greece and Roumania and the report that Roumania is ready to form an anti-Russian alliance, it is stated here, that four-fifths of the Roumanian troops are under arms and that the main Roumanian forces are concentrated on the Bulgarian and Hungarian frontiers, while the troops on the Russian frontier have not been increased.

Roumania continues to make difficulties for the Central Powers with respect to the purchase of grain, which difficulties have been increased by the British authorities, who are buying large quantities and driving up the prices. With the purpose of exerting pressure on Roumania, Austro-Bulgarian troops are concentrating on the Danube.

Albania Situation.

The Austrians have occupied San Giovanni di Medua and Danilograd in Albania. The Serbian forces in the neighbourhood of the two towns withdrew toward Durazzo.

The French official communication of January 29 said the Austrians have pushed their vanguards as far as San Giovanni di Medua, which lies on the Adriatic, south of Scutari, and that the Serbians were continuing their retreat in good order. The cannon, caissons and ammunition left by them at San Giovanni di Medua were taken on board French trawlers and carried to Brindisi, the report added.

A DESERTER FROM LINDSAY ARRESTED HERE

Will Be Returned to His Battalion in Lindsay---Local Man Will Be Given a Chance to Enlist

TO-DAY'S POLICE COURT

"Give me a chance and I'll go up and enlist," pleaded a local man in this morning's police court. The accused, who was apprehended on a charge of vagrancy, will be given a chance to go before the Medical Examiner of the local Battalion. If he fails to pass he will have to appear before Police Magistrate Dunnible.

A Deserter.

Frederick Anderson was charged with being a deserter from Lindsay. Anderson was very loquacious, and had to be restrained by the court constable. He was remanded until Friday. In the meantime the authorities in Lindsay will be notified. Anderson had divested himself of his uniform, retaining the regulation military boots.

PRIZE BUNDLES EXAMINER PRIZES OAK HALL CLOCK

To-morrow is Dollar Day and the greatest preparations have been made for the big event. With every purchase or prize bundle of one dollar you get an opportunity to win the grand prizes.

WEDNESDAY, FEB. 2, 1916

CONVERSION AT $7,000 PER HEAD.

We are very sensitive of the loyalty of Canadians, and the acid test of this loyalty is sympathy—active sympathy of some kind—with the British and their allies in this war. Every loyal Canadian is on their side, heart and soul; and every loyal Canadian appreciates of Canada as a part of the Empire taking an active part in the war. They all believe that it is the duty of Canada to be in the fight with all her strength and good will. Any Canadian who takes an opposite position, who declares that this is not Canada's fight, is mercilessly condemned. And every Canadian who is shameless enough to declare that Canada has no place in the war, and shouldn't send soldiers to fight, is brought to account, and punished—unless he takes refuge behind the privilege of parliament. We have in the present government at Ottawa, which is doing its best, backed by parliament and the people to help win this war, two ministers, holding, unrecanted, the disloyal cult of Nationalism.

Can the government do its best when there are two members of the cabinet who are declared Nationalists, members of a faction which declares with offensive emphasis that this is not Canada's war, that Canada has no right, not to speak of obligation of duty, to send a single soldier to fight for the preservation of our liberties and the integrity of the Empire? The leader of the Nationalist party, Mr. Bourassa, is frankly hostile to the British cause, openly opposed to recruiting, and doing all he can to discourage it. Yet we have two members of the anti-British and disloyal Nationalist party members of the government, which is using its best efforts—barring this handicap—to help in the war. Can a government do its best with such obstructive elements—moral if not personal—in its ranks?

But we are told by no less an authority than the member for West Peterborough that Mr. Borden in taking the Nationalists into his cabinet has done a noble thing. He has made good Conservatives of these Nationalists, as much as to say, that if a traitor dons the Conservative colours he becomes ipso facto, the pink of loyalty. The remarks of Mr. Burnham on this point are so absurdly illuminating that it is worth while to quote them. In his speech in the debate on the address, Mr. Burnham uses these words, as reported in Hansard:

"There is no Nationalist in the Conservative party. If any man was a Nationalist at any time before he entered the Conservative party, when he entered that Conservative door he left all Nationalism behind him. There is not one of them who does not deny that he is a Nationalist; they all say that they are Conservatives. Then I say: give the Prime Minister that which is due, which you would certainly ascribe to the right hon. leader of the Opposition; give him credit that he has, with an iron hand, with a strong, firm grasp, with a dignity and a gentleness which blend so well, taken the erratic elements of our population and spanked them properly in line, put them where they belong, and where they are turning out to be some of our best citizens. When we have had another term of office, possibly there will not be a single Nationalist left in Quebec. Even the wildest and most disloyal of them will find that in the Conservative party there is not only strength and reason, but that persuasion which is an unction and a holy oil to all reasonable souls."

It is very gratifying to learn, upon such high authority that the very act of taking rabid Nationalists into the cabinet has made them loyal Conservatives. But we have reason for very grave doubts of the sincerity of the conversion of a Nationalist who demands the bribe of an office worth seven thousand dollars a year, as the price of his apostacy. It's rather an expensive propagandism to pay $7,000 a head for Nationalist converts, and make a cabinet seat a stool of repentance, if there is repentance. Mr. Burnham declares that the Nationalists taken into the cabinet have become good Conservatives, and therefore, according to the reasoning of members of that party, good loyalists—for a consideration. But we have no evidence that the Nationalists who declared that Canada owes no obligation to Britain, has no duty to the Empire, has no part in this war, have repented. They have never disavowed their disloyal and traitorous sentiments, nor recanted the reproach that Canadians had to "shoot holes through the flag to breathe the air of liberty." The first condition of forgiveness, for any offence, including high treason, and blatant disloyalty is repentance and restitution as far as possible. A cabinet minister cannot be a sub rosa follower of Mr. Bourassa and at the same time a wholesome element in a cabinet whose whole strength of intellect and resource, whose who'e duty is to help on Canada's share in this war. Every member of the cabinet should, by virtue of his own intrinsic and recognized loyalty, be a stimulus to recruiting.

WINNING RECRUITS.

If we win this war we must first win recruits, and if we win recruits we must be wise as serpents and harmless as doves. We must be shrewdly tactful in our appeals and in our approaches to eligible young men. We must win—not antagonize. Judge Barron of Stratford, formerly well known in Peterborough, has taken a keen and active interest in recruiting. He has made many sane, sensible and enthusiastic speeches in its interests. His experiences and observations have led him to formulate a list of things to avoid—a table of "don'ts" to be observed. Reduced to few words, Judge Barron's "don'ts" are as follows:

"Don't, if we are genuine in heart and soul, let us be seen on the public platform, and decline the 'collar work' which we leave to others.

"Don't let us confine our canvassing to public meetings. Reason and the gentle word have no school hours.

"Don't let us release or give up, because we fail to see immediate results.

"Don't let us call a man a 'shirker,' and a 'coward' because we fail to get him; abuse loses; it does not win the game.

"Don't let us choose the wrong time. There is always a time when it is wise to leave a man alone. "To everything there is a season and a time to every purpose under the heaven.'

"Don't let us lecture other people on patriotism and on their duty, so long as a single patriotic duty of our own remains undone.

"Don't let us pass a man in khaki without greeting him with the kindly smile of approval. Remember that he is ready to fight, and if need be to die for you, for me, and even for the 'shirker.'

"Don't let us judge any man with the question: 'Why aren't you at the front?' Let us persuade, urge and even request; but let it be in reason. Let us refrain from individual judgment. Let us follow the example of the One Man, whose example no living man has ever presumed to question; that Man who wrote upon the ground, 'I judge no man.'"

There is a good deal of wisdom in this advice. The best equipment one can have in promoting recruiting is the rare gift of common sense. When we use strong words, call names and judge harshly, we are defeating the object. We must reason, argue, persuade—not bulldose—that is the German way. We must remember that there are other duties in this war besides enlisting, and it ill becomes anybody who is neglecting the duty, that he, as a home-stayer is called upon to discharge, to reproach others for not doing their duty by enlisting. We must be consistent.

ALWAYS WITH US.

A man no sooner gets over worrying about paying for his wife's Christmas present to himself than the Easter bonnet problem looms up darkly on the horizon.

BOUND TO FAIL.

People who attempt to be neutral in their attitude to the war in Canada are bound to make a miserable failure of it. It is impossible to be a loyal Britisher and a neutral.—Berlin Telegraph.

ONE GOOD ANSWER.

It is certainly a difficult question to answer why one man should be sent to the front twice before another man physically fit, is sent once. It is one which many a young man should answer by enlisting.—Kingston Standard.

NEEDS HER GRIEVANCES.

It is easy enough to understand why Germany refuses to have her grievances against Great Britain investigated by a neutral body. She wants to retain her grievances. She needs them. Even with all that can be done to stimulate the popular feeling of hatred for England the people seem to be growing weary of the strain.—Woodstock Sentinel-Review.

FIGHTING SCARCE.

A recently returned soldier from the war zone in Flanders, where he had been twice wounded and invalided home, was asked by a friend, "I suppose you saw lots of fighting?" "Well," replied the hero, "I saw lots of smoke and heard lots of noise, but you'd see more real fighting some years ago, on a single pay night on the streets of Glace Bay, N.S., than you'd see in all the battle line in Flanders."—Quebec Telegraph.

THE ENTENTE ALLIES REACH CLOSER MILITARY CO-OPERATION

The Russian Minister of Foreign Affairs, Sergius Sazonoff, is quite exceptional in the value and importance of his occasional published remarks on the war situation. Recently to a deputation of journalists he commented luminously on the Balkan situation, which, he affirmed, "would find its solution only after the war had ended." This should be encouraging to those who have been persistently wailing because Roumania has not joined the Allies, and because Serbia and Montenegro have been overrun by the Teutons, Huns, Bulgarians, and Turks. After the war is ended the terms of peace will provide for a greater Serbia and Montenegro; what peace will bring to Bulgaria and Greece will depend on the way in which the people of these two countries deal in the meantime with their alien Kings. They have still a chance for permanent political betterment but only by "bringing forth fruits meet for repentance."

Nothing could better illustrate the insight and foresight of the great Russian statesman than his remark that the interests of the "Entente Allies" are growing closer and closer from both a military and a political viewpoint." This is the correct order of statement. At first the mutual interests were mainly if not exclusively military. Co-operation on a gigantic scale was necessary to a victory over Germany and her motely associates, and this was all that seemed practicable in the early stages of the war. If final victory had proved at that time achievable, the higher and deeper interests characterized as "political" would have been left to the future to develop in the usual leisurely, partial, and ineffective way. The event has been quite otherwise, as Sazonoff points out.

In order to make military co-operation as effective as possible, a central international Council of War was organised for strategic purposes on a scale at once more extensive and more minute than had ever at the beginning been thought of. And so it has been in the field of diplomacy. For many months Great Britain had to bear alone the burden of calming the fears of neutrals, who were irritated by the absolute necessity of keeping up a virtual blockade of Germany and Austria-Hungary as a war measure. Co-operation in diplomacy has at least been developed, and now the Allied case will be presented to the neutral powers, and especially to the United States, in expository statements prepared by the Allied diplomats collaborating in the replies to American and Swedish complaints. Heretofore Sir Edward Grey has been a "personality"; henceforth, until the end of the war, his individuality will be merged in a group of co-operating Allied statesmen. This will greatly retard the progress of the correspondence, which may not be agreeable but will certainly be advantageous to the United States.

The vista thus opening up is the most interesting yet disclosed by this unprecedented war. It makes one's thoughts leap forward over the lapse of time and the sequence of events to the comparatively permanent conditions of the future. Apparently the great federal body needed to keep the general peace of the world will be ready organized for the work when the time comes. If Russia, Great Britain, France, and Italy can win in the war they can control the situation indefinitely. The co-operation of the United States will be useful, but not indispensable. That country will be left to enjoy its not very "splendid isolation" until it offers its services for the general good and the advancement of civilization. Except the few really great founders of the then small Republic, that huge State has produced amazingly few public men of cosmopolitan calibre and horison. If the Republic is ever to come into its own, it must bring to the front a few Franklins, Jeffersons, Hamiltons, Washingtons, and Lincolns. There is only one American today whom the outside world recognizes as of their class, and he is not regarded by his countrymen as a statesman of commanding influence. —The Globe.

VICTIMS OF MURDER KNOWN IN HAMILTON

Members of Teiper Family Slain Near Buffalo, Former Residents

BUFFALO, Feb. 2.—At the direction of District Attorney Dudley, Sheriff Stengel brought John Edward Teiper, one of the two survivors of the Orchard Park Road tragedy, to police headquarters. The district-attorney said that Teiper was "being detained." Teiper's fingerprints were taken soon after he reached police headquarters. Asked if Teiper was under arrest, the district-attorney said: "All I care to say is that he is being detained. I do not know when he will be released."

HAMILTON, Feb. 2.—The Teiper murder tragedy near Buffalo, which the police are endeavouring to solve, is of special interest to Hamilton people as the victims were former well-known residents of this city. The father for years was head draughtsman at the Hamilton Bridge works, and after leaving here organized the Buffalo Structural Steel Company. He died in Buffalo about four years ago.

Girl Is Unconscious.

BUFFALO, Feb. 2 — The faint hope that Miss Grace J. Teiper, one of the injured victims of Monday morning's tragedy on the Orchard Park road, would revive sufficiently to tell something of the murder of her mother and brother, was dispelled yesterday when surgeons at the hospital reported that she had again lapsed into a state of coma after brief periods of semi-consciousness during the night. In one of these moments, the young woman answered one question rationally. A doctor asked here who struck her and she replied: "I don't know."

There were other mumbled words from her lips, but whether or not they gave any clue to the murderer, the doctors and detectives refused to say. District Attorney Dudley received a report from them yesterday morning.

To Be Held as Witness.

Miss Teiper's skull was fractured in five places by the blunt instrumene wielded by the murderer and the surgeons considered it remarkable that she lived through the night. Even should the rally indicated during the night continue to a considerable degree, it was said, she might be entirely bereft of memory.

Mr. T. F. Matthews' Brother Writes From Somewhere on West Front

Captain A. J. Matthews, who enlisted with the 27th Battalion, Winnipeg, wrote the following interesting letter to his sister, Mrs. J. P. Ryley of Lindsay. Captain Matthews is the youngest brother of Mr. T. F. Matthews of this city. When the South African war broke out he held a commission in the 43rd Regiment, Ottawa, but when he could not go as an officer, he resigned and went as a private. The letter to his sister is as follows:

January 16th, 1916.

Dear Bessie,—Our winter is slipping away fast. Here it is nearly the middle of January and we seem to have come this war pretty quickly. The weather has taken a decided turn for the better and instead of the day is day out rain which we had last month we now have a little sunshine, and the wind does not seem so cold and piercing as it did. Maybe we are getting used to it.

My lot is a particularly pleasant one this week. My company is in reserve and we are billeted in a farm house. The room we have (four of us) has a fireplace big enough for an ox, and it keeps our servants busy all day rustling enough wood to keep the home fires burning.

The people of the farm must be making money out of the war. In addition to receiving pay for the billeting of the seventy-five men in the barn and four officers in the house, the three men are employed by the army digging trenches and the women take in a few francs each day selling coffee and eggs and butter to the men. There is also a lively little youngster of three years who gets an old centime now and then. It's strange that the place hasn't been hit by more than one shell, that hit a piece off the corner of the house, and I am expecting every day to hear that it has been hit again. Whenever a shell is heard coming all the women shout for little Robert, who legs it into the house amid a torrent of talk. They don't let him go very far from the place. Most of the shells seem to be fired at some higher ground a couple of hundred yards away and everybody is quite used to them bursting around.

These people have three dogs who do a lot of work. They have a treadmill just outside the building and it is conected with a churn inside. When they want to work the churn one of the dogs works the treadmill, and it is surprising how well he does it. The dogs are used for pulling carts as well.

I hope you had a pleasant Christmas and will have a happy and prosperous New Year. We are having a quiet time on this front at present. The artillery is doing all the work, but the infantry get all the casualties.

Best regards to all,

JOE.

HAVE A LOOK AT THE JAR OF COPPERS

When You Are Down Town Tonight Stop at Trebilcock's Window

The Examiner has on view in the window of the Peterborough Bookstore the glass jar of coppers on which you are to estimate for the Examiner cash prizes on Dollar Day. In the window is a list of the prizes given. Everybody who pays any money into the Examiner Office on Thursday, February 3rd, (Dollar Day), whether for subscription or account, will be handed an estimate blank on which to estimate the number of coppers in the jar. The nearest correct estimates will receive the prizes, as follows:

First nearest estimate	$10.00
Second nearest estimate	7.00
Third nearest estimate	5.00
Fourth nearest estimate	4.00
Fifth nearest estimate	3.00
Sixth nearest estimate	2.00
Seventh nearest estimate ..	1.00
Eighth nearest estimate	1.00
Ninth nearest estimate	1.00
Tenth nearest estimate	1.00
	$35.00

In addition to the above every dollar paid into the Examiner Office will also entitle you to an estimating blank for the Merchants' Treasury Box prizes of $135.00, which is for estimating the number of estimates given out by merchants that will be dropped into the box in front of the Examiner Office. In 1913 there were about 16,000, but times and conditions will alter this somewhat and you will require to size up the situation as it exists.

Thursday, Feb. 3, (Dollar Day), promises to be the greatest in the history of the city.

Mrs. Julia Choate Graham Greeted at Splendid Concert

Monday night's concert in the Conservatory presented by the Morning Musical Society, more than delighted the large audience that took advantage of this open musicale. It was a well balanced programme revealing a splendid array of talent. Every member was deserving of mention, but in more than one respect the most interesting was the re-appearance of Mrs. Julia Choate Graham, who was warmly greeted. Her playing showed a mature touch in execution and conception.

The programme follows:

Piano Duo—Concerto Op. 25 (Mendelssohn)— Miss Hurley, Miss Sullivan.

Ensemble— (a) Menuet (Paderewski); (b) Melody, arr. by Miss Palmer (Borowski)—Mrs. Graham, Misses Palmer, Logan, McKee.

"Love in Springtime"— (Lingi Arditi)—Mrs. Middleton.

Piano Duo—Konzert No. 10. E. S. dur (Mozart)—Mrs. Porter, Miss Jean Hill.

Vocal Duet— (a) "When Starry Night"; (b) "Love's Secret Betrayed" (Cornelius) — Miss McKee, Miss Smith.

Vocal Solo — "The Page's Song" (Les Huguenot's), Meyerbeer — Miss Dorothy Allan.

Ensemble —(a) Asa's Tod; (b) Anitras Tanz, from Peer Gynt Grieg.

God Save the King.

Accompanists—Mrs. Buchanan, Miss McKee, Miss Dean.

The proceeds were for wool to be made into socks for the soldiers at the front.

SCHOOL BOARD WILL MAKE UP SALARY TO MEN ENLISTING

That the Principals of the Schools notify the male members of their staffs who intend to enlist that the Board will make up the difference between their soldiers' pay and their salary as teacher, and that at the conclusion of the war they will be returned to their positions at the salary they would have received in the regular application of the existing schedule.

This motion by Mr. G. N. Gordon, seconded by Mr. V. Eastwood, was passed at the meeting of the Board of Education, last night.

Mr. Hill—"What about the members of this Board?"

Col. Miller said that a precedent had already been established, but apart from that this offer is a special favour to teachers and duplicated in very few trades or professions. Most men see their duty and leave lucrative positions without any salary provisions.

SOME INNER HISTORY OF NATIONALISM

Mr. Paul Emile Lamarche, the Nationalist-Conservative member for Nicolet, speaking from his place on the government side of the House, is reported as saying:

The Conservative leaders had approached Messrs. Bourassa and Lavergne before the election of 1911 with the pledge that they would work together by agreeing, if elected, to wipe out the Laurier naval act and fight the Laurier Imperialistic tendencies. Mr. Bourassa supplied the candidates and the speakers. The big financial men of the Conservative party supplied the campaign funds. "Twenty members," declared Mr. Lamarche, "have been elected to this Parliament for the Province of Quebec on the pledge that they would defend those ideas and principles and carry out that promise."

FELIX MARTIN WITH THE STRAND MUSICAL COMEDY CO.

For two nights, commencing Friday next, Feb. 4th, the Strand Musical Comedy Co. with Felix Martin, comedian, will be the attraction at "The Grand." The opening play will be "The College Widow," in which the fun travels at a mile a minute clip. Many new and catchy songs are introduced during the progress of the play, among them being, "Sprinkle Me With Kisses," "A Few Merry Moments," "Tulip Time in Holland," "Everybody Rag With Me," "England I Love You," "Carolina," etc. A bevy of pretty girls, fifteen number, compose the chorus. A good bright, breezy show at popular prices should attract good crowds. There will be the usual matinee Saturday at 2.30 the prices for which will be, adults 25c, children 10c.

Teacher Follows Principal's Lead For More Money

When Captain Maurice Park secured leave of absence from the principalship of the King George School to enlist, he was succeeded by Mr. O. M. Steir, who had been Assistant Principal. Miss Mary F. Erskine, then teaching in one of the junior rooms, became assistant to Mr. Steir, without any extra remuneration for the more arduous work. With Miss Erskine it was a patriotic impulse that prompted her to help fill up the gap made by Mr. Park's departure, at least such is the general report, and she was prepared to continue in the position until he returned. But Mr. Steir not only moved up, but he also got the principal's salary. In her letter to the Board of Education, Miss Erskine mentioned a similar precedent at the South Central School, and, on the principle of equal rights, she applied for the salary of Assistant Principal of the King George School.

Mr. Denne moved that her request be granted. In Inspector Mowat's opinion Miss Erskine is performing her new duties very efficiently.

Mr. Gordon moved an amendment that the Secretary write Miss Erskine that the Board did not see its way clear to make any increased allowance under the circumstances.

After some discussion Mr. Denne withdrew his motion and moved that Miss Erskine's letter be referred to the Committee on Appointments.

ODD FELLOWS' MEETING ON THURSDAY NIGHT

To-morrow night will be a great night among the Oddfellows of this district. They will put on a field night and will confer the three degrees on candidates from all parts of the district.

Otonabee and Peterborough lodges will be the joint hosts of the occasion. All the outlying lodges of the district are invited and will be largely represented.

Interesting addresses will be given by the visiting presiding officers and R. Hillier, Esq. Refreshments will be given. Every Oddfellow is invited.

Once Noted Robber Now Philanthropist

DETROIT, Feb. 2.—Sophie Lyons-Burke, of this city, known to the police in all parts of the world as an exceedingly clever criminal, author of the book, "Why Crime Does Not Pay," and who has been inside prisons in every city of importance in European capitals, to-day offered $30,000 to the city for the establishment of a home for the reclamation of wayward girls.

As the "Queen of the Pickpockets" Sophie Lyons before her reformation was identified with one of the oldest gangs of bank robbers in this county. She is said to now be worth in the neighbourhood of $500,000, all invested in choice securities. She is 67 years old, and has lived in Detroit for many years.

FEBRUARY

February was the second month introduced by Numa Pompilius. It has been an ill-used month. In the beginning it was only given 29 days and then Augustus stole another day from it when he decided to add another day to his own month. Our Saxon ancestors called it Sprout-Kale from the rather conspicuous fact that cabbage sprouts in this uncongenial season.

INDIA LOYAL TO BRITISH EMPIRE

Utterly Refutes Statements That German Propagandists Are Striving to Make the People Believe

NEW YORK, Feb. 2—In the face of startling reports, spread by paid German agents in this country, to the effect that sedition is widespread in India, a letter received yesterday by an American from the Chief Commissioner's Camp, N. W. Frontier Province, is of interest, inasmuch as it utterly refutes the statements that the German propagandists are striving to have the public here believe. The missive also is from a person who did believe there might be trouble among the natives of that vast empire.

"We may have enemies in this country," runs part of the letter, "but we have against them hosts of friends. In fact, this war has surprised me by revealing what a lot of staunch friends [illegible]

"I knew that our people here did not wish to change masters and would fight for us against the Russians or Germans, but I did not know until now that they did not want to get rid of us. But this is the case, and I am overwhelmed with offers of men, money and everything else if I can only provide arms."

Agents are travelling about offering remedies to be poured into holes bored in tree trunks to protect them from blight or insects. This treatment injures the tree, and it should not be adopted.

Every housekeeper should read all the books on domestic science that she possibly can.

CHURCH LEAGUE HOCKEY GAMES

Couple of Games Will Be Played on Thursday Evening

The following Church League games will be played on Thursday evening at the East City Rink: 8 till 9, George Street vs. St. John's; 9 to 10, Mark Street vs. Knox.

Each team must also pay the remaining $5 which is the balance of their deposit money, not later than Thursday evening, Feb. 3, to the Secretary—J. Gillespie.

The Electrics Play Cobourg

The Electrics play an intermediate O.H.A. game to-night in Cobourg, going down on the 11.40 train to-day. The game is an important one, as a loss for Cobourg would put Cobourg out, while if the Electric drop the game their only hope of a tie-up would be to have Cobourg beat the 93rd when they go down on Friday night. To-night's game should be a lively battle.

Stallings Signs Contract to Lead Braves Five Years

BOSTON, Feb. 2. — George T. Stallings has signed a contract with the new owners of the Boston Nationals to manage the team for five years, it was announced Monday night. His salary, considerably in excess of that which he obtained under the previous contract, is said to be greater than that ever paid by any manager or player, except possibly Manager J. J. McGraw of the Giants. It is estimated that the figure approximates $30,000 a year.

The manager of the Braves was already under agreement to direct the team for two more years, but the new owners, headed by President Percy D. Haughton, wanted to be assured of his services for a longer term, according to Business Manager Walter E. Hapgood. The subject was discussed during Stallings' recent visit here, but it was only Monday that his signed contract for the new engagement was received.

ATHLETE BEARS EIGHTY WOUNDS

LONDON, Feb. 2.—Elmer C. Goldsworthy, of Monterey, Cal., well known as a track athlete and tennis player who received a medal for distinguished conduct in carrying despatches under fire at Ypres, has been wounded so badly that he probably will be invalided from the army.

Goldsworthy, who was working in Canada when the war began, enlisted with the Princess Patricia Regiment, and won a medal by carrying orders to the Canadians who were nearly wiped out at Ypres. He escaped unscathed from this tight corner but recently while leading a party of nine bomb-throwers, he received 80 wounds from German grenade which killed all the other members of his squad.

Military News

That his lust be satisfied and his dreams fulfilled.

Has he no thought of the sacrifice of human life,
Of the price he must pay for this awful strife,
Of wrecked homes and loss of those most dear:
Can he look in the future and feel no fear?
He is more to be pitied than blamed, we should say:
Just think of his sitting on Judgment Day.

So here's to the day when his power is crushed,
And with heads bent low and voices hushed
We thank our Maker for peace once more;
And pray that there will be no more war—
That in future there will always be
"Peace on earth," for eternity.

Come ye mothers, wives and sweethearts
In this land of liberty,
I pray you lend a helping hand
In the strife across the sea,
Where many a hero has fallen
And many more shall fall,
Listen mothers, gentle mothers,
To your King and country's call.

Many of you have brothers,
And many of you have sons
And by training for the trenches
Would help better down the Huns.
Come, young men, be brave and noble
Not a traitor to your country be,
For in France your help is needed
To fight for King and country.

See those stalwart German rascals
Marched through Belgium and through France
With naught but ruin and dishonour behind them,
While their millions of men advance
On to Calais is their orders
Regardless of what cost it be,
But our heroes in the trenches
Saved our King and country.

At the battles of Mons and Lange marck
Where countless thousands of Germans came Upon our boys with their poisonous gasses
Shame upon the German's name.
Now you fathers, sons and brothers
Stand for right although you fall,
Or are you one to be rejected
When the King of Kings shall call.

Listen, men, your God is calling
You to fight for liberty,
And if you are slain in battle
Greater love hath no man than he,
And when the war on earth is over
God will say to you, well done,
You have given your life for freedom,
You have battered down the Hun.

Let us pray when this great war is over
There'll be peace on earth, good will to men,
German militarism will be downtrodden
Never to return again,
As we are told in Mark, the thirteenth
Of this great war which is to be,
So 'tis your God calls you to colours
To fight with might for liberty.

KAISER MADE SECRET PACT WITH ARCHDUKE OF AUSTRIA

LONDON, Feb. 2.—A curious article by Henry Wickham Steed, foreign editor of The Times, appears in the February number of "The Nineteenth Century and After." It is entitled "The Pact of Konopisht." A fortnight before the assassination of the Archduke Francis Ferdinand and his wife, says the writer, they were visited at the castle Konopisht, in Bohemia, by the German Kaiser and Admiral von Tirpitz. At Konopisht the Kaiser and the Archduke made a secret compact.

The paramount desire of the Archduke and his wife was to make provision for their sons, who were debarred by the Hapsburg family law from attaining Imperial rank. The Kaiser, it is said, unfolded his great scheme of the war. Russia was to be provoked to conflict with Germany and Austria; France was to be instantly smitten to the dust, while the abstention of Britain was considered certain.

The Kaiser proposed to reconstitute the old Kingdom of Poland, which, with Lithuania and the Russian Province of Ukraine, stretching from the Baltic to the Black Sea, was to be the inheritance of Francis and his eldest son. For the second son a kingdom was to be carved out, including Bohemia, Hungary, Serbia, the Slav coast of the eastern Adriatic, and Salonica. German Austria, with Trieste, was to pass to the present hair, the Archduke Charles Joseph, to be incorporated in the German Empire.

A pact would be created and a huge military and economic alliance made, with the Kaiser supreme in Europe, and perhaps throughout the world. The writer suggests that the Kaiser persisted in forcing the war after the removal of his principal accomplice because the murders furnished him with a fresh and useful pretext.

RECRUITING MEETING HELD IN HASTINGS

Addresses Given by Several Prominent Speakers—A Presentation

HASTINGS, Feb. 2nd.—A well attended recruiting meeting was held on Sunday night in the town hall. Addresses were given by several prominent speakers.

The soldiers paraded to service in the Methodist church on Sunday morning and listened to a very able address delivered by Rev. Isaac Snell, his subject being—"The armor of the Christian soldier." The music was in keeping with the occasion and altogether the service was most appropriate.

The banquet held on Friday night under the auspices of the Adult Bible Class of the Methodist church, proved to be quite a success in every way. The tables looked most inviting and the most fastidious taste was catered to. During the course of the evening the members of the class surprised their teacher, Mr. Charles Jones, when quite unexpectedly he was called to the platform and presented with a handsome gift, showing to some degree the high esteem in which he is held by the members of the class. The committee who had charge of the evening's entertainment certainly deserve credit for the manner in which the different arrangements were carried through.

The chief feature of the programme at the Epworth League on Monday evening was the report of the convention recently held in Stirling. The convention was represented by Misses Ethel Collins, Myrtle Rees and Flossie Carter from the local society.

A patriotic concert was held in Westwood on Friday night and was very well attended.

The temperance movement, it is hoped, will receive an impetus by the largely signed petitions which are being prepared to be sent to the government.

Mr. John Coughlan held a public auction sale on his premises on Wednesday last which was very satisfactory.

CHURCH SOCIAL.

A church social was held recently at the home of Mr. and Mrs. William Preston, when a nice little sum was realized to enrich the coffers of the Ladies' Aid.

The January session of the Ladies' Aid was held on Thursday last at the home of Mrs. Lee Kelly.

Friends of Mrs. William Preston will be pleased to learn that her condition is showing marked signs of improvement, and hope for her a speedy return to her wonted health.

Mr. and Mrs. Aubrey Doxsee and family have moved from Hastings to take charge of a new position which he has secured near Port Hope. Mr. and Mrs. Doxsee will be much missed in town and especially in the Methodist church which they served with fervid loyalty in the different departments of the church's work. Mrs. Doxsee occupied the secretary's chair in the Ladies' Aid and to prove their esteem and regret at her removal some members of the society on behalf of the Aid, presented her with a handsome ebony hair brush and hand mirror. Their many friends will follow them with best wishes for their future prosperity.

Mr. William Warner is daily improving and hopes soon to have regained his health.

A LUXURY NOW.

Potatoes have lost their proud position as the staple food of the poor. Now they are dainties only obtainable by the rich.

Cassan Paid the Extreme Penalty

Parry Sound Murderer Executed This Morning—Joked With His Guards

Special to The Examiner:

PARRY SOUND, Feb. 2—The law took its course in the case of the murderer, Arthur Richard Cassan, this morning. This is the first execution in this town. Cassan was the least moved of all present, going to his [illegible] squared, as if on parade. He maintained his innocence to the last, and brazened out his last night on earth by joking and telling stories with his guards. Executioner Ellis officiated. Cassan killed a young Italian in his employ.

Where Estimating Blanks May Be Had

Names of All Stores Which Give Estimating Blanks Are Published

Peterborough people who want to know where to secure the estimating blanks with every dollar purchase on Dollar Day, should read over the list as published to-night in the big Dollar Day advertisement. This is the list of the merchants who are giving away the $175.00 in cash prizes, and who will issue the estimating blanks, which allow their customers to try for the big prize. Familiarize yourself with the names of the stores participating and look for the pennats, which are the recognized sign of the store which has the right to give the estimating blanks to Dollar Day buyers.

Stores open on Dollar Day up to 9.30 in the evening.

Voice of The People

Editor, Examiner:

Dear Sir,—Now that Judge Huycke has declared his finding in the School Board, I hope that the Council, City Trustees, Library Board and School Board will take this to heart and call for tenders "publicly" for all work to be done; also see that no one sitting on these Boards receive benefit from the same, either directly or indirectly.

Fair Play.

To the Editor of The Examiner,—

Dear Sir,—Mr. George Leader in his letter of last night's issue of The Examiner put the case in a nutshell. Conscription is the only solution of the difficulty—and the quicker the better. In this free Canada (which is only free because the old Union Jack makes it so) it is too bad that one of a Patriotic Mother's precious brood of seven sons should be so molested. Very inconsiderate, I say. If it is a "sine qua non" that he should go up and down street with perfect safety I would suggest that the mother lend him her shirts whilst war is on. She could quite easily don his pants for the same time, seeing she has to fight his battles anyway.

SOLDIER'S WIFE.

To the Editor of The Examiner,—

SIR.—Allow me still a small space to answer a "Real Patriotic Mother." She states that it is such mothers as I who are casting the government so much for recruiting meetings. Why those meetings at all? Recruiting or volunteering, as I understand the term, and as the words imply, mean voluntary or of your own free will or conscience. Now, these methods now employed, mean not the individual's will, but the will of the "other fellow"—Not what you think but what I think.

Fighting for liberty and boasting of what we already have, and using Germanic means to enforce it, you can and you must. I have no quarrel with the mothers who think they are doing their duty, while I am doing mine. Yours.

THE SAME PATRIOTIC MOTHER.

FRANCE TO TILL FARMS TO ASSURE BEST OF CROPS

Arrangements Made to Have Aid of Auxiliaries and Soldiers Unfit for Warfare.

PARIS, Jan. 31.—The cultivation of every parcel of land in France to assure the maximum agricultural production is the aim of the French Government, and to bring this about the Government itself will act temporarily as a farmer. A bill has been prepared under the direction of Mr. Jules Meline, Minister of Agriculture, requesting the owners of uncultivated land to begin tillage within two weeks after notice, which will be given by registered letter.

If land is not cultivated within the time specified the bill provides that Mayors of Communes have the right to requisition the ground and order its cultivation, which will be done under the direction of town committees, the towns to assure the funds necessary to carry on this work. The bill further provides for a Municipal or an Agricultural Committee to supervise the cultivation of such land until time to harvest the crop, which will be sold under its direction.

Mr. Meline in a statement accompanying the bill says that there has been a deficit in grains of ten per cent in 1915, as compared with 1914. The Minister declares that there is not a minute to be lost if France does not want to be surprised by developments and exposed to the possibility of arriving too late on the economic battlefield. Farm help, he explained, could be assured under a special arrangement with the military authorities, who could call on auxiliaries and soldiers unfit for military duty.

Cold in the West Times Improving

Mr. Wm. Bell, of Calgary, Writes From Calgary

The Examiner has received a letter from Mr. Wm. Bell of Calgary, formerly of this city in which he states that Calgary is having a cold spell since the first of the year. The thermometer has been down to 38 degrees below zero, with very little snow. Mr. Bell has two sons who have enlisted, one of them in the 56th Battalion.

Times are improving in the west, thanks to the big crops and good prices realized the past year.

PRINCE ARRIVES ON DANISH SHIP

NEW YORK, Feb. 2.—Several hundred Finns, fleeing from service in the Russian army, arrived here in the steerage of the Danish steamer Helligolay from Copenhagen and Christiania.

Among the first-class passengers was Prince Eric of Denmark, who is on his way to Edmonton, Alberta, to study Canadian methods of farming.

A British patrol ship forced the liner to put into Stornoway in the Hebrides, where her mail was taken off. It was returned after two days and the vessel permitted to proceed. Terrific storms were encountered in mid-Atlantic, and for six days the ship made scarcely any progress. Passengers on the Helligolay said that the ship had a narrow escape from striking a mine after leaving Christiania.

EXTRAORDINARY ENGAGEMENT

Mrs. Patrick Campbell in "Pygmation"

Mrs. Patrick Campbell will give us the first glimpse of her unrivalled art in a comedy from the pen of that gifted Irish author Bernard Shaw, entitled "Pygmalion," at "The Grand" next Monday, Feb. 7.

From a guttersnipe to a duchess, and from selling flowers at a corner of Covent Garden to be the guest of an Embassy ball, is the flight of imagination taken by the one and only George Bernard Shaw in his romance "Pygmalion." No other dramatist but Shaw would indulge in such an imaginative dream, nor, having perchance done so, would possess the daring and audacity to carry the absurdly impossible to an almost happy ending. Yet, this is just what has been done in "Pygmalion." Eliza Doolittle, a London flower seller, with a "orrible haccent" is transformed into a society lady who speaks faultless English, the medium of transformation being Henry Higgins, a professor of phonetics. In London, Mrs. Campbell has played long enough to uncover a repertoire that includes almost unlimited range of characters. America knows Mrs. Campbell but as the exponent of the Pinero heroines, as Paula Tanqueray, Mrs. Ebbsmith, Magda, and other hectic women with a past. She will make her first appearance in this city in "Pygmalion."

HOSPITAL TRAIN WRECKED.

Collides With Express at Calcum, Prussia—One Dead, 53 Hurt.

BERLIN, Feb. 1.—A collision between a fast train and a hospital train at Calcum, Prussia, is reported in despatches from Cologne given out by the Overseas News Agency.

On the hospital train forty-seven persons were badly injured and six persons on the fast train were injured and one killed.

Quaint Forms of Money Replace Gold Hoarded for War Needs

LONDON, Jan. 25.—Some quaint forms of money have come into existence during the war, owing to the shortage of gold. England introduced the one pound and ten shilling treasury notes, but other countries have been far more original in their makeshift arrangements at the mints.

In their annual bullion report Messrs. Samuel Montague and Co. tell how Russia, in order to overcome the difficulty of providing small change, has printed the designs of the ten, fifteen and twenty kopek denominations of the Romanoff jubilee postage stamp issue upon thick paper and, by lettering on the reverse side, has authorized them to be used as currency with the same legal tender as silver subsidiary money.

Iron money was put into circulation by Germany on October 1. The Federal Council decided that the issue should be withdrawn two years after the cessation of hostilities. A hundred million of five pfenig pieces was the authorized extent of the issue.

The Caroline Islands, which passed from Spanish to German sovereignty after the Spanish-American War by purchase, and now into the possession of Great Britain by capture, include an island called Yap, where stone money called "fei" is used as the medium of exchange. It consists of large, solid, thick stone wheels, ranging in diameter from one to twelve feet, having a central hole through which a pole can be inserted so as to convert the mass into "currency."

The value represented by the stone increases with its size, and the limestone of which the "fei" is composed must be of fine white grain to be considered good delivery. Yet there seems to be no real necessity for delivery at all, for it is quite customary to earmark the money, as it were, and leave it in its old position outside the first owner's hut—an excellent provision considering the bulkiness of the material.

The disappearance of small metallic currency in Mexico owing to the amount of paper money put into circulation during the military struggle for the Presidency of the republic, caused various expedients to be adopted. Tramcar tickets have been used for small change and cardboard money, about one inch by two inches in size, good for five to ten and twenty centavos, was issued by different leaders.

With regard to the output of gold in 1915, the report says that in view of the improved output from the Transvaal and other African districts the world's production is likely to be about £96,000,000 ($480,000,000). About two-thirds of the world's gold supplies are derived annually from the British Empire, and, roughly, £60,000,000 ($300,000,000) thus is added automatically to the gold resources of the empire.

Turks Dislodged From Region 40 Miles Long in The Caucasus

LONDON, Feb. 1.—After having driven the Turks from a region about forty miles in length in Asiatic Turkey to the west of Lake Van and put them to retreat down the Mush Valley, the Russians seemingly have ceased their operations in this particular vicinity for the winter.

It is announced by Petrograd that the Russians here will be able to cave the rigors of the mountains and descend into the plains, "which are favourable for the encampment of our troops for the period of the winter." Large numbers of prisoners were taken by the Russians in their drive on the Turks, in addition to guns, machine guns, and other war material.

The Russian official communication confirms previous statements that the Turks in the north-west of this region have been driven in upon the fortifications of Erzerum.

The Petrograd communique of Monday reads:

"In the Caucasus the operations during the past fortnight against the Turkish front justified our expectations. After developing the first coup against the Turkish centre into an important success, Gen. Youdevitch pursued the enemy and threw his advance guards on the fortifications of Erzerum. At the same time Russian troops, by an impetuous advance against the Turkish right wing, compelled the Turks to evacuate the region of Melazzhert and Khnyskala and retreat on the Mush valley. Those operations have had the result of dislodging the enemy from a region sixty versts (about 40 miles) long, which had previously been fortified and organized.

"We now descend from the mountainous regions, with their rigorous climate, into regions well populated and easily accessible, and favourable for the encampment of our troops for the period of the winter.

"In the course of these operations we took numerous prisoners of Turkish officers and Askaris and guns, machine guns, great quantities of artillery and engineering material.

On the 28th our scouts pursued the Turks falling back in the region of the Tchoruk River, and took many Askaris prisoners and seized a number of cattle."

OBITUARY

MRS. ROBT. BUTCHER

The death occurred yesterday afternoon of Mrs. Robert Butcher, at her late residence, 319 Burnham Street. The late Mrs. Butcher had been ill about four weeks. She was 77 years of age, and was born in Devonshire England. She came to Canada in 1869 and settled in Kingston, where she was engaged as a nurse in the family of the late Sir Richard Cartright, until 1875, when she came to Peterborough, settling in Ashburnham, where she resided until her death. She is survived by her husband. Messrs. Samuel, William, and John Kemp, of this city, are nephews of the deceased, and Mrs. Flannery, Auburn, is a niece.

The funeral, which will be private will take place to-morrow afternoon at 2.30, from the above residence, to the Little Lake cemetery.

CHARLOTTE STREET SUNDAY SCHOOL

The Whatsoever class of Charlotte street Sunday school entertained Mr. Hone's class to a "Leap Year party" at the home of their teacher, Mrs. Parlee B Wright, 466 Weller street. The evening was spent in many games, which delighted all. After refreshments were served Miss Ada Richardson sang, "Till the Boys Come Home" and both classes joined in the chorus. Hearty thanks was extended to Mr. and Mrs. Wright.

Apart from the specials that we have on sale, EVERYTHING in Colored Suits and Overcoats will be put on sale for Dollar Day, only at absolutely straight cost price.

LATE WAR DESPATCHES

ALLIED AEROPLANES ATTACK GERMAN DEPOT.

NEW YORK, Feb. 2.—A Dow-Jones' ticker despatch from Amsterdam said to-day that twenty-seven aeroplanes have attacked Ghent, Belgium, according to the Echo de Belge. Ghent is an important distributing point of the German army.

LINER BATTLED WITH SEA RAIDER.

NORFOLK, Va., Feb. 2.—From the British liner Appam to-day came another story of a battle between the German commerce raider, Moewe, and the Australian merchant ship, Clan McTavish, in which the British vessel was finally sent to the bottom with 25 of her men dead but the four surviving members of her crew still fighting. Six members of the Moewe's crew were killed during the fight with the Clan McTavish. No other details are available, but additional reports from other sources, pieced together, make it evident that probably somewhere off the African coast was fought as desperate and as brave a fight as history will record in the present war.

INSURANCE ACCOUNTS WERE PAID AS USUAL

At the Board of Education meeting, last night, Mr. G. N. Gordon moved that all items relating to insurance be struck from the Finance Committee's report, which had just been read by Mr. Eastwood, and that they be subsequently dealt with by the Board. In the payments recommended in the report were several accounts for insurance to companies represented by Hill, Weddell & Co.

Mr. Eastwood said that in this case he couldn't see why a change should be made, but in future they might be subject to a change.

Mr. Gordon's motion was not seconded and the report was adopted.

BE CAREFUL IN USING SOAP ON YOUR HAIR

Most soaps and prepared shampoos contain too much alkali which is very injurious, as it dries the scalp and makes the hair brittle.

The best thing to use is just plain mulsified cocoanut oil, for it is pure, and entirely greaseless. It's very cheap, and beats the most expensive soaps or anything else all to pieces. You can get this at any drug store, and a few ounces will last the whole family for months.

Simply moisten the hair with water and rub it in, about a teaspoonful is all that is required. It makes an abundance of rich, creamy lather, cleanses thoroughly, and rinses out easily. The hair dries quickly and evenly, and is soft, fresh looking, bright, fluffy, wavy, and easy to handle. Besides, it loosens and takes out every particle of dust, dirt and dandruff.

Marquis of Bute Will Go to Front as Private

LONDON, Feb. 2.—The Daily Sketch announces that Sir John Crichton-Stuart, Marquis of Bute, three times an Earl, twice a Viscount, and six times a Baronet, is now a private in the "Devil's Own," the pet name of the Inns of Court officers' training corps.

He desires to avenge the death of his brother, Lord Vivian Crichton-Stuart, who fell leading the 6th Welsh Territorials in France.

Makes Stubborn Coughs Vanish in a Hurry

Surprisingly Good Cough Syrup Easily and Cheaply Made at Home

If some one in your family has an obstinate cough or a bad throat or chest cold that has been hanging on and refuses to yield to treatment, get from any drug store 2½ ounces of Pinex and make it into 16 ounces of cough syrup, and watch that cough vanish.

Pour the 2½ ounces Pinex (50 cents worth) into a 16-ounce bottle and fill the bottle with plain granulated sugar syrup. The total cost is about 54 cents, and gives you 16 ounces—a family supply—of a most effective remedy, at a saving of $2. A day's use will usually overcome a severe cough. Easily prepared in 5 minutes—full directions with Pinex. Keeps perfectly and has a pleasant taste. Children like it.

It's really remarkable how promptly and easily it loosens the dry, hoarse or tight cough and heals the inflamed membranes in a painful cough. It also stops the formation of phlegm in the throat and bronchial tubes, thus ending the persistent loose cough. A splendid remedy for bronchitis, winter coughs, bronchial asthma and whooping cough.

Pinex is a special and highly concentrated compound of genuine Norway pine extract, rich in guaiacol, which is so healing to the membranes.

Avoid disappointment by asking your druggist for "2½ ounces of Pinex," and do not accept anything else. A guarantee of absolute satisfaction goes with this preparation or money promptly refunded. The Pinex Co., Toronto, Ont.

ALLIES CLOSING IN ON THE LAST OF GERMANY'S COLONIES IN EAST AFRICA

British Building Railways and Occupying Towns---Germans Being Driven Towards Spanish Colonial Frontier ---French and British Clearing Cameroons.

BELGIAN TROOPS ARRIVING TO AID

LONDON, Feb. 3.—Satisfactory progress by the British forces campaigning in East Africa was announced in an official statement embodying a report from General Sir Horace B. Smith-Dorrien, commanding the British troops in that territory. The statement says:

"General Smith-Dorrien reports that good progress is being made with the branch line from Voi station on the Uganda railway. The line, which had been carried as far as Mbuyuni, fifteen miles east of Taveta, British East Africa, beyond Maktav, has now reached Serengeti camp, which was taken by a British force on January 24.

"With the occupation of Longido and Serengeti the enemy's activities have sensibly diminished."

Successes for both the British and French forces campaigning in the Cameroons, the German colony in Western Equatorial Africa, are announced in an official statement given out Tuesday as follows:

"Further information from West Africa states that the French column under Lieutenant Colonel Faucon occupied Foolowa (southwestern Cameroons) on January 18 after meeting very slight resistance, while the British column under Major Coles engaged the enemy at Elabe, twenty miles to the northeast, driving back the enemy and taking thirteen German prisoners."

"No British European casualties were reported.

"Lieutenant Colonel Haywood, arriving at Ebolowa on January 24, immediately took up the pursuit of the enemy, capturing Mafub, seventeen miles to the south. He reports that he had twenty-two casualties and was advancing on Nkan. On the same day the enemy was driven from Ngat by the French, who had fourteen casualties.

"General Dobell, telegraphing on January 25, stated that he had received information that the Cameroon coast line itself was clear of the enemy. A report from Bata states that there were more than seven hundred German Europeans on the Spanish frontier. Many deserters from the enemy fully armed are surrendering to the British and French.

"On January 26 a company of Belgian troops arrived at Jaunde from duty on the French lines of communication."

What are Peps

Peps are the new treatment for coughs, colds and lung troubles. They are little tablets made up from Pine extracts and medicinal essences. When put into the mouth these medicinal ingredients turn into healing vapors, which are breathed down direct to the lungs, throat and bronchial tubes. The Peps treatment is direct. Swallowing cough mixtures into the stomach, to cure ailments and disorders in throat and lungs, is indirect. Peps are revolutionizing the treatment of colds, as their price is within the reach of all. 50c. box all druggists, or Peps Co., Toronto.

GREAT REJOICING IN GERMANY OVER APPAM'S CAPTURE

BERLIN, via wireless, Feb. 3.—The capture of the British liner Appam, the bombardment of English industrial towns and of Paris by Zeppelins, and of fresh activity on the Von Tirpitz U boats, may be accepted as a prelude to an aggressive campaign on the sea and in the air against Germany's enemies. Germany's sea and air forces may perform even more startling feats, it was hinted to-day. News of the audacious feat of the German sailors who captured the Appam was received with the greatest enthusiasm here. Lieut. Berge and his crew have become the popular heroes of Berlin. The marine authorities stated to-day that they knew exactly how each of the seven British ships were sunk, in operations off the African coast, but they do not desire to give out the information at this time. The Monday night Zeppelin raid on England, according to British reports, was the greatest air attack of the war, may be considered as only the beginning of a great air campaign. Germany plans with her Zeppelins to destroy everything of military importance, or of food value in England.

TIRED OUT KIDNEYS

Kidney troubles are so frightfully common because the kidneys are so easily upset by overwork or excesses in eating and drinking. Cure is effected not by whipping them on to renewed effort but by awakening the action of the liver and bowels. Try the use of Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills. This rests the kidneys and makes them well. Backache and urinary disorders then disappear.

ONLY 10,000 ARMENIANS IN 160,000 ESCAPED MASSACRE OR BANISHMENT

Men Were Shod Like Horses and Killed With Red Hot Crowns While Turks Carried Away Young Women, Says Warrior Who Fled From Province of Sivas

LONDON, Jan. 31.—Murad of Sivas, Armenian leader of the Province of Sivas, Asia Minor, in an interview just received here from Tiflis, gives an account of the treatment by the Turks of the Armenian population in Asia Minor in which are many new details. Murad, who is a well-known warrior, fought his way out of Sivas, reaching Tiflis in December. His story, which is made public by Lord Bryce, who vouches for the reliability of the source, is in substance as follows:

Out of the 160,000 Armenians inhabiting the Province of Sivas there remained when Murad left only 10,000 who had been spared either as useful artisans or because they were old. The remaining people, Murad declares, either were massacred directly or deported to the area between the Euphrates River and Northern Mesopotamia.

For disarming the Armenians the Turks, according to Murad, employed various methods of torture. In Khourakhon, he declares, one man actually was shod like a horse and another killed by putting a red hot iron crown on his head. At Habesh, 3,800 Armenians were put to the poleax or stoned, he asserts. At Herag the men were killed and the young women carried away, while 600 children were detained by the Valli, Murad adds, possibly to be converted to Islam. Many young women went mad and others committed suicide.

One incident, according to the narrator, greatly embittered the relations between the Armenians and Turks. Seventeen hundred Russian prisoners of war captured by the Turks were brought to Sivas in a deplorable condition. The Russian soldiers of Moslem origin had been released, most of those of Armenian nationality killed, and the other Russians stripped of their clothing. The Armenians provided comforts for the prisoners, which caused resentment among the Moslems, Murad states. Despite the Armenian efforts, he adds, only seventy survived out of the contingent of 1,700

ROUMANIAN ARMY MASSED

PETROGRAD, via London, Feb. 3. In connection with the negotiations which are alleged to be proceeding between Greece and Roumania and the report that Roumania is ready to form an anti-Bulgarian alliance, it is stated here that four-fifths of the Roumanian troops are under arms, and that the main Roumanian forces are concentrated on the Bulgarian and Hungarian frontiers, while the troops on the Russian frontier have not been increased.

Roumania continues to make difficulties for the Central Powers with respect to the purchase of grain which difficulties have been increased by the British authorities, who are buying large quantities and driving up the prices. With the purpose of exerting pressure on Roumania, Austro-Bulgarian troops are concentrating on the Danube.

According to information from Constantinople the Turkish Government has ordered the evacuation of Erzerum.

SWISS HALTS EXPORTS TO TEUTON COUNTRIES

BERNE, Feb. 3.—Threatened with isolation by the Allies, Switzerland has decided to stop all exports to Germany and Austria-Hungary. Nothing whatever can now be sent to the Central Powers. The Swiss government has protested against the alleged abuse of power by England, France and Italy, but as the protest has been ignored the small republic has no choice but to submit. Otherwise it could no longer obtain breadstuffs, which it must import, and the population would be on the verge of starvation in a few weeks.

GEN. JOFFRE IN SOLE CHARGE

He Will Not be Subject to Declaration of War Office—Premier Briand Makes the Announcement.

PARIS, Feb. 2.—Supreme power for the direction of all military operations of the French Army has been vested in General Joffre, the Commander-in-Chief, and henceforth the War Office will have no say whatsoever.

The foregoing announcement was made in the Chamber of Deputies by Premier Briand, who said:

"The Government will reserve supervision and political direction of the war, but the Commander-in-Chief alone will have control of all military operations."

That there has been friction between the Commander-in-Chief and the War Office was indicated by General Gallieni, Minister of War, who, in answering a question by a deputy, said: "Henceforth there will not be the slightest conflict between the War Office and the Chief Commanding General."

Cure Your Bad Cough By Breathing "Catarrhozone"

You may dislike taking medicine—but coughs are best cured without medicine. The modern treatment is "Catarrhozone"—it isn't a drug—it's a healing vapor full of pine essences and healing balsams. It spreads over the surfaces that are weak and sore from coughing. Every spot that is congested is healed—, irritation is soothed away, phlegm and secretions are cleaned out, and all symptoms of cold and Catarrh are cured. Nothing so quick, so sure, so pleasant as Catarrhozone. Beware of dangerous substitutes meant to deceive you for genuine Catarrhozone. All dealers sell Catarrhozone, large size which lasts two months price $1.00; small size 50c; sample size 25c.

SOME TO BE INTERNED.

That is Expected to Settle Things at Berlin.

OTTAWA, Feb. 2.—A further statment in regard to the reported difficulty at Berlin, Ontario, concerning recruiting for the Waterloo Battalion, was made by Gen. Hughes this afternoon.

"Col. Lochead," said the Minister, "informs me that the great majority of the German-Canadians are intensely loyal, save for an odd man here and there. A few Germans have come in from the United States and other points seeking to create dissension. These probably will be interned.

"There is no truth whatever in the statement that men are being taken off the streets in Berlin and forced to enlist. In one instance an individual had spoke disrespectfully of a regiment and its officers. Some men who heard this took him to headquarters and forced an apology."

Better to be alone in the world and utterly friendless than to have sham friends and no sympathy.

Had Palpitation OF THE HEART ALSO WEAK and DIZZY SPELLS.

When the heart begins to palpitate it will beat fast for several seconds, then slow, then start to flutter, and a feeling of utter depression will come over your whole system, accompanied by weak, fainting and dizzy spells, and if you should happen to wake up in the night with your heart palpitating, and that "all gone" sinking sensation, you feel as if you were surely going to die.

When you feel this way, you may be sure that both your heart and nerves are out of order, and what you require is a real good heart and nerve tonic; one that will build up and strengthen both the heart and nerve system.

For this purpose nothing can equal Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills.

Mrs. J. G. Stanley, Listowel, Ont., writes: "I was weak and run down, my heart would palpitate, and I would take weak and dizzy spells. A friend advised me to take your Heart and Nerve Pills, so I started at once, and found that I felt much stronger, and my heart was ever so much better in a short time. I cannot praise your medicine too highly for it has done me a world of good. My husband has also been bothered with heart trouble ever since childhood, and finds great relief by using your valuable pills."

Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills are 50 cents per box, 3 boxes for $1.25, at all dealers or mailed direct by The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

THE UNIMPORTANCE OF THE SUEZ CANAL

There are enormous and most formidable difficulties in the way of such a raid on the Suez Canal as the Kaiser's press bureau has predicted. But let us suppose these difficulties triumphantly circumvented. Let us further suppose that the Allies fail to cut the slender line of communications at any one of half a dozen vulnerable points, and that the projected expedition safely reaches and crosses the Suez Canal and enters into effective occupation of the whole of Egypt. Would this be a vital injury to the British Empire? Would it of necessity be a blow so crushing as practically to compel Britain to make peace on Germany's terms?

The answer is quite simple: Egypt is no essential part of the British Empire—formerly not a part of the British Empire at all, but simply a protectorate under a native Sultan. Even that much it has been for a few months only; up to the time when Turkey entered the war. But in the years before that, Britain did very well without Egypt; should Destiny so decree, she could do as well without Egypt again. The truth is that Britain has done infinitely more for Egypt than Egypt has done for Britain. Nor would the loss of the Suez Canal mean anything more formidable than a few days' delay in the mail service between London and Bombay. Therefore, in the strict sense, Britain might lose Egypt and the Canal to-morrow and not be the worse for the purposes of the present conflict with Germany.

We come, therefore, to this: The Turkish threat against Egypt involves an expedition subject to tremendous difficulties and perils, an expedition which, even if ideally successful, would be wholly futile for the real purpose which Germany has in view; the breaking of the chain of steel which is throttling her to death. That Germany should really contemplate such an undertaking, if she does contemplate it, shows one thing and one thing alone—a desperation which has no longer command of sane mental processes. It is a counsel of despair.

WARNS SOLDIERS' WIVES.

German Mayor Prohibits Cake Eating and the Movies.

The following notice was posted recently on the door of the City Hall of Reichenbach, Saxony, by the Mayor:

"The wearing of fine clothes by the wives of the soldiers at the front is forbidden. They also should not allow themselves to eat cake. Furthermore, they should not visit theatres, movies or the Kaiser-Panorama. In case any woman fails to obey this order she will lose her war allowance."

In commenting on the notice the Berlin Vorwarts says:

"When existence is so tragic, when the necessities of life are so dear, and when every one is obliged to keep his hand on his pocket book, soldiers' wives who wear fine clothes, eat cake, and attend the theatre must be very rare. The Mayor of Reichenbach would act more to the purpose if he forbade the rich women of the city, who have money for that kind of luxury, from doing these things, and would take care that the children get enough milk and that their mothers do not have to stand for hours waiting for the bits of meat that their richer sisters have thrown in the garbage cans."

WED FOR WIDOWS' PENSIONS

German Government to Investigate Wounded Soldiers' Marriages.

Fearing that many young women are marrying severely wounded soldiers in the hope of soon drawing widows' pensions the German Government officials have announced that careful investigation will be made of these cases before the pensions are granted.

Dr. von Olshausen of the legal department of the War Ministry declares, however, according to report in the Hamburger Nachrichten of Dec. 20, that every favourable circumstance will be taken into consideration, especially where it is shown that the couple intended to marry before the war broke out, but were prevented by the sudden mobilization.

MEAT INJURIOUS TO THE KIDNEYS

Take a Tablespoonful of Salts If Back Hurts or Bladder Bothers

We are a nation of meat eaters and our blood is filled with uric acid, says a well known authority, who warns us to be constantly on guard against kidney trouble.

The kidneys do their utmost to free the blood of this irritating acid, but become weak from the overwork; they get sluggish; the eliminative tissues clog and thus the waste is retained in the blood to poison the entire system.

When your kidneys feel and act like lumps of lead, and you have stingy pains in the back, or the urine is cloudy, full of sediment, or the bladder is irritable, obliging you to seek relief during the night; when you have severe headaches, nervous and dizzy spells, sleeplessness, acid stomach, or rheumatism in bad weather, get from your pharmacist about four ounces of Jad Salts; take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast each morning, and in a few days your kidneys will act fine. This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for generations to flush and stimulate clogged kidneys, to neutralize the acids in urine so it is no longer a source of irritation, thus ending urinary and bladder disorders.

Jad Salts is inexpensive and cannot injure; makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water drink, and nobody can make a mistake by taking a little occasionally to keep the kidneys clean and active.

FOR THE POULTRY RAISER

When the fowls get off the roost in the morning they should have a small feed; it may be a wet mash, moistened, not sloppy. If dry mash is used exclusively, a sufficient number of hoppers should be used to allow all fowls to feed for an hour, then close the hoppers until noon when they should remain open the rest of the day.

Scratch food should be scattered in the litter in the morning, sufficient to keep the fowls working until about 3 p.m. in winter and 6 p.m. in summer, when the night food of wheat or cracked corn should be given, as much as they will eat up clean.

Water: As the egg contains a large quantity of water, and the process of manufacturing the egg goes on day and night, water is just as necessary as grain, and when poultry pays, water must be supplied. The poultry raiser who boasts that he does not water his fowls when snow is on the ground but lets then eat snow or pick at the frozen water cannot boast of large egg production, and therefore cannot make poultry pay.

The egg shell must be manufactured. Grain does not contain sufficient quantity of lime to supply a business hen with shell matter. Lime must be supplied in some form. Crushed oyster shell is the best. If that cannot be had, old plaster, slacked lime or sifted coal ashes will help, and when fed from a hopper it is surprising how much they will eat.

While supplying the necessary materials for the hen to produce the egg, we must supply the necessary material to sustain the fowl, supply a new coat of feathers and keep her in healthy condition.

The more food a laying hen can digest the greater will be the egg production. Then hen's teeth must be looked after—grit being the only teeth that fowl have. Unless proper grit is always supplied, the health of the fowls will be affected. A very important detail which is often overlooked is supplying granulated charcoal; it helps digestion, purifies the blood, absorbs impurities and prevents bowel trouble to a great extent. —Woman's World for February.

Home Health Club

Corns: "Ouch, be careful where you tread". Have you ever heard that expression and seen the anger and pain expressed in the face of the speaker? Perhaps it was your corn that was trod upon and you know just how to sympathize.

To know how to remove a corn successfully and cause no return of the trouble, it is necessary to know "Why is a corn?". I know of a big Chemical Co., that incidentally makes certain supplies for physicians, but it has built up an enormous plant and employs a large number of people on the profits of a certain corn cure and they make no pretense that it really cures corns, but simply relieves the pain and enables the poor crippled feet to get along with a lessened amount of pain and discomfort.

Corns are caused by pressure and friction. If one was to remove both pressure and friction by going barefooted, the corn would get well. That is out of the question so we must remove the cause by wearing properly fitted shoes and then remove the corn itself by the simplest method possible. The treatment than can be successfully applied with the least expense should be the most popular, especially if it is a painless method. If you go to the family physician, he will probably give you a prescription about as follows:

Salicylic acid, one dram; Extract Cannabis Indica, ten grains; Flexible Colodion, six drams; Sulphuric ether, two drams, to be painted over the corn daily.

That is a fairly good treatment for corns and will be effective in many cases, but we want relief in all cases through simple, home methods without expense. Here is an effective remedy supplied by one of our German readers, who says it has proven effective in all cases. Common sense will tell you it is safe and cannot harm or make the corn worse and it costs nothing but your own effort.

First, soak the feet for three-fourths of an hour every night just before retiring, in water that is as hot as can be borne. Repeat this for 5 nights in succession. Second, just before retiring for the next 5 nights soak a broad bandage in cold water, wring or squeeze lightly, just enough to keep the water from dripping; wrap the foot, especially the corn, with several thicknesses of this cold wet bandage and then pull on over it a heavy woolen stocking. Put an extra warm blanket over the feet and see that it is tucked in well so that there will be no chance for the feet to get cold. You will sleep extra fine. When you remove the bandage in the morning the foot will have only its own natural moisture and the corn should be rubbed with a little kerosene or vaseline.

By repeating this cold wet bandage 5 nights the corn is quite likely to corn out, "root and all", although as a matter of fact a corn has no roots as it simply consists of layer after layer of skin that has seemed to grow inward instead of being thrown off naturally as it is thrown off of other portions of the surface of the body.

In some very aggravated cases the entire treatment may have to be repeated in order to get all of the thickened skin to come out, but as a rule it can all be easily picked out at the end of the fifth treatment of the cold pack. When the corn has in this simple manner been removed, see that there is no longer any pressure on the foot or toes at that place and they will not return.

CLUB NOTES.

I will gladly answer all inquiries for information on health subjects from readers of this publication if same are addressed to Home Health Club, 5000 Cottage Grove Ave., Chicago, Ill. Send full name and address with 4 cent postage.

Dear Doctor: I have been troubled with my stomach for over two years. Am a farmer 28 years old; have good appetite, but stomach hurts for about three hours after meals. Get very hungry and weak before the next meal. Stomach somewhat dilated at times; also constipated. R. W.

(Answer) Some of the symptoms which you have described would indicate that the cause of your suffering is either worms or tape worm. Would suggest that you fast for a couple of days and then take a good big dose of castor oil, then watch the stools for segments of tape worms or ordinary round worm. If you will then write to me again, stating just what you found to be the condition, I will tell you what you should do to overcome either condition.

Dear Doctor: I would like to ask you about eating eggs. They do not seem to agree with me, have tried cooking them all sorts of ways, also raw with milk. I am inclined to constipation if I get at all bilious. I feel after eating an egg as if all my nerves were tied up in knots and strained as hard as possible, then I have sick headaches; sometimes the feeling does not come on for a day or two, and sometimes slightly after eating one egg, then if in a day or two I eat another it gets worse. When I eat deviled eggs, they do not seem to disturb me. Do you suppose there is any real reason why I cannot eat them? I like them and they are so nourishing and convenient to use. I have been doctoring lately for kidney trouble because my kidenys did not seem to eliminate properly; urine shows some uric acid crystals, but no sign of any other kidney trouble. I am 30 years old, unmarried, 59 inches tall, weigh 100 pounds, have fairly good appetite but do not sleep very well, sallow complexion.

Miss H. F.

(Answer) Some persons cannot eat eggs, although some dietists claim that this condition is caused by idiosyncrasy only, but I am not inclined to agree with that opinion. I have seen cases in which people who have partaken of only a small particle of egg without their knowledge and the results have been very serious. The eggs seems to be veritable poison to some people.

I would suggest a milk, fruit and nut diet for a period of 3 months after which you may be able to eat eggs with impunity. One dear old lady told me she did not have any impunity to eat with them. Possibly this difficulty will not appear to you. While using fruit and milk diet you should also use an abundance of lemons and oranges. The acid of these fruits aid in digesting the milk. Drink more water, sip it slowly, but do not drink anything while eating, except milk, sipping it slowly also.

OUR DAILY SHORT STORY

The Women Chums.

(Original.)

The Scandinavian ship Sea Gull was sailing in Kara bay, a part of the Arctic ocean lying between Russia proper and Siberia. About five miles from the Russian coast at sunrise in the morning the lookout in the fire top, a woman (women on Scandinavian ships do the same work before the mast as men), saw on the port quarter a black speck on the track of sunlight shimmering on the waves. A black speck on a river usually means nothing, but at sea always excites attention. The lookout seized a glass and brought it to bear on the object, which under the magnifying power of the glass was resolved into a boat with a person in it. The lookout sent word to the captain, who gave orders to put the vessel off a point or two with a view to discovering if the lone boatman needed assistance.

As the Sea Gull approached the boat the figure in it was discovered to be that of a woman. She was lifted over the ship's side in an exhausted condition, pale and emaciated, but when they asked her questions she could respond only in the Russian language, which was unintelligible to the Scandinavians. One of the crew was a young Russian woman, Katia Jarof, who had shipped at a Siberian port a few days before. Knowing a little Scandinavian, she was brought forward as an interpreter. A close observer would have noticed a slight start on the part of both her and the woman from the boat when they first saw each other, but they sufficiently restrained themselves so that nothing unusual was noticed. Katia questioned the stranger and reported that she claimed to have been aboard a Russian vessel and, incurring the displeasure of the captain, had been marooned. She asked where the Sea Gull was bound and when told that she would first stop at a Norwegian port asked to be transported there. Since she had no money she was required to work her passage before the mast.

Naturally the two Russian women became companions. The woman who had been marooned, Sonia Sardenhoff, was large and soon regained her strength, which was considerable. Katia, on the contrary, was delicate, and she seemed to have been pulled down by some past hardship. Both women were intellectual looking, and their station was evidently far above that of the balance of the crew. Sonia from the time she was able to stand watch offered to do duty also for Katia. This she insisted upon and most of the time did double work relieving Katia.

The first mate, a Swede named Scandergon, became enamored of Katia and made love to her. Katia repelled him, but he persisted. Sonia took the girl under her protection, which led to hard words between the mate and Sonia, and during the altercation Sonia told him that if he did not cease annoying her friend and countrywoman she would compel him to do so. This interested the crew, who ridiculed Scandergon. He paid no attention to Sonia's threat, but persisted in annoying Katia.

One day while he was so doing he was felled to the deck by a blow from Sonia. When the mate got up several of the sailors were laughing at him. He attempted to bring the open palm of his hand against Sonia's ear; but, leaving his own face unguarded, he received a knock under the jaw which raised him off his feet and landed him on the deck again.

A fight between a man and a woman brought the crew together to see. The mate arose and let drive at Sonia. He was now in earnest, and the fight was more even. Sonia was at a disadvantage from her skirts, but she had the luck to knock her enemy against the capstan, which stunned him, and he was carried below unconscious. That ended the mate's attentions to Katia, and from the time of the fight the two women were inseparable.

But Sonia had nothing to do with any of the women of the crew except Katia. She would not occupy a bunk with the women, sleeping when she did sleep at night on deck. She was a puzzle to the men, and her devotion to Katia excited a good deal of curiosity. The captain, hearing of her quarrel with the mate, reprimanded him and gave orders that the two Russian women should thereafter be treated with every consideration. He even relieved Katia of her part of the duties of a seaman.

Finally the Sea Gull rounded the northern extremity of Norway and, sailing down into the Atlantic ocean, put into Bergen. When the anchor had been dropped in Swedish waters the woman went to the cabin of the captain and made a confession. They were both escaped prisoners from the Russian political prison at Kara. Katia had been convicted of teaching the Russian peasants. Sonia was a man, Michael Vlostoff, who had got himself sent to Kara for the express purpose of freeing Katia, which he had planned to do by bribery. Katia's escape had been made at the time arranged, but Vlostoff had been delayed. They had arranged to get away from Siberia by shipping on a foreign vessel, which Katia had accomplished. Vlostoff had been obliged to put out in Kara bay in a boat, and fortune decreed that he should be picked up by the vessel on which Katia had shipped.

The captain furnished Vlostoff with a suit of man's clothes, and the pair were married before leaving the ship.

MY TERRIBLE HACKING AND SPLITTING COUGH WAS ENTIRELY CURED BY DR. WOOD'S NORWAY PINE SYRUP.

Mrs. Clara Jackson, Huntsville, Ont., writes us under date of January 12th, 1915. "I take great pleasure in writing you concerning Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup. Last winter I contracted a very bad cough which troubled me all through the summer. This winter I started to take Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup, and after taking three bottles I can truthfully say that I felt like another woman.

"The terrible hacking and splitting cough, and the dry sensation in my throat is entirely cured. I would certainly recommend it to anyone troubled with bronchitis or lung trouble. I have not words too grateful to give you."

All obstinate coughs and colds yield quickly to the action of Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup, combining as it does all the lung healing virtues of the Norway pine tree, and the soothing, healing and expectorant properties of other excellent herbs, roots and barks.

"Dr. Wood's" has been on the market for the past twenty-five years, and we claim that it is the best cure for a cough or cold that you can possibly procure. The thousands of testimonials we have received prove that our claim is right.

All we ask you is to see that you get "Dr. Wood's" when you ask for it, and don't accept some so-account substitute.

Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup is put up in a yellow wrapper; three pine trees the trade mark; price, 25c and 50c.

Gin Pills FOR THE KIDNEYS

Why Demanded

"Gin Pills did for my husband and me what no other remedy could. I have advised two other families to use them, one of them being my mother who has been a great sufferer for upwards of 20 years, and one bottle cured her, so as to enable her to sleep on her left side, something she could not do for many a year. The doctors told her they could not cure her, but could relieve her by an operation for a floating kidney, but on account of her age they did not think it advisable for her to go. Those my advice also tried Gin Pills which cured her and for which she is ever ready to speak in terms of praise."

BURNS' OFFICE WAS RAIDED

Descent on London Branch— Ottawa Man Reported Shot in London.

NEW YORK, Feb. 3.—According to a private cable from England, in code, which succeeded in escaping the censor, the London branch of the William J. Burns National Detective Agency, with headquarters in that city, was raided by Scotland Yard men two months ago. The search was thorough. No arrests followed, however, and it is reported that the Scotland Yard men fell upon the Burns office as the result of information they had received that the Burns agency was a branch of the German spy system. William J. Burns' son, Sherman, confirmed the reports of the raid.

Other London despatches state that Mayerabch de Caserta of Ottawa, Canada, who figured in the confiscated cheque book of Capt. Franz Von Papen, was shot as a spy in the Tower of London two days ago. He was then accused of being one of Von Papen's most valuable men, and is alleged to have directed the various attempts made in Canada to blow up bridges and ammunition factories.

Paris Gives Its "God Speed" To Class of 1917

Mobilization of Parisian Youths For Training at Military Depots

(From the European Edition of the New York Herald.)

With a gay courage worthy of the traditions of their elders the Parisian youths of the 1917 class left for the various depots, where they will be trained for the grim work of the trenches.

Half Paris turned out to see the youngsters of eighteen march in their thousands to the city's principal stations. The first conscript trains left from the Gare Saint Lazare and from the Gare des Invalides before half-past eight, but from the Gare de Lyon and the Gare de Montparnasse trains left at regular intervals until after midday.

Never since the time of the general mobilization has the fine spirit of the French people and their determination to win this war at any cost been so manifest as in this departure of the "bleuets," beardless youngsters leaving home for the first time with a smile on their lips, dauntless in the resolve that, now that they are called to the Colours, France shall not find them wanting.

Everywhere the streets were lined with enthusiastic crowds of relatives, friends and simple sightseers. Here and there could be seen the soiled uniform of a soldier back from the trenches of Arginne or Champagne. As the "bleuets" wearing their civilian cloths for the last time and with close packed haversacks at their hips strung by they cheered his Croix de Guerre, while the old campaigner gravely raised his head to salute his comrades of the class of 1917.

The farewells were said outside the stations, for only the conscripts were allowed on the platforms. Mothers, preoccupied with last counsels, kissed their sons good-bye dry-eyed. Fathers exchanged hand grips as between man and man, and the conscripts walked by the barriers with head erect as becomes the soldiers of France.

At the Gare d'Austerlitz, special trains, each containing a thousand conscripts, left for the depots in Limousin, Charente, Brittany, and the southern departments. At the Gare Montparnasse, in addition to the ordinary express trains, which carried extra carriages, three special trains left between 9.30 and 10.23 a.m. with the young conscripts.

At the Gare de Lyon 3,000 "bleuets" left for their depots and about half that number started from the Gare de l'Est. Everywhere the same enthusiasm prevailed, and as the trains steamed out hundreds of conscripts leaning from the windows of their carriages raised a great shout of "Vive la France!" while sonorously from the crowds outside the station rose the answering cheer: "Vive la Classe Dix-sept!"

The scene was particularly picturesque outside the Gare Montparnasse, for here the recruits after they had passed the barriers massed on the large balcony overlooking the street and exchanged shouted commentary with the people waiting below. Many of them let down strings and had good fishing, landing packets of cigarettes, oranges, biscuits, and even bunches of violets.

In the Place de Rennes there was a fanfaronnade, that raised a deafening cheer, but just before the trains left the "bleuets" and their relatives joined in the "Marseillaise." To the notes of this great call to arms, the young men marched from the balcony and in the crowd hundreds of fluttering handkerchiefs showed where sisters and mothers were waving a valedictory to the class of 1917.

Extraordinary Murder Mystery

Resembles Poe's Gruesome Tale —Detectives Think Vicious Ape May Have Committed Deed

An extraordinary murder mystery exciting France just now is said to repeat the most remarkable and essential features of Edgar Allan Poe's famous and gruesome tale, "The Murders of the Rue Morgue."

The most plausible explanation of this present French murder mystery is that it was committed by a great ape. This is the theory upon which the police are now working. Thus one of the most fantastic stories ever imagined seems to have been re-enacted in real life nearly 100 years after it was written.

In the present case the victim was a young woman, Mlle. Marie Christophie, aged 24, belonging to an old and wealthy family, living at 43 Cours Sablon, at Clermont-Ferrand, an important French provincial city.

The family consisted of the daughter, Marie; her mother, and a brother, Jean Christophie, one year younger than herself. They enjoyed a large income, and lived in a fine old house. The son was called out as a soldier on the outbreak of war, but obtained a comfortable position on the staff, which enabled him to live at home in Clermont-Ferrand.

Mademoiselle Christophie occupied a bedroom on the fourth floor of the house. At half-past two in the morning agonized shrieks in different tones and cries of "Fire!" coming from this house were heard by the neighbours. The firemen broke into the house, and hurried to Mademoiselle Christophie's room, where the fire was burning.

They found that it was already nearly extinguished, and soon put an end to it. Jean Christophie and his mother had apparently been busily engaged in trying to put out the blaze. The big old-fashioned wooden four-poster bedstead, with canopy, had been partially burnt up.

In the midst of the ruins, by the side of the bed, lay the dead body of Marie Christophie.

Her Body Bore Scars.

In due course a judicial inquiry into her death was begun, and at once the interesting fact was established that her death was not due directly to the fire or to suffocation caused by it. She had received severe blows on the head from a blunt instrument probably capable of causing death. She had also received injuries in many parts of the body.

Jean Christophie said his sister was subject to heart disease, and thought that when she found that a fire had broken out she had an attack of this disease, which killed her.

"How do you explain that your sister's body bears marks that show she was beaten to death?" asked the judge in the case.

"I do not believe she was beaten," said young Christophie. "I believe the injuries to her head were caused by the top of the bed falling upon her. I think the other injuries were due to her falling on the table and chair by the bedside in her terrified condition."

The Mother Arrested.

The case remained an utter mystery for many weeks. Then the local newspapers began to hint at a shocking state of affairs. They said that Mme. Christophie was devoted to her son and was not fond of her daughter.

At last these rumours culminated in the arrest of Mme. Christophie and her son for causing the girl's death. If the great war had not been raging this would certainly have been regarded as one of the most famous criminal cases ever known in France.

The Christophies—mother and son—made a most effective defence. They engaged the ablest lawyers in France to represent them. Mme. Christophie said she was overcome by horror at the charge, but her son fought vigorously against the accusations.

He explained that the family had many enemies in the Department on account of ancient quarrels, and that they had inspired these attacks on them. He pointed out how reasonable was the original explanation of the tragedy.

Then it became known that the police of Clermont-Ferrand were working on the theory that an ape had committed the mysterious crime.

This led enterprising reporters to the discovery that the police had kept a remarkable record of fingerprints found in and about the room where the tragedy occurred and upon the body of the dead girl.

Some of the injuries on the body of the girl were, it was reported, apparently caused by fingers and thumbs of enormous strength. They were not the fingers and thumbs of young Christophie, and they differed in type from those of any other man preserved in collections of fingerprints. The same fingerprints were found on the back of a chair in the bedroom and upon the window pane.

"Climbed up Rain Pipe!"

Five monkeys were found by the police in Clermont-Ferrand, but they were all small, and their fingerprints could not possibly have been confused with those of a man.

It was clear that if one of the simian family was concerned in the tragedy it must have been a great ape, such as an orang-outang or a chimpanzee. If that was so it must have belonged to a wandering showman who passed through the town at the time.

A theory has been put forward that the ape escaped from its house or cage during the night, ran through the empty streets of the town, and was attracted by the light in the fourth-storey window of the Christophie house. Then the ape ran up a rainpipe, reached the window, entered the room, attacked the girl, beat and choked her to death, and upset a lamp in the struggle. Finally it escaped in the way it came.

An Important Clue.

When the facts in "The Murders of the Rue Morgue" were so ingeniously cleared up by Poe's fictitious detective, M. Dupin, it was found that the ape had been surprised shaving itself with its owner's razor, that the owner pursued the animal through the streets, and that it ran up a lightning rod, carrying the razor to the women's room, where it slaughtered them.

The unintelligible sounds heard coming from the room have not been dwelt on very strongly in the Clermont-Ferrand case, but the curious discoveries about fingerprints add a modern scientific element to the latest mystery.

LOCAL WEEKLY MARKET REPORT

Dollar Day Prices—Wheat Takes Another Advance—Butter Declining as Well as Eggs—Poultry, Looking Up—Lambs Very Scarce —Comparison in Prices

MARKET FEATURES.

Hogs take a jump of 35 cents; beef down one cent a pound; sugar down 30 cents.

Dairy and Poultry.

Butter, creamery	38c
Butter, creamery	38c
Eggs, new laid, doz.	35c to 38c
Cheese, lb.	25c
Cream, qt.	35c
Turkeys, lb.	25c
Geese	20c
Ducks	18c
Chickens	23c
Live hens, each	$1.00

Toronto butter dealers report a great quantity of fresh butter being offered at 33 cents a pound; creamery prints; and 26 to 29 cents for dairy. It would be no surprise then to see a further decline on the Peterborough market.

Eggs showed a decided weakness last Saturday, the prevailing price being but 35 cents a dozen. Those farmers' wives who do not bring their produce to the market but sell direct to private customers are getting higher prices, but this will not continue long once the buyers "tumble."

The stock of poultry on the outside market is getting pretty scarce, due to an unusual activity since the New Year, and live fowl are being sought in increasing quantities.

Grains, May.

Wheat, bush	$1.08
Oats	38c
Barley	56c
Peas	$1.50 to $2.00
Buckwheat	70c
Rye	80c

Bran, ton	$25.00
Flour, cwt.	$3.65
Baled hay, ton	$20.00 to $22.00
Loose hay	$19.00 to $20.00

Wheat Prices Higher.

Wheat prices are going up all around, the advance being 6 or 7 cents a bushel. Bad roads are said to be responsible. When snow comes again there will be a grand rush to take advantage of the high prices, which, of course, will cause them to tumble.

Winnipeg No. 1 Northern was selling in Toronto at $1.27 per bushel, a rise of over 12c. in two weeks.

Fall Wheat.

Fall wheat is being seriously threatened by the lack of the usual snow-blanket which causes the crop to be frost bitten, and the ground to heave.

At Toronto oats were 46 to 47 cents per bushel; barley, 64 to 66 cents; rye, 86 to 90 cents; buckwheat, 78 to 79 cents; peas, $1.80 to $1.75 per bushel.

Seed Grain.

Red clover, cwt.	$27.00
Alsike, cwt.	$25.00
Alfalfa, cwt.	$27.00
Timothy, cwt.	$12.00

Toronto prices on seeds are:

Red Clover from	$8.00 to $12.00
Alsike	$6.00 to $7.50
Timothy	$1.00 to $3.50

Fruits and Vegetables.

Dollar-Day Prices.

Some of the prices being quoted by Peterborough merchants on Dollar-Day are "eye-openers." To enumerate them here would require too much space, but the careful buyer would do well to take Wednesday's Daily Examiner, and make a careful study of the advertisements. It would surprise you the reductions being made below the usual current prices, and goods that will not deteriorate, such as sugar, canned goods, etc., should be laid in in quantity, for saving 5 to 10 per cent. on the necessities of life is better than leaving the coin in the bank at 3 per cent—to say nothing of the chance of winning a prize.

Doctor Said Only Hope Was In An Operation

Was Skeptical When He Began the Use of Dr. Chase's Ointment—Relief Came Quickly

Here is a plain, honest statement in regard to Dr. Chase's Ointment. Between the lines of this letter you can read the gratitude, which its writer feels. One does not suffer from annoying, distressing piles for ten years without appreciating a cure when it is obtained.

Almost every mail brings the report of someone who has been cured of piles by the use of Dr. Chase's Ointment. Such statements are never used without the permission of the writer, and until we are satisfied that the cure is genuine and the writer a person of responsibility.

You may believe in operations for piles, and think there is no other cure. Write to Mr. Ingles, enclosing stamp, and he will gladly verify his statement. He will tell you that the pain, the expense, the risk of an operation are quite unnecessary. That relief and cure come with the use of Dr. Chase's Ointment.

Mr. Ernest W. Ingles, Penticton, B.C., writes: "I suffered from piles for two years, and though I tried all kinds of ointments and injections I really had no permanent relief until I used Dr. Chase's Ointment. When I began this treatment I had absolutely no faith in it, for I had been examined by a well-known physician in Vancouver, and he said that an operation was the only thing that would benefit me. It was surprising the relief I obtained from the very first box, and now, after using four boxes, I am practically cured. My case was so exceptionally bad that I received no relief day or night, and for this reason the results are wonderful."

You can obtain Dr. Chase's Ointment from any dealer at 60 cents a box. If you do not want to risk this much send a two-cent stamp to pay postage, and mention this paper, and we shall send you a sample box free. We are so certain that any sufferer from piles will obtain relief by using this ointment that we do not hesitate to make you this offer. Edmanson, Bates & Co., Limited, Toronto.

EXAMINER PATTERN SERVICE

LADY'S DRESS.

By Anabel Worthington.

The one piece dress is to be pre-eminently the garment of the coming season. Everything points in this direction—materials are of lighter weight; there are more silk than woolen fabrics being made up by the manufacturers; the separate coats are more suitable for wear with one piece dresses than ever before and the tailor made suit is not as much in evidence as in seasons past.

The gown shown in the accompanying illustration offers a model which is in every way suitable for constant wear. The blouse has a few gathers along the shoulders in front and the centre is occupied by a small, flat vest closed in the middle. Around the neck, which is low, is a large square collar which encircles only the sides and back, leaving the front of the throat exposed.

The back of the waist is plain and the sleeves are also plain and full length, shaped to the arm and made in one piece. The pattern provides a fancy cuff for use in case the wearer desires to shorten the sleeve to the elbow.

The four gore skirt is made with a seam in the centre of front and back and with one at each side. The closing is placed in the centre of the front. Applied upon the sides and back of the upper part of the skirt is a yoke, which leaves the front a trifle plain toward the centre. These yokes are a matter of choice.

When a dress of this character is made of plaid or striped material one frequently sees the vest and the skirt yokes made of plain color in the same fabric or in taffetas.

The dress pattern, No. 7856, is cut in sizes 34 to 46 inches bust measure. Medium size requires 3⅞ yards of 44 inch material, with ⅝ yard of 27 inch goods for collar.

This pattern can be obtained by sending 10 cents to the office of this paper.

When ordering remember to give your name and address as well as the number and size of pattern required, and age of a child.

Price 15 cents, or 2 for 25c.

IN FIVE MINUTES! NO INDIGESTION, GAS OR SOUR, ACID STOMACH

The Moment "Pape's Diapepsin" Reaches the Stomach All Distress Goes

"Really does" put bad stomach in order—"really does" overcome indigestion, dyspepsia, gas, heartburn and sourness in five minutes—that—just that—makes Pape's Diapepsin the largest stomach regulator in the world. If what you eat ferments into stubborn lumps you belch gas and eructate sour, undigested food and acid; head is dizzy and aches; breath foul; tongue coated your insides filled with bile and indigestible waste, remember the moment "Pape's Diapepsin" comes in contact with the stomach all such distress vanishes. It's truly astonishing—almost marvelous, and the joy is its harmlessness.

A large fifty-cent case of Pape's Diapepsin will give you a hundred dollars' worth of satisfaction or your druggist hands you your money back.

It's worth its weight in gold to men and women who can't get their stomachs regulated. It belongs in your home—should always be kept handy in case of a sick, sour, upset stomach during the day or night. It's the quickest, surest and most harmless stomach regulator in the world.

No Food For Pets In Hungary

Thousands of Hungry and Homeless Dogs and Cats Roam the Streets of Budapest

BUDAPEST, Feb. 2.—The Hungarian Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals, has issued an appeal to the public asking them to deliver up their dogs and cats and, not drive them into the streets owing to the scarcity of foodstuffs. There have been masses over upwards of five thousand animals during the last few months, for the majority of householders, owing to the dearness of food, could not afford to keep their pets.

In spit of this the number of homeless and starving animals is alarmingly large in the streets of Budapest, and the authorities are taking great pains to collect them for the hungry and savage animals constitute a danger to public health. There are also many soldiers who bring their dogs to the society's premises, and pitiful scenes take place sometimes between masters and dogs. The dogs are the innocent victims of the war in Hungary, for at present middle class families are obliged to get rid of them in consequence of the dearness of food and because no bread tickets are being issued for the benefit of animals.

The system of bread tickets in Hungary came into force on January 15. According to the ministerial decree each person is entitled to 200 grammes (half a pound a day), with the exception of those who are employed in manual work who are entitled to 250 grammes a day, while those who are engaged in agricultural work can have 400 grammes a day.

In the capital the authorities are working at the registration of the existing quantity of flour at disposal and placards are posted to the effect that everybody should notify the authorities as to the quantity of stock they have at their houses. Householders are allowed to retain enough to keep the family up to Aug. 15, 1916, at a rate of 200 grammes a day for each person. Any unreported quantities will be confiscated and given to the disabled soldiers' families.

A CHILD'S TONGUE SHOWS IF LIVER OR BOWELS ARE ACTIVE

If Cross, Feverish, Sick, Bilious, Give Fruit Laxative at Once

Every mother realizes, after giving her children "California Syrup of Figs," that this is their ideal laxative, because they love its pleasant taste and it thoroughly cleanses the tender little stomach, liver and bowels without griping.

When cross, irritable, feverish or breath is bad, stomach sour, look at the tongue, Mother! If coated, give a teaspoonful of this harmless "fruit laxative," and in a few hours all the foul, constipated waste, sour bile, and undigested food passes out of the bowels, and you have a well, playful child again. When its little system is full of cold, throat sore, has stomach-ache, diarrhoea, indigestion, colic—remember, a good "inside cleansing" should always be the first treatment given.

Millions of Mothers keep "California Syrup of Figs" handy; they know a teaspoonful today saves a sick child tomorrow. Ask your druggist for a 50-cent bottle of "California Syrup of Figs," which has directions for babies, children of all ages and grown-ups printed on the bottle. Beware of counterfeits sold here, so don't be fooled. Get the genuine, made by "California Fig Syrup Co." Hand back with contempt any other kind offered.

Rheumatic and stunted pigs are the result of damp pens. Give them plenty of dry litter.

Rhubarb roots stored in the cellar may now be started into growth, and will give good stalks in a few weeks.

Low-grade western oats, containing 10 to 25 per cent. of noxious and injurious weed seeds, are being sold readily for about $10 per ton.

BEAUTY DOCTOR TELLS SECRET

Detroit Beauty Doctor Gives Simple Recipe to Darken Gray Hair and Promote its Growth.

Miss Alice Whitney, a well-known beauty doctor of Detroit, Mich., recently gave out the following statement: "Anyone can prepare a simple mixture at home, at very little cost, that will darken gray hair, promote its growth and make it soft and glossy. To a half pint of water add 1 oz. of bay rum, a small box of Orlex Compound and 1-4 oz. of glycerine. These ingredients can be bought at any drug store at very little cost. Apply to the hair twice a week until the desired shade is obtained. This will make a gray-haired person look twenty years younger. It is also fine to promote the growth of the hair, relieve itching and scalp disease, and is excellent for dandruff and falling hair."

WHY HAIR FALLS OUT

Dandruff causes a feverish irritation of the scalp, the hair roots shrink, loosen and then the hair comes out fast. To stop falling hair at once and rid the scalp of every particle of dandruff, get a 25-cent bottle of Danderine at any drug store, pour a little in your hand and rub well into the scalp. After a few applications all dandruff disappears and the hair stops coming out.

ONE DRUNKARD TO FIVE U.S. FAMILIES, SAYS PASTOR

NEW YORK, Feb. 2.—"Statistics show that one in every five families in this country must furnish a son to become a drunkard," says the Rev. Dr. Reisner of Grace Methodist Church. "By actual experiment it has been shown that when a healthy animal is merely given the fumes of alcohol the offspring is puny and deformed. A local option in New York City is no longer a fanatical measure. Kansas, without saloons, has one insane person in 340. New York, with saloons, has one insane person in 200."

A Dollar Day Bargain-----A Suit Of Khaki The Only Fashionable Wear For Young Men

THE GERMANS HAVE RESUMED THEIR OFFENSIVE IN THE WEST

Determined Assaults Made by the Enemy North of the Aisne in the Region of Ville Aubers--Enemy Onslaughts Were Repulsed by the French Curtain of Fire---British Cruisers Searching For German Sea Raider.

A SUMMARY OF TO-DAY'S WAR CABLES

NEWPORT NEWS, Va., Feb. 3.—With the British liner Appam, docked at Newport News to-day and unloading passengers, mystery deepened regarding Germany's new masked marvel, the sea raider which captured the British ship and sank several others, captains of four British vessels transferred to the Appam strenuously insisted to-day that the raider is the converted fruit liner Ponga and not the Moewe. Lieut. Berge, commanding the German prize crew which brought the Appam here after his wierd dash across the Atlantic, Prince von Hatzfeldt, German Embassy Counsellor, and other Germans, as positively insisted the raider is the Moewe.

LONDON, Feb. 3.—King George to-day signed the Government's Conscription Bill. The measure becomes effective on February 10th.

NEW YORK, Feb. 3.—German submarines have sunk fifty-eight Allied ships of an aggregate tonage of 215,159 in the Mediterranean since the Balkan campaign began, according to the German newspaper Weserzeitung of Bremen, copies of which were received here to-day.

LONDON, Feb. 3.—Seven of Europe's cables to America have been mysteriously put out of business. For more than a month they have been lying at the bottom of the ocean, temporarily useless, while remaining ones are over-burdened with the great mass of communications passing daily between the two continents. Satisfactory information is unobtainable here, but it was rumoured to-day that a new type of German submarine, equipped for cable cutting, may be working off Europe's western coast.

MADRID, Feb. 3.—A large British squadron of fast vessels has been sighted off the Moroccan coast. It is rumoured that two German ships were captured.

LONDON, Feb. 3.—The British steamer Chasehill, 4,500 tons, which sailed from New York Jan. 13 for Havre, foundered at sea. The crew was saved.

LONDON, Feb. 3.—London newspapers this morning express conviction that the Germans are planning a new offensive on a large scale against the left wing of the Allies. It is expected that they will attempt to blast their way to Calais and Dunkirk by use of strong bodies of infantry supported by enormous masses of artillery.

LONDON, Feb. 3.—The British steamer Belle of France, 4,000 tons, was sunk. Nineteen Lascars, members of the crew, are missing. Twenty-two others landed.

ZURICH, Feb. 3.—German financiers have been assured by their government that the German-American controversies are about to be settled according to despatches from Frankfort to-day. As a result the German Bourse rallied sharply to-day.

LONDON, Feb. 3.—Canadian troopship Missanabie with more than fifteen hundred officers and men of various reinforcements from Canada, has arrived in England safely. All well.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 3.—With the decision of the United States that the British liner Appam is a German prize of war and subject to immediate internment, there still remains the problem that has arisen through the refusal of the German commander, Lieutenant Berge, to release the British soldiers which the German Embassy insists he has a right to hold as prisoners of war.

LONDON, Feb. 3.—The Kaiser and the German Crown Prince were named as two accessories to the wilful murder of thirteen Zeppelin victims killed in Monday night's raid on Staffordshire in the formal findings of the coroner's jury to-day.

PARIS, Feb. 3.—The Germans have resumed their heavy attacks against the French lines. This afternoon's war official statement reported the repulse of determined enemy onslaughts north of the Aisne in the region of Ville Aubois by a curtain of fire from the French infantry. The Teutons suffered heavy losses.

TORONTO, Feb. 3.—In deciding a point a high official of the United States said to-day:. "Common sense will enter into the solution." He said there is no exact precedent to follow and that the United States "will have whole say."

OTTAWA, Feb. 3.—It is expected when the House meets this evening Sir Thomas White, Minister of Finance, will table the main estimates for the next fiscal year. These estimates will be for domestic expenditures and will not include the war vote, which will be brought down later.

Apart from the usual votes for cost of administration, estimates will consist largely of revotes. It is expected that in some of the departments there will be reductions.

BELMONT CLUB TO ORGANIZE AN OVERSEAS' BATTERY

Large Number of Young Men Have Already Signified Their Intention of Joining the Unit Which Has Been Offered

CONFERENCE TO-NIGHT

Not satisfied with the task of raising an overseas infantry battalion, Peterborough will in a few days be called upon to organize an overseas battery. A movement is under way by the Belmont Club to form a battery for service overseas and an offer will be made to the government, which will undoubtedly be accepted. Major W. C. Ackerman of the 24th Field Battery, will hold a conference with the club to-night in connection with the matter. It is understood that a large number of local young men have already agred to join the unit and no difficulty is expected in securing the necessary number of men.

93rd BATTALION HAS REACHED AND PASSED 700 MARK

Peterborough Battalion Steadily Growing in Strength ---Bands, Staff, Signallers and Machine Gun Section Are Practically Complete---Four New Pioneer Battalions to Be Organized---To-day's Military News.

The 93rd Battalion has reached and passed the 700 mark, and Lt.-Col. Johnston and his staff are now making plans for the rush onward to complete the battalion. Recruits are coming in steadily although the rush of last week has abated to some extent. Band, Buble Band, Staff, Signallers and Machine Gun section are all practically complete, while A and B companies are at full strength, and the county centres continue to take on recruits.

Dollar Day visitors to Peterborough had an opportunity of seeing the 93rd Battalion on parade to-day. Two marchouts through the down town streets made a very favourable impression. For the first time the Machine Gun section of the battalion was on parade.

Bandsman Preston Grangé of the 59th Battalion, has been transferred to the Band of the 93rd. He is a son of Armourer Sergt. Geo. Grange, of the Peterborough Battalion.

Word has been received to the effect that Davidson Ketchum, nephew of Major Davidson, chaplain of the 93rd Battalion, is recovering from his recent illnes. Davidson Ketchum is interned in Germany. According to a letter received by Mrs. G. A. Smith, 736 Water street, Mr. Ketchum is the life and soul of the camp, having organized singing parties, helping with church work, and doing everything possible to make things brighter in the camp.

"People paid as high as 55c for a $1.50 shirt at the auction to-day. Wouldn't that jar you when they could get them for nothing at the Armouries?" said one of the men this afternoon.

Office of the Chief Press Censor,
Ottawa, Janary 28th, 1916.

The Canadian Governmeant has recived notice from London that the Secretary of State for Foreign Affairs has been informed by the United States Ambassador, that the Turkish Government desire that in future remittances of money not exceeding five pounds from private persons for British prisoners of war in Turkey should be despatched to the International Red Cross Committee at Geneva for transmission to the Ottoman Red Crescent Society at Constantinople by whom payment to the recipients will be effected and a receipt returned to the International Committee at Geneva.

Letters and parcels should also be sent to the International Red Cross Committee at Geneva for transmission. Such letters and parcels are post free. Money should be remitted by International money order which can be obtained at any post office and which should be made payable to the International Red Cross Committee at Geneva, and sent on with full name, number of regiment of the prisoner of war to whom the money is to be paid.

Information has also been received from the United States Ambassador that prisoners of war in Turkey are now allowed to write only one letter a week limited to four lines, and that this regulation applies also to letters addressed to them. Letters of greater length will not be delivered.

The 33rd Battery left Kingston at noon to-day. They were given a banquet at the Barracks last night by the ladies of the Queen Street Church.

OTTAWA, Feb. 2.—Four new "pioneer" battalions are to be recruited in Canada, according to an announcement made by Sir Sam Hughes to-day. Plans are now being worked out for the organization of these battalions. They will include a considerable number of practical railway engineers and construction men. Col. Robert Low of Halifax, a well-known contractor, will probably have charge of one battalion. It is the intention to attach at least one "pioneer" battalion to each Canadian division at the front.

Collingwood, Feb. 2.—The entire police force of this town resigned yesterday to take up service with the Canadian Expeditionary Forces.

Chief Johnson, who served in both the Egyptian and Boer wars, has been appointed Battalion sergeant-major of the 157 Simcoe Battalion. Constable Plant has been appointed company-sergeant of the 76th Battalion, while

DOLLAR DAY PROVES IT HAS COME TO STAY

Merchants Report Big Volume of Business and Purchasers Laboured Home Under Parcels

"Dollar Day" demonstrated that it deserves the red letter position in this city's calendar of events. It has become established as a big business day between the winter and spring seasons, of widespread appeal to the public and of material assistance to many of the merchants. This was the third "Dollar Day" and there was every appearance of it being the best. Remember that the stores are open until 9.30 this evening and the special offers for the day will be continued until the close. Had the country roads offered better sleighing than exists just now the farming community would have been more largely represented, but as it was the township sent in small armies of purchasers. "Dollar Day" has come to stay and from year to year the merchants' methods will be gradually improved and enlarged. This morning the dry goods boots and other stores opened with a bang and maintained a steady stream of business throughout the day. A number of merchants stated to the Examiner that they had had a big day and this seems to have been general throughout the city. Dollar Day as originated by the Examiner proves the beneficial result of cooperation in retailing. Merchants by taking advantage of a widely advertised event offered special values and from the heavy volume of business should show gratifying returns. Money spent at home is money well spent and it may be that in future years the scheme may be expanded to an extent that is only dreamed of now. Many stories were reported of bargains obtained and not the least was that of a man who secured a pair of patent leather boots for one dollar: They proved a perfect fit and this afternoon he was wearing an expansive smile that suggested a saving of at least two or three dollars. The 93rd Battalion parade this morning and this afternoon and from one farmer in the crowd was heard the question, "I wonder where those boys will be next "Dollar Day." Fighting on German territory let us hope, if the war lasts till February next.

Patriotic Fund Expenditure Reaches the $7000 Per Month Mark---What the Soldiers' Aid Commission Are Doing For the Soldiers

SOME DIFFICULTIES

February 1st was the date set for payment of the first instalment of subscriptions to the Patriotic Fund, subscribed last December. It is gratifying and encouraging to find that in the two first days of the month the Fund is remembered, and that many payments have been made. It is all very welcome. The cash subscriptions made at the time of the campaign had been sufficient to meet the demand on the Fund for January allowances. Payments during the month should run up to a very considerable sum. The February call to meet allowances will be the largest in the history of the Fund in this city.

During December and January, as well, there has been a very steady addition to the lists of married enlisted men. As these are taken on the strength and assigned to companies at the Armouries the families are placed on the Fund for the month or half-month as the case may be. These allowances help to bridge over the interval that elapses until the military pay is available, and the separation allowance is paid. Once in running order there should be a fair sum of money to meet needs.

Names Added.

Since December 1st 201 names have been added to the list on the Fund These comprise married men and sons of mothers to whom an allowance is rightly made. This will add to the total required a little over $3,000. It is quite possible that when the February lists are made up the total required will not fall short of $7000.00. And we started with a list of about $1,300.00. So there is need for fairly prompt payments to keep things evened up. Payments can be made at the Dominion Bank, the office of the City Treasurer, or at the Patriotic Office. So long as we get the money it will be all right. All goes into the same hopper. Receipts will be given most cheerfully.

Plan of Action Mapped Out.

On Friday night last the newly constituted Soldiers' Aid Commission Branch for this city met to get to work. There was a good attendance of the committees. A plan of action was mapped out, and taking the reports with regard to the returned men, those noted as being partially disabled men action is being taken to bring these up to date. All facts will be ascertained and recorded. Several of those who are still rather infirm have gone to Kingston Convalescent Home for further treatment. Sergeant Allen, who was at Kingston, on Monday and Tuesday, returned yesterday and reported seeing all of the men. He reports Pte. King as doing fairly well, but suffering from a bad attack of grippe. This, in addition, to his infirmity, which is receiving treatment. Pte. Mosley has been examined by the Medical Board, and further treatment will be given. He is better, but still bothered in going up and down stairs on account of the wound in his leg. Pte. Somerville is confined to bed, and may have to undergo an operation for hernia. He will be at the Home for some time yet. Ptes. Fallen and Thos. Parrington are both doing well and hope to be able to return in

WILSON'S ADDRESS SMACKS OF APPEAL TO THE "HYPHENS"

Told Several Thousand German-Americans U.S. Neutrality Would Be Genuine

A PRE-ELECTION TOUR

Special to The Examiner.

ST. LOUIS, Mo., Feb. 3.—In a stirring address to-day President Wilson told St. Louis that he intends the record of his administration to be one "of genuine neutrality and not pretended neutrality."

The audience, several thousand of whom were of German lineage, applauded the declaration until the Coliseum rang.

"I am ready to make allowances for both sides," the President said, "and I have tried to think so far as is possible from the point of view of the other side."

MONEY FOR THE FARMERS

Special to The Examiner:

WINNIPEG, Feb. 3.—Manitoba government has endorsed the proposal of New York brokers to borrow two million dollars in New York at 5 per cent. and loan it to the farmers at 6 per cent.

THIS MORNING'S POLICE COURT

John Weese of Norwood was the sole occupant of the police court dock this morning. He admitted being drunk and was remanded until Saturday. Magistrate Dumble wanted to know if he had been given a chance to enlist in Norwood. Accused replied in the affirmative and felt in his pockets for a rejection slip.

EXAMINER OFFICE OPEN TO-NIGHT

A Great Many People Are Estimating on the Coppers in the Jar

The Examiner contest of estimating the number of coppers in the jar is creating for Dollar Day a great deal of interest. The office will be open to-night for all those who desire to pay subscriptions or accounts, and they will receive estimating blanks to estimate the number of coppers in the jar as well as estimating blanks for the big prize list of $175.00.

PULPWOOD IN BLAZE

Ten Million Dollars Worth Threatened at St. John

ST. JOHN, Nfld., Feb. 3.—Ten million dollars worth of pulpwood and paper at Lord Northcliffe's pulp reserves are on fire and according to reports, are likely to be destroyed. This is a big blow to newspapers of England, which have already largely curtailed their publications and in some cases ceased altogether because of the scarcity of white paper.

THE TRUSTS AND GUARANTEE COMPANY.

In another place in this issue of the Examiner is printed the nineteenth annual statement of the Trusts and Guarantee Company of Toronto. The statement shows a satisfactory condition of all the interests of the company. The state and growth of the financial trust account and the estates and agency account indicate increasing public confidence in the soundness of the company as a financiary institution. The statement also shows a healthy and improving condition of capital account, and satisfactory earnings for the year; on the whole a generally healthy condition of the affairs of the company, which seems to be flourishing under its present management. It will be of local interest to know that an "an old Peterborough boy," Mr. E. B. Stockdale is the general manager, as another "old Peterborough boy," Hon. J. R Stratton, was the founder of the company—in 1896.

WHITEWASHING.

When the report of the investigation into Peel county horse deals came out, showing how Mr. J. R. Fallis, M.P. P. for Peel, had dishonourably, if not dishonestly, profited to a large amount and [illegible] country in the sale of horses to the government, there was a general expectation that the government of Ontario would demand the vacation of his seat. At the meeting of the executive of the Conservative Association of Peel yesterday Mr. Fallis tendered his resignation. Mr. Fallis, it is said, has tried to square himself with honest considerations by paying back $198 of his spoils to the patriotic funds of Peel county. It is said that Mr. Fallis will again offer himself as a candidate. Through his sense of public duty as shown in his horse deals, mark him as a man to be cautiously trusted it is probable that he will be re-elected. He had a majority of 617 in the elections of 1911; and, besides, when party spirit runs so strong as to lead the constituents of De Wett Foster, who was read out of the Conservative party and out of honourable public life by Sir Robert Borden on account of his connection with palming off spavined and antique horses on the government, to give him a public ovation, it cannot be expected that considerations of honesty in marking ballots will influence partisan electors. The Caesar's wife standard is not yet applied to the choice of party representatives. If electors chose to be some participes criminis in whitewashing political criminality, that is their affair but it presents a dark look-out for political morality in the county and for national righteousness.

FRILLS.

This is a levelling age. We continually hear that we are fighting for the prevalence of the principle of democracy. Literally and etymologically this means the rule of the people.

But democracy means more than that: it means the highest rights of personal liberty to the end that every citizen may enjoy the rights and liberties that enter in the perfect application of the democratic principle Dalocracy does not in any sense mean the leveling of all distinctions that separate individuals by virtue of qualities, of intellect, of character, or positions of authority.

Democracy means the highest development of civilization, and all the rights, privileges, graces, and refinements that attend high character under a high civilization. Democracy does not denature the individual, nor lessen the obligations of deference to and respect for others. It imposes the same obligations of duty towards our fellow men that have always obtained in civilized and cultured society, and in all the relations of civil or military life.

The Halifax Chronicle, in an impulse of exaggerated democracy, demands the wholesale abolition of "frills," especially in military matters.' It demands the abolition of the salute required to be given by soldiers to officers and vice versa. It admits that such salutes on duty are necessary to discipline, but objects to "volunteers, many of whom have occupied influential positions in the community, being required to salute every youth who happens to hold a commission.

Here the democrat becomes the cad in insisting upon social or business position or possession of means being the standard of worth and recognition. Besides, in the military salute, it is not the individual that is saluted—it is the supreme authority of the realm represented in the grade the uniform represents. We should not forego the salute exacted alike from the most shambling raw recruit and the highest officer in return.

The salute is absolutely necessary as a visible recognition of authority, and an agency of discipline. We have dispensed with a great deal of military frills, and have replaced the "pomp and circumstance of war" with the severest practicality.

We have virtually abolished the fuss and feathers department,, and toned down the splendors of uniform till now it takes a close scrutiny to distinguish the private from the officer.

But we have wisely kept the salute as at once a recognition of authority—the bond of the state and a necessary element of discipline—the condition of the highest efficiency and effectiveness.

We have preserved this form of official politeness in military matters. It, or its spirit, is as necessary in civil life. We may be as democratic as we like, but we must at the same time, be decent. The conventions of civilization and of society under civilization properly require certain forms and observances as tokens of mutual respect among citizens. A rose in a ladys' hair, a scrap of lace about her throat, are the frills that complete the graces of her toilet. The little acts of politeness, the respectful mutual salute, the little graces and gentlenesses of social intercourse are what complete the outward adornments of character that distinguish us as good citizens with culture and refinement, the crowning graces of the real civilization of democracy. Tokens of respect, politeness and salutations, are not evidence of servility, but on the contrary, signs of a manly noble and true and loyal heart.

The tendency of democracy—its logical drift—is to make every man a law unto himself—to regard "Jack as good as his master." This exaggerated democracy degrades manhood and weakens authority. One man is as good as another only if and when he is as good. Democracy in its true meaning is the doctrine of human right. If one man expects respect for his rights from a fellow citizen, he can only do so when he is willing to equally respect another's rights. Every man who expects deference, politeness, consideration and respectful salutation from his fellow man must give as good as he gets. On this ground the private salutes the officer and the officer the private.

We need in this levelling age more insistence upon the duty of politeness and respectful bearing towards each other. If we neglect these things we strike at the foundations of respect for authority, whether it be the authority inspired by considerations of age or character or of constituted authority.

There is a sad lack among the young of to-day, of respect, deference and politeness to elders and superiors in authority. These may be regarded as small things, but they are the fundamentals of sound authority and the discipline upon which authority is founded. If children in their social life and daily intercourse neglect niceties that show respect for their elders or superiors, they will with greater difficulty submit to the discipline of teachers in the schools and taking the same spirit into adult life, their lessened respect for authority will make them less good citizens.

RUSSIAN MUSIC.

When the Mendelssohn Choir opened its nineteenth season with a miscellaneous programme, assisted by the Russian Symphony Orchestra, an organization which for quality and individual virtuosity will not need to ask for favour from any similar aggregation of musicians, it performed an international service. This one thing the war has done for us at least, in bringing us to a better understanding of the Russian people and a better appreciation of Russian art, and it must have struck many who listened to the vast conceptions of the Slav composers that there is in them something more compellingly akin to the Canadian spirit of prairie, lake, and mountain, than is to be found in the conventions of the older schools.

The Russian ideas lead away from the old standards. There are no rounded periods, but one encounters massive climaxes which come because they must, and a wild abandonment to the inspiration of lofty emotions, drifting like clouds, and overwhelming ideals that spring like Aphrodite from an ocean of harmony. There is more in the spirit of the Rocky Mountains and the Great Lakes than even Wagner at his supremest. There was variety in the Russian part of the programme sufficient to illustrate all these tendencies, and to bring the folk-soul of Russia home to the audience.

Russia has a wonderful future before her, and Canada, lying in the same latitude, must have much that is of the same order of experience, and her art must partake of a similar inspiration. The two countries may help to interpret life to each other. Already they are more in touch through commerce than is generally understood.—Toronto World.

CONTRASTING SCENES IN CANADIAN POLITICAL LIFE

Both scenes are significant. Both have to do with Canadian politics of to-day. Each had in the centre of the stage a politician whose name is known in all the Provinces. One scene was laid in the House of Commons in Ottawa; the other in King's county, Nova Scotia. In the spotlight at Ottawa stood Fred. P. Pardee, the Chief Whip of the Liberals. In Nova Scotia the bouquets were handed to A. De Witt Foster, who, less than a year ago, was read out of the Conservative party and out of honourable public life by the Prime Minister, Sir Robert Borden. Each man had his day, spoke the thing as he saw it, and had his reward: the House of Commons dignified itself in approving the one; "over three hundred enthusiastic Conservatives," so the party journal reports, disgraced themselves and their party name by expressing their "unbounded confidence" in the other.

Extracts from the reports of these two events deserve to be read together, as setting forth, the one the way of the honourable politician who is also a patriot, the other the way of the political adventurer whose supporters commend his "untiring efforts in the interest of the county"—efforts to enable constituents to rob the country during the stress of war.

In his speech in Parliament on Monday night Mr. Pardee, dealing with the present situation in Canada, said:

"The duty of the Government is to give leading to the patriotic sentiments; to sacrifice all other considerations in the determination to make Canada's share in the struggle a worthy and effective one; sternly to banish the petty and often costly intrigues of mere party politics, to incite friendly counsel and thoughtful and honest criticism; resolutely to deal with every instance of impropriety brought to its attention by searching public investigation. (Cheers.)

"The duty of the Opposition is to give sympathetic and hearty support and assistance to the Government in all legislation making for the attainment of the national and Imperial objects immediately in view; to pass with the utmost freedom and despatch all war grants and all bills designed to make more effectual Canada's part in the conflict; to bring promptly and frankly to the Government's attention all cases of impropriety or worse that may come to its attention, and urge full investigation, and, whenever possible restitution; to put aside for the time being mere party criticism, and devote its energies solely to its foremost responsibility at this hour." (Renewed cheers, in which both sides joined.)

Is it any wonder that to such sentiments, so worthily expressed, and at such a time as this, both sides in Parliament gave instant and ungrudging applause?

But turn to the other scene. Three hundred members of the Conservative Association of King's County, Nova Scotia, gather, the party reporter says, "in the midst of slush and rain," give "an enthusiastic reception" to the discredited young political scalawag who disgraced both his party and his country in his barefaced horse-purchase exploitations exposed in Parliament last year, and then declared him worthy to "represent King's County in Federal affairs." Alas for any county whose ideal representative is De Witt Foster, and whose ideal horse for the King's service is one in 1915 is the rickety animal rejected as unfit for service in the South African war.

The time is just now when the very life of Canada and all its ideals are at stake. Men in both parties who, like Pardee, sink party preferences in their devotion to the public weal should be publicly commended. Men like De Witt Foster are perhaps beneath rebuke, but the shameless electors who try to force him back into public recognition should be told by the Prime Minister himself, if needs be, that for his sort there is no longer any room in the Parliament of Canada. Surely there are enough decent Conservatives in King's County to make this man's nomination impossible.. If he is made the party's candidate, surely the decent Conservatives will make his election impossible!—The Globe.

How German "Kultur" Honours Things Dear to Christianity

The official report of the German War Office says: "The tower of Comple and the Cathedral of Nieuport, which offered excellent observation posts for the enemy, were destroyed." Which means in proper spelling:

"Another Christian Church and Cathedral smashed!"

"Hoch der Kaiser!"

"Hoch der Christianissimus Rex!"

"Hoch der Sultan!"

"Hoch der Devil!"

"There is but one God—Wilhelm; and Allah is his prophet!"

"Lead on, noble followers! On to Notre Dame, to St. Paul's and Westminster Abbey!"

When Alaric the Goth besieged Rome, he gave instructions that the churches of St. Peter and St. Paul should be regarded as holy and inviolate. He was a barbarian, and no more a Christian than His present Emperor of Germany. He had no Kultur; but he had in him some of the instincts of a man and a gentleman. Religion meant something to him, even when it was not his own religion.

There is no pretence that the Cathedral of Nieuport had been used as an "observation post." Of course, it might have been; but heaven itself is open to the same objection. There is too much reason to believe that the deliberate policy of the Kaiser's Government is to destroy whatever is held sacred by the enemy. It is an essential part of German frightfulness and has nothing whatever to do with purely military considerations. Like all German policy it is strategically weak. Even the tactical advantage of destroying a Christian temple is doubtful. From a strategical point of view, it is sheer madness. No Christian, be he Catholic or Protestant, can hear of the destruction of a Cathedral without a feeling of infinite disgust; mingled with which is more anger than fear. The bombardment of Westminster Abbey, of St. Paul's Cathedral, or St. George's Chapel in the Victoria Tower, would enrage every Englishman, and to that extent might be gratifying to Hohenzollern malice; but it would mean another million men in khaki; to put about two and a half million Germans out of business. The gentleman in the Berlin War Office must have been indulging in too much cabbage water when he hoarted of such a stupid blunder—worse than a crime.—Montreal Herald.

LIFE.

Two pilgrims paused upon the mountainside.
Hoped ere the night to reach the eastern height,
And when the beaten path turned to divide,
They pondered which divergent way to try.

One path led sharply upward o'er the crags,
And seemed too perilous for human feet;
The other way was paved with mossy flags,
And fared forth broadly 'mong the grass sweet.

One pilgrim chose the rugged path and sprang
Toward the mountain's distant sunlit crest;
His comrade sought the flowery way and sang
Then dallied 'mid the roses in his quest.

The day declined beyond the Western bars,
And twilight vailed the sunlight's fading glow;
At nightfall one man stood among the stars—,
The other trod the valley far below.

Peterboro Will Become A Large Industrial City

Every lot I own lies high and dry close outside the present city limits and must become city property very soon. Regardless of above facts I want to sell about 46 lots and 5 houses to close up my business. Wise ones say I cannot do so. I say I can and I will, because there are always a few wise people who know a good bargain when offered and I intend to give such to every buyer. The big rush at close of war will double rents and prices of all lots, this should cause renters and all who want to make money to buy now. Pay a small deposit and secure what you want to use in spring or resell with big profit. Good profit to every buyer of my lots or houses is a certainty beyond any doubt. Electrics Won Exciting Game From Cobourg Team By 7 Goals to 6

FINISH EXCITING

The Peterborough Electrics eliminated Cobourg from the group race last night when they defeated the Lakeshore bunch on their own ice last night by 7 goals to 6. It was a most creditable victory for the Electrics, inasmuch as Pete Spratt was an absentee from the line-up through illness, while they were deprived of the services of Lornie Rose, the speedy junior captain, for practically the whole game. The youngster, who started off at top speed by scoring two goals in the first few minutes was accidentally hurt after five minutes' play and was off for the rest of the game, a double handicap for the Electrics inasmuch as it robbed them of one of their best forwards, while it gave Reddy, the Cobourg right wing more freedom than he otherwise would have had.

It was the most exciting and spectacular game in the group race and kept the crowd on their tip toes all the way. The Electrics cut loose from the start and outscored Cobourg 3 to 0 in the first period. With Rose on for the full game the Lakeshore bunch would not have made things so close, but the six man stuff suited them, especially as it gave them a chance to get rid of McMahon, their weakest forward. The result was the going was very close in the second session, Cobourg scoring three goals to two by the Electrics. Early in the third period, Fox the little Cobourg centre, retired on account of illness, it was stated, and Montgomery was dropped to even up. That left the teams five a side, and with Cobourg's stars left on the ice, they made things interesting, tieing up the score. Soon after Evans was hurt and retired with Reddy, and the teams battled four to four. The Electrics had the most left, and running in two goals, cinched the game. Cobourg got their last counter, with 20 seconds left to play.

The pace was fast all the way and both teams played nice, clean hockey, the penalties being few and far between. Cobourg looked better than in any game this season, the forward line breaking fast and showing persistent determination to play combination, although they spoiled the effectiveness of their team work by offside passing. (The Electrics, too, showed more combination than in any of the other fixtures, while they back checked in great style.

Legros played a stellar game in the nets for the Electrics. Cobourg, as usual, did a lot of accurate shooting from outside the defence, but Legros was practically unbeatable on long range shots and most of the goals were scored on close-in shots or on rebounds. Long and Montgomery were effective on the defence and both rushed well. On the forward line all had a share in the win. Evans' stick-handling featured and Hamilton played his best hockey of the winter at centre. McMartin, who is rounding into shape now, was a tireless backchecker and broke up many a dangerous Cobourg rush. The big fellow checked back all over the ice. Rose was going great guns when he was hurt, notching the first two goals on neat plays.

For Cobourg, Drumm, the little defence man, and Lavis at rover, were the stars, both showing speed and stick-handling ability. Reddy, the right wing man, carries a deadly shot and was decidedly dangerous when he got away. Guy, the captain of the team, worked his head off to pull the game out of the fire and Butler pulled off some fine stops, especially on three or four occasions when he came out and spoiled a shot after his defence was beaten.

Cobourg.		Electrics.
	Goal
Butler		Legros
	Defence
Drumm		Long
Guy		F. Montgomery
	Rover
Lavis		Evans
	Centre
Fox		W. Hamilton
	Right Wing
Reddy		McMartin
	Left Wing
McMahon		Rose

The Electrics started off at top speed and pressed form the barrier. Butler saved several times, but finally after three minutes' play, Rose took his measure on a neat shot from the side and it was 1 to 0.

A minute later the little left wing came back and on a pass from Evans, slipped another counter past Butler.

Cobourg came back with a dangerous rush, but Montgomery tripped Lavis as he was about to shoot. The Electric defence man was chased to the side. In checking back on the same play Rose was cut by a skate and had to retire for the rest of the game, Cobourg dropping McMahon.

Soon after Evans secured the puck from a face-off, danced inside the Cobourg defence and tripped Goal No. 3 into the nets.

For the balance of the period it was even going.

Cobourg played the whole team up on the line in the second period, trying desperately to tie up the score. It was the Electrics who scored first, however. After four minutes' hard playing, Evans went down the side and although Butler stopped his dead on shot, Hamilton was on top of him before he could clear and batted in the rebound. That left it 4 to 0.

McMartin hurt his knee and retired for a few minutes, taking Fox with him. They were back in a short time.

Cobourg began to come at this stage and on a three-man rush, Reddy bored a beauty past Legros for their first goal. Evans got it back on a fast shot, after breaking up a Cobourg rush, but Reddy came right back with a dash along the side and a nice shot. That left it 5 to 2, and when Guy slapped another through in a scrimmage, the Cobourg rooters went wild. The figures remained 5 to 3 at the end of the period.

In the first minute of the last session, Fox, the little Cobourg centre, dropped to the ice and was carried off. It was claimed that he was sick. At all events he did not return, and Frank Montgomery retired with him. That left the teams five a side. The Lakeshore bunch were going at top speed at this stage and after three minutes' play Lavis scored on a rebound off a shot by Reddy. Shortly afterwards Drumm scored on a combination rush and the score was tied. A moment after Evans was accidentally cut under the eye and retired with Reddy, leaving the teams with four men each. With three of their fastest skaters in the dressing room, while Cobourg had Drumm, Lavis, Guy and Butler in action, the Electrics looked to be up against it. However, McMartin, Long and Hamilton proved equal to the task and held Cobourg off in good style. Evans and Reddy came back after five minutes. Long put the Electrics ahead when he went up alone and scored on a nice shot. Cobourg were beginning to tire and the Electrics were pressing hard. They lost one goal when McMartin shot a beauty that tore through the back of the net. The Cobourg goal umpire missed the play and the Electrics lost one goal, but McMartin came right back and heaved another past Butler. That made it 7 to 5 and cinched the game for the Petes, as there was only a little time left. McMartin broke a skate and retired with Guy. While they were off Cobourg scored their last goal, Drumm doing the trick on a combination rush., McMartin and Guy returned for the last twenty seconds of play.

The summary:

Majority points for Peterborough—29

Such were the figures for the Peterborough-Lindsay Cup games played simultaneously on both "fronts," yesterday. And Peterborough won decisively, both at home and abroad. The margin of 14 piled up here did not look wide enough to some of the local Club who entertain a wholesome respect for Lindsay curlers on their own ice, or anywhere. But Rollie Waddell had a field day at the expense of Skip Billy Carley, setting up 14 of the 15-point margin the totals revealed. Thus the grand totals here and there, going and coming, was 29 And the Cup returns to the Peterborough Club. Is has been battled for since 1890, and Lindsay has had the tighter hold on it. Peterborough won it in 1913, after losing three in a row. Lindsay carried it off in 1914, and there were no games played last season.

W. D Campbell's string of wins was broken last night by Herb Martin's rink, who scored in front with a one point lead in an extra end.

Vice-Skip J. C. Needler of Lindsay, who played here yesterday, is 65 years young, an enthusiastic curler and a credit to the game.

Four rinks go to Orillia to-morrow for the first series in the Neill-Shepherd game.

The prospects are bright for the open bonspiel two weeks hence. Enquiries from clubs in this district indicate a good attendance, and the local committee have sent out decorative posters.

CITY TEAMS ARE TIED FOR DISTRICT

The victory of the Electrics at Cobourg last night puts Cobourg out of the running and leaves the 93rd Battalion and the Electrics tied for the group championship, with each team having one game to play. The Soldiers travel to Cobourg to-morrow night while the Electrics visit Campbellford. If both teams win or both lose they will be tied for the district.

The standing is as follows:

	Won	Lost	Goals for	Agst
93rd Batt.	4	1	32	15
Electrics	4	1	27	21

"What a lot of snow gets into the strength of snowstorm!" "Yes. A good deal from the tree has produced many a storm!"

The Present Month--February

Some of the History and Characteristics of This Month and Notable Days—This is Leap Year—History, Laws and Legends Thereof

Written for The Examiner by Frank Russell

"Now February comes with storm and rain."

"All the months in the year Fear a fair Februeer."
Old Rhyme.

We have now entered on the second month of the year, in the modern calendar, viz., February. This is usually a month of twenty-eight days; in leap year, or bissextile, there are twenty-nine days, owing to the addition of the intercalary day, the necessity for which I treated upon in my article on January 7th, when I commented on the old and new styles, showing the means adopted by Pope Gregory to eliminate the error, caused by the computation of the Julian calendar, making an error of eleven days up to A.D. 1582. Anyway, it is the shortest month in the year. This year happens to be Leap Year, consequently there are twenty-nine days in this month.

Historical.

This month was not contained in the Romulian calendar. In the reign of Numa Pompilius, two months were added to the year, viz., January and February; the former was made the first month, and the latter was the last month in the year. And this arrangement was continued until about 452 B.C., when the authorities interpolated February after January.

The ancient name of this month—Februarius—was derived either from the Latin verb, februare—to purify, or from the Roman festival of Februa, which as a feast of general expiation was celebrated towards the end of this month. In this month also was held the feast of the Lupercalia, at which women were purified by the priests of Pan Lyceus.

By the Anglo-Saxons it was known as Sprout-Kale, from the fact that cabbage began to sprout in this month. It was also known at a later period as Sol-monath, or Sun-month, owing to the return of the sun from low latitudes.

Ecclesiastical Days of Observance.

The principal days are the Purification of the Blessed Virgin Mary on the 2nd; this day is also known as Candlemas-day; St. Agatha on the 5th; St. Valentine on the 14th; St. Matthia on the 24th; and St. Oswald on the 29th. The Purification or Presentation of the Infant Christ in the Temple, which is practically the same as the churching of women in the Anglican creed, and the feast of St. Matthias, are both red letter days in the Anglican calendar. They are days ordered to be observed, and an eve or vigil is provided for the feast of the Purification. On both these red letter days there are special lessons, collect, epistle and gospel provided.

St. Agatha and St. Valentine are black letter saints. The latter has given his name to Valentine's Day—a day well known to all my readers. On the eve of Candlemas Day it is customary to remove the decorations of holly, laurel, yew, cypress, etc., which had been hung up in churches as tokens of Christmas rejoicings.

Characteristics.

"February fill-dyke" was the name given by our forefathers to this usually wet and slushy month, when snow melted, rivers and brooks overflowed, and land was, more or less, under water. A writer says that February comes in like a sturdy country maiden, with a tinge of the red, hard winter apple on her healthy cheek, and as she strives against the wind, wraps her russet-coloured cloak well about her, while with bent head, she keeps throwing back the long hair that blows about her face, and though at times half blinded by the sleet and snow, still continues her course courageously. Some times she seems to shrink, and while we watch her progress, half afraid that she will be blown back again into the dreay waste of winter, we see that her course is still forward, that she never takes a backward step, but keeps journeying on slowly, and drawing nearer, at every stride, to the Land of Flowers.

Toward the end of the month there are many signs that the reign of winter is coming to a close. The snow seems to melt almost as fast as it falls. The beautifully-formed squirrel, on the mild days towards the end of February, wakes up from his winter sleep to feast on his hoarded nuts. Birds are to be heard, even if they be unseen, and it is by no means impossible to find buds here and there. We begin to feel the increasing power of the sun; the windows which have been closed and rendered air-tight, to keep out the wintry cold, are now thrown open to let in the air and the blessed sun, which shines alike on the evil and the good.

The Emblem of the Month.

According to Brady, the common emblematical representation of February is a man in a sky coloured dress, bearing in his hand the astronomical sign of the Pisces or Fish.

Spenser writes of the month thus:—
"—Then came old February sitting
In an old waggon, for he could not ride,
Drawn by two fishes for the season fitting,
Which through the flood before did swiftly slide
And swim away; yet had he by his side
His plough and harness fit to till the ground,
And tools to prune the trees, before the pride,
Of hasting prime did make them bourgon wide."

The Phases of the Moon.

for the month are as under:
New Moon—Feb. 2nd.
1st Quarter—Feb. 10th.
Full Moon—Feb. 18th.
Last Quarter—Feb. 25th.

Leap Year Month.

Whist is the origin of the privilege which in Leap Year is extended to the fairer half of creation? History and legend both have their say in the matter.

First let us consider the historical view of the question. In the year 1288, the following law is said to have been passed in Scotland. I will reduce the Scotch vernacular to present everyday English.

"It is ordered and ordained that during the reign of her most blessed Majesty, for any year known as Leap Year, any maiden lady, of both high and low estate, shall have the liberty to bespeak the man she likes best. Albeit if he refuses to take her to be his lawful wife, he shall be mulcted in the sum of one pound or less, acording to his means; always excepting he can prove that he is betrothed to another woman, in which case he shall be free."

A similar law was passed in France a few years later. It is also said that before Christopher Columbus sailed on his famous voyage, when he discovered the continent of America, that a similar privilege was granted to the maidens of Firenza (Florence) and Genova (Genoa.)

English Law.

In England, in 1606, there was issued this royal proclamation:—

"Albeit it now becomes a part of common law in regard to social conditions of life, that as often as every Leap Year doth return, the ladies have the sole privilege, during the time it continueth, of making love, either by words or looks, as to them seemeth proper; and moreover, no man will be entitled to benefit of clergy who doth in any wise treat her proposal with slight or contumely."

Now as to legend. Here is one referring to no less a personage than

The Blessed St. Patrick

The Saint was one day perambulating the shores of Lough Neagh, in Ireland, after he had driven the toad-out of the bogs and the snakes out of the grass, when the comely St. Bridget happened along. She, with much tears and lamentations, told him that the ones in her nunnery were much upset because they were debarred the privilege of "Bopping the question."

It must be borne in mind that in those days celibacy was not enforced as a general and absolute rule on the clergy or the religious, although it was approved.

St. Patrick himself was a confirmed bachelor, yet he offered to concede to ladies the privilege of proposing one year in seven. But to this St. Bridget demurred, and

Throwing Her Arms Around His Neck

Exclaimed 'Arrah! Pathrick, jewel I daren't go back to the girls wid such a proposal. Mek it wan year in four."

To this St. Patrick is said to have replied, "Biddy, acushla! squeese me that way again, and I'll give ye Leap Year, the longest one of the lot." This encouraged St. Bridget so, that, thinking of her own husband-less condition, she "popped the question" to St. Patrick himself. But the stern sing'e-man, having taken the vow of celebacy, patched up the difficulty as best he could by another kiss — do you blame him? I don't—and the promise of a silk gown.

The Red Petticoat.

For, up to within a century ago, it was a law of leap year that if a man should decline a proposal of marriage from a lady, he should present her with a silk gown by way of a solatium for her disappointment. At the same time it was decreed that the lady should be wearing a red kirtle, or underskirt, which must be visible, otherwise the penalty could not be enforced.

Fellow bachelors, if you wish to preserve your freedom, be careful this year of the red skirted girl, especially of the "girlie with the downcast eye"; or you may find that a knot is tied up with the tongue, that cannot be undone by the teeth. Personally speaking, if a real nice girl came along, I might not wish to compromise by paying the penalty of a gown.

Advice to "Hurry Up."

To the Virgins, to make much of time, Robert Herrick has addressed the following:

Gather ye rosebuds while ye may,
Old Time is still a-flying;
And this same flower that smiles to-day
To-morrow will be dying.

The glorious lamp of Heaven, the sun,
The higher he's a getting,
The sooner will his race be run
And nearer he's to setting.

The age is best which is the first,
When youth and blood are warmer;
But being spent, the worse and worst
Time still succeeds the former.

Then be not coy, but use your time,
And, while ye may, go marry;
For having lost but once your prime
You may for ever tarry.

BRAVE MAN.

The second act had come to an end. The curtain had fallen, and after a long tumult of applause the audience were radually relapsing into silence. Suddenly smoke was seen issuing from behind the curain, and a smell of burning began to pervade the atmosphere. Instantly a shout of "Fire!" arose, and a stampede was made for the doors.

Then from the orchestra chairs rose the hero of the hour—a man with a calm, determined face.

"Keep your seats!" he shouted.

His words and manner reassured the terror-stricken people in the theatre. Shamefacedly they sank back one by one into their seats. Slowly, as if about to speak, the man strode to where there was now an open exit. Then, without a moment's hesitation, he rushed for the door. Once safe outside, he mopped his forehead, and murmured breathlessly:

"Well, someone's saved, anyway."

FIRE, WATER AND LIGHT COMMITTEE'S ESTIMATES ADOPTED

Sum of $17,500 Will Be Required to Run the Department During the Current Year—Amount is Nearly One Thousand Dollars Lower Than Last Year—Convention Expenses Eliminated—Tenders For Firemen's Uniforms.

The Fire, Water and Light committee of the City Council will recommend the adoption of the departmental estimates at $17,500. This year's estimates are about one thousand dollars lower than those of last year. The committee met last evening and went over the list with a fine tooth comb. One item that failed to pass through the comb was two hundred dollars that was set aside for the Fire Chief's convention. Fire Chief Howard who was present at the meeting, asked to be allowed to attend the International convention of Fire Chiefs, to be held at Rhode Island, U.S.A. Ald. Edgar was in favour of leaving one hundred dollars in the estimates, providing Chief Howard attended the Dominion convention, which will be held in Windsor. Mayor Duffus was opposed to any expenditure of any kind for convention purposes so far as the Fire Chief was concerned. He said it was an abnormal year and every reasonable means should be adopted to conserve the city's finances. Ald. Duncan said he was prepared to take a similar stand in connection with conventions that members of the Council might be inclined to attend. He thought one was as justifiable as the other. The amount was eliminated from the estimates.

Increase in Wages.

Something was said regarding a proposal to grant the firemen an increase in wages. Beyond a general recommendation of the good services performed by the men, nothing was done. Third year men receive $750 a year and clothes.

The committee will seek authority to ask for tenders on firemen's clothing and award the contract.

Street Lighting.

The matter of improving the street lighting at the corner of Gilchrist and McDonnel streets, Park and Bolivar, Dublin and Division streets, on Stewart street between Sherbrooke and King streets, on Anson street west of Water street and near the corner of Murray and Downie streets was left with Ald. Evans, chairman of the committee with power to act.

The Utilities Commission will be glad to put in a metre to measure the electric current used for light by the police department and to bill it separately from the other parts of the city buildings.

The mater of lights in Central park will be taken up by Ald. Evans and Mayor Duffus and a report made to the committee.

Two additional fire alarm boxes will be installed this year.

This year's estimates include the sum of $550 for purchasing new horses for the department.

Eye Witness Tells Agony of Serb Rout

Fugitives, Fatigued, Suffering, Despairing and Overcome by Cold, Died in Snow, He Says

PARIS, Feb. 2. — No description hitherto published of the horrors of the Serbian exodus approaches in its appalling realism Henry Barby's simple recital. Here is his story:

"The destruction of the Serb soldiers and people was complete. Most of them were in rags and went barefoot, and they lived on raw cabbage and maize.

"But all the miseries, all the sufferings which I had till then witnessed, were as nothing beside the frightful things I saw on quitting Mitrovitza. After marching through a pelting rain I reached Vuchitru on the next day, 17th November. The rain, which had not ceased, fell in torrents, the cold became sharper and soon a driving snowstorm covered the town, the immense plain of Kossovo, and the surrounding mountains.

Horrors Are Described.

"The road alone was darkened by the crowd of fugitives who passed the night amid the storm, stumbling on with drooping heads, dazed with fatigue, suffering and despair. To my last day I shall remember that fearful march across the plain of Kossovo from Vuchitru to Prishtina. Around me all the unhappy fugitives were exhausted. Overcome by the cold, by the sudden snowstorm, many of them fell on the road among sunken lorries, overturned and broken vehicles, dead oxen and horses.

"None of the pictures recalling the retreat from Moscow gives any idea of the terrifying spectacle spread out as far as the eye could reach in all its tragic reality. I saw a woman straining to her breast a baby, already stark and stiff. She, too, was dying of cold and hunger. A little girl—eight years at most—shivering under a tattered shawl, vainly trying to raise her: then, scared all at once by her mother's frightful silence, she burst forth into sobs and fell on her knees.

Boy Starves Two Days.

"Further on, again, a little boy was cowering by the ditch. Tears were streaming down his wan cheeks and his teeth were chattering. I questioned him. He had lost his parents and had eaten nothing for two days. He could go no further. What could I do? I gave him what was left of my maize bread and went on with sinking heart, unable to restrain my own tears.

"The first time I witnessed this frightful agony it seemed to me that the poor wretch who was dying before my eyes was intoxicated. After a supreme effort to rise, he rolled his head from this side to that and moved his legs. Then his movements grew feebler till they ceased entirely, and all was over.

"Right through that awful day I witnessed the agony of the Serb people in that same valley of Kossovo where five centuries earlier the first great Serb Empire had gone under.

"And the snow kept on falling, covering the dead and the dying and lashing the faces of those who held out."

ELECTRIC SEARCHLIGHT MARVEL OF THE WAR

Wonderful Eye of Night Sheds 7000 Candlepower Beam a Mile and a Half

Few incidents, perhaps, have brought home so vividly to Londoners the fact of war as the searchlights mounted at different points of the Metropolis, which sweep the heavens throughout the night for invading aircraft. The electric eye of the Navy and Army, as the searchlight has been called, is of incalculable value, and we get a striking illustration of its effectiveness in the story of one of the fortresses of Liege.

It will be recalled that massed forces of Germans moved against the fortress oh a pitch-black night, hoping to surprise and overwhelm the garrison. Suddenly, however, they were blinded by a powerful searchlight, which dazzled out from the fortress and enabled the Belgian gunners to get the range almost immediately, with the result that the Germans were thrown back.

Perhaps no nation has perfected the searchlight to such a degree as France, and they have found it very useful, too. It was the French who originated travelling searchlights, mounted upon a four-wheeled truck, and capable of being used either on the deck of a motor car or planted in a desired position.

The automobile to which this searchlight is fitted is capable of travelling at 19 miles an hour, the electric generator for making the light being driven by the motor which propels the vehicle. When the searchlight is to be brought into service, it is only necessary to couple up the motor to the generator.

The installation is ready for use within a few seconds. Sufficient electric cable is provided to enable the searchlight to be manipulated about 300 feet distant. The searchlight is fitted with a 38-inch reflector, and throws a beam of 7,000 candlepower.

One great advantage of this field searchlight is that it is not necessary for it to be manipulated by hand, the instrument being equipped with what is known as the distant-control.

That is to say, it work automatically, enabling the operator to stand some distance away from the light. The advantage of this is obvious, for naturally the enemy would centre its fire on the searchlight, and were the operator and officer beside the apparatus, they would certainly be killed in a very short time.

It is often desirable that the searchlight should be operated from an exposed position, and unless worked automatically in the manner described this would, of course, expose the operator to almost instant death.

Some idea of the power of a searchlight may be gathered from the fact that the beams thrown from the average warship searchlight are capable of illuminating objects, such as torpedo boats, at a distance of two miles and more. For distant illumination a concentrated beam of light is essential, but for close work a more dispersed beam is necessary.

In sweeping the sky a concentrated beam is essential in order to pick up aerial craft at a height of 8,000 feet, about 1½ miles, or more.

Mrs. Williams—"Eliza, those banisters seem always dusty. I was at Mrs. Simpson's to-day, and her stairrails are as clean and smooth as glass. Eliza!—"Yes, mum. She has three small boys."

No Ships For 17 Inch Guns

Gun Could Be Built, But Its Practical Operation Considered an Impossibility by Naval Experts

"The 17-inch gun is not an impossibility, neither is a 20-inch gun nor a 40-inch gun as far as the building of it is concerned," said Mr. Frederick Palmer, the famous war correspondent regarding the rumour that the Germans were equipping their navy with these new monsters of destruction.

"The trouble with these guns is that no ships on the seas at present will hold them," said Mr. Palmer. "The British Admiralty has considered the 17-inch gun. In fact, it was considered before the war began. The United States naval experts also considered it, and found it absolutely impracticable. Before the war commenced, the Germans were able to turn out one Dreadnought every two and a half years. Even if that has been cut down to two years, they could hardly have even now one battleship ready for the new guns. One ship would be useless unless it could be supported by others of its type.

"Personally, I do not think that there is any such gun in use. It looks like a beautiful German pipe dream, and so many people like to be pessimistic just now. For all I know, without saying anything about it, the British Admiralty may have a 17-inch gun fitted up. We know for a fact that they have built many new drydocks since the war began. But the British do not talk about these things. They don't talk about anything they do. They are poor advertisers."

Have Done Nothing Yet.

"With all the talk about the brand-new hellish devices of the Germans, they haven't done anything yet. Their gas attacks were nothing new. They were considered by the Allies and are mentioned in the articles of The Hague convention as being too fiendish to use in warfare. And their little squirt guns for petroleum. They never did anything. When it comes right down to it, the long-haired inventors do not exist in Germany, as far as devices for their army go. Their Zeppelins I would rather be in London with a hundred of them festooning the sky every day than in one of the little villages along the firing line with French artillery pounding it.

"The Zeppelins never did any harm. I went to see a theatre that was supposed to have been destroyed by them. I noticed only a window broken. The Germans were going to wipe out all the big British cities with their Zeppelins. They were also going to bombard Dover with guns from the Continent. Their submarines were going to destroy the whole world over a year ago. The Americans even went so far as to say they didn't need any more battleships. I have perfect confidence in the British Navy. They have as much brains as the other fellow."

Unlike Other Cereals.

Roman Meal is probably the best balanced of any known food, containing as it does the whole berries of wheat and rye, as well as flaxseed. It is the most nutritious cereal food on the market, and its dark, granular appearance is altogether unlike other breakfast cereals. Its effect on the system is so beneficial that doctors freely recommend it. It will positively relieve constipation or "money back." Don't stir this porridge. At all grocers, 10 cents and 25 cents.

Try also Roman Meal Nuggets. They are ready to serve and are delicious with hot milk.

The Subaltern's Best Friend

An officer who has been through the mill hands some advice to subalterns in the columns of the London Daily Mail. He writes:

Another maxim: Respect your sergeant. He is your best friend. He may be a rough diamond; in the privacy of his soul he may be a villain; he may be a murderer. But if you value your youthful life keep sweet with him.

Your first day with the battalion you go on parade. You are given a platoon. You have not the vaguest idea of what to do, nor what is expected of you. Here is a plan which I hand you gratis. It only needs a little memory. Learn off the words, "Carry on, sergeant," and your future is assured.

Watch their magic effect.

The adjutant puts you in command of No. 3 platoon. Very well. Apply the formula. Shout, "Carry on, sergeant," at the top of your voice, even though you do not see anybody that looks vaguely like a sergeant. But do not worry. Someone will detach himself from the rear, hurry round beside you, cough out, "'Toon, tschun!" and salute.

"Very good, sir," agrees the sergeant. "Will you inspect the rifles, sir?"

Take him at his word. "Oh, yes, the rifles. Of course, the rifles. Good idea. The rifles."

But let him set the pace. He will bawl the magic formula, "'Toon, f'r 'spechun, por-r-rt a'ms!" and will trot away to the right of the line. Follow him. You cannot go wrong. Suddenly he will stop in front of a man and rap out: "Rifle rusty, belt squint, buttons dirty, pockets open, boots muddy, and grease on your tunic."

You may not see any of these faults yourself — nevertheless, fix the man with a glassy eye and ask him what the blankety-blank he means by it. The sergeant will back you up.

And even though you make a slight mistake and start ticking off the wrong man, the sergeant will suddenly find faults in the fellow sufficient to land him before a district court-martial, and so your face is saved.

What do you do after the rifle inspection? It is certainly rather a problem to the eye. But not to you who know. You will reiterate the enchanted words. The sergeant will do the rest. He will salute. "Yes, sir: s'geant-major says bay-net-fighting this morning, sir; will I march them off, sir?"

"March off? Yes, yes. March off. Certainly. Good idea. Carry on, sergeant." And you will find yourself being eyed with approval by the "C. O." for while your platoon is legging away for work the others are being footled about by subalterns who have not grasped the intrinsic value of an obliging sergeant.

* * *

But the most important man in the battalion is the adjutant. On your life, do not rub him the wrong way. If you value your career get on his soft side. If you have a pretty sister with whom he can fall in love, good and well; if not, then your only plan is to study him. Know his features. Know his failings. If you observe that he likes his whisky and soda of an evening you should develop a sudden passion for that beverage. But if he wishes to sit up till three in the morning with you it would be well if you tipped the mess waiters beforehand that, while they must give the adjutant whisky, you really want lime-juice and soda of an identical colour. Take care, of course, that the adjutant does not take the wrong tumbler. If the adjutant is a keen horseman, you would do well to turn out resplendent in as tight a pair of riding-breeches as your harnessed tailor can produce. If he is a lover of literature you should quote Milton and Jeremy Taylor in your little lectures on the machine gun. If he is a man of few words and adores brevity, take a course of signalling. In that pursuit you cannot help acquiring a staccato trick of the tongue. From spending long hours tapping a "bugger" every signalling officer talks as if he were ticking out a message. Before you are at signalling a week you will be jerking out your words like a tape machine—you may be made assistant-adjutant on the strength of it.

But if, on the other hand, the adjutant has a rambling, ungrammatical diction which it takes the mess an hour to understand, you should follow suit. As we say in Scottish regiments, you should "blether like a spae-wife." That is easy to acquire. Read some of the official Army textbooks!

FEEL IN A FAINT.

Mrs. Edwin Martin, Ayer's Cliff, Que., writes: "Before using Dr. Chase's Nerve Food I was in a terrible condition. Dizzy spells would come over me and I would fall on the floor. I could not sweep without fainting. Dr. Chase's Nerve Food has so built up my system that I can wash and do my housework. Your medicine cured me when doctors had failed."

The Man Who Would Not Fight For Canada Would Not Defend a Garden Of Eden, Said Rev. Dr. J. J. O'Gorman

A direct and powerful appeal to the able-bodied young men of his parish to "come to Flanders," was made in Blessed Sacrament Church, Ottawa, on Sunday by Dr. John J. O'Gorman, who is going overseas as a Catholic chaplain.

It was the third recruiting sermon that Father O'Gorman has preached in the last few weeks, and as on previous occasions he treated his subject with singular force and clarity.

In opening, Dr. O'Gorman made a significant reference to "those who would confine pulpit preaching to pious platitudes, who would permit us to teach the principles of Christianity, but who would prevent us endeavouring to apply these principles to the questions of the day," and, he declared, that these people "would minimize the function of the Christian religion."

Pregnant Sentences.

It was a sermon bristling with gripping sentences, of which the following are examples:

He who is disloyal to his country is disloyal to the church.

He who is only partially patriotic is only partially religious.

For the shirker the whole world is a prison.

It is not patriotism our shirkers lack—it is imagination.

Canada's first line of defence is in Flanders. It is being shelled every day.

France cannot defeat Germany. The soldiers of the British Empire must.

Men, if you would defend Canada, come to Flanders.

I do not want to salute the spiked helmet in my own country.

A Direct Appeal.

"Be not terrified at the cost of the sacrifice it entails. Let our motto be that of Judas Maccabaeus, 'They come against us with an insolent multitude, and with pride, to destroy us, and our wives and our children, and to pillage us. But we will fight for our lives and our laws.' (1 Mach., III: 20). The man who would not fight for Canada as she is to-day would not defend a Garden of Eden. Let us do our share in winning this war, and then those of us who survive will be in a position to help in remodelling Canada after our ideals in the reconstruction period.

Irish-Canadian Rangers.

"It was with a great deal of pleasure that the Catholics of this part of Canada learned of the authorization granted to Lt.-Col. Trihey to form an Irish overseas unit at Montreal. I know of more than one person who is waiting impatiently for this battalion to be allowed to begin recruiting that he may volunteer. I am glad to be able to announce that on February 15 this Irish-Canadian regiment will begin recruiting. To the men of this parish that are about to enlist I would say, Join the Irish regiment. Irishmen have been found in every regiment that has left Canada as they are found in every English and Scottish and Colonial regiment in the British Army. There is no reason why they, who add so much to the glory and fighting ability of other regiments, should not have the satisfaction of having several regiments of their own. This will be realized in Col. Trihey's regiment, and there is no doubt but that this Irish-Canadian unit will acquire the same fame as the Dublin Fusiliers or the Connaught Rangers.

An Eloquent Appeal.

"But it is for no more earthly fame that we are fighting. It is for liberty, for justice, and hence for God. Are we not soldiers of Christ? Does not our regiment form one vast religious order? Men, who, like all religious, are obliged to forego the pleasures of family life; men, who, like all religious, are required to leave all; men, who, like all religious, are required to obey from morning till night a severe rule; men, who, unlike most religious, are called upon to expose, perhaps daily their very lives in the performance of their duty! Why, these things form the very essence of the most heroic practice of Christianity. They are the very conditions which Christ laid down for His disciples."

BRITAIN DENIES SEPARATE PEACE OFFER TO BERLIN

Official Denial Made in London of German Inspired Falsehoods

LONDON, Feb. 3.—Germany's campaign of falsehood, started to cause distrust among the Allies and injure Britain in the eyes of neutrals, drew a reply from the British government yesterday when an official statement was issued denying peace overtures have been made to Berlin or that Britain is using pressure to restrain her allies from entering upon any peace movement. The statement follows:

"The German Chancellor has stated that England is compelling her allies to refrain from entering upon any peace movement. This statement, which our allies know to be untrue, was made for the purpose of injuring England in the eyes of neutrals.

"To our allies, on the other hand, we hear that insidious and untrue reports are being circulated from German sources that England intends to abandon them and has even made peace overtures to Germany, which have been refused.

"The two statements together are good illustration of how unscrupulous German methods are."

The distinguished looking lady stepped fro mthe train, and was making for the station exit when a polite porter rushed after her, touched his cap and enchimed: "Hansom, Miss?" "Yes, very," she quick wittedly replied as she passed on with a disengaging smile.

Brisk Demand For Seats For "Pygmalion"

Judging from the mail orders coming in it looks like a capacity house for Mrs. Patrick Campbell on her appearance at "The Grand" next Monday, Feb. 7th in "Pygmalion." Patrons are reminded that in order to have their seats returned by mail to them that it is necessary to enclose a self-addressed stamped envelope with their remittance. Peterborough, Hamilton and London are the only Canadian cities to be visited on this tour and it is interesting to note that, ten days after her appearance here, Mrs. Campbell opens an engagement in Los Angeles, Cal.

$1,000,000 SHIPMENT OF CANADIAN FLOUR

Biggest Single Order of Canadian Flour Due at Portland—For the French Government.

PORTLAND, Maine, Feb. 1. — A shipment of flour from Winnipeg, Man., to New York, consisting of 500 carloads, valued at $1,000,000, is expected to pass through this city in a few weeks. The flour is from the Western Canada Flour Mills Company, and is consigned to the French Government. At New York it will be loaded on ships of the allies as rapidly as it arrives. This is the first big shipment of flour from Canada to Europe by way of New York, and is the largest single order of flour ever sent out of Canada. Canadian mills are running their plants night and day to keep up with their orders for export, and many new grain elevators have been built in Western Canada to handle the business.

Decisive Italo-Austrian Clash in Albania

Battle for the Supremacy of the Adriatic Must Soon Take Place on Land—Austria-Hungary's Changed Objective

(By ALEXANDER OLDRINI in the New York Times.)

The question of the supremacy of the Adriatic is rapidly becoming one of the most important elements in the augmenting issues of the European conflagration. It involves the interests of four belligerent people—Italians, Germans, Slavs, and Hungarians. It is obviously of capital importance to Italy, as, aside from her commercial interests, there is to be considered her military security from invasion.

The coast of the Italian peninsula from Venice to Brindisi, a stretch of about 400 miles, is practically unprotected, save for her naval establishments at Venice and Otranto, from the menace of the formidable naval establishments of Austria-Hungary at Pola, Fiume, and Cattaro—not to speak of the subsidiary, even if eventual, dangers from Bulgaria aiming at Albania and Greece.

Although the historical and military scheme of the Dual Monarchy before the war was ostensibly aimed toward Salonika through the Vardar Valley—the "drang nach Osten," owing to the Balkan Wars and the rise of the new States, such as Serbia, Roumania and notably Bulgaria, as well as the views of Germany herself on Southern Europe — Austria-Hungary has bent all her energies in this war to secure undisputed military supremacy in the Adriatic.

With regard to the advantage that the immediate Balkan hinterland and its population might derive from an occupation by Austria-Hungary, it is a matter of historical record that civilization and prosperity, whether Roman or Venetian, have invariably come to them from the Italian side, slavery and barbarism from all other points, north or east. To-day, everywhere along the Adriatic eastern coasts, the cultured, educated, and propertied classes are essentially Italian, even in the sparsely inhabited coasts and islands of Dalmatia, where the Slovene element holds the majority.

There were, before the war, 900,000 Italians under the Dual Monarchy's sway, of whom 336,000 were in the Trentino and the balance, 662,000, divided in Carso and along the Adriatic. Three-fifths of the total population of Trieste (230,000) and 50 per cent. of the other three important cities of Gorizia, Gradisca, and Fiume are all Italians. This was the situation before the war, notwithstanding the drastic pressure, both civil and military, brought to bear on the majority by the Dual Monarchy since her defeat in 1866, by means of high-handed and harrying methods, from school matters to municipal affairs, from political persecution to the importation of Slovenes with a view to Italian denationalization.

But for this persecution an entente cordiale between Italy and the Slavs, Croats, Serbs, Slovenes, and the Albanian Kutz-Balachs would have been possible at all times—in fact, was desired by all parties on account of the community interests and the mutual benefits to be derived from such an alliance; whether by the revival of the numerous Dalmatian seaports, once prosperous, like the Republic of Ragusa during the Roman or Venetian hegemony in the Adriatic, or the natural trend of the western Balkan riparian toward it.

An Italo-Slav entente would be possible to-day under Italy's superior national necessity of renewing the hegemony in the Adriatic in order to neutralize Austria-Hungary's naval bases of Pola, Fiume, and Cattaro. One of the unwritten pledges agreed upon by the Quadruple Alliance, and which actually served as the Government's mandate from the Italian people, is that there shall be no place for "irredentism" of any kind, whether French, Polish, Roumanian, Italian, or Slav on the new map to be constructed after the war.

But between Italy and the Austro-Hungarian Monarchy to-day the problem is still essentially a military one only to be solved by the sword. We hear no more of Vienna's scheme of a triune monarchy—Austro-Hungarian-Slav. The usurpation of Bosnia-Herzegovina in 1908 wounded it, while the present invasion and terrorism in Serbia and Montenegro has altogether killed it.

What the march of Austria-Hungary to the Adriatic Sea means to Italy was summed up by the head of her Government, Signor Salandra, at Florence a few days ago, when he said: "The Adriatic is the highest concern of the country in this war." There, since the opening of hostilities, although no decisive naval battle has taken place, it is known that Italy has developed the greatest activity, with the result of bottling up the capital units of the enemy's fleet within the strongholds of Pola and Fiume and in the interior Gulf of Cattaro, twelve miles wide from Punta d'Ostra as the crow flies.

A survey of the last seven months of war between Italy and Austria also shows that beside the conquest of 1,400 square miles in the Trentano under the command of General Count Cadorna, even during the winter season and under almost tragical conditions, operations have been intense and successful in the Adriatic by the Italian Fleet under Admiral the Duke of the Abruzzi, while along the Isonzo there has been the occupation of Monfalcone and Grado, which has placed Trieste within Italian reach; a systematic destruction of all Austrian lighthouses, radio stations, and submarine bases along the Dalmatian coast, and the occupation of the Isle of Pelagosa, almost midway between Brindisi and Venice, thus facilitating the naval operations of the Allies in these waters.

As a corollary of Italian naval activities, the seizure of Avlona stands in capital light, due to the fact that it is almost opposite Taranto, the main Italian southern naval base at the point where the Adriatic is only about fifty miles wide before its outlet into the Mediterranean.

Owing to the situation, it was certainly expected at Rome that Austria-Hungary would eventually try other ways to reconquer her strategically lost naval preponderance in the Adriatic; whence her successful campaigns in Serbia and Montenegro, undertaken with the assistance of her Allies, to-day also interested in the Adriatic question, as against Italy's supremacy, but at different angles, viz., according to their separate national interests, and certainly discounting the consequences of the present march of the Austrian army from Scutari to Durazzo and of the Bulgarian army from Monastir in the direction of Avlona.

So that, as a strong Italian army of defence has been concentrated in Albania within the last two months, under command of General Ameglio, the successful leader in the Libya operations and the subsequent commander at Rhodes, it is obvious that the first great clash between Italy and Austria-Hungary for the supremacy of the Adriatic may now be looked for at any moment.

JANITOR OF SOUTH CENTRAL ENLISTING

Board of Education Accepts Mr. Jos. Crowe's Resignation Without Month's Notice.

A letter to the Board of Education last night from Mr. Joseph Crowe, 276 Brock street, janitor of the South Central School, conveyed his resignation. He said he had offered his services for Overseas Service, and expected to be called at any time. Mr. Hill moved, seconded by Mr. Gordon that his resignation be accepted without the usual month's notice, and the appointment of his successor be referred to the Committee on Appointments. Carried. There is also a vacancy at the Queen Alexandra School as the result of the resignation of Mr. W. H. Wilson. Mr. Andrew A. Torrance has been acting during Mr. Wilson's illness. For these two vacancies there are already three applications:

Boston Mass Meeting Applauds Anti-German Sentiment.

BOSTON, Feb. 1.—"Let us do what we can to bring about a rupture of all diplomatic relations between our own Republic and these foes of mankind, and let us fearlessly await whatever danger this, our duty as Americans, may entail upon us, upon our land, and upon our posterity," said Professor Josiah H. Royce of Harvard at a great mass meeting in Tremont Temple.

The words rosed the audience to whirlwind enthusiasm. The meeting was called to consider America's duty in the war, and besides Professor Royce, the speakers were Professor William E. Hocking of Harvard, Professor William R. Thayer of Harvard, and Robert Bacon, former Ambassador to France. Dr. Richard C. Cabot presided, and the sentiment of the meeting was "support the Allies at all cost." Mr. Bason declared that it was the duty of the United States Government to protest against the invasion of Belgium.

Resolutions, which were drawn by ex-Attorney General Herbert Parker, protested against all efforts to shut off exports of munitions, and opposed any policy which represented America as afraid to protest wrongs or as resisting, even at the risk of lives, to protect its flag.

PRICE OF RADIUM TAKES BIG DROP

War Brings Value Down to $9,000,000 a Pound.

WASHINGTON, January 31.—More than $90,000,000 a pound would be the price asked for radium were that quantity of the valuable metal available and for sale at one time. Late in 1915 there was sold in this country one and one-tenth grams of radium (element) at the rate of $120,000 a gram, according to a report recently issued by the United States Geological Survey.

The entire output of the United States last year, however, was only six grams, or about 1-7th of a pound avoirdupois. The European war caused a great slump in the production of radium as in 1914 there were 12.5 grams produced.

"The United States has the largest known radium-bearing deposits in the world," says the Geological Survey, "but the market for radium is mostly in Europe, for although Americans like to feel that they are sufficiently progressive to take hold of and use to the full new discoveries, inventions and processes, yet the European manufacturities and hospitals have been buying and utilizing most of the radium produced.

As a result of the collapse of the radium market mining of radium bearing ores except for such work as was necessary to hold claims, was nearly stopped.

BARNS AND STOCK DESTROYED BY FIRE

South Dummer Farmer Suffers a Heavy Loss

Mr. William Chamberlain of South Dummer, suffered a very heavy loss on Friday last when his barns were burned, together with the contents and stock, including 20 head of cattle and 3 horses. Implements, waggons and grain were also lost.

We understand that there was some $1,500 insurance, which would not much more than cover the loss of the live stock.

The fire occurred about 2.15 o'clock in the afternoon. Mr. Chamberlain was at work some distance away at the time and hastened to the fire with a number of the neighbors but the flames had gained too much headway to save anything.

Before their arrival Mrs. Chamberlain managed to open one of the barn doors, and get one of the horses out.

The house was also in danger for a time. The cause of the fire is unknown. Deep sympathy is felt for Mr. and Mrs. Chamberlain in their loss.—Norwood Register.

The New York Stock Market

Summary of To-day's Activities on the New York Stock Exchange

Special to The Examiner:

NEW YORK, Feb. 3.—Fractional gains were made by many of the active stocks at the opening of the stock exchange to-day. Studebaker was up 1 1-4 points at 151 1-4; Erie led the railroads with an initial gain of 1-2 a point, and Baldwin advanced to 115; U. S. steel opened at 88 1-2.

Prices moved up until shortly after 1 o'clock and dropped back an hour later; steel which sold at 84 3-8 at one o'clock, had lost its gain at 2 o'clock. Crucible made a high of 80 1-2, and later sold at 79 5-8. Willis overland sold at 232 up 14 at 2.30, on reports of increased business.

CROOKED TRAIL OF SELFISH POLITICS IN BERLIN (ONT.) AFFAIR

STRATFORD, Feb. 3.—Following a big recruiting meeting in the city hall last night, at which Addresses were given by Major J. C. Mahon, K.C., of the 21st Battalion, Principal C. A. Mayberry, of the public schools, and by Prof. Reithdorf, a statement was read by Prof. Reithdorf in which he charged that he had been refused permission to hold recruiting meetings in Berlin, though his efforts had been endorsed by Col. Lochead, of the 118th Battalion.

Col. Lochead, said Prof. Reithdorf, was favorable to having him lecture there and elsewhere throughout the county, but the Recruiting League at Berlin, of which Mr. Williams is the chairman, refused to have anything to do with him. This action was taken alleges Prof. Reithdorf, after a consultation with W. G. Weichel, the Conservative M.P., the reason being that Mr. Weichel was afraid of losing the pro-German vote.

Further Reithdorf further stated that Mr. Weichel had seen to it that no alien registry was established in Berlin, knowing that if there were many of the Berlin voters would have to report and confess that they were not naturalized.

Prof. Reithdorf's statements were received without enthusiasm by the audience.

Voice of The People

To the Editor of The Examiner,—

Dear Sir,—I am glad to see that due recognition is given to the recruits who present themselves for medical examination, but who are rejected as being physically unfit. Care should be taken not to put them on the same plane with those who know, or have reason to believe, that they will be rejected before presenting themselves for examination. Yours, etc.,

KHAKI.

England Makes Strong Yarns and Textiles From Paper Pulp

LONDON, Jan. 10.—London has, no doubt, added many new industries to its list since the war began, but few, perhaps, of greater importance and fascinating interest than that of paper spinning and weaving.

I have had the opportunity of seeing some wonderful things in the way of yarns and textiles manufactured from paper pulp, and also of seeing a demonstration plant at work spinning threads of paper into twine fine enough for gas mantles and strong enough to hold a ship.

This wonderland is to be found in Southwark and at the works of the Textile Engineering Company, which is now supplying British made machinery, made according to its patents, for the manufacture of every kind of thing imaginable which formerly was made of hemp and jute and flax.

"The things you see around you," said Mr. George Senton Mills, the managing director of the company, "are new, and yet they are not new. What I mean is that the people of China, in the days of Confucius, probably twisted a strip of paper in the fingers absent-mindedly and found it had remarkable textile strength, but what we have done is to make that idea into a practical proposition.

"The Germans, with their faculty for imitation, have spun paper for years, but they never could spin it fast enough to make it pay. We now have found means of spinning the paper or four or five times faster than the Germans and of producing the goods four per cent. cheaper."

Mr. Mills then showed me around the works and demonstrated all the processes, from the raw material, which in this case is a reel of fine Canadian wood pulp, to the highly finished fancy wall coverings in pattern and colour.

The paper is first cut into strips according to the width of yarn or rope strand required, then twisted on frames very similar to those used in cotton or woollen manufacture, and afterward, by means of spools of weft and warp, the material is transferred to looms which will weave anything plain or fancy, ribbed or patterned.

Incidentally, the invention will solve the great problem of how to make up the supply of packing string for paper is now proved to be capable of carrying any reasonable weight.

a short time. Pte. Rae is also under treatment. Sergt. Cooper, who is suffering from a terrible attack of the German gas, is somewhat improved, but mends slowly. It is hoped that his fine constitution will eventually carry him through, but it will be indeed a long time until recovery.

Soldiers' Aid.

One of the functions of the Soldiers' Aid is to find employment for the men returned. Taking up work depends on the physical state of the man. Those partially disabled have gone through an experience that in a civilian would put work out of mind for at least an extended period. So we need not look to see these men climbing into situations until they are somewhat physically fit to hold up their end in a fair way. Several have returned, discharged say, for cause. These have melted into civil life, as usual, and have no doubt found employment. But while work is a mighty good thing to have and to hold, we must not expect too much. Situations have been found for men, recently, which they were physically unable to fill. Take a case in point. A caretaker is required at the Armouries. At first glance that would seem to be a good place for a returned man. The authorities will give every consideration to any such, and have said so. But when it is considered that the caretaker may have to shovel a couple of tons of coal into the furnace each day, and carry up from the basement the resultant ashes as the Armouries is no place for a partially disabled man to extend himself in. Not by a jugfull. In the meantime the committee are enquiring for a soldier likely to fill the bill and have him apply.

Position Open.

In the course of the work employers of labour, shops, factories, and such industries will be asked to notify the office of any vacancies, and if any help is needed. All will be registered and the men at once told. At the Friday night meeting further details will be perfected to get the system in line. In the meantime a couple of caretakers are required for Ward schools. The Committee of the Board of Education having this matter in hand has been approached and asked to give preference to any applications made by returned men. Any who wish to apply may do so to Mr. W. H. Hill, Chairman of the Committee. It was pointed out that there are boilers to be attended and taken in charge at the schools, so some knowledge of heating appliances is desirable, if not necessary. It would be a good start if a couple of men could handle these jobs.
